STORM OFF THE ATLANTIC COAST TAKES TOLL OF LIVES

HAS TRIUMPH IN HAMILTON

Tumultuous Cheers and Applause Greet Meighen's Protection Arguments.

ALL HECKLING FAILED

Interruptions Elicited Convincing Replies from the Prime Minister.

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 31.—Premier Meighen did not need to labor to convince the vast majority of the 6,000 electors whom he faced at his meeting in the Arena here last night, that the protective principle should be retained in the Canadian Customs tariff. Nor was that a surprising circumstance, in view of the manner in which Hamilton has grown in stature as an industrial centre under the protective system. Here are located many branch factories of United States' industries. Those factories were established because the customs tariff made manufacturing in Canada more profitable than importation into Canada. In them Hamilton workers have found employment. Here, too, is located a steel industry which by reason of the protection accorded it, has competed in the Canadian market with the much greater steel industries of the United States.

The Prime Minister, it is true, was interrupted at one stage of his address by questions apparently put by a follower of Hon. T. A. Crerar, but they simply elicited replies which served to point and drive home his arguments. They did more, they aroused the spirit of the great majority of his audience who responded by tumultuous cheers and applause to every hit he scored. To one elector who wished to know the policy the Government would adopt in dealing with the duties on agricultural implements, which are manufactured here, Mr. Meighen promptly and firmly replied that the Government would impose a tariff sufficient to enable this country to make implements.

LAPOINTE AS FRENCH LEADER

May Be Logical Successor of Laurier, but What About Gouin?

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—(By Canadian Press)—Ernest Lapointe, B.A., L.L.D. K.C., member of the House of Commons for Quebec East, the seat made historic by many as the logical successor of that great statesman especially as regards the leadership of French Canadian representatives in the House. Since his entry into parliamentary life in 1904 he has won for himself a strong position in the Liberal ranks as an orator and clever politician.

Mr. Lapointe first went to the Dominion House of Commons in 1904 when he was elected by acclamation in the riding of Kamouraska, succeeding H. G. Carroll, solicitor general, who was appointed to the bench. He was re-elected at the general elections of 1904 1908, 1911 and 1917. In 1919 Mr. Lapointe resigned his seat to contest the riding of Quebec East and made vacant by the death of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and was elected by a majority of 3,939 over F. Galibois in the bye election of October 27 of that year. He will again contest Quebec East in the forthcoming federal elections and is regarded as one of the sure victors by the Liberal Party.

Mr. Lapointe is a Roman Catholic in religion and a barrister by profession. He was educated at Rimouski College and Laval University. He is town attorney for Fraserville, Quebec, and crown prosecutor for the district of Kamouraska. Mr. Lapointe was created a King's counsel by the Quebec Government in July 1908.

Mr. Lapointe is known in the House of Commons as one of the orators of the Liberal party and his speeches, both in English and French are usually the signal for a full house and crowded galleries. Mr. Lapointe made several forceful speeches last session especially those dealing with the status of the National Catholic Union. The feeling is freely expressed by members of all parties that he will go far in parliamentary life.

MANDATE GIVEN PREMIER IN IRISH NEGOTIATIONS

Overwhelming Victory in House of Commons for British Premier.

LLOYD GEORGE WINS

Vote of Confidence Ten to One in Government's Favor.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—"This House of Commons must either trust its negotiators or replace them. I want to know and my colleagues want to know whether the House of Commons wants us to try to make peace with Ireland.

"If it does not want us to do it, there will at any rate be one glad man who will go to his sovereign and hand in his resignation. That is my position."

Standing before the House, which was crowded to suffocation, with beads of perspiration upon his forehead, emphasizing each syllable with a dramatic thump upon the Commons table which shook the historic mace, Lloyd George took up the challenge of the die-hards. They had attempted to spike the negotiations.

The Premier scored in one hour and ten minutes of tense and dramatic speaking, a telling vindication of the Government's attitude. It was one of the most spectacular victories in the history of the British Parliament on the Empire's sorest question. The vote was 439 to 43—more than 10 to 1 in favor of the Government.

Herbert Asquith followed the Premier, announcing that he would support the Government in every possible way in spirit and substance. He declared that the past policy of the Government had been a failure so far as Ireland was concerned, but that the Government now has its eyes open to the realities of the situation.

Supporters of the motion to censure the Government, declared Mr. Asquith, appeared to have learned nothing from past motions of a similar character, which had been unsound in substance and impolitic in point of time. The Government now is doing right by pursuing a wise and statesmanlike course which it ought to have pursued earlier.

He ridiculed the idea that the Irish conference could be held if the proposals and concessions were published in advance. Such a course, he said, could only lead to disaster.

"Negotiations must be conducted with a genuine desire to reach a settlement, which will make the Empire secure," said the former Premier.

FOOLS ASK QUESTIONS; WISE MEN TRY TO ANSWER

Some of the hecklers who infest political meetings should remember the fate of the darkey down South:

Said the Darkey Parson—"When de Lawd made de fust white man he put him on de fence to dry."

Said Hector Heckler—"Who made de fence?"

Darkey Parson—"Put dat nigger out. Two or tree eish questions will break up de whole teology of de world."

Moral—Any fool can ask questions, but it takes a wise man to answer them.

LADY LAURIER DIED AT OTTAWA

Widow of Sir Wilfrid Laurier Dies After Short Illness.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—Lady Laurier died peacefully at 11-45 this morning. Through the night the attending doctors expressed the opinion that the end was near.

Before her marriage she was Miss Zoe Lafontaine of Montreal, she resided in Ottawa for over a quarter of a century and no one was better known in the capital. She was not a public woman and like most of the great wives of history, she contributed to the success of her late husband, great assistance out of which might be termed "a wise heart".

The late Sir Wilfrid Laurier paid many glowing tributes to his wife and life-long helpmate. Theirs was truly an ideal marriage, except for the fact that they had no children. On Sir Wilfrid's seventieth birthday Liberal members gave him a complimentary dinner at which he told of the part Lady Laurier played in his life. At that time he placed himself at the disposal of the Liberal party because of the position taken by his wife whom he described as "a good soldier" When his party was defeated in 1911 she had told him: "Wilfrid you must keep the leadership, you must fight on." Lady Laurier was 80 years of age.

NEGOTIATIONS RESUMED

London, Nov. 1.—In response to a summons from the Premier, Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith, representing the Dail Eireann, reached Downing street at eleven o'clock this morning to resume negotiations with members of the British Cabinet. The meeting lasted thirty-five minutes, after which another committee meeting was held.

TEN YEARS FOR ROBBER

Windsor, Nov. 1.—Ten years in Kingston Penitentiary was the sentence passed upon Russel Robinson today for his part in the robbery of the Merchants Bank at Petitecote last July when a band of five secured eighteen thousand dollars. He was also given three years to run concurrently for the robbery of the home of Felix Laforet in March.

BANDITS ACTIVE AT KINGSTON

Steal Considerable Jewellery, Escaping in High Powered Motor Car.

At 3.30 this morning the local police received a telephone message from Kingston that a jewellery robbery had taken place in that city during the night and that jewellery of considerable value had been taken. Three men, well armed, were implicated in the robbery and had made a successful getaway in a high-powered motor car. The Kingston authorities were unable to give any description of the men, but stated that the auto was driven westward. The police here, upon receipt of the message, kept a vigilant watch, but it was evident the car did not come in this direction.

FOUR HELD AT ST. CATHARINES

Were Armed and Had Complete Safe-Cracking Outfit in Car.

St. Catharines, Oct. 31.—St. Catharines police are holding four men, and think the capture may turn out to be an important one. The police suspect the quartette may be the robbers who have been robbing banks in Ontario. A most extensive outfit of up-to-date tools for cracking safes and breaking into places was found in their possession.

The four men were arrested early this morning. Sergeant Bitt and Police Constable Shannon came on them with a big touring car on Lake street, where they were changing a tire. The men, taken by surprise, put up no fight, though the police say they had guns on them as well as the full safe-cracking outfit.

This afternoon detectives from Niagara Falls, New York, came here and had a look at the men. They recognized them all, they said. One of them the American officers said has done three terms in Auburn State Prison for burglary. They advised the local authorities to put a close guard on them. The four men will be up in police court to-morrow morning. Bank employes where robberies have taken place will likely be brought here to try and identify the prisoners. The fact that the car used by the robbers who robbed the bank at Wyoming recently fished out of the Niagara River at Chippewa makes it look as if the men held might be the Wyoming robbers, police said last night.

HAVOC WROUGHT BY GALE ON NEWFOUNDLAND COAST

Heavy Damage to Shipping—Steamer to Rescue of Schooner in Distress.

VESSEL IS DRIVEN BACK

Mountainous Seas—Properties Suffer From High Water.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 1.—According to information available here, hundreds of thousands of dollars' damage has been done to shipping along the Newfoundland east coast by a hurricane which has been sweeping in from the Atlantic and still continues. Hundreds of small fishing craft were sailing from the fishing stations of the Labrador coast to their home ports when the tempest broke, and what toll, if any, has been taken of them, is not known.

A southern shore message reports a small schooner with four men driven out to sea from Cape Hayden, near the graveyard of the Red Cross liner Florizel lost a few years ago with nearly 100 passengers and crew. The steamboat Cabot was sent to the rescue of the distressed vessel, but mountainous seas, which ran from here to Cape Spear, drove the little steamer back. The revenue cutter Daisy, at Placentia Bay, has been wired to attempt a rescue from the other side of Cape Race.

Stories coming in from the outports tell of enormous damage to shore property from flooding seas. Scores of wharves and building belonging to fishermen have been swept away. In one section the Reid-Newfoundland Railway roadbed has been washed away for five miles. Motor cars are being used to transfer passenger across this and other gaps.

Telegraph lines are down in every direction, and incoming news is consequently fragmentary.

High seas continue to run through the narrows of St. John's harbor and shipping has been compelled to leave the wharves and to anchor.

KINDLY FARMER HAS SWIFT REWARD

Kingston, Oct. 31.—A Stoco farmer named Rush gave a man who had a hard luck story a lift in his wagon while on his way home from Tweed, and taking him home and gave him a meal and then put him up for the night in his loft, as he did not have an extra bed in his house. During the night the stranger heard a noise in the granary and on making an investigation found two men in the act of loading up their wagon with grain. When he came upon them they made off, leaving the horse and wagon, and have not yet returned for it. Mr. Rush was saved a serious loss as a result of befriending the man with the hard luck story.

EDMONTON CITY COMMISSIONERS FLAY SINGLE TAX

Toronto Financial Post.

In Eastern Canada the exponents of the single tax doctrine are very active, and strenuous attempts are being made to have this form of taxation adopted in Ontario municipalities. In every case the lessons that have been learned in Canada itself where the single tax has been given a practical trial are ignored.

How unworkable the single tax proved in Western Canada is emphasized by the special report of assessment prepared by the City Commissioners of Edmonton. The report has also this to say of the single tax:

"In Western Canada during the boom period a new method of taxation was adopted. The old and tried principles of taxation were abandoned and the sound advice of economists with historical reputation was ignored, and sometimes even scoffed at. Today the penalties have to be paid, a total readjustmnt has to be made, and every municipality realizes that it cannot finance on the fads of theoretical economists.

"Practically all the cities in Western Canada adopted the system of raising or endeavoring to raise the greater part of their revenue from a tax on land alone. In some cities the assessment on improvements was reduced to a minimum and in a few instances was entirely eliminated. The nearer a city went towards the adoption of the single tax the greater are its financial difficulties today, and its arrears of taxes are proportionately higher than in other cities.

The arguments in favor of its adoption were:

"(a) That it was the simplest method of raising revenue.

"(b) That it would induce owners of land to develop their property.

"(c) That it was the only fair and just method of taxation because the value of the land is entirely due to the presence and expenditure of the people.

The Results.

"What are the actual results?

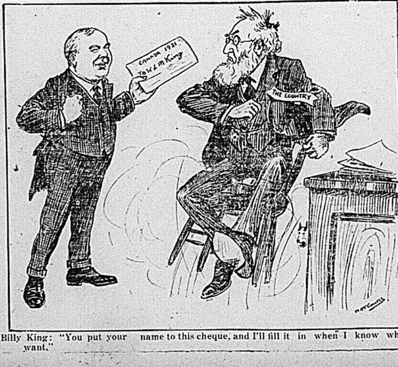
"(a) It has proven to be the most difficult method of raising revenue and is largely responsible for enormous arrears of taxes.

"(b) It did induce owners to develop their property, so much so, that property was developed beyond the normal demand, with the result that increased taxation has been incurred, excessive capital expenditures have been made, and the supposed benefits of the tax have acted like a boomerang against the owners.

"(c) It did not prevent the speculation in land as, while it was in operation Western Canada was passing through the greatest land speculation in its history. In fact, it stimulated speculation as, through the supposed advantage of inducing the owner to develop his property, an unhealthy prosperity was created.

"(d) It has resulted in the confiscation by taxation of a large amount of property. This may be considered a good argument by the single taxers in favor of the tax, but they do not say, if the tax is to be continued, where the city will obtain the revenue.

"If, instead of adopting the single tax, municipalities in Western Canada had adopted an unearned increment tax, and used the proceeds for financing capital expenditures, there is very little doubt that few if any of the cities would have outstanding debts at the present time."



Billy King: "You put your name to this cheque, and I'll fill it in when I know what I want."

LEST WE FORGET

The Dominion Government Has Not Neglected the Interests of the Men Who Fought.

ARTICLE NO. 6—Civil Service Appointments—Dependents Returned.

(By a Great War Veteran)

Up to June 30, 31,333 returned soldiers have been appointed to vacancies in the Civil Service. The Government has taken every measure within its power to ensure that the men who served Canada so well overseas are given a preference over civilian applicants in all new appointments made by the Civil Service Commission.

The Civil Service Act has been amended from time to time along this line. In February, 1918, an Order-in-Council was passed providing that in competitive examinations for the Civil Service overseas men who are able to pass their examinations are placed above civilian applicants irrespective of the marks they obtained. That is to say, if the returned soldier is qualified for the position he seeks, he will be given the position even over a civilian applicant who has obtained highest standing in the examinations.

The amendment further provides that the legislation prescribing an age limit and physical requirement for successful applicants should not apply when the applicant is a returned soldier, provided, however, that the commission does not find his age or physical condition too great a handicap. Another thing was the waiving of the usual examination fees in the case of returned soldiers.

Preference to War Widows

This was a great advantage in favor of the returned man,, but the Government was not satisfied to let the Act rest there. The preference was given to the widows of those who died on active service, or as a result of war service.

An amendment was passed enabling the commission to make permanent certain temporary employees who had been appointed prior to November 10, 1919.

In the last Session of Parliament a further amendment was passed which gives a preference over all to disabled soldiers who are applicants for a position, all being able to pass a satisfactory examination, the former soldier who is receiving a pension by reason of disability incurred by war service is placed first in the list, the physically fit returned soldier is placed second and the civilian applicant third.

In making appointments to the Civil Service, the Commission is guided by the advice of a representative of the G.W.V.A., Dominion Command. The Civil Service examiners who test the qualifications of the applicants are themselves nearly all returned men.

Sits For Soldiers

While every effort is made to find a returned soldier for a position in the Civil Service, this does not mean that efficiency is sacrificed to this principle. The representatives of the G. W. V. A. who are on the advisory Board have on more than one occasion recommended the appointment of a civilian over a returned soldier, when it appeared that the soldier applicant was not fully qualified for the position.

The preference given returned soldiers in the Civil Service is one of the many proofs that the Government has been generous in its treatment of returned men.

Dependents Returned

Grouped with the above features we place the subject of assistance given by the Government to re-unite families after the war. Forty-eight thousand dependents of returned men were overseas, many of them wives and children who had braved the perils of the ocean to be near their loved ones when the fight was on. Many others were was brides of the British Isles and France. It was decided by the Government to bring all these home at public expense. The cost of this service to the people of Canada has been $2,800,000. This included rail transportation from Canadian port to destination in Canada. Every effort was made to provide comforts for these dependents during the journey. The Department of Immigration and Colonization provided nurses and conductoresses, and at points along the route food was furnished. Funds were supplied to the needy by the Canadian Patriotic Fund and other voluntary organizations.

To recapitulate:

The six articles in this series have dealt with:

Gratuities—An expenditure of $164,000,000 in providing a gratuity of $100 a month for a married private and $70 a month for an unmarried private for six months. This was granted to enable returned men to get on their feet.

Pensions—Annual liability $33,000,000; the most generous scale of pensions of any belligerent country.

Vocational Training—More than $100,000,000 spent by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment to refit disabled men young boys who enlisted under the age of 18.

Land Settlement—Nearly 27,000 men established on the land, Government loans being granted to the extent of $85,000,000.

Insurance—Returned men, no matter what their physical condition given insurance at unusually low rates. No war victim need leave his family unprotected.

Civil Service—31,333 returned soldiers appointed by Civil Service Commission.

Dependents Returned—48,000 dependents brought home at a cost of $2,800,000.

Government Liberal

These are some of the main features of our returned soldier legislation. The Government explored every field and gave full consideration to suggestions from whatever source looking to the betterment of the condition of the ex-service men. It cannot be said that any man with a just claim was not given the fullest opportunity to present his case. During the sessions of Parliament a special committee on re-establishment problems sat almost daily hearing evidence and probing deep into every phase of the subject. The committee was composed of men from all parties, under the chairmanship of Mr. Hume Cronyn, and there was no man on that committee who did not have the broadest sympathies for the aims of our ex-soldiers. The desire on the part of all seemed to be to keep Canada in front of all belligerent countries in liberally providing for the men who fought.

THE ADOLESCENT SCHOOL ATTENDANCE ACT

In 1919, the Ontario Legislature passed what is known as the Adolescent School Attendance Act of 1919. This Act requires the attendance at school of adolescents or young people between the ages of fourteen and eighteen unless excused as provided for in the Act. These Adolescents are divided by the Act into two classes, namely those between fourteen and sixteen, and those between sixteen and eighteen. It is provided in the Act that the various clauses shall come into effect by the proclamation of the Lieutenant Governor.

By such proclamation, the clause affecting the class between fourteen and sixteen came into effect on September 1st, 1921.

In the discharge of official duties, I find considerable uncertainty as to the requirements of the Act, and as a matter of information I would point out to those concerned that no adolescent between the ages of fourteen and sixteen can now be legally employed by anyone between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. unless said adolescent holds an employment certificate issued by the school attendance officer of the municipality. Nor may a parent employ such adolescent during these hours without a home permit similarly issued. A violation of this Act incurs a penalty of $5 for the first offence and $25 for a second or subsequent offence.

This clause applies to all adolescents between the ages named whether they have been employed before September or not. To continue so employed they must obtain the required employment certificate or home permit, as the case may be, or their employers are liable for the penalties imposed by the Act.

ALL OVER BUT THE CHEERING

Hon. Mackenzie King is Able to Patronize Farmers.

Bolton, Ont., Oct. 31.—In the past few days though Hon. Mackenzie King, the Liberal chieftain, has made many campaign speeches, he still has made but the one. It is a reverberating affair, tingling with challenges and decorated here and there with little touches of local color which appear to be highly acceptable to the big audiences which he is drawing. As to those challenges, the Liberal chief has left the impression that he is travelling from one end of Canada to the other in the hope of finding some man or woman who will dare to get up in one of his audiences and argue the Conservative party with him. So any gilt-tongued Conservative, looking for a battle royal, needs only to camp somewhere along the trail of Hon. Mr. King and give just a little reason why he thinks the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen has a right to return to Parliament. There are other challenges more or less broad, such as the "dare" to any person to show that he ever wobbled on his tariff stand and, though the Liberal leader speeds right past the challenges as soon as they are made, he is accepting the silences of his Liberal audiences as indicating that there is no person in Canada who dares to take up with him the issue of the right of the Meighen Government to exist.

If any battling Conservative should ever hear of these challenges and should pitch his camp across the Liberal's trail, there is still plenty of room for variety in this wordy campaign. The opportunity is provided this week at Guelph, Stratford, Sarnia, London, St. Thomas and even in Toronto.

North York Easy

Apart from the flinging of challenges, Hon. Mr. King appears to be making remarkable progress in his campaign. Some days ago when he first entered the North York riding, it was not publicly known how the voting would go, but after two days of campaigning among his constituents, Hon. Mr. King was able to announce with great confidence that the riding had been won and that they had the distinct honor of electing a premier for the first time in the history of the riding and having passed on to Peel county, the political situation took on a new phase, for the Liberal leader was able to announce right in the face of a farmer riding that he already has sufficient of a majority on December 6 to enable him to hang out the "no compromise" sign. So, now that it is settled that Mr. King will not need to compromise or have any truck trade with Agrarians, Labor or any other group who may be able to grab off a few of the unimportant seats which the Liberal does not want, all that is left of the campaign is to determine the majorities.

Loves the Farmers

The farmers here like the farmers in North York were informed that the reason Mr. King is opposing them is because he loves them so. They, like other farmers, have been informed by Hon. Mr. King that it really would not be good for them to get the political throne for which they are fighting, that as a matter of fact they are like the small child who does not know what is good for him, that they must not have their cherished cake at all, but that they must be content with the more wholesome political diet which Hon. Mr. King has reserved for them. Now of course it is all due to the fact that there is a plot on and a Tory plot at that, for the farmers are merely being used by the Tories to pull the chestnuts off the fire and that isn't right at all, for Hon. Mr. King wants the chestnuts himself.

So the Liberals' plea was that the Agrarians should waken up to the fact that this plot is being hatched with themselves as the victims, and that if they will only pull the chestnuts off the fire for him instead of for the Tories, then perhaps there will be enough left for him to pass them around a few.

Even should the astonishing thing happen and the Agrarians waken on the morning of December 7 with the surprise of political leadership in the grip of their young fingers, it would not be a bit of good to them anyway. They might go at the tariff wall with all the zeal of youth, but of what avail would it be for them to start tearing down the wall? They might even go to the extreme of blowing a hole right through the breastworks, but it would not do them a bit of good, for just across from them there would be that dignified Tory senate who would say to them in so many words. "Now, boys, you have had your fun, but put it all back again. So the appeal of Hon. Mr. King to the farmers of Peel was, "don't be tricked by the Tories, back me."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"SOME GIRL" WAS SOME SHOW

"Some Girl" at Griffin's Monday evening drew a large and appreciative audience. There was plenty of pep in this tuneful operetta, lots of dancing, singing and funny stuff. If the laughs laughed at the coon comedian and Tilly Watts, the man-woman, could have been canned they would have sufficed for the entire winter. "Some Girl" is not a great show but it is a good all round entertainment which evidently met with the approval of the majority of the audience, judging from the laughter and applause. The costumes were gorgeous and varied and in some cases nearly as scanty as a one-piece bathing suit or a ball gown a la Rosedale, one costume in particular being apparently made out of the tinfoil from a cigarette box, quite clinging and expressive what there was of it.

"OUT OF THE SNOWS" STORY OF NORTHWEST

For the photoplay patron who likes action and variety in his screen entertainment, a trip to Griffin's to-night or Wednesday night to see the Selznick picture, "Out of the Snows" is recommended. This production in which Ralph Ince acts in the double capacity as director and leading man, has more variety of scenery and speed of action than is usually to be found in a dozen dramas.

The locale of the story is Canada, from Quebec to the Arctic. It is in the snow country that most of the action takes place. Among many novel scenes in this thrilling drama is one which depicts the destruction by fire of the fur-trading ship, "Pole Star," while ships on fire have been seen on the screen before, it is doubtful if any one has ever shown a ship frozen solid in the grip of the Arctic winter, being burned to the edge of the ice.

An unusual photographic feat in another part of the picture is that showing a man hunt in a blinding snowstorm. Anyone at all familiar with photography will appreciate the obstacles the cameraman had to overcome to secure this one shot. There is physical action galore when Ralph Ince and his six feet of brawn and muscle engages in one of the snappiest screen fights seen in many a day. It is a long time since Mr. Ince has been seen as a leading man, and his return will be warmly welcomed by those who like good, lively pictures with a "punch." Mr. Ince's leading woman in this picture is Zeena Keefe. Ruth Coburn has also a prominent role in the picture.

"The Slicker," a two-reel Sunshine comedy, a new chapter of the mystery serial "Vanishing Trails" and Pathe Review are also being exhibited on the same program.

Unemployed Returned Soldier Receives Notice That He Has Been Left Fortune.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

Youngstown, Ohio, Nov. 1.—Working in the parks as one of the unemployed, C. P. Virtus, a former Canadian soldier, received a letter from Edmonton, Alberta, informing him that he had become heir to his father's estate of $50,000.

Britain thinks Soviet offer to pay pre-war debts not enough.

If You Have $300 or More Read This

It is well to have money in a Savings Bank and get 3% or 4% on it. Nobody will find fault with your prudence.

But when you consider that Governments are borrowing money at 6% and higher and that there are enterprises in which you can invest with equal safety and get 8% on your money, surely it is the height of prudence to look into such investment offerings.

A case in point, and one worthy of your immediate attention, is the 8% Convertible Debentures of The Mount Royal Hotel Company, Limited, Montreal.

This enterprise is the largest of its kind in the British Empire. There is no city in Canada where the need of such an hotel is greater, and where the earning powers of the hotel is more certain than in Montreal.

Montreal is our greatest ocean port; it is our greatest transcontinental terminus and the centre of all Canadian tourist traffic from the Eastern and Southern United States. For these reasons, then, we recommend those who have the money to consider immediately the investment of a portion of it in the 8% Convertible Debentures of The Mount Royal Hotel Company, Limited.

By all the estimates which the United Hotels Company of America have prepared, the earnings will be not only ample to pay the interest on the Debentures, but there should be a very substantial margin available for dividends upon the Common Stock which is now given as a bonus. For, remember, King Edward Hotel Common Stock (another United Hotels enterprise) is now paying dividends at the rate of 10% per annum, although it, too, was also given away as a bonus three years ago.

In short, you may invest in the 8% Convertible Debentures of The Mount Royal Hotel Company, Limited, with the assurance that your money is safe—your 8% interest certain and your prospects good for a nice profit from your Common Stock Bonus.

The price of the Debentures is par, carrying a 30% Common Stock Bonus. Send your order now or write for full particulars. Address:

ROTARY ADOPTS ALOUETTE

Graduates From English to French Music With Apalling Results.

Having mastered all the songs in English Billy Doyle has started the Rotary songsters on the French ballads and at the weekly luncheon Monday put them over the jumps with ALOUETTE. Some of the best singers of the club were soon sunk with all on board when Alouette started, and the last seen of Sandy he was disappearing under the table on a wave of tea plumeral. Scottie came to the rescue being from Brittainy, and with the help of Rule Brittania Burrows and Jimy Bone's fine Italian voice, and Vince Doyle's Scotch tenor, soon had Alouette roped, hog tied and eating out of their hands. In case any reader might not be familiar with Alouette and upon suddenly hearing a maddened mob of rotating rotary songsters crackling up the night with je te plumeral, imagine that some bug house had broken loose, here it is in all its native beauty, unadorned:

ALOUETTE (A flat)

Alouette, gentil' alouette,
Alouette, je te plumerai.

Solo—Je te plumerai la tete. Je, te plumerai la tete.
Chorus—Je te plumerai la tete. Je te plumerai la tete.

Solo—Et la tete.
Chorus—Et la tete.

Solo—Alouette.
Chorus—Alouette. Ah!
Et les yeur, et la tet, alouette. Ah!
Et le bec, et les yeux, et la tet, alouette. Ah!
Et le cou, et le bec, et les yeux, et le tet, alouette. Ah!
Et les ail's, et le cou, et le bec, et les yeux, et le tet, alouette. Ah!
Et les patt's, et les ail's, et le cou, et le bec, et les youx, et le tet, alouete. Ah!
Et le dos, et le spatt's, et les ail's, et le cou, et le bec, et les youx, et le tet, alouette. Ah!
Et la queue, et le dos, et les patt's, et les ail's et le cou, et le bec, et les youx, et le tet, alouette. Ah!

President Gordon Moffatt was in the chair for the business session and for the intellectual feast which followed the prunes Rotarian Stephen Burrows did the honors, and introduced the speaker of the day, Rev. C. R. Carscallen, recently from China, as a Bay of Quinte boy born and bred back of Napanee, and don't you forget it, said Stephen.

China's Future

China's troubles and tribulations were graphically depicted by Mr. Carscallen who is engaged in educational work in China and is a professor in Union University at Chengtu. Thus far China has been a juicy morsel for the powers of the world to lunch on, said the speaker, but there is a new national movement coming up which may result in a new and greater China which must be reckoned with. If China with its four hundred million inhabitants becomes a militaristic and joins the federation of Japan, Siberia, Korea, etc., the East against the West, the problem is not very inviting. The question is shall Britain exploit China or assist her. China needs help to emerge from its ignorance and helplessness and the nation that proves a friend to China now will have a powerful ally later on. The address was intensely interesting and gave a close-up picture of the China of to-day, and the probable China of tomorrow, which is now in process of formation and has been largely inspired and influenced by the Christian religion, whether it so appears on the surface or not.

A vote of thanks accompanied by appreciative words by Rotarians Doug Ramsay and Vince Doyle was an evidence of the interest taken.

Boys' Work

Rotarian Harry Ackerman reported that the survey of boy life in Belleville would be undertaken and said that every member of the Rotary Club would be expected to assist.

Rotarian George Graham spoke of the need of gymnastics and athletic training in the public schools and moved a motion, seconded by Rotarian Ed. Baker, passing this on to the Board of Education for action.

D. V. Sinclair, guest of Ed. Baker, addressed the Rotarians along lines of civic betterment, boy life and educational problems and said that the Board of Education would be glad to equip the public schools with gymnasiums but it must be remembered that to include a modern gymnasium in new school plans meant an increase in cost of about twenty-five thousand dollars. For the present an effort was being made to link up the schools with the Y.M.C.A. for physical instruction. Mr. Sinclair complimented the Rotary for the fine work being done for the betterment of boy life and said that there was nothing Rotary could not do for the good of Belleville if they put their wills to it.

Rotarian Doug Ramsay read the lesson of the day which was a few puts and takes from the golf links and quite amusing.

President Moffatt announced that the next luncheon would be held on Tuesday on account of Monday being Thanksgiving Day, and that Brigadier Gen. King would be the guest of honor on that occasion.

ROMAN COLOSSEUM A PUBLIC CHURCH

The question whether the Colosseum that ancient monument of imperial Rome, where the Christian martyrs suffered death and men fought wild beasts to make a Roman holiday, is a public church has again been raised and decided. A proclamation attributed by some of the Roman newspapers to the Vatican declares that the famous building is a public church.

The point was raised recently when the Roman police prohibited the delegates to a convention of the Italian Catholic Young Men's Association from congregating in the Colosseum and holding a parade from that point to the Vatican.

The public announcement of the decision on this point recounts the history of the Colosseum from early times. It states that Popes Clement X, Clement XI, Pius V in their pontificates prohibited "further profanations of the holy ground sanctified by the blood of the martyrs." Benedict XIV in 1756, declared it to be a public church.

From 1756 to 1870, Masses have been sung regularly in the Colosseum but when Victor Emmanuel II took possession of Rome in 1870 the practice was discontinued.

During the war, the custom of holding religious services in the Colosseum was again revived. After the war, a Requiem Mass for the soldiers who died in the great war was held there.

POINTERS FOR NEW VOTERS

Procedure at Polling Places —How to Mark the Ballot.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—(By Canadian Press)—In a general election when there are a number of new voters who have not before exercised their franchise, there is usually more or less doubt in their minds as to the procedure to be followed on their arrival at a polling booth, in order that their ballots may not be wasted. For that reason, and in view of the fact that this year's general election will see, as voters, a great number of women voters who have never previously marked a ballot paper, it is perhaps fitting to describe what is necessary on the part of the voter who presents himself or herself at a polling station to vote for the candidate of his or her choice.

It is important to remember that in urban polling districts the only persons who may vote are those whose names are included in the list of voters on polling day. The procedure by which names may be placed on the lists, or other names struck off, has already been explained. In rural districts names may be added to the list on polling day where the requirements of the Act are complied with, that is the would-be voter must be sworn and must also be vouched for by someone whose name is on the list.

The wrong christian name or the misspelling of a voter's surname, or the wrong designation, or the wrong number of the voter's lot or property, are not sufficient to justify the returning officer a ballot, as long as the voter can swear that he or she is the person designated on the list. If a voter has been personated, that is, someone else has voted by claiming to be the voter in question, that voter may still obtain a ballot on taking the oath that he is the person properly entitled to vote. If a voter spoils his ballot he is entitled to receive a new one, the spoiled ballot being destroyed and the deputy returning officer making a note of it.

Interpreter

If a voter cannot understand English he is entitled to have an interpreter sworn to explain the oaths etc., to him. If a voter, however, once refuses to take the oath, he cannot again be admitted to vote. In this case the deputy returning officer is required to enter in the poll book the notation, "refused to be sworn."

Once a voter receives a ballot from the deputy returning officer he has a right to use it, whether he has been sworn or not and cannot be sworn once he has got the ballot.

A Proper Cross

Once the ballot has been received, it is important to remember that the following methods of marking ballots are good.

(1) With a proper cross with a black lead pencil on any part within the white space containing the name of the candidate.

(2) An irregular or awkward mark in the nature of a cross so long as it does not lose the form of a cross, and the lines cross at any point.

(3) With an ill-formed cross or with small lines at the end of a cross, or with a line across the centre of one of the lines of the cross, or with a curved line like the blades of an anchor.

(4) An irregular mark in the figure of a cross, so long as it does not lose the form of a cross.

(5) A cross with a line before it.

(6) A cross rightly placed with two additional crosses, one across the candidate's name and the other to the left.

(7) A double cross or two crosses.

(8) Ballot paper inadvertently torn

(9) Inadvertent marks in addition to the cross.

However, while all these markings are good and will not result in the ballot being rejected, it is much safer and simpler, to mark the ballot paper fith an unmistakeable cross, opposite the name of the candidate for whom the voter wishes to vote.

Bad Ballots

Ballots are bad which are marked as follows, it is pointed out by an authority on the Election Act.

(1) A single stroke instead of a cross.

(2) Two single strokes not crossing.

(3) A ballot with the candidate's name written thereon in addition to the cross.

(4) Ballots marked with a number of lines.

(5) Ballots with a cross for each candidate.

(6) All ballots on which there is any writing or mark by which the voter can be identified.

Procedure

The procedure for the voter to follow on reaching the polling station is simple. At the door of the station his or her name will be checked on the list by one of the agents posted there. Then, on entering the voter must give his or her address to the deputy returning officer or poll clerk who will run through the list and see that the voter is entitled to a ballot. That formality complied with, and everything being in order, the voter will be handed a ballot paper and given instructions as to how it is to be marked, by the returning officer. Then he or she will be shown to a room or compartment where the ballot can be marked with secrecy.

Then, having marked the ballot as he or she desires, the voter will return to the outer room, hand the ballot properly folded to the deputy returning officer, who will tear off the counterfoil and place the ballot in the ballot box.

The voter, having thus exercised his or her franchise, is then required to leave the polling station.

Hints for the Motorist

By Albert L. Clough Editor Motor Service, Review of Reviews

The Starting Charge

·inely Atomized Gasoline Will Produce It Without Flooding Cylinders

WITH THE COLD MORNINGS that are in prospect, will come the usual annoyance of starting troubles, which must be met and overcome. One can, of course, depend upon closing the carburetor choker and pump into the intake a volume of cold gasoline, with the expectation that along with the quantity of involatile constituents will come the small amount of light, vaporizable hydro-carbon required to form an ignitable mixture and produce the starting explosions. Almost any fuel, if broken up extremely finely, in air—as cologne comes from a hand atomizer—will ignite readily, even under cold conditions, while it will not ignite if it exists in bulk or in large drops, and the trouble is that the fuel, issuing from the carburetor jet, under the influence of the choker, is not in the cloud or fog form, but in a very imperfectly divided condition. It dribbles around in the intake system until enough light vapor comes off to carburet the air present and cause explosions, and the heavy portions run out the air intake and down past the pistons into the oil. A good manifold primer can inject into the intake system the required quantity of fuel in a thoroughly subdivided form, almost in the fog state described above and cause explosions to occur about as soon as the engine begins to turn over, but, of course, successive priming operations will be required to keep the engine running until it begins to warm up. The advantage of using a suitable primer is not alone the promptness with which explosions can be secured and the lightening of the work of the starter, but the exclusion from the engine of a lot of unburned fuel, which would otherwise dilute the oil. The suction primer, utilizes manifold suction to draw atomized fuel into the intake and, in the other type, a hand operated, dashboard pump accomplishes this. The gasoline injected may be electrically preheated to assist its evaporation. Both types give good results.

GRAPHITIZED OIL

W. G. writes: There has been offered to me, for use in my engine, an oil which contains defloculated graphite in permanent suspension. Can you tell me anything about this lubricant? My engine pumps oil rather badly and I should like your opinion as to whether the use of this graphitized oil would lessen this.

Answer: Our experience with this lubricant has been highly satisfactory. It seems to render the working surfaces peculiarly smooth and to reduce wear and loss of power. Graphite undoubtedly works into the metal surfaces, filling up minute irregularities and rendering the working surfaces self-lubricating, to such a degree as to reduce very greatly the danger of damage, in case the oil supply temporarily fails. This smoothing effect upon rubbing surfaces, doubtless improves their fit so as to diminish the flow of oil between them, assuming that they are originally fitted in a mechanically correct manner, but we hardly think that your oil pumping, if due to worn rings, would be reduced by its use.

GENERATOR BEHAVES QUEERLY

H. L. A. writes: I have a generator that, when running without load, takes so much power that the engine will pick up speed, when idling, as soon as I short-circuit the generator and "kill" it. Sometimes, it will run O. K. for a few seconds and then seems to "grab," sparking badly at the brushes and taking a tremendous amount of power. Have tried a new armature and brush ring assembly without benefit. What is wrong?

Answer: Assuming armature trouble to be eliminated, the field winding may be suspected. There may be a ground in this winding to the frame, which at times cuts out a large part of it, enormously increasing the field current, causing large idle currents in the armature and distorting the magnetism and the diameter of commutation so as to produce intense sparking. These actions would account for the large power consumption, and it is probable that when the short comes on is when the machine "grabs". Try putting an ammeter in the field circuit and see if it does not show abnormal current when the machine begins to "act up".

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

INFORMATION FOR WOMEN VOTERS.

Now that the women have the franchise they should take full advantage of their privilege and record their vote on the great national question of what government and what policy is to influence Canada for better or for worse during the next four or five years. The women's vote can be the deciding factor as to what pilot shall guide this great national ship of state through the troubled waters of the next few years, perhaps the most critical in the history of Canada. In order to vote the women must register, and the opportunity to register is open this week only. Women electors who wish to ask any questions about registration, the election, procedure of registration and casting ballots, etc., can obtain the required information by calling up THE INTELLIGENCER, Phone 1248, or calling personally at the office.

THE BALLOT IS THE ONLY THING THAT COUNTS.

Belleville citizens whose names do not appear on the Voters' List will not be able to vote at the coming Dominion lection. Every election there are a number of people who try to vote and find to their surprise that their names are not on the lists and that they cannot vote. Then the storm breaks and everybody in sight is abused, officials and all concerned. It was nobody's fault but their own, for they neglected to see that their names were on the list.

It is more important than ever in this election to register as the basis of registration is the Voters' List of 1920, which does not contain the names of women voters or young men who come under the manhood franchise class. It will not do for any elector to assume that his or her name is on the list. Visit the registrar for your ward and see that your name and the names of others in your family are properly recorded for voting purposes.

The registration will proceed all this week from nine o'clock in the morning until nine o'clock at night with intermissions from one to two o'clock and from six to seven o'clock, at the following places:

Foster and Samson Wards—Assessor's office in the City Hall; J. A. Kerr, registrar.

Ketcheson and Baldwin Wards—Shire Hall, Church stree,; S. T. Vandervoort, registrar.

Bleecker and Coleman Wards—44 Station Street; J. Patrick, registrar.

Murney Ward—25 Dunbar street, F. O. Diamond, registrar.

"Turn the grafters out," cries the Brockville Recorder, Hon. George P. Graham's paper, which is getting all het up about the election. Trouble is with George P.'s peculiar brand of humor it is hard to tell whether he means this graft stuff for a joke or otherwise.

Grit papers are busy abusing the farmers in one column, and in the next column abusing the Tories for not being courteous enough to the farmers. One minute it is "you dear farmers," the next "you d—n farmers." Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and perhaps the Grits are trying the same treatment on the U. F. O.

Now is the time to register for those who wish to vote and have a say in the government of the country. Unless the elector has a vote he might as well close his mouth as far as the election is concerned for ballots count more than talk; one ballot is worth a bushel of argument. The same applies to women voters. Get busy and register now while the registering is good.

Looks as if the Toronto Globe and Toronto Star did not wish to see the Meighen Government returned to power. They are both playing King and Crerar—(a piker's bet). Why not play all three and be sure of a winner. And while they love Willie King in a sad and sorrowful kind of way they act as if Tommy Crerar would suit them a lot better. Willie kind of goes against the grain and the Globe and Star are fearful of rust in their subscription wheat bin.

UNCLE SAM AND OUR FARMERS

Kingston Whig

The United States Senate on Tuesday passed a bill to extend the Fordney Emergency Tariff to February 1, 1922, by a vote of 197 to 74, the object being to retain the high duties against Canadian farm produce in operation until the permanent schedule included in the bill introduced into Congress on June 29 last become operative.

This action on the part of the Congress and Senate is of particular interest in Canada at the present time, when the tariff is the paramount issue in the federal elections. It serves to show that the Republican party that swept the country last year is determined to carry out its mandate to provide adequate protection for the industries of the United States, including agriculture. It also shows clearly that Canada has nothing to expect from any attempt to negotiate a reduction of tariffs, for it cancels the reciprocal arrangements entered into for free wheat and places a duty of 35 per cent. upon Canadian wheat, 20 per cent. duty on Canadian flour, and 25 cents a bushel on Canadian potatoes.

PLAIN LIVING AND HIGH THINKING

Boston Transcript

Mr. Harding said: "I doubt if there is as much plain living and high thinking in academic shades as there was once or might well be now. Much of the unrest of the world to-day is chargeable to our living too rapidly and too extravagantly, and colleges have seen the reflex of it.' This is a phase of "back to normalcy" which cannot too often be emphasized in our day. It is so many years ago since one heard a good deal about the "simple life." But who hears about it today—and how many lead it by choice? Inasmuch as plain living and high thinking are apt to go together, when plain living is voluntary, one supposes that the college, even in these regenerate (?) days, is somewhat freer from the vices of high living than is the rest of our community.

EXILED FROM THE FARM

We've got to leave the old home wife, wife,
 Be exiles, you and I;
To these broad fields we've loved so long,
 We've got to say good-bye,
The old farm doesn't need us now;
 It only laughs, my mate,
At us two poor, old-fashioned folks,
 Since it got up-to-date,
It used to be dependent, dear,
 On these old hands of ours;
Mine to tend its grain and grass,
 Yours its fruit and flowers,
For when we came and settled here,
 And knew life's hardest bumps,
This big, swell-headed farm of ours
 Grew nothing else but stumps.

Then—there came that luckless time,
 That sad, ill-omened day,
we brought our first self-binder home
 And threw the scythe away,
And ever since that time, my dear,
 We've squandered all our means
To give this farm its swinging gates,
 And patent-right machines,
Alas! For our indulgence dear,
 We're banished into town,
Though we had always hoped that here
 We'd see life's golden sun go down
The old place—how we've loved it—
 Doesn't need us any more
Since automatic hands perform
 The tasks we did of yore.

The windmill pumps the water now
 It churns the butter too,
And incubators do the work
 Your hens used to do,
The shredder shreds the corn and me
 The rail fence now is wire,
And some one's sold you some new scheme
 To cook without a fire.
Machinery cuts and loads the hay,
 Then stows it in the mow,
And—last and worst—they've found a way
 To patent milk the cow,
So come, let's journey townward dear,
 We're laid upon the shelf—
The old farm's got so dog-goned smart
 That it can run itself.

—Wm. Herschel.

Letters to the Editor

ABOUT INDUSTRIES

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—A communication published in yesterday's issue of your paper over the name of A. Robinson, contained the following paragraph—

"And it is true that, notwithstanding the fact that very strenuous efforts have been put forth to induce industries to locate here, none have arrived recently, excepting those brought here through the instrumentality of Mr. Graham, and these located here some time ago, whereas on the other hand, industries are locating in other towns and cities all around us."

This letter of Mr. Robinson's follows several anonymous contributions to your columns along the same line and in one of which the following statement appears:

"Brockville, Oshawa, Trenton and even Deseronto seem to snatch all the worthwhile industries in this section."

As the "facts" set forth in the above mentioned communications are not at all in accord with facts as they are, as they misrepresent my work as industrial commissioner and also do a serious wrong to our city, I therefore think myself justified in making a statement to your readers.

In the month of September this city of Belleville secured the location here of two important industries, as far as I am aware, no "other town or city" in eastern Ontario secured more than one industry in the same period of time. Belleville may be said to have therefore, fared one hundred per cent better in that time than any of her sister municipalities in the district east of Toronto. During the month of October I have been carrying on negotiations with a third industry negotiations that are likely to result in a decision to locate at Belleville. This latter industry would also be a large employer of labor and bring to our city a fine class of skilled mechanics.

Particulars were supplied to our local newspapers of one of the companies locating here during September. This company is now seeking Canadian incorporation and is to be known as the "Alemite Products Corporation of Canada." It will place upon the market here the well-known "Alemite" lubricating system for motor cars as well as other automobile accessories that have been made a specialty by the Brassick Manufacturing Company of Chicago. It is only fair to state that Mr. R. J. Graham and his associates concluded and put over the final arrangements with this firm when negotiations appeared likely to have been broken off, but it should also be stated that our representatives at Toronto had been carrying on a campaign lasting over several months to induce the Brassick Company to consider the establishment of a Canadian branch, I also had it on my list of calls during my recent industrial tour of the middle western States.

With the other company mentioned as a September location, Mr. Graham had nothing whatever to do with at any period of the negotiations, which lasted for nearly six months before a final decision was reached. Full particulars of this latter organization cannot yet be given to the press. Suffice it to say that one of the principals of the firm is now resident in Belleville and has moved his family here. Premises have been leased for manufacturing and it is anticipated that the actual work of placing their goods upon the market will commence about February first, next. This company has come to Belleville without seeking stock subscriptions or special favors of any kind.

Since my appointment to the office of industrial commissioner I have carefully investigated dozens of industrial prospects which turned out to be nothing but stock-selling schemes or 'industries' of a purely promotional character. I have, however, established contact with nearly eighty industries which will sooner or later be in the market for homes for new branches or entirely new locations.

Of these latter prospects it seems only fair to assume that Belleville will secure a proportion. But we should not be too impatient in looking for immediate results. Such matters are usually decided upon after long and careful deliberations. It should also be noted that the world is now passing through what Lloyd George has characterized as the most serious commercial depression in one hundred years. There is not the buoyancy and expansion that prevailed industrially up to a year ago. Conditions are extremely difficult, many large industrial corporations, perhaps most of them, are just now, more concerned about fighting off their bankers than about new fields for exploitation. But there are many exceptions, and the exceptions are likely to become more numerous as the financial skies begin to brighten. It is to the exceptions that we must now address ourselves.

During my tour, the latter part of August, I called upon some of the most important captains of industry in the United States. With a single exception they assured me that they had placed definitely on their program the establishment of branches in Canada. The exception already had a branch in Ontario but had been looking for a new location. Their interest in Canada and the Canadian market was most intense and gratifying. Important developments are certain to come just as son as there is a resonable resumption of commercial activity.

Let us not indulge in jealousy if we hear that new industries are about to locate in Trenton, Oshawa, Brockville or other eastern Ontario towns. During the past fifteen years the industrial procession has been treaded almost exclusively towards western Ontario. It is most gratifying now to know that towns and cities east of Toronto are being considered as homes for new factories. Every enterprise coming this way, whether it actually locates in Belleville or not, will help to make an industrial centre of this district.

About an industry reported to be coming to Trenton, I wish to add a few words. This company is an entirely new promotion known as Anglo-American Motors, Ltd., and proposes to put a new car on the market called "La Marne". Before the negotiations with Trenton were entered upon I visited Toronto and spent considerable time with the chief officials of the new company in an investigation of what they wanted and what they had to offer, I came back and reported to the City Council, the directors of the Chamber of Commerce and to several of our local capitalists. Without exception, they did not see their way clear to meet the demands of the promoters. It is to be noted that Trenton has agreed by a vote of the people to give to Anglo-American Motors a cash bonus of $25,000 and I am informed that the bonus has had to be supplemented by liberal local stock subscriptions as well.

It is not necessary here to discuss the wisdom of Trenton's action in granting this bonus, I wish merely to state that if the people of Belleville will agree to hand out cash bonuses and stock subscriptions that I will guarantee to bring at least twenty-five new industries here inside of a month.

All this is nothing against Anglo-American Motors. The officers at the head of the company are gentlemen of the highest character, La Marne cars will have many novel and exclusive features, now that our neighbors have embarked in this enterprise let us all hope that they will meet with the best of success.

I would further like to state that my work is largely of such a nature that it cannot be reported in detail to the newspapers without the obvious folly of letting our rivals know just what we are doing, I will, however, be only too glad to explain to any of citizens who may call at my office, just what is being done, except in such cases as where the negotiations are of an extremely confidential nature.

I returned from my recent tour of the States with the certain knowledge that we have in Belleville one of the finest and most beautiful cities in America. With just a little more of courage, energy and enterprise we can make of Belleville a throbbing centre of business progress and industrial advancement. Are we to have the union and co-operation that are all essential to the attainment of these ideals or shall we lapse back into the decadent and virtually destructive conditions of twenty years ago?

Let me say in closing that I do not believe Mr. Robinson would be guilty of intentional misstatement or misrepresentation. He has, I fear, merely been re-echoing the words of your anonymous contributors or idle talk upon the street. Moreover, he has had the courage to sign his name.

J. O. HERITY,
Industrial Commissioner.

CUTTING MEAT ON THE MARKET

Sanitary Inspector's Action in Stopping Sale Objected To.

At the City Council meeting last evening a deputation was heard in reference to the action of Sanitary inspector, Mr. Wills not allowing meat to be cut up on the market on Saturday last. As a result of the discussion the matter was left in the hands of Mayor Hanna and Ald. French, chairman of market to look into.

Mr. A. S. Large, leasee of the market, addressed the Council and asked why the Sanitary Inspector had forbidden the cutting up of meat on the market. It had made his (the speaker's) receipts less this month on that account.

Ald. French said he understood the Inspector gave as a reason that dust was blowing and flies were about.

Mr. Large—There was no dust and no flies present on the market on Saturday.

Ald. French suggested that a couple of the Aldermen interview the sanitary inspector in reference to this matter.

Ald. Woodley and Ald. Bennett spoke in reference to the matter and considered that there was something which should be looked into. Ald. Bennett said it was too bad that meat was brought to the market and not allowed to be cut up.

Ald. Fisher spoke in favor of the citizens being able to purchase cheap meat. The farmer should be allowed to sell meat on the market at any time.

Mr. B. A. Sanford, stated that he desired to see meat cut up on the market. He was out for a square deal in this matter and desired to see the people dealt squarely in this matter and be able to procure if possible meat.

Mayor Hanna stated that he would bring the matter up with the members of the Board of Health.

Mr. Large contended that Mr. Wills by his action was driving people away from the market.

The matter was left in the hands of Mayor Hanna and Ald. French to attend to.

Steadily the long list of "Licensed to Wed" keeps up at Toronto's City Hall. From France comes word that 1920 marriages were twice those of 1913. Reports from Washington that marriages in the United States this year will run well over 1,000,000 and may reach the extraordinary figure of 1,500,000 are interesting. Moreover, they point out that despite the depression over there during the first half of this year savings bank deposits increased by a record figure, and marriages also may set a new notch. England expects to show the exceptional figure of half a million marriages by the year's end.

Paul Poiret, the famous designer of frocks, says we should be happier and brighter mentally if we wore brighter colors. I wonder. If we all went about garbed like scarlet geraniums or tiger lilies the effect, methinks, would be bad for our nerves, whatever it might do to our minds. Nevertheless, Monsieur Poiret has reason — partly. While our sober navy blues and browns and blacks are our happiest, because most appropiate, wear a good deal of the time, it does brighten one up to don a frock of cheery hue occasionally. Provided, of course, it is becoming—woman's happiness, sartorially speaking, depends on that.

FOCH AT WHITE HOUSE HAILED AS SAVIOR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Marshal Foch, master strategist of the world war, exchanged greetings with President Harding in the historic blue room of the White House.

The massive bulk of President Harding towered over the little grey-haired Frenchman, as Ambassador Jusserand interpreted the exchange of felicitations.

Harding greeted Foch in the name of the American people and thanked him in their name for his service to humanity. The visit lasted approximately fifteen minutes.

After leaving the White House, Marshal Foch went directly to the capitol, where he called on Vice-President Coolidge in his room off the Senate chamber. Jusserand presented Marshal Foch to the vice-president.

After greeting Coolidge, Foch drew himself in stiff military fashion and saluted the large painting of George Washington hanging in the vice president's room.

"We regard you," said Coolidge to Foch, "the generalissimo of the allied armies, as the man who saved both France and America."

In reply, Foch paid high tribute to the heroism of American officers and soldiers in the world war.

Foch left the capitol for the state department, where he called on Secretary ughes. Later he visited Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of the Navy Denby.

Foch also was to call on Chief Justice Taft of the Supreme Court, and former President Wilson.

NEW MEDICINE MAKES MILLIONS WELL

Will be a Revelation to Suffering Humanity—Cleans Liver in a Few Minutes — Symptoms of Liver Trouble are: Sallow Complexion, Bad Taste in Mouth on Rising, Tired, Out of Sorts, etc.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles, as: Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No Salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self-eliminating. It does not have a nauseating, sickening feeling next day, like so many similar drugs. You no doubt have been taking all sorts of laxatives, salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these drew liquid from the blood and tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the Bile to be excreted from the Liver into the Bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your Bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your Bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious, bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sale by McKeown, Druggist.

ANSWERED LETTERS

An Appreciated Reader: "You would do me a great favor by publishing in your column directions for crocheting an oblong-shaped twine shopping bag instead of the round kind you gave directions for recently."

Answer: Oblong Twine Shopping Bag:—Crochet a chain nine inches long (or as long as desired). Form bottom of bag by working 1 treble into both sides of chain and 3 trebles in each end stitch. Continue working in rounds, 1 treble in each stitch, joining each round and making 3 ch for first t, until the bag is as deep as desired. Six inches is a good depth for a nine inch bag. The handle is made exactly the same as for the round bag and is attached to the sides of the bag. Roses, for which I gave directions in the article on the round twine bag, are not put on, and the bag is lined or not—as desired.

Worried: "Please tell me of a good way to demonstrate a new salad oil and a new kind of lard in stores. A manufacturer of these products has offered me the work of demonstrating them, but I don't know how to do it. Should I make cake with the lard and salad dressing with the oil—and how would I offer samples of these to the public?"

Answer: In warm weather it is nice to dip small pieces of a lettuce leaf in salad dressing and offer these to people who wish to test mayonnaise made with a new oil. But in cold weather when there is no lettuce in the garden, it is nice to dip small unsweetened crackers in the salad dressing and offer these to people. In regard to demonstrating the lard, I would advise you to make a simple white cake with it, with no frosting, and cut the cake in small cubes about 1 inch square; have a saucer of wooden toothpicks beside the plate holding the cake-cubes, and stick a toothpick into a cube of cake when you wish anyone to sample the cake. Give each person a different toothpick with a cake-cube on it, throwing away the used ones.

Grateful Reader: "I am going to tell you about a new kind of party my sister and I are getting up for our girl and boy High School friends. You can use it in the column if you wish for we are writing this from a distance and in return we would like to have you tell us of some substantial kind of sandwich we could serve in the refreshment menu—something that isn't sweetened, and which is rather unusual. We are calling our party a Loony Party. Everybody is to come dressed up in a loony fashion. Photographs of famous men will hang on our walls, each man labelled with some other famous man's name. One game we will play is this each guest will be asked to try to act like some well known book character (such as Mark Tapley, Romeo, Major Pendennis Priscilla, etcetera) but we will not tell each other which character we are supposed to be—the others must guess which one we are Don't you think we'll have fun?"

Answer: Indeed I do. It is a splendid idea. I would suggest small drums and trumpets as favors for the refreshment table. The following sandwich filling is a delicious and nourishing one:

Sandwich Filling: Cook 2 cups of tomatoes for 3 minutes (the canned variety will do), then add to them ½ pound of dried beef and ½ pound of cheese put through the food chopper together. Let simmer for a moment longer, then add 1 well-beaten egg, stir over fire only a minute, and let cool. This amount makes 24 sandwiches. If a less salty taste is desired, parboil the beef for 3 minutes before putting it through the chopper.

YOUNG MOTHER: What you must guard against is chafing. While there is no particular objection to using powder, it is much better to use CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM before powdering the baby. A liberal application of CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM to the affected parts after each bath will go a great way to prevent chafing and irritation of the skin. You will also find it a wonderful preventative of chapped or red hands. THE THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"... was not him, then, you came to seek?"

"Not the least in the world. Besides, you must have seen that the person I spoke to was a woman."

"Who is she?"

"Oh, that is not my secret!"

"My dear Mme. Bonacieux, you are charming, but at the same time you are one of the most mysterious women."

"Give me your arm."

"Where are you going?"

"You will see, because you will leave me at the door."

"Shall I wait for you?"

"That will be useless."

"You will return alone, then?"

"Perhaps I may, perhaps I may not."

"But will the person who shall accompany you afterward be a man or a woman?"

"I don't know yet."

"I will wait for your coming out."

"In that case, adieu."

"But you have claimed"—

"The aid of a gentleman, not the watchfulness of a spy."

"Well, madame, I perceive I must act as you please. I promise to do all you wish if you will allow me to accompany you where you are going."

"And you will leave me afterward without waiting for my coming out again?"

"Yes."

"Take my arm, then, and let us go on."

D'Artagnan offered his arm to Mme. Bonacieux, who willingly took it, half laughing, half trembling, and both gained the top of Rue la Harpe. When arrived there the young woman seemed to hesitate, as she had before done in the Rue Vaugirard. She, however, appeared by certain signs to recognize a door, and approaching that door:

"And now, monsieur," said she, "it is here I have business. A thousand thanks for your honorable company."

"And you will have nothing to fear on your return?"

"I shall have nothing to fear but robbers. What could they take from me? I have not a denier about me."

"You forget that beautiful handkerchief with the coat of arms which I found at your feet and replaced in your pocket!"

"Silence! Silence, imprudent man! Do you wish to destroy me?"

"Come, come, madame!" cried D'Artagnan, seizing her hands and surveying her with an ardent glance, "come, be more generous. Trust to me!"

"Ask my own secrets, and I will tell them to you, but those of others—that is quite another thing."

"It is all very well," said D'Artagnan. "I shall discover them. As these secrets may have an influence over your life these secrets must become mine."

"Beware of what you do!" cried the young woman in a manner so serious as made D'Artagnan start in spite of himself. "Oh, meddle in nothing which concerns me. I exist no longer for you."

"Must Aramis do as much as I, madame?" said D'Artagnan, deeply piqued.

"This is the second or third time, monsieur, that you have repeated that name, and yet I have told you that I do not know him."

"You do not know the man at whose shutter you went and knocked? Indeed, madame, you think me too credulous!"

"All this will be cleared up at a later period," murmured the young woman.

"If you could see my heart," said D'Artagnan, "you would there read so much curiosity that you would pity me and so much love that you would instantly satisfy my curiosity."

"You speak very quickly of love, monsieur."

"That is because love has come suddenly upon me and for the first time and because I am only twenty years old. Listen, I am already upon the scent. About three months ago I was near having a duel with Aramis concerning a handkerchief resembling that you showed to the woman in the house, for a handkerchief marked in the same manner, I am sure. If you were to be arrested with that hankerchief and that handkerchief were to be seized would you not be compromised?"

"In what way? Are not the initials mine—C. B.—Constance Bonacieux?"

"Or Camille de Bois-Tracy?"

"Silence, monsieur! Once again, silence! Ah, since the dangers I incur on my own account cannot stop you think of those you may yourself run! Monsieur, by the courtesy of a gentleman depart. There—there is midnight striking. That is the hour at which I am expected."

"Madame," said the young man, bowing, "I can refuse nothing asked of me thus. Be satisfied, I will depart and will return home instantly."

"Ah, I was quite sure you were a good and brave young man!" said Mme. Bonacieux, holding out her hand to him and placing the other upon the knocker of a little door almost hidden in the wall.

D'Artagnan seized the hand that was held out to him and kissed it ardently.

"Ah, I wish I had never seen you!" cried D'Artagnan.

"Well," resumed Mme. Bonacieux in a voice that was almost caressing and pressing the hand of D'Artagnan, who had not left hold of hers—"well, I will not say as much as you do."

By a violent effort D'Artagnan sprang away, running, while Mme. Bonacieux knocked, as she had done at the shutter, three light and regular taps. Then when he had gained the angle of the street he turned. The door had been opened and shut again. The mercer's pretty wife had disappeared.

D'Artagnan pursued his way. In five minutes he was in the Rue des Fossoyeurs.

"Poor Athos!" said he. "He will never guess what all this means. He will have fallen asleep waiting for me or else he will have returned home, where he will have learned that a woman had been there. A woman at Athos' house! After all," continued D'Artagnan, "there was certainly one in Aramis' house. All this is very strange. I should like to know how it will all end." The last sentence was spoken aloud.

"Badly, monsieur—badly!" replied a voice, which the young man recognized as that of Planchet. "M. Athos is arrested. He was found in your lodging. They took him for you."

"And by whom was he arrested?"

"By the guards whom the black men you put to flight fetched."

"Why did he not tell them his name? Why did he not tell them he knew nothing about this affair?"

"He took care not to do so, monsieur. On the contrary, he came up to me and said: 'It is your master that wants his liberty at this moment and not I, since he knows everything and I know nothing. They will believe he is arrested, and that will give him time. In three days I will tell them who I am, and they cannot fail to set me at liberty again.' Four conveyed him away, I don't know where—to the Bastille or Fort l'Eveque. Two remained with the black men, who rummaged every place out and took all the papers. The two last mounted guard at the door during this examination. Then, when all was over, they went away, leaving the house empty and the doors open."

"And Porthos and Aramis?"

"I could not find them. They did not come."

"Well, don't stir. If they come tell them what has happened. Let them wait for me at the Pomme de Pin. Here it would be dangerous. The house may be watched. I will run to M. de Treville to tell him all this and will join them there."

"Very well, monsieur," said Planchet.

"But you will remain, will you not? You are not afraid?" said D'Artagnan, coming back to recommend courage to his lackey.

"Be satisfied, monsieur. There is nothing I would not do to prove to monsieur that I am attached to him."

"Good!" said D'Artagnan, and with all the swiftness of his legs, already a little fatigued, however, with the exercise of the day and night, he directed his course toward M. de Treville's.

M. de Treville was not at his hotel. His company was on guard at the Louvre. He was at the Louvre with his company. He must get at M. de Treville. It was of importance that he should be informed of what was going on. D'Artagnan resolved to endeavor to get into the Louvre.

He therefore went down the Rue des Petits Augustins and came up to the quay in order to take the Pont Neuf. As he gained the top of the Rue Guenegaud he saw two persons coming whose appearance very much struck him. One was a man and the other a woman, the latter very much like Mme. Bonacieux in size and step, the former could be nobody but Aramis.

"In the name of heaven, milord!" cried Mme. Bonacieux, throwing herself between the combatants.

Besides, the woman had on that black cloak whose outline D'Artagnan could still see reflected upon the shutter of the Rue de Vaugirard and upon the door of the Rue de la Harpe.

And, still further, the man wore the uniform of a musketeer.

They took the bridge. That was D'Artagnan's road, as D'Artagnan was going to the Louvre. D'Artagnan followed them.

He had not gone twenty steps before he became convinced that the woman was really Mme. Bonacieux and the man Aramis.

He felt himself doubly betrayed. Mme. Bonacieux had declared to him by all that was holy that she did not know Aramis, and a quarter of an hour after having made this assertion he found her hanging on the arm of Aramis. D'Artagnan resolved to unravel the mystery.

The young man and woman perceived they were watched and redoubled their speed. D'Artagnan determined upon his course. He passed them, then returned, so as to meet them exactly before the Samaritaine, which was illuminated by a lamp which threw its light over all that part of the bridge.

"What do you want, monsieur?" demanded the musketeer, drawing back a step. He had a foreign accent.

"It is not Aramis!" cried D'Artagnan.

"No, monsieur, it is not Aramis; and by your exclamation I perceive you have mistaken me for another. Allow me, then, to pass on, since it is not with me you have anything to do."

"You are right, monsieur, it is not with you I have anything to do. It is with madame here."

"Ah," said Mme. Bonacieux in a tone of reproach, "ah, monsieur, I had the promise of a soldier and the word of a gentleman. I thought I might have depended upon them!"

"Take my arm, madame," said the stranger, "and let us proceed on our way."

The musketeer advanced two steps and pushed D'Artagnan aside with his hand.

D'Artagnan made a spring backward and drew his sword. At the same time and with the rapidity of lightning the unknown drew his.

"In the name of heaven, milord!" cried Mme. Bonacieux, throwing herself between the combatants and seizing the swords with her hands.

"Milord!" cried D'Artagnan, enlightened by a sudden idea, "milord! Pardon me, monsieur, but are you not"—

"Milord, the Duke of Buckingham!" said Mme. Bonacieux in an undertone. "And now you may ruin us all."

"Milord—madame, I ask a hundred pardons! But I love her, milord, and was jealous. You know what it is to love, milord. Pardon me, and then tell me how I can risk my life to serve your grace!"

"You are a brave young man!" said Buckingham, holding out his hand to D'Artagnan, who pressed it respectfully. "You offer me your services. With the same frankness I accept them. Follow us at a distance of twenty paces to the Louvre, and if any one watches us slay him!"

"Tinker Bob" Stories

SAMMY WORKS HARD

"Old Jack Frost is a merry old soul,
A merry old soul is he;
He comes down from the very North Pole,
From the very North Pole comes he,
He will bite off the fingers and pinch off the toes,
'For they all look alike to me,' says he."

This is the song that Tinker Bob sang to Jack, the Wood Rat, and Major Pole Cat and Chief Porky as they were sitting by the fire in the King's palace. The King knew that it was time for Jack Frost to visit the forest again. In fact it had been announced that Jack had been seen in the forest already but the King hadn't laid eyes on him.

Jerry, the Jay, said he had already visited the Chestnut tree. Of course Jerry ought to know for that's where Jerry stayed all night. Then too the King didn't want to believe everything Jerry said for Jerry had a great imagination and he might have thought he saw Jack Frost when it was only a shadow.

"Thief! Thief! I say, O King of the Forest, I did see Jack Frost and if you don't believe it I will take you to the chestnut tree and prove to you that he was there last night and left his mark." Jerry was really in earnest about Jack's appearance.

"All right, I'll just go to the chestnut tree and see for myself if he was there for I want to know when he comes that I may tell the creatures of the forest about him." The King and Jerry went to the chestnut tree where Jerry had been making his home. The first fellow the King saw was Sammy Squirrel. Sammy was carrying chestnuts by the armful away to his den.

"Thief! Thief! That's the way it goes. Just the moment I leave this tree there is someone around to steal the chestnuts."

"Well, you want to remember Jerry that this isn't your tree, and if it was you couldn't eat all the chestnuts on it anyway," said Tinker.

"Well, I could save them for a time when I needed something to eat."

"No, you couldn't Jerry, for Jack Frost would open the little house in which they live and they would fall to the ground and you would never find them. Say, Sammy, has Jack Frost been about?"

"O King, Jack must have been here sometime during the night, for he has visited nearly all of the chestnuts on the top of this tree." Then Sammy snapped off a burr and let it drop to show the King that he had made a true statement. Sure enough, Jack had visited the top of the chestnut tree! He hadn't had time to reach the lower branches yet. But the burrs were opening and Sammy was working hard to get in a supply before they were open far enough to let the little nuts fall to the ground.

Sammy was carrying chestnuts by the armful away to his den.

"I shall go to the creatures of the forest and tell them that Jack Frost is here," Tinker Bob said.

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

INJURING PAVEMENT

C.R.—I see that some residents of the city after raking up their leaves burn them upon the street pavemfent. This is a practice that should be discontinued for it is a violation of the law and is certainly injurious to the pavement.

PRICE OF BREAD

H.C.L.—I see that in some cities and towns in Ontario bread is selling at 16c. per loaf of three pounds whilst in Belleville 18c. is charged. Flour has been dropping in price but the staff of life remains here at the same figure as when flour was at a much higher figure than it can be purchased to-day. Would some of our bakers answer me why they are charging the price they are for their product? If in other places bread can be produced and sold for a profit at 16c. why not in Belleville?

BEAUTIFYING PREMISES

T.P.—I see that some of the merchants of the town of Trenton who are enthusiastic horticulturalists have displayed in their windows bulbs of various kinds which are for sale to residents of the town who are desirous of planting same. The horticulture society of Trenton is a live organization and instills into its citizens the idea to beautify their premises and it is generally accepted. This is a splendid idea and could be successfully followed out in Belleville. Will our Horticultural Society do it and thus encourage beautifying our flower gardens.

MAROONED ON A DRY BAR

P.S.—Marooned upon a sand bar was the fate of two well-known Belleville citizens on Sunday. They started in a put-put (not a put-and-take) for Massassaga Point and sailed away merrily on a pea-green sea. The pilot was a bit hazy about channels and shoals but there appeared to be plenty of water on the surface,—water, water everywhere, but not a still in sight. Suddenly they struck a stretch where the water was spread too thin and went high and dry up on a sand bar, a long way from anywhere. As the afternoon wore on without any rescue in sight visions of empty chairs about the supper table loomed high on the horizon, and storm clouds began to dim the brightness of the day. The flag of distress was hoisted, a red shirt on a wireless line, and materials for a fire collected, but alas the seaweed would not burn. Rescue came at last when a bellbuoy hove in sight emitting the familiar raucous but welcome yawks. "Call for Mr. Jack Hart, call for Mr. Archie Winters." Ship ahoy, !! Attaboy !! Reef the anchor !! All's swell that ends swell.

Very few kiddies, or grownups for that matter, know what song Tinker Bob sings when he is feeling lighthearted and gay. Look for, and read, the Tinker Bob story in to-day's issue, there you will see the song with which Bob amused Jack the wood rat, Major Pole Cat and Chief Porkey as they were sitting by the fire in the King's Palace. Don't miss it!

CHESTNUTS NIPPED

An alarming, although expected, discovery was made by Mr. Samuel Squirrel in the story "Sammy Works Hard." The discovery made was of vital importance as it concerned his daily ration. Look up the Tinker Bob series, one story of which appears daily in the Bigger and Better Intelligencer. The story chosen, for to-day will explain all about this alarming discovery. Let the Kiddies read it or read it to them. Educate them in the ways of the little inhabitants of the forest.

TRIED AND TRUE

A great crowd of women, married and single can testify to the benefit which they have derived from the section devoted to "Efficient Housekeeping" which appears daily in this paper beginning Monday (yesterday). The recipes for various dainty, substantial and economical dishes are tried and declared O K. CONVICTS' OCCUPATIONS

Jack Daughty, serving six years in Portsmouth penitentiary, is now working cleaning cells. He was formerly employed as a bookkeeper. Stanley Brown, the Bank of Montreal teller who received his sentence recently for theft of some $21,000 from the bank in Toronto, is employed as an accountant. Denton Garfield, sentenced to twenty years, has been in the infirmary. He had a job in the laundry. Since being sent down Garfield has failed rapidly.

MASQUERADE DANCE

Prof. and Mrs. Albert Johnstone held a masquerade dance in their dancing academy on Hallowe'en night and a good crowd was in attendance. The costumes of the little ones were amusing and the big ones were dressed in anything from a Spanish toreadore to an Egyptian dancer. Even Spyrola, the vamp, was present but it would be a shame to tell who SHE was. The little tots began to tire out about 10.30 so when midnight came the last waltz came also.

ARRANGE FOR REGISTRATION

A large enthusiastic crowd was in attendance at the meeting held in Mr. E. Guss Porter's rooms last evening. The purpose of this meeting was to arrange for the registration in the various wards of the city. The large crowd in attendance showed what Mr. Porter's followers are doing and are liable to make things hum from now till the day of election.

PORK AND BEAN SUPPER

A large crowd was present at St. Thomas' Parish House on Hallowe'en and thoroughly enjoyed the bounteous pork and bean supper provided. Tea was served from 5.30 to 8 o'clock and everybody seemed perfectly satisfied that they received more than their money's worth.

K.V.A. DANCE

The best dance of the season was held on Monday night under the auspices of the K.V.A. club or 'the Hydro boys.' The dance was held in Bennett's Dancing Academy which was prettily decorated with electric signs and black and yellow ribbons. On the side directly opposite the entrance was an immense pumpkin which kept flashing at intervals. Beneath this large Hallowe'en sign was a bowl of punch which was tested by all and said to be good. The orchestra stand was prettily entwined with vines and flowers and it looked like the Garden of Eden, and when you heard the divine strains of a moon waltz coming from Harold Rich's Novelty Sextette you began to feel it was real. At the mystic hour when the witches began their nightly rides the chairs were pulled up and luncheon began. During intermission the large crowd was entertained by Harry Cohen, dancing violinist and Harold Rich, in songs. The numbers were encored at all times but as Mr. Cohen said, "We won't get home till morning so don't make it any worse." After luncheon was over, dancing was again resumed and everyone danced till 2.30 when the ball was brought to a most successful close by the playing of "God Save the King."

CHANGES IN STAFF

Mr. W. A. Spriggs, who has been for ten years manager of the Bell Telephone at Picton, has been promoted to the area headquarters at Belleville as assistant to Mr. J. A. Cokers in the management of the agency and the important district under the jurisdiction of the Belleville office, which includes Belleville, Trenton, Tweed, Madoc, Marmora, Picton, Wellington, Deseronto and Frankford. His successor as manager of the Picton office will be Mr. Harry Soanes, who has been promoted from Tweed.

NO DEER LICENSES

Belleville deer hunters, all ready to start for their hunting camps to be ready for the opening of the season this week, find that there are no hunting licenses to be had in the city. Great indignation is expressed by the hunters that the Ontario Govrnemt should be so unbusinesslike as leave a important matter so long. Hunters who for their camps are seriously inconvenienced and some say they will go without licenses, and there is a merry old row all round. Ald. Fisher says he has been appointed as a issuer of hunting licenses but up to last night had not received any official forms.

NEW RESIDENCE

Mr. W. H. Patterson is erecting a new residence on the corner of Bridge street and Dufferin avenue at a cost of about seven thousand dollars.

PREMIER AT PICTON

A number from the city and vicinity went to Picton this afternoon to be in attendance at the Conservative meeting to be held this evening in the armouries. Rt. Hon. Mr. Meighen will be the principal speaker and will be assisted by Hon. Dr. Edwards and others.

TOKEN OF RESPECT

The flag from the city building is floating at half mast out of respect to the late Dr. Yeomans who for some years has been medical health officer of the city.

EAST HASTINGS LIBERALS

The Liberals of East Hastings met in goodly number at the village of Tweed on Monday afternoon, for the purpose of considering the advisability of placing a candidate in the field. It was decided to do so and Mr. James Walsh, Reeve of Tyendinaga Township was selected and he asked for a few days to consider the matter before giving a definite answer. Officers of the Association were elected. Should Mr. Walsh accept it will mean a three cornered contest in that riding as the Conservatives and U. F. O. parties have candidates already in the field.

A QUIET HALLOWE'EN

The police report that the boys of the city were last night, Hallowe'en, on their good behaviour. All members of the force were on duty but they practically had nothing to do. There were groups of boys and girls about the city dressed in grotesque costumes but they were exceptionally good and amused themselves by visiting homes and requesting candy or apples. Pea shooters were much in evidence. With a heavy blanket of fog to cover their pranks, this year hallowe'en proved an ideal one from the standpoint of the youngers. The pranks played were, however, of a harmless nature. A large number of boys gathered on the market square early in the evening and with drums as music march up and down Front street. Considerable merriment was created well known barber dressed up as a well known barder dressed up as a rather fashionable lady was seen operating his profession. In several of the churches in the city the young peoples societies commemorated the occasion with suitable gatherings.

Called By Death

DR. HORACE A. YEOMANS

Many sincere expressions of regret were heard today when it became known that Dr. Horace A. Yeomans had joined the silent majority. His death occurred between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock Monday night at the family residence 224 Pinnacle street city. The fatal illness was of short duration. A year ago Dr. Yeomans had a severe illness which left him in a rather impaired condition. After a trip to the south he returned to the city and resumed his practise which was of an extensive nature. About two weeks ago he had a relapse and it proved to be fatal. All that medical skill could suggest proved to be of no avail. Deceased was 56 years of age and was born in Belleville where he spent the greater portion of his life. He was a son of the late Mr. Horace Yeomans who was a life long resident of this city. After receiving a public and High School education deceased went to Queen's University where he graduated in medicine and surgery. For a time Dr. Yeomans practised in Deseronto but returned to the city of his birth where he had since resided and enjoyed a lucrative practise. In early life Dr. Yeomans took an active part in sports and was considered an athlete of no mean calibre. He was especially fond of lacrosse and was a member of the Oka lacrosse team of this city which in its day had an envialable reputation. Deceased also took an active part in Y. M. C. A. work and was ex-President of the local Association and a member of the Executive at the time of his demise. Dr. Yeomans was in religion a Methodist being a member of Bridge Street Church. He was a Past Master of Deseronto Lodge A. F. & A. M. and a member of the chapter of that town. Deceased was a man learned in his profession, was kind and sympathetic and every ready to do a generous act. For a number of years he filled the position of medical health officer of Belleville to the satisfaction of citizens generally. His demise is a distinct loss to the city in many respects. A widow, three daughters and two sons survive. The sons are Ted and Asa, and the daughters are Misses Clara Mary and Nina. One brother and three sisters are living. To the bereaved will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of all citizens.

Obsequies

MRS. M. WEESE.

DEPUTATION TO WAIT ON PREMIER

Decided to Place Insurance on Motors and Transformers at Pump House.

At the City Council meeting on Monday night, the business transacted was chiefly of a routine nature. It was decided to send a deputation to Toronto to oppose the proposed legislation of the Drury Government to convert to its own use fines and fees of police courts. Ald. Bennett's motion that the chief of police attend to the registration of dogs and collect taxes of same was defeated.

Members present were Mayor Hanna, Aldermen Woodley, French, Bennett, Fisher, Ballinger, Wensley Adams, Treverton and Ostrom.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. Reports of committees communications, etc., laid upon the table and the council went into committee of the whole on reports, etc. Alderman French in the chair.

Accounts recommended to be paid by the various committees were passed also the following recommendations:

That the tender of the Electrical Installation Company of $15.50 for some work at the gas plant be accepted.

That insurance be placed on the electric motors and transformers at the pump house for three years for $508.73.

That $50 be paid for tile used by the city for city work.

FINES AND FEES

A communication was read from Mr. S. H. Kent, clerk of Hamilton advising the Belleville Council that the Premier and members of the Ontario Cabinet will hear a deputation from cities of Ontario respecting the application of the cities that they be allowed to retain the fines and fees imposed by the police magistrate in police court for the uses of the municipalities on Wednesday, November 2nd at 12 o'clock at the Parliament Building, Toronto. Belleville was asked to be well represented and have members of the Legislature accompany the deputation.

A deputation composed of Mayor Hanna, Aldermen Bennett and Fisher was appointed to go to Toronto.

The committee rose and reported.

Report received and adopted.

INQUIRIES

Ald. Ballinger asked if a drain on Cemetery street had been attended to.

Ald Treverton—Yes.

Ald Bennett asked what had been done in reference to the sewer on the southern part of Front street.

Ald. Treverton—We have to find out if the Government will allow us to drain in the slip.

Ald. Bennett—A vast amount of water will come down towards Coleman Flats from off the Foxboro Provincial Highway and some effort should be made to have that water diverted to the river. If this was not done there was laible to be trouble.

Mayor Hanna—Steps are being taken to have the water so diverted.

Ald. Woodley—Any report about the Dundas street sewer?

City Clerk—No report.

MOTIONS

Ald. Bennett moved, seconded by Ald. Treverton, that the registration and collection of dog taxes be placed under the chief of police, he to make returns to the city treasurer of all monies collected and that a by-law be passed at the next regular meeting of the council and all other bylaws now in force be amended and present fees to remain.

After some discussion the motion was defeated the mover and seconder alone voting for it.

Moved by Ald. Woodley, seconded by Ald. French that the Council of the Township of Ameliasburg be asked to use their best efforts to provide a good road and right of way to Massassaga Park.—Carried.

BRAVEST SPOT IN ENGLAND.

Every Soldier From This Village Gave Life In War.

There has just been unveiled in Holywell Church, Holywell, South Lincolnshire, England, a singular monument to what some people say to-day is "the bravest village in England."

It is a memorial to practically the whole of the young fighting strength of the village — a simple tablet of white stone let into the church wall, bearing the names of twelve ill-starred men who joined the colors at the beginning of the war and who have all perished.

When you hear Holywell's tragic war history you will cease to wonder why there is no bother about discharged soldiers' and sailors' funds, no unemployment problem for ex-soldiers to solve, and no jovial reunions or regimental celebrations in the village.

No men came home from the war at Holywell—at least none of those who joined up from this village. That is the shadow that always hangs over the homes.

One lad was on the point of getting into "civies," and a home-coming was being prepared for him, but he was stricken with disease and died. Five others perished at Gallipoli. They still talk of Suvla Bay in the village, and of Jutland.

It is only a small village, with scarcely a hundred inhabitants.

Midshipman Hood, one of the heroes, was the son of Lieut.-Col. Acland Hood Reynardson, of Holywell Hall, and brother of the late Lord St. Audries.

Valets, stablemen, gamekeepers and a dog-boy were among the ill-starred twelve. The loss of young Hood was a great blow to his mother, who did a vast amount of hospital work, and the villagers say it was partly grief through the loss of the boy that hastened her death.

The sexton stood in front of the memorial tablet, and he recited as if he knew it by heart the war history of each hero. He knew them well. They were "Kitchener's lads," he said.

One of the two sons of Mr. A. Postle, gardener at the Hall, was only 16 or 17 when he joined up.

"That was Jack," he said, "one of the seven children, born and brought up by me and his mother in this very house, and he had never slept out of it till he went away into the army.

He was reported missing at Gallipoli, and it was nearly a year before the War Office finally reported him killed. The suspense nearly killed my poor wife. My other son, A. Franklin, was killed in France."

There are cottages in Holywell where letters written home from the front are carefully kept under lock and key. Photographs hangs above the mantelpiece and medals and memorial plaques are still retained in their War Office wrappers as they were sent to the parents.

All the cheerful, light-hearted soldier sons have got their names inscribed on the church wall. That is the end of the war for the mothers and fathers of Holywell.

A Humorous Pickpocket.

Sir Basil Thomson, chief of the Special Branch of Scotland Yard, tells the following story in the pickpocket's own words. "There was an old gentleman in Ludgate Circus. He used to come out of his office at five o'clock sharp every evening and stop on a refuge to look up at a lady at a window and wave his hand to her. He was a stout old party and his waistcoat was rather tight, but I managed to get it all right and it was a 'red' (gold watch) one. I left that crossing alone for a week or two, and when I went back there he was again sharp at five o'clock, and waving his hat and grinning just the same as before. He had got another watch chain across his waistcoat, so I got that, and the watch, too, and it was a beauty! Well, sir, you would scarcely believe it, but three days later there he was again and he had got another chain, and I had scarcely the heart to do anything, he looked so cheerful and happy. But business is business." "Well," I asked, "and what did you do?" "Oh, I took it out, and as it was a Waterbury I put it back again!" was the old pickpocket's answer.

Swinburne's Flat Beer.

In "Memoirs of a Clubman," Mr. G. B. Burgin, the novelist, tells the following story of Swinburne, whom he was invited by Watts Dunton to meet at lunch at the Pines: "The menu consisted of roast shoulder of mutton and 'pudden,' both very good in their way, though they scarcely came up to my ideal of poetic fare. In front of Swinburne was a big tumbler and a bottle of beer. He unscrewed the stopper or pulled out the cork and poured the beer with loving care into the tumbler, his eyes lighting up with fervent anticipation. Then he took a gulp of the beer, and his features became convulsed as he put down the tumbler, and hissed out the word 'flat'." From a boxful of unpublished Stevenson letters which Baxter, Stevenson's agent, presented to the Savage Club, Mr. Burgin makes one extract: "The future is a fine thing in its way, and what's more, it's all we have to come and go upon." "One of the best and most characteristic letters Stevenson ever wrote," is Mr. Burgin's comment.

Sea Water for Street Use?

Some time ago it was advocated by Mr. W. P. Novelli-James that we should bring sea water to London and the big towns for flushing our streets instead of fresh water. If this were done, it was pointed out, we would save our fresh water, which is now wasted, and we would have our drains and streets purified by the antiseptic properties of sea water. "What is more antiseptic than sea water and more plentiful?" asks a London physician, writing in support of Mr. Novelli-James' suggestion.

Anthracite Prices
As dealers in Anthracite we wish we could reduce prices,—but we can't.
The causes of high Anthracite prices are higher costs of Labor and higher Freight Rates—both fixed by law—not higher Profits.
Neither producers nor coal dealers are making any more money than they made when prices were lower.
The increased price ALL goes to pay higher costs of production and transportation.
How, then, can prices be reduced?
It is wise to lay in your winter's supply now rather than wait until thousands of consumers are trying to have their coal bins all filled at the same time.

CARL AND ZITA ON GLOW WORM

British Monitor of Danube Flotilla Bears Adventurers.

LAST OF HAPSBURGS

Not Having Abdicated, is Still Legal King of Hungary.

Vienna, Nov. 1.—Carl and Zita tonight are aboard the British river monitor, Glow Worm, of the Danube flotilla, steaming slowly down that romantic river which is famous in song and dance, towards a to them as yet unknown, St. Helena.

With them departs also what is probably the last hope that any Hapsburger may have entertained of mounting the Hungarian throne.

In making his comic opera, yet tragic dash for the throne, Carl, in destroying all his own chances for again setting the thousand-year-old Holy St. Stephen Crown on his head, has also had some revenge—he has dethroned all the other Hapsburger aspirants.

In archducal circles the adventure of Carl is spoken of in great bitterness and characterized as "madcap folly." The chief blame is put upon former Empress Zita. Even after the fiasco there was still hope in those circles that prompt abdication by Carl might save the chances for some other member of the Hapsburg dynasty to mount the throne. Some, however, were extremely skeptical, one of the archdukes remarked:

"Zita will never let Carl formally abdicate and renounce his rights to the throne."

And so it has turned out, and Carl, passing down the Danube on a British warship, is still the legal king of Hungary.

The Horthy Government it is said, has decided to proclaim the dethronization, not only to Carl, but of all the Hapsburgs, and will attempt to do this through constitutional change, dropping the "pragmatic sanction."

In this manner, Hungary, under the pressure of circumstances, emerges from a feudal monarchy into a more democratic but still kingless monarchy.

The Hungarian Cabinet has decided to comply with the Allied ultimatum to depose the Hapsburg dynasty, and has convoked the Assembly for Thursday to pass the necessary motion.

BOOKSELLER FACES CHARGE OF "BLASPHEMOUS LIBEL"

Toronto, Nov. 2.—"Blasphemous libel" is the rare charge laid against Campanile Matteo, bookseller, 203 York street. Matteo was summoned to appear in the police court to face the charge. It is alleged that Matteo had exposed for sale in the window of his store a "free-thinkers' book," which, an advertisement beside it said, "Knocks religion higher than a kite. Shows Jesus is not your Saviour."

The matter was brought to the notice of the Morality Office, officers investigated, and the summons followed.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

LONDON, Nov. 2.—It was declared here this morning that negotiations had progressed to a point that the presence in London of the Ulster Premier, Sir James Craig, is regarded as necessary.

It would appear that the day when Ulster must be associated with the Sinn Fein is near at hand, declares the London Times, but the manner and time of Sir James Craig's coming are among the obscurities of the situation.

STARVED TO DEATH; OWNED A FORTUNE

Old Woman Found Dead Sitting in Rocking-Chair.

New York, Nov. 1.—A pathetically grim tragedy, with circumstances not unlike those which Dickens pictured in "Great Expectations" was unfolded in Brooklyn yesterday. In a basement room of a once prosperous looking three-storey house, sitting in an old rocking chair the withered body of Margaret Easton was found. Dust lay thick upon the furniture. For in six years the house had known no sound except the slow scraping of the old women's feet. She was 75. Not a dozen feet from the chair in which the body lay stood a bureau and in its musty drawer lay $1,670 in cash, a quantity of massive, old-fashioned jewellery, worth at least $50,000, and fifteen bankbooks, one showing a balance of $176,000 and the others balances between $3,000 and $10,000 each Margaret Easton had starved to death Within reach of her lay $250,000.

Recluse Since Husband Died

Six years ago the old woman's husband died. Since the day his body was taken away the shutters had remained up. The little, wrinkled woman sought and received no friends. Her solitude was not even broken by a tradesman's ring. For each day the grocer from across the street tapped at a little basement window and handed provisions through it. A week ago, Otto Spita, the grocer, was told by Mrs. Easton that she wanted no food. She said she was ill, and that the doctor had been there. The next day the same thing. Saturday, the grocer grew alarmed. He knew his strange customer could have no food He tapped on the basement window as usual. And there was no answer.

Spita climbed through the basement into the house. In the rocking chair he saw the old woman. He touched her, but she did not move. Then he called the police. Unemotional constables strode through the silent rooms and stirred up clouds of dust. In the bureau they found the jewels and money. And on the table lay a pile of doctor's prescriptions which Margaret Easton had not taken to be filled.

MURDER VICTIM RUNAWAY WIFE

Husband Positively Identifies the Body—Woman Insists Mistake Made.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Detectives today were trying to determine which of two young runaway wives it was—if either—whose dismembered body was found a week ago in a pond at Long Island City.

This dilemma was brought about by claims of two sets of relatives, one of which firmly declared the mutilated body was that of Mrs. Mary Agnes Wagstaff, while the other, with equal firmness, maintained it was that of Mrs. Dolly Bailley Higgins.

The story leading to the young woman's death was the same in either case. Mrs. Higgins and Mrs. Wagsfaff both have quit their husbansd. Both had been met by chance and importuned home. Both had refused. And both had been reported later in the company of another man.

Arnold A. Wagstaff, husband of one of the missing wives, identified the body last night as that of his wife. He was accompanied by four friends who also indentified it as that of Mrs. Wagstaff, and the police are inclined to accept this identification.

Mrs. Anna Bailley, mother of the missing Mrs. Higgins insists that the body is that of her daughter.

GUTHRIE ANSWERS MACKENZIE KING

Says Liberal Leader is Under Misapprehension as to Votes for Militia.

GUELPH, Ont., Nov. 2.—Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Militia, handed out a long reply to questions asked him October 28th, by Hon. Mackenzie King. He reiterates that the munitions referred to by the Liberal leader were sent over by the British Government as a credit of war material and not a financial credit. The shells are for and will be used by Canadian Artillery units at annual drill during the coming Summer.

In the course of his letter Mr. Guthrie says: "Before answering the questions which you have submitted to me, may I be permitted to say that I think you are laboring under some misapprehension as to the nature and application of the various votes which are annually made by Parliament for the Militia Department. The vote for "demobilization" which has appeared in the estimates since the armistice is for the payment only of claims arising out of the war and it is not intended in any way for the current expenditure of the Department of Militia and Defence. No ammunition has been purchased by the department since the armistice, but all accounts for payment of ammunition and other military supplies which were contracted prior to the armistice are chargeable to the vote for demobilization."

Mr. Guthrie then answers seriatim Mr. King's questions. The substance of these answers has already appeared in the press.

SIX WITNESSES IN CASE DIE

Remarkable Features in Litigation Over Gold Mine Claims.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 31.—The recent decision of the Supreme Court in favor of the heirs of Captain J. Alexander and the notice of appeal, which it is believed will take the case ultimately before the privy council, marked another stage in the long-drawn out legal battle waged for control of the famous Engineer gold mine claims. The claims are on the east side of Taku Arm, fifteen miles from Atlin, B.C., and are said to be the richest in free gold in the world, with a valuation of three million dollars.

The defendants in the case were James Allen Fraser, administrator of Captain Alexander's estate and of the estate of Allen I. Smith, sole beneficiary of Alexander, and also Veda M. Smith, wife of Allen Smith; Louisa Smith, his mother, and Charles C. Smith, his brother.

The plaintiffs were the Engineering Mining Company, consisting of 18 shareholders and His Majesty's attorney-general for British Columbia.

The decision in favor of Alexander's heirs was given on the ground that certain requirements of the Mineral Act were not complied with before commencing the action.

The plaintiffs alleged that the late Captain Alexander and his associates "jumped" the claims; and that although the defendants might have an apparently good Crown grant, this claim was nevertheless based upon a trespass in the first place, and that so long as the root of the title was bad the whole structure fell to the ground.

On the other hand, the defendants rested their case largely on the regularity of the proceedings, and the opportunity afforded the plaintiffs to object in the early stages and their acquiescence during a long period of years.

Six of the leading witnesses in the case met death during the course of the legal struggle. Captain Alexander and his wife went down on the Princess Sophia. [illegible] Reef. Alexander's heir, Allen I. Smith, committed suicide in Philadelphia in 1919. Edwin Brown, secretary for the shareholders, disappeared mysteriously from Elma, Wash., many months ago. Joseph Hislop, prominent stockholder, was killed in an accident in Chicago; A. P. Mead, president of the company, slipped on the stairs of a Portland, Ore., building, and was killed, and D. C. Brownell, shareholder, died of cancer in San Francisco.

DISASTROUS FIRE IN TYENDINAGA

Cattle, Horses, Pigs and Fowls Fell a Prey to Devouring Element.

One of the most disastrous fires which has occurred in the rural section of Hastings county was that of last night, when a large frame barn, the property of Mr. John Taylor, third concession of Tyendinaga township, was destroyed, with its contents. When the fire was discovered it had gained such headway that all efforts to release the live stock proved unavailing and it was only by united efforts that other buildings were saved.

Eighteen head of cattle were cremated, also four horses, some pigs and fowls. In addition, farming implements and the season's crops were destroyed.

The fire broke out between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock, and its origin is a mystery, as no person was about the barn after dark. The reflection of the fire was visible for miles around and attracted many to the scene.

The loss to Mr. Taylor is a severe one, amounting to several thousand dollars, upon which there was an insurance which will only partially cover the loss.

LIBERAL CLERGYMAN ARGUES WITH PREMIER

Interesting Exchange of Questions and Answers at Oshawa.

KING'S POLICY.

Discussed by the Premier—Rev. Mr. Farwell Wants to Know.

Picton, Nov. 1.—Premier Meighen had the opportunity to-day to meet face to face the Ontario Liberal who actually appeared to have been impressed by some of the catch phrases wherewith Hon. Mackenzie King in Eastern Canada camouflages the tariff policy approved by his party's convention in 1919. This Liberal, Rev. F. L. Farewell, principal of Ontario Ladies College at Whitby, intervened at the Prime Minister's meeting at Oshawa to proclaim that the Liberal convention's resolution did not constitute a pledge to inaugurate a policy of free trade and that Mr. King was proposing a tariff for revenue.

There were not many in the audience in the industrial centre of Oshawa who shared Mr. Farewell's simple faith in shibboleths. Noisy expressions of dissatisfaction, therefore, at times interrupted his endeavors to declare his belief in the form of questions and interjections. The Prime Minister, however, rejoiced in the opportunity to show just how near to declarations in favor of free trade the Liberal and Progressive tariff platform comes and just how vague and meaningless are Mr. King's formulae "tariff for revenue, tariff for producers and consumers and tariff for the home."

Mr. Meighen demonstrated that the two opposition parties were proposing definite tariff changes, which would deprive of protection 8,745 factories employing normally 186,000 workmen. "I don't care whether you call it free trade or not," said the Premier. "I say if you adopt the Liberal platform you have staggered the industrial system of the country.' The man who talked of tariff for revenue did so because he did not wish his hearers to know what he proposed to do.."

Platform Not Considered

The platforms of the Liberal and Progressive parties, the Premier asserted, were adopted absolutely without investigation and without consideration of their effect upon Canadian industries.

Premier Meighen was accompanied by Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, Minister of Immigration, who dealt forcibly with the features of the campaign being carried on by the Farmers' party. Hon. William Smith, the Government candidate, too, neatly replied to the effort of a local newspaper to arouse opposition to him on the ground that he was no longer a young man. F. L. Fowke, a Liberal and former representative of South Ontario in the Commons, acted as chairman.

Premier Meighen travelled from Oshawa to Picton where he was escorted in a torch-light procession to the armouries, where he and Dr. Edwards addressed a meeting of some 3,00 electors. In South Ontario, where the Prime Minister spoke this afternoon, the veteran parliamentarian, Hon. William Smith is again the Government's candidate and is conceded the victory.

Will Revise Tariff

The Prime Minister evoked applause by his declaration that if his Government were returned to office the tariff would be revised and on protective principle. "There will be protection" he said, "which will enable Canada to keep its industries and enable those industries to compete with the big corporations of the United States. "I know how I shall revise the tariff," said Mr. Meighen. "I shall revise it in accordance with my pledges to the Canadian people. Will Mr. King revise it in accordance with the pledges of his party?'

Mr. Meighen announced his intention to read the Liberal convention platform, adding: "I fear that they will not tell you about it here." "It's a wonder they let you know about it," interjected a man in the audience.

"Oh, I know about it because they used it in Western Canada," rejoined the Premier suavely, and the audience laughed.

"I read it in a Toronto Conservative paper," announced the elector.

"Of course you did,' replied Mr.

DARING ROBBERY AT KINGSTON

Broke Into Store and Stole From $5,000 to $10,000 Worth of Goods.

KINGSTON, Nov. 1.—One of the most daring burglaries the city has known was pulled off about one-thirty this morning, when robbers broke into the store of Mahood Bros., and made off with several thousand dollars worth of jewellry and other articles. The burglars were stopped in their getaway by P. C. Mascard, but they held up the constable and forced him to beat a retreat while they made off.

About one-thirty the burglars effected an entry into the store through the back door. They went up the lane from Queen street and found the rear doors of Mahood Bros. heavily barred. A big iron bar across the doors on the inside was secured by means of heavy bolts which protruded through the doors, thus making entry very difficult. Apparently the burglars were prepared for such cases, for they bored holes through the doors around the bolts by means of a brace and bit. They were then able to push in the pieces of the doors which held the bolts and, after jimmying the lock, made their entry. The doors lead into the cellar and the burglars had to make their way upstairs onto the main floor.

COVERED POLICEMAN

It was just at this time that P. C. Mascard came down his beat on Queen street. When he arrived at the laneway, which has no gate at the entrance, he flashed his flashlight into the alleyway and was astounded to see three men, dressed in Hallowe'en garb. They carried bags on their shoulders and pointed revolvers at him.

"Get to h— out of here and beat it" said one of the burglars.

The three men had revolvers levelled at the constable, and he was forced to walk out of the laneway. They then ordered him to walk up Queen street and not to look around. He walked up to Bagot street with the burglars with levelled revolvers behind him. At Bagot street the burglars told him to "beat it," and he ran over Bagot street towards Princess street, when he met Constable Mullingre, and they phoned the police station. The constables immediately went back to the scene of the robbery but the burglars had vanished.

The loss is estimated at between $5,000 and $10,000.

"I had heard so much about Tanlac, I expected great things from it, and I was not disappointed for it does just what they say it will," said Mrs. Wm. Robinson, 331 Gladstone Ave., Toronto, Ont.

"I simply feel like a different person since taking this grand medicine. What I needed was something to build me up and this is exactly what Tanlac has done.

"I have a splendid appetite now, nothing I eat gives me any bad after effects, and I sleep like a child all night long. I feel so well and happy in the morning that it is just like living my girlhood days over again. Tanlac has certainly been a wonderful blessing to me."

Strength

Strength of muscle does not indicate strength of nerves. On this account many people who look healthy enough suffer from nervous troubles and cannot understand what is ailing them. Sleeplessness and irritability are among the early symptoms. Indigestion and tired feelings soon follow.

Read this letter from an Ontario man:

Mr. W. L. Gregory, Charles St. E., Ingersoll, Ont., writes:

"I had been troubled for quite a while with indigestion. At times there would be a twitching of the nerves of my stomach; and I also found it difficult to get a good night's sleep. I am a moulder, and owing to the nature of my work my system became run-down. I took a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found great benefit from this medicine. They did me a great deal of good. I have not been bothered at all with indigestion since, and can sleep much better. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, as I think it splendid for anyone run-down and needing a tonic."

THE HORNED DINOSAUR.

Ontario Now Owns Most Perfect Specimen In Existence.

Several million years ago one of those strange prehistoric creatures which modern man has labelled dinosaur came to the end of its earthly career and left its bones lying on the shores of a vast inland sea which once filled a great basin between the Rocky Mountains and the present Hudson Bay. Two years ago Prof. W. A. Parks, director of the paleontological department of the Royal Ontario Museum, spied the ribs of the creature sticking out of a hillside in the Red Deer Valley and the expedition which he headed set to work to uncover the skeleton.

For the past eight months the ancient creature has had the constant attendance of two of the museum staff, who, after chipping the remains from the sandstone in which they were entombed and assembling the bones in their proper order, mounted the head and a section of the fore part of the body, including one of the front legs. The animal now occupies its new home, a trim looking glass case on the top floor of the Royal Ontario Museum.

As a result, that institution can now boast of possessing what is perhaps the most perfect head of a "horned dinosaur" so far discovered. Over four feet in length, it is fitted with one large horn and two small ones with a remarkable frill of bone around the neck. No animal known, now in existence, has the similar protection that must have been afforded by that bony frill. Unfortunately only a portion of the skeleton was recovered, the rear portion having disappeared in nature's "weathering" process, responsible for the formation of the Red Deer Valley formation. The animal stood about six feet in height and was about fourteen feet long. Other types of dinosaur have been unearthed, some of which must have been of very large dimensions. One of these, "a duck-billed dinosaur" was mounted in the Ontario Museum last year.

Had it not been for the erosive action of Red Deer river, man might never have learned of these queer creatures which used to roam over this continent. The great inland sea which preceded the western plains was fringed with luxuriant vegetation which supported a great variety of animal life. On death these animals found their grave in the shifting sands of this sea, to be covered by successive layers of sedimentary deposits. Then followed a slow upheaval of the central section of the continent with a gradual recession of the waters. Buried in some cases hundreds of feet below the level of what is now the prairie they were exposed only to the action of the river, which in some places has worn a valley three miles wide. At points the level of the river is four hundred feet below the prairie.

The quarrying of the rock which surrounded this particular specimen involved the excavation of a shaft from the top of the cliff. The greatest care had to be exercised in the uncovering of the skeleton. Each successive inch of bone exposed had to be soaked with shellac to exclude the air. Large slabs of rock were cut from the hillside and transported to Toronto. For the past eight months the preparation of the remains for mounting have occupied the attention of L. Sternberg, chief preparator of the department, and an assistant. Each individual bone is held in place by iron supports and the whole liberally treated with preservative.

Contrary to the somewhat general impression, bones discovered under such circumstances are not petrified, but are exactly as they were when deposited ages ago, according to Dr. Parks. This particular animal is estimated to have lived three million years ago or more.

Expeditions to the so-called bad lands of Alberta in search of dinosaurs have been conducted by the Geological Survey of Canada, the American Museum of Natural History, New York, and by the Royal Ontario Museum. Each of these institutions has made discoveries of different types and with successive "finds" the knowledge of their structure and habits is expanded.

Double Hangings.

More than one person may be hanged in Canada for the same murder. You may remember that in Toronto in 1902 Rice and Rutledge were sentenced to death for the murder of County Constable Boyd, though Rice was the one who fired the fatal shot. Rice alone was hanged, the death of Rutledge having been caused by his own act in jumping from the top of the spiral staircase at the jail. On May 15, 1914, Davis and Clark were hanged at New Westminster, B.C., for the murder of Police Constable Archibald. On October 2, 1918, Sullivan and Johnson were hanged at Winnipeg for the murder of Constable Snowdon. At Prince Albert, Sask., on October 17, 1919, three men, Carmen, St. Germain and Gervais, were hanged for the murder of Sheriff's Officer McKay. At Peterboro, on January 14, 1920, Kornek and Bahri were hanged for the murder of Philip Yanoff. A week later, January 23, 1920, three men, Delorme, Allan and Lacoste, were hanged at Bordeaux Jail, Quebec, for the murder of Alcide Payette.

Egypt Orders Wood.

One of the largest orders for manufactured lumber ever secured in British Columbia was closed recently when the Canadian Overseas Trading Co. signed up to supply an Alexandria firm, which represents the Government of Egypt, with 24,000,000 feet of railway ties. The first million feet, comprising two shiploads, leaves Vancouver shortly aboard the Canadian Government steamers.

Weeping Stag.

Among the creatures that weep the most easily are the ruminants. All hunters know that the stag weeps, and the giraffe is not less sensitive, and regards with tearful eyes the hunter who has wounded it.

Old Times on Mississippi

Memories of old days on the Mississippi when stately packets plied in the passenger traffic are revived by the resumption of traffic between Pittsburg and New Orleans by way of the Ohio river.

Barges have carried freight traffic on the great river for many years since the packets were driven out by railroad competition. In the days of Mark Twain Mississippi packets were celebrated for their "eats," their famous races, their pilots, and even for their poker games.

It used to be no uncommon sight to see from fifteen to thirty passenger vessels, from the palatial packet to the weather-beaten tramp, leave the New Orleans landings daily for upriver points.

Coming of the railroads with quick service for perishable cargo, many lines almost paralleling the river between the most important landings, caused river traffic to lose its prestige. Shippers began sending cotton and other non-perishable freight by rail and the stops of the river packets were fewer and fewer as the years went on.

A river voyage in the olden days was a pleasurable affair if the boilers did not blow up or the vessel hit one of the shifting sandbars, mudlumps or hidden snags. A comfortable berth, wonderful meals, dancing at night, watermelon parties, well stocked bars, stud and draw poker games for the patrons of that form of amusement, and last, but not least, the antics of the negro roustabouts all combined to make things pleasant for the traveler.

Coffee in bed was the rule, then a breakfast of bacon, eggs, waffles, pancakes started the day. At noon there was fruit, fish, roast, vegetables, the ever-present coffee, and whatever dessert the cook had in mind for the meal. The feast of the day came in the early evening with creole gumbo (if the cook happened to hail from New Orleans, as most of them did) fried fish, roast fowl, with baked or candied yams, beef or pork, fruit in abundance, dessert and "small black" coffee with brandy. It wasn't variety, but quantity, that made the steamer bill-of-fare famous.

In the heat of the afternoon, behind shielding mosquito bars the passenger, if he so desired, could quaff mint juleps or sip corn whiskey cocktails, not to mention the old flat-bottom toddies, made with sugar, water, pineapples and orange juice and, of course, whiskey. The old-timers here, with scanty stocks of liquor and facing the coming years with visions of nut sundaes, never tire of telling the younger generation of the old "hard liquor" days of the river steamboats.

The card games were for large stakes. Veterans vouch for the truth of stories of a planter embarking in Mississippi worth "a plantation with 200 negroes" and disembarking at the Canal street landing in New Orleans with only some bills of lading for something he no longer owned.

But those days are gone. If plans of those interested in river traffic bear fruit the modern steamers will eliminate gambling, carry well-drilled crews and furnish modern meals at modern prices.

In advertising sailings of vessels of the olden days the name of the first mate always was given. The first mates became known up and down the river either as good or bad by the manner in which they handled the roustabouts. A meek man did not last long as first mate.

Saturday was usually the sailing day for up-river packets from New Orleans. There was great rivalry between boat owners and crews and usually from one to a dozen boat races were pulled off as the vessels chugged up the river. It was then that boilers blew up with the marked frequency.

The most famous of these races was run by the Natchez and the Robert E. Lee, two of the largest of the river packets. So keen was the rivalry that early in the seventies it was planned to have them race from New Orleans to St. Louis. No passengers or freight were carried and for weeks the coming race was the chief topic of conversation along the river. The Robert E. Lee was in command of Captain Cannon, while Captain Leathers was master of the Natchez. No stops were made except for fuel. The trip to St. Louis was made in just a few hours over three days, an unheard-of record then, with the Robert E. Lee the winner by a small margin.

Another famous race between the White Rose, of Memphis, and the Grand Republic ended in disaster. After racing upstream for hours in a neck-to-neck contest, the White Rose struck a snag and sank. Before the White Rose could clear a nearby bend her boilers exploded, killing a number of the crew.

All the old boats were built on the same general pattern—broad hulls, with large, spacious cabins above and with wide guards, usually piled high with freight. They were almost always painted white, and each was equipped with a whistle slightly different from the others. It was quite an accomplishment, or was so regarded by negroes at various landings, to be able to distinguish the distant whistling and call the name of the boat.

Promoters are now figuring whether human nature has changed from the olden days, whether a person will be content to idle the time away on long trips which he could make in a fraction of the time by rail, whether they "have time" to take quiet pleasure.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT SEA FISHES

POLLOCK

The pollock, captured extensively by our deep sea or bank fishermen, along with cod and haddock, is for unaccountable reasons, not popular as a fresh commodity. It is closely allied to the true cod, is of fine flavor and may be readily and cheaply procured in our Canadian markets, especially during the months of June, July, August and September. One authority endeavoring to locate a reason for the apparent deep-rooted prejudice, considers it due largely to the fact that the pollock destroys better fishes. It is true that the pollock is very destructive to the young cod, surrounding the schools and driving the fish to the surface where they fall a prey to the voracious pollocks attacking below and hundreds of sea gulls which with astonishing voracity and precision pounce upon them from above. But this cannibalistic tendency is not confined to the pollock alone. It is a trait of many of our sea fishes.

Pollock, sometimes known as the coal fish or green cod, is common northward on both shores of the Atlantic. It is caught abundantly on our north Atlantic banks, and also along our Canadian coast where inshore fishermen capture it along with cod and haddock. Frequently the pollock come close inshore and become ensnared in nets fixed for herring and other fishes. It ranges as far south as France on the European coast and Cape Cod, or even New York on the American side.

It reaches a length of more than three and a weight of twenty-five pounds or more. It is exceedingly productive. According to an eminent authority a fish three feet, three and a half inches long, weighing twenty-three and a half pounds, contained approximately 4,030,000 eggs, and one thirteen pounds produced about 2,570,000 eggs. The eggs are, of course, very small and are produced in such tremendous quantities in order to provide for enormous destruction by predatory fishes and guarantee adequate continuation of the species. It obviously is not the intention of nature that all of the eggs should mature. The eggs are buoyant, floating at the surface where they hatch in five or six days.

The pollock is darker than the cod and more lustrous and the lower jaw is more extended, with a smaller barbel at the tip. There is a good deal of similarity between the true pollock and the whiting, so common on the British coast. Two closely related species of pollock are found in Pacific waters. The Alaska pollock is found in Behring Sea and as far south as Sitka. It swims near the surface and furnishes the main item in the diet of the fur seal. In the waters of the Canadian Pacific is found the wall-eyed pollock. It is quite abundant about Puget Sound, but is not fished commercially.

As a game fish the true pollock or Atlantic pollock has not been fully appreciated. In some localities it is a voracious fish, taking the hook freely and fighting viciously. In Massachusetts Bay great numbers are caught with a surface bait, but larger fish must be sought at the bottom.

Those who eat pollock fresh esteem it highly. The limited experience the writer has had convinces him that the general antipathy to the fresh pollock is very largely associated with the name and not with its inherent qualities. Some months ago pollock were brought into a certain Canadian city and offered for sale. The demand was discouragingly small, but a few days later the resourceful dealer offered the same fish for sale as "Boston Bluefish". On the first occasion the price was six cents and subsequently it was offered for sixteen cents. The "bluefish" was extremely popular and the stock soon sold out. The writer does not intend to justify the business morality of the deception, but it illustrates clearly that the aversion to pollock is not a sensible one. Incidentally it proves once again that Barnum had the right conception of human nature. Any method used in preparing cod for the table may be employed with the pollock with equally good result.

The official returns for the year 1919 disclose that of the total pollock catch of 123,023 cwts only 16,499 cwts were used fresh. The value of the total catch was $428,469 and the quantity consumed fresh $55,808. The great bulk of the fish was dried or green salted. Eighty-five thousand cwts thus treated, valued at considerably more than half a million dollars.

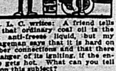
Oil Pumping

Badly Fitting Piston Rings Are Often Responsible For It

CYLINDER WALLS require sufficient oil constantly present upon them to maintain an unbroken film between them and their pistons, but any supply in excess of this is a nuisance, and any cylinder the conditions in which permit oil in objectionable quantities to reach its combustion space, there to cover the piston head, foul the spark-plug and pass out as smoke, with the exhaust, is said to "pump oil" or to be "overoiled". All lubricating systems provide for the liberal splashing of oil upon the lower parts of the cylinder walls and it is the duty of the piston rings to distribute this to the upper portions of the walls, where the splash does not reach, but it is also the function of the piston rings to keep within bounds the amount of oil which travels up the cylinder and thus to prevent overoiling. No one seems to know exactly how the rings and the oil behave under actual running conditions and perhaps will not do so until we have transparent cylinders, but the accepted opinion is that properly fitted rings in truly bored cylinders, on their down strokes scrape back toward the crankcase practically all the oil that has been splashed onto the walls during the preceding upstroke, with the exception of that required to create the lubricating film, thus preventing any troublesome amount from getting into the combustion space. On the contrary, when the pistons and rings are not properly fitted to accurately formed cylinder bores, the oil constantly being splashed upon the walls is not wiped down at all adequately and volumes of it pass up above piston travel. Defects in ring fitting that prevent proper wiping-back action, include the following: Failure of the rings to assume, at all points, a true circular form and to exert substantially uniform outward pressure, when used in a truly cylindrical bore; failure of rings to conform to a bore that is elliptical or non-uniform in diameter; excessive clearance between the ends of a ring, forming a space through which oil can pass, too tight fitting of rings in their grooves, so that they fail to follow inaccuracies in cylinder diameter and irregularities in piston movement and excessive clearance between the rings and their grooves, which is said to cause a pumping effect. Overoiling may also result from the amount of the splashed oil being so exorbitant as to be beyond the ability of the rings to handle, which condition may be caused by splashers that dip too deeply or some equivalent defect.

COAL OIL ANTI-FREEZE LIQUID



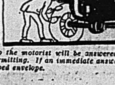
A. L. C. writes: A friend tells me that ordinary coal oil is the best anti-freeze liquid, but my garageman says that it is hard on rubber connections and that there is danger of its igniting, if the engine gets hot. What can you tell me on this subject?

Answer: We do not agree that this is the best anti-freeze liquid, but what your garageman says is true. However, kerosene can be used for this purpose, with fair success, although we do not recommend it as compared with alcohol, for instance. If it is used, great care should be taken that there are no stopped up passages in the radiator, left filled with water, as the kerosene will not displace the water in these and they are liable to freezing and bursting. The whole system has to be specially tight, as kerosene will leak out from minute holes that water will hardly pass and spread all over the surrounding surfaces, making a very disagreeable mess. Moreover, care has to be taken not to let the kerosene get hot enough to fume badly. It has a lower capacity for heat and a higher boiling point than water, causing it to heat up more noticeably and to let the engine run pretty hot under certain conditions.

BRAKE DRUM IS OUT OF TRUE

G. D. writes: My new car makes a peculiar rubbing sound at the left rear wheel, each time that it revolves. By jacking it up, I find that the outside brake band touches its drum at a certain point in each wheel turn and when I adjust the band far enough away from the band to stop this, the brake does not hold as well as it should. What remedy can you suggest?

Answer: The left brake drum must be considerably off center, or eccentric in respect to the wheel hub or you would be able to adjust the band to clear it, without getting the band too far away from the drum to give full braking power. Truing up the drum on the wheel is the only remedy we know of. This will require removing the wheel and taking it to a machine shop where it can be placed on an arbor and either the drum unbolted and set over concentric or else its outside surface turned down to make it run true.



Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Famous Faker Died in Poverty

LOUIS DE ROUGEMONT, who died in a London poorhouse a short time ago, was the greatest faker of his time. He caused the world to ring with his thrilling account of his exploits which attracted quite as much attention as did the exploits of Admiral Peary or H. M. Stanley. Cet all these exploits were imaginary. Had he simply written stories and admitted them to be fiction, it is probable that he would have produced a worthy successor of "Gulliver's Travels" or "Robinson Crusoe." But because he insisted that he was relating facts he was disgraced and ruined when the truth was made known. His fate was even more grievous than the fate of Dr. Cook, and if he escaped a criminal charge it was not because he had not laid himself open to one of receiving money under false pretenses from the credulous publishers of his adventures.

It was in 1898 that the name of Louis de Rougemont flashed before the world. He had just arrived in London from New Zealand and, after giving some newspaper interviews concerning his thirty years' experiences in cannibal islands, he was engaged by the Wide World Magazine to give a full account of his adventures. It was the greatest feature the Wide World had ever been able to secure and was well played up by illustrations and photographs. The author told his story with much skill, as well as with obvious frankness. He said he had started from the East Indies on a pearling expedition and, hardly had the vessel got out of sight of land before the incredible adventures began. He beheld an immense octopus suck down a native diver, but after a fifteen-minute struggle under the water the man was rescued, brought aboard the ship again and revived. One day when left alone aboard the ship he was blown out to sea and landed on a desert island with no companion save his dog.

There he and the dog proceeded to batch it in Robinson Crusoe style until another favoring storm washed ashore a family of strange blacks. Later he accompanied them to the island where they had lived and is hailed as a sort of demi-god. He picks up a wife who devotes herself to him and who saves his life many times when jealous blacks plot to destroy him. The natives are cannibals and wage war against other cannibals in adjacent islands. Rougemont makes a pair of stilts and using them as he goes into battle he terrifies the enemy and provides his associates with many a hearty meal. He also distinguishes himself with a spear and slays many monsters before unknown to science. Later on he learns that two English girls have been washed ashore and are in the power of a rival chieftain. Him he kills and rescues the maidens. Eventually, however, they vanish from the story as excess baggage, and as properties not so easy to account for.

After living with the cannibals for thirty years, a sail is spied one day and de Rougemont takes a sad farewell of his black friends and his black and white family and returns to England. This is the story, spun out to the volume of a book, which had hundreds of thousands of believers in England. It was the London Chronicle that pricked the bubble. De Rougemont, it said, was named Redmond. The thirty years he said he had spent with the cannibals had been spent in London, where he was a clerk. There were some people who, after this exposure, admired de Rougemont more than ever. They conceded that he had one of the most remarkable imaginations of the time and that his story was really a masterpiece of ingenuity. The crowd which had been gulled, however, did not look so kindly at Louis, the result being that he wound up in a poorhouse.

Some forty or fifty years ago newspaper writers used to invent canards and were rather proud of them, so long as they increased the sales of the paper. In 1833 the New York Sun printed a circumstantial account of a wonderful telescope invented by Sir John Herschel which enabled him to study the inhabitants of the moon. They were minutely described, even to the copper-colored hair that covered them. At the time Sir John Herschel was in Cape Colony, and it was some time before he could issue a denial of the whole yarn. The Cardiff giant was another noted hoax. It was the effigy of a man cleverly carved out of gypsum, and deceived many scientists. In 1844 a New York paper announced that the Atlantic had been crossed in three days. American newspaper readers did not resent these hoaxes. Whether true or not they provided them with thrilling reading, and the writers who had ingenuity enough to invent a reasonable fake were much esteemed in the profession.

W.C.T.U. TELL WHAT THEY ARE DOING

Receipts From Rummage Sale — Travellers' Aid Work—Over 11,000 Members.

W. C. T. U. members held a splendid meeting on Thursday last when plans were developed for the winter's work. Mrs. Geo. Cole reported, in spirit as well as in letter, the 44th Provincial Convention held recently in London, attended by over four hundred delegates representing two hundred and twenty-seven unions and over eleven thousand members. Much of the four days was given to executive work, but the open sessions were favored with noted speakers—Mrs. Blanche Read Johnson, Dr. H. Clay Trumbell, Mrs. Gordon Wright, and others.

One of the most efficient departments is known as the Travellers' Aid, by which women and girls travelling alone are cared for, piloted or directed by a W.C.T.U. official, who wears a badge and meets all trains in the large centres. In the past year forty-one thousand girls were thus assisted, and the fact that in the Dominion ten girls per day are lost sight of makes such a work a necessity. To girls of the province remaining in Toronto Willard Hall is a safe and pleasant hostel, but of late has been taxed beyond its capacity, so that an extension is being added at a cost of over $150,000, to provide one hundred and forty additional rooms.

Receipts from the Belleville rummage sale were $263.00, expenses $26.00, only a part of which remains in Belleville, the balance going to aid the various benevolences of the provincial executive.

Allied chiefs reviewed the American Legion at Kansas City.

GATES CONFESSES HE LOOSENED RAIL

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 1.—Henry W. Gates, 59, of Huntingdon, [illegible] held here in connection with a wreck of the Grand Trunk passenger train near Lapeer last Friday night, confessed to-day, according to [illegible] detectives, that he loosened a rail which caused the accident. The officers quote Gates as saying he ascribed the act to mental lapse due to a [illegible] suffered some time ago.

Three persons were injured in the wreck.

Your state of health largely depends upon the food you eat

No one who is physically ailing in any way can afford to take chances with the food he eats. For upon the selection of your food, and upon its perfect digestion and assimilation largely depends your state of health.

The most important thing in connection with the digestibility of any cereal food is the way it is prepared—and the length of time it is cooked or baked.

Grape-Nuts, the rich cereal food made from whole wheat flour and malted barley, is probably baked longer than any other cereal food.

A large part of the starch of the wheat and barley is changed into dextrin and grape-sugar in preparing Grape-Nuts. This is one reason why Grape-Nuts is so easily digested by even the most delicate people.

Grape-Nuts is wheat and barley so processed as to make it delicious and appetizing; even young children thrive on it and grow strong and rosy.

Go to your grocer today and get a package of Grape-Nuts. Eat it as a cereal with milk or cream, or make it into a delicious pudding. It will be enjoyed and relished by every member of the family.

ALAS! POOR YORICK!

Brockville Recorder, Hon. Geo. P. Graham's paper, having swallowed the Conservative Times and stopped talking politics for awhile, until its digestive apparatus recovered from the shock, has broken out again more rabid than ever, politically, and that is saying some. As an example of the excited state the Recorder is in, the following sample lines from one issue shows how the editorial mind is working. Will the mighty brain be able to stand the strain until election time? Says the Recorder:

"Turn the grafters out."

"It's time for a change from dishonesty to good government."

"Canada needs and demands a change. The electors will make one on December 6. Honesty of administration must prevail."

And so on, and so forth, more and more of it, every day, until the readers begin to believe that the Recorder is simply reprinting editorial paragraphs from its issues of one hundred years ago before it grew up.

CANADIAN FARMERS GAZE OVER THE TARIFF WALL.

The United States Emergency Tariff is fulfilling the expectations of those who framed it, that is to say, it is protecting the farmers of the United States by shutting out Canadian farm products. The figures of our exports of these products to the United States for the last four months, compared with the same period last year, should be carefully studied by every Canadian farmer. They show that our exports dropped from $81,284,208 to $12,770,040. The following are the figures as respects the most important items:

	June 1 to Sept. 30 1920—Value.	June to Sept. 30 1921—Value.
Barley	$ 162,167	$ 572
Oats	1,647,167	284,660
Rye	376,828	13,554
Wheat Flour	1,059,697	119,224
Potatoes	1,060,198	159,475
Maple Sugar	1,457,450	44,234
Hay	1,746,928	153,494
Cattle, one year old or less	737,737	99,391
Cattle, over one year	6,460,134	617,194
Sheep, n.o.p.	603,360	208,988
Swine, n.o.p.	2,184	28,489
Butter	1,907,303	109,047
Cheese	84,512	6,831
Milk, condensed	1,078,548	188,618

How in the name of Heaven Mr. Crerar and Mr. King, in the face of these facts, can continue to advocate their policies of allowing the United States farm produce to come into Canada free of duty is beyond comprehension. Their attitude is so absurd that one wonders whether they are capable of sane thought in tariff matters.

BRITISH AERIAL MAIL SERVICE IS 100 PER CENT. EFFICIENT.

A record of 100 per cent. efficiency in aerial mail service of British planes flying between London and Paris is reported for the second quarter of 1921 in official British returns, details of which have just been received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York, from its English Information Service. The official report shows that there are two British regular passenger and postal services operating between the above points and that their average daily mileage has been increasing as follows:

1921.	Average daily mileage.
Three months ending June 30	520
Month ending July 31	1,125

These figures do not include irregular services or flights made in England. Arrangements exist whereby mail may be forwarded by railroad in case of flight interruption in the regular service through accident or delay, but no railroad assistance was needed in the June quarter.

British reports covering civil aviation in France disclose that there are daily French airplane services scheduled between Bordeaux-Montpellier, Bayonne-Santander, Paris-London, Paris-Warsaw and Paris-Amsterdam, and bi-weekly or tri-weekly services scheduled between Nimes-Nice, Paris-Havre, and Toulouse-Casablanca by eight transportation companies. Three of these flights include mail service. It is estimated that if the above services are carried out as advertised, the average daily mileage flown is 5,110 miles. A subsidy of 83,215,000 francs in the financial year 1921-22, for the encouragement of French civil aviation is noted.

How are some people going to make both ends meet if the farmers are not allowed to sell their meat in small quantities on the market. Let us hope that the sanitary inspector wills otherwise.

WILSON THE PIONEER

Springfield Republican

The conventional Mr. Lansing thought it a horrible blunder for President Wilson to attend the Paris Peace Conference. Everyone else who was critical of Mr. Wilson thought so too. Even now people are found saying, "What an awful mistake Wilson made in going to Paris." There are probably many persons who will believe to the end of their days that if President Wilson had stayed at home and exercised his right of guidance and supervision over the American delegates at a distance of three thousand miles the Versailles Treaty would have been beyond criticism and a blessing and joy forever. A most remarkable effect of President Wilson's course, in view of the condemnation he got, is that the British and French Prime Ministers, who are the real rulers of their respective countries, are determined to imitate him by coming across the Atlantic to attend the Washington Conference.

THE POLICE OF THE PRAIRIES

Detroit Free Press

The distinguished record of the "Scarlet Riders" is a source of pride to Canadians. Its earnest, fearless control of the lawless elements of the rude frontier was a leading factor in its rapid development. The mounted officers preserved order, administered justice and safeguarded the settlers to such good point that pioneering was made less hazardous, to the end that the sparsely settled regions were filled readily. The officers, never numerous but always effective, did good work in the Riel Rebellion, the Fenian Raids and the various Indian uprisings that molested the security of the early institutions. The traditions of the service are carefully preserved, in the spirit of the present personnel, and in a wider sense by novelists and scenario writers who have dwelt profusely on its romantic exploits. No body of law officers in history ever received greater recognition, and we might say, more justly deserved it.

The Poets' Corner

THE OLD FARM LANE

S.M.S. in Toronto Globe

Jimmie Gildephart and I,
In the tender, wistful gray
Of a fading autumn day,
When the wind was scarce a sigh,
Arm and arm down the old lane
Walked with stumbling feet again.

We, too, had come to autumn days,
Long our sun the line had crossed,
But gently now we see the lost
Through an Indian summer haze,
And the quiet balm of years
Has kissed away the sting of tears.

Fluttering down on broken wings
Fall the gray leaves to the sod;
Gently as if the hand of God
Sheltered disappointed things—
Perhaps our work that comes to naught
He yet holds in His tender thought.

Now here, now there, the light winds play;
Now here and there just stirs a tree,
And Jimmie said: "How gently we
Lay down our tools at close of day;
Yet memory holds forever sweet
The hopes that fluttered to defeat."

The far-off fields, serene and wide,
Smiled with soft sunshine to the west,
Like mellow peace that age had blessed,
And sorrow time had sanctified;
We think that, though we lost the goal
We found the sunrise of the soul.

And Jimmie said: "What wistful ghosts
Hover about in this old lane
Our hungry eyes see here again
Our dear lost dreams, a phantom host,
Each rustling, shivering leaf doth hold
Voices of the friends of old.

"'Twas down this lane she laughing came
And gaily won a foolish heart;
Long since the kind years healed the smart,
But no suns after shone the same—
But, ah, the years since death's dull sway
Hid all that loveliness away!"

Now and again an apple falls,
Amongst the trees the sumacs burn,
Along the fence the asters yearn,
At every step a memory calls;
The haze of youth and dreams again,
Like after glow, fill this dear lane.

About the Muskallunge

There are nine recognized spellings of the name of this well-known fish, but the general designation is just 'lunge. It is especially abundant in the Kakartha Lakes in Victoria and Peterboro' counties and is also found in the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence. The Chautauqua 'lunge of Lake Chautauqua, N.Y., is a different variety. The Great Lakes 'lunge has been known to reach a length of eight feet and to weigh 100 pounds.

It is about the 'lunge of Central Ontario, more particularly of Sturgeon Lake, that I am going to tell. In recent years fish have been caught weighing 25 pounds and reaching a length of four to five feet, but as a rule the weight varies from four to twelve pounds, and it is generally held that the best flavored fish are those that weigh about six pounds.

Sturgeon Lake, nine miles north of Lindsay, has a number of large bays, one especially at the mouth of the Scugog river, in which the weeds grow very abundantly, although the lake itself is remarkably clean and free from weeds. These weeds make a hiding place for the 'lunge whence they pounce upon the passing perch, suckers, etc., and it is generally along these weed beds that they are caught. There is one small weed bed along the east shore of the arm of the lake running to Fenelon Falls, not more than a few square yards in area, around which more than 100 fish are caught every summer, but it is to the great weed fields at the mouth of the river, in Crane Bay and north of McConnell's Island, that most of the fishermen resort. Sir Joseph Flavelle and Prof. Milner in their fishing launch and white ducks, in which respect they are unique among the fishermen of the lake, may be seen practically every Saturday and Monday traversing these pathways in search of the black bass or 'lunge. The bass are not generally found in the weeds, but on stone or gravel bottoms off shore.

Sometimes the 'lunge are found among the weeds lying on the surface or "rolling" and showing their white bellies, in which case they seldom bite, but when they do they put up a great battle, and a friend of mine who has 48 'lunge to his credit during last summer, tells me that it is almost impossible to land them, so vigorously do they fight when hooked on the surface. As a rule, when a 10-pound fish is hooked he will jump clear of the water with a great splash, and then swim deep, jumping again when he is right close to the boat, and pulling hard all the time. Strange to say, the very large fish around 20 lbs. do not fight so vigorously, nor do the four-pounders. A great deal depends on the way in which they are hooked, and probably just as many fish are lost each summer as are taken aboard.

The baits vary from copper spoons, phantom minnows, pork rind wigglers, to all the various artificial wooden wobblers such as the tad pollies and rush tangos, but the favorite is a double spoon of copper and brass. The method employed is trolling from skiffs, canoes or launches, though there are a few cases on record where the 'lunge has been caught in still fishing with frogs for bait. The spoon "par excellence" is one beaten out of the solid gold of a discarded watchcase. There are on Sturgeon Lake at least twenty-five launches of the disappearing propellor and a large number of other types, and these are used principally for fishing. In Lindsay there are perhaps a hundred launches, a great many of which are small boats used for fishing or hunting trips. Only two lines are allowed by law from each boat.

There must be thousands of 'lunge caught every season, the highest catches running from 50 to 75. Very few of those who fish occasionally during July and August catch less than ten. The flesh is white and flaky, of very excellent flavor, and the food value of these voracious denziens of our deep inland lakes is thus very considerable. Great quantities, it is said, are taken illegally every spring in the shallow waters along the shore. These fish have never been successfully propagated by artificial means, although this is done with the Chautauqua muskallunge by the State of New York, so that it is said the fish are fairly teeming in Chautauqua Lake. In the great network of lakes in Haliburton no 'lunge are taken, only black bass and lake speckled trout, and north of Haliburton village trout only.

Along all the chain of the Kawartha Lakes the 'lunge forms a favorite topic for conversation during the summer months. How many were caught, how the big one was brought just to the edge of the boat, how one was caught with two spoons already in its mouth, how two which bit at the same time made a tremendous tangle of the lines, of the big one that straightened out the hooks of every bait it took hold of and then got away, of the best speed, the best time, the best places, and scores of similar topics.

There is one sensation that ever recurs, even to the most inveterate fisherman, and that is the startled feeling of surprise on seeing emerge from the placid waters of this beautiful pastoral lake such fierce and savage-looking monsters as our Great Lakes Muskallunge:

"Whence and what are you, monster, grim and great?
Sometimes we think you are a 'syndicate.'
A wide ferocious and rapacious jaw,
A vast insatiate and expansive craw,
And like the 'trust' your chiefest aim and wish
Is to combine in one all smaller fish."

Letters to the Editor

MR. ROBINSON REPLIES TO MR. HERITY

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear sir,—I crave space in your columns for a few lines having reference to Mr. J. O. Herity's letter which appeared in your yesterday's issue.

Mr. Herity quotes the folowing paragraph from my letter which appeared in The Intelligencer of the previous day:

"And it is true that notwithstanding the fact that very strenuous efforts have been put forth to induce industries to locate here none have arrived recently, excepting those brought here through the instrumentality of Mr. Graham and those located here some time ago, whereas on the other hand, industries are locating in other towns and cities all around us."

In commenting on this Mr. Herity says: "The 'facts' set forth in the above mentioned communications (mine and two others to which he refers) are not all in accord with facts as they are, as they misrepresent my work as industrial commissioner." Then in closing his communication Mr. Herity says that he does not believe Mr. Robinson would be guilty of intentional miestatement or misrepresentation. He ((Mr. Robinson) has, I fear, merely been re-echoing the words of your (The Intelligencer's) anonymous contributors or idle talk upon the streets.

In replying to this I must say in order to tell the truth, that I have not seen the anonymous communications to which Mr. Herity refers, therefore it would be impossible for me to re-echo them. Neither have I re-echoed idle street talk, although I must admit that there is considerable talk, but it seems to be quite serious—not idle. However, I feel that I have had quite sufficient experience along this line to enable me to distinguish between what is idle talk and that which is serious, notwithstanding my youthful appearance.

Furthermore, I claim that the statement made by me in the paragraph first quoted is substantially correct, and I think I can prove this by the information given by Mr. Herity himself. I stated that notwithstanding the fact that very strenuous efforts have been put forth to induce industries to locate here none have arrived recently excepting those brought here through Mr. Graham's instrumentality.

Mr. Herity claims that one industry has been secured other than those in which Mr. Graham interested himself. Well perhaps it has been secured, but I cannot see that it has actually "arrived." But I will admit that there are good indications of its coming, but judging from Mr. Herity's language it has not yet got here with both feet, so to speak. Mr. Herity says that "full particulars of this organization cannot yet be given to the press. Suffice it is to say that one of the principals of the firm is now resident in Belleville and has moved his family here. Premises have been leased for manufacturing and it is anticipated that the actual work of placing their goods upon the market will commence about February next. This to my mind looks as if matters were yet in the incipient stage—not yet in a complete condition, not altogether "arrived". But the indications are good and I am very glad to get the information that Mr. Herity has given. I saw what was in the papers some time ago about this industry coming here, but as I had neither seen nor heard anything since about the matter I came to the conclusion that the whole arrangement had collapsed. But now I trust and wish for the very best results possible as far as the new industry is concerned.

In closing I will say that I cannot see wherein I misrepresented Mr. Herity's work as industrial commissioner as he intimates. I think the contrary was indicated when I said "very strenuous efforts have been put forth to induce industries to locate here". This applies to Mr. Herity and I fail to see that I could put it much stronger.

A. ROBINSON.

RE MEAT SELLING

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly allow space for a few remarks regarding the selling of meat on our market. Mr. Sanford's letter appeals to thousands of working people in Belleville. I have been at many markets, both in American and Canadian cities and they all sold meat in such places.

If our city meat shops must keep the high prices, claiming high taxation as the cause, why not give the general taxpayers a chance to buy cheaper meat on the market. It is only a hold-up on people trying to supply large families and men who are willing to sell their meat cheaper and say they are still making a much better profit than if sold to the meat shops. There were two stormy sessions in the Ontario Legislature when the Dairy Men's Association tried to prohibit the sale of oleo to keep their butter at prohibitive prices.

What are our markets for? How many of our aldermen are feeding large families with small incomes?

Working people should certainly be given a chance to buy cheaper meat and not be held up the way we are for the upholding of prices in about half a dozen meat shops; five or six months in the year there are no flies to prevent meat being exposed.

It is high time for a change if our Council cannot protect the masses instead of the classes. Women are principally the retail purchasers of meat, and should be heard in the matter.

Thanking you for space for many strugglers like myself,

ELLEN MARTIN.

LONGEST NON-STOP RUN 226½ MILES IN FOUR HOURS

London, Nov. 2.—What is said to be the longest non-stop railroad run in the world, of the Cornish River express from Paddington station, London, to Plymouth—a distance of 226½ miles—has been accelerated by a quarter of an hour, thus reverting to the pre-war time of four hours and seven minutes. This time is some-times beaten by the ocean mail special trains from Plymouth to Paddington, which have made the journey in four hours. The express passes through 68 stations.

MRS. McCULLOUGH HAS GOOD CHANCE OF RECOVERY

Barrie, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Milton McCullough, whose husband was killed in the motor accident on the Holland Landing hill Sunday, is in the hospital here suffering from concussion of the brain and severe shock, but there seems every probability that she will recover. Her son received a gash in the head while the daughter was not hurt.

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

Fortunately D'Artagnan had no opportunity to give the duke this proof of his devotion, and the young woman and the handsome musketeer entered the Louvre by the wicket of the Echelle without meeting with any interruption.

As for D'Artagnan, he immediately repaired to the cabaret of the Pomme de Pin, where he found Porthos and Aramis, who were waiting for him. But without giving them any explanation of the alarm and inconvenience he had caused them he told them that he had terminated the affair alone, in which he had for a moment thought he should stand in need of their assistance.

CHAPTER IX.

George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham.

MME. BONACIEUX and the duke entered the Louvre without difficulty. Once entered into the interior of the court, the duke and the young woman kept along the wall for about twenty-five steps. This space passed, Mme. Bonacieux pushed a little side door, open by day, but generally closed at night. After traversing various passages she introduced a key into a lock, opened a door and pushed the duke into an apartment lighted only by a night-lamp, saying: "Remain here, milord duke. Some one will come." She then went out by the same door, which she locked, so that the duke found himself a prisoner.

Nevertheless, isolated as he was, we must say that the Duke of Buckingham did not experience an instant of fear. Brave, even rash, and enterprising, he had learned that the pretended message from Anne of Austria, upon the faith of which he had come to Paris, was a snare, and instead of regaining England he had, abusing the position in which he had been placed, declared to the queen that he would not go back again without having seen her. The queen had at first positively refused, but at length became afraid that the duke, if exasperated, would commit some rashness. She had already decided upon seeing him and urging his immediate departure when on the very evening of coming to this decision Mme. Bonacieux, who was charged with going to fetch the duke and conducting him to the Louvre, was carried off. During two days it was not known what had become of her, and everything remained in suspense. But when once free and placed in communication with Laporte matters resumed their course, and she accomplished the perilous enterprise which but for her abduction would have been executed three days earlier.

Buckingham on being left alone walked toward a mirror. His musketeer's uniform became him wonderfully well.

At thirty-five, which was then his age, he passed, with just title, for the handsomest gentleman and the most elegant cavalier of France or England. He had succeeded in gaining access several times to the beautiful and haughty Anne of Austria, consort of King Louis XIII., and making himself loved by her by astonishing her.

A door concealed in the tapestry opened, and a woman appeared. Buckingham saw this apparation in the glass. He uttered a cry. It was the queen.

Anne of Austria was then from twenty-six to twenty-seven years of age—that is to say, she was in the full splendor of her beauty. Her carriage was that of a queen or a goddess. She was dressed in a simple robe of white satin and accompanied by Donna Estafania, the only one of her Spanish women that had not been driven from her by the jealousy of the king or by the persecutions of the cardinal.

Anne of Austria made two steps forward. Buckingham threw himself at her feet and before the queen could prevent him kissed the hem of her robe.

"Duke, you already know that it is not I who have caused you to be written to."

"Yes, yes, madame; yes, your majesty!" cried the duke. "This voyage is not a loss since I see you."

"Yes," replied Anne, "but you know why and how I see you, my lord. I see you out of pity for yourself. I see you because, insensible to all my sufferings, you persist in remaining in a city where by remaining you run the risk of your own life and make me run the risk of my honor. I see you to tell you that we must never see each other again."

"Speak on, madame; speak on, queen," said Buckingham. "The sweetness of your voice covers the harshness of your words.

"Every time that I see you is a fresh diamond which I inclose in the casket of my heart. This is the fourth which you have let fall and I have picked up, for in three years, madame, I have seen you only four times. The last was in the gardens of Amiens."

"Duke," said the queen, blushing, "never name that evening."

"Ah, that time, madame, I was able for one instant to be alone with you; that time you were about to tell me all, the isolation of your life, the griefs of your heart. You leaned upon my arm, upon this, madame! I felt as, leaning my head toward you, your beautiful hair touching my cheek—and every time that it did touch me I trembled from head to foot—I would give all my wealth, all my fortunes, all my glory, all the days I have to live, for such an instant, for a night like that—for that night, madame, that night you loved me! I will swear it!"

"Milord, yes; it is possible. But at the first word you dared to utter, at the first freedom to which I had to reply, I summoned my attendants."

"Yes, yes! That is true, and any other love but mine would have sunk beneath this ordeal, but my love came out from it more ardent and more eternal. What to me were all the treasures in the world or all the kings of the earth? Eight days after I was back again, madame. That time you had nothing to say to me. I had risked my life and my favor to see you but for a second. I did not even touch your hand, and you pardoned me on seeing me so submissive and so repentant."

"Yes, but the king, excited by M. the Cardinal, made a terrible clamor. Mme. de Vernet was driven from me, Putange was exiled, Mme. de Chevreuse fell into disgrace, and when you wished to come back as ambassador to France the king himself—remember, milord, the king himself—opposed it."

"Yes, and France is about to pay for her king's refusal with a war. What object, think you, have this expedition to Ré and this league with the protestants of Rochelle which I am projecting? The pleasure of seeing you!

"I have no hope of penetrating sword in hand to Paris. I know that well. But this war may bring round a peace. This peace will require a negotiator. That negotiator will be me. They will not dare to refuse me then, and I will see you and will be happy for an instant. Thousands of men, it is true, will have to pay for my happiness with their lives, but what will that signify to me provided I see you again?"

"Milord, milord, all these proofs of love that you boast are little better than crimes."

"Because you do not love me, madame. If you loved me that would be happiness too great, and I should run mad. Ah, Mme. de Chevreuse, of whom you spoke but now—Mme. de Chevreuse was less cruel than you. Holland loved her, and she responded to his love."

"I dreamed that I saw you lying bleeding, wounded."

"Mme. de Chevreuse was not a queen," murmured Anne of Austria, overcome in spite of herself by the expression of so profound a passion.

"You would love me, then, if you were not one? Thanks for those sweet words."

"Oh, milord, you have ill understood, wrongly interpreted. I did not mean to say"—

"Silence, silence!" cried the duke. "If I am happy in an error do not have the cruelty to deprive me of it. You have told me yourself, madame, that I have been drawn into a snare, and I perhaps shall leave my life in it, for, although it be strange, I have for some time had a presentiment that I shall shortly die." And the duke smiled, with a smile at once sad and charming.

"Oh," cried Anne of Austria, with an accent of terror, "I have had presentiments likewise! I have had dreams. I dreamed that I saw you lying bleeding, wounded."

"In the left side, was it not, and with a knife?" interrupted Buckingham.

"Yes; it was so, milord."

"Would God send the same dreams to you as to me if you did not love me? Should we have the same presentiments if our existences were not associated by our hearts? You love me, my beautiful queen, and you will weep for me?"

"Oh," cried Anne of Austria, "this is more than I can bear! In the name of heaven, duke, leave me. Go! I do not know whether I love you or do not love you, but what I know is that I will not be a perjured woman. Depart, go then, I implore you!"

"Oh, how beautiful you are thus! Oh, how I love you!" said Buckingham.

"Oh, but go, go, I implore you, and come back hereafter; come back as ambassador, come back as minister, come back surrounded with guards who will defend you, with servants who will watch over you and then—then I shall be no longer in fear for your days and I shall be happy in seeing you."

"Oh, then, some pledge of your indulgence! A ring, a necklace, a charm!"

"You will leave France—you will return to England?"

"I will; I swear to you I will."

"Wait, then, wait."

And Anne of Austria re-entered her apartment and came out again almost immediately, holding a casket in her hand made of rosewood, with her cipher upon it in gold letters.

"Here, milord, here," said she. "Keep this in memory of me."

Buckingham took the casket and fell a second time on his knees.

"You promised me you would go," said the queen.

"And I keep my word. Your hand, madame, your hand, and I depart."

Buckingham applied his lips passionately to that beautiful hand, and then rising said:

"Within six months if I am not dead I shall have seen you again, madame: even if I have confounded the whole world for that object, I shall have seen you again."

In the corridor he met Mme. Bonacieux, who waited for him and who conducted him out of the Louvre.

* * * * * * *

The officers who had arrested M. Bonacieux conducted him to the Bastille, where he became the object of the grossest insults and the harshest treatment. He was taken before a commissary, a man of very repulsive mien, with a pointed nose, yellow and salient cheek bones, small but keen penetrating eyes.

He began by asking M. Bonacieux his name, prenames, age, condition and abode.

The accused replied that his name was Jacques Michel Bonacieux, that he was fifty-one years old, was a retired mercer and lived in the Rue des Fossoyeurs, No. 14.

The commissary then, instead of continuing to interrogate him, made him a long speech upon the danger there is for an obscure bourgeois to meddle with public matters, especially when they concerned M. Cardinal.

The character of M. Bonacieux was one of profound selfishness, mixed with sordid avarice, the whole seasoned with extreme cowardice. The love with which his young wife had inspired him was a secondary sentiment.

"But, M. le Commissaire," said he timidly, "I beg you to believe that I know and appreciate more than anybody the merit of the incomparable eminence by whom we have the honor to be governed."

"WHAT SHALL I SERVE INSTEAD OF ICE CREAM?"

Every Fall I receive letters from reader friends asking me if I can recommend some unfrozen dessert that "my guests will enjoy as much as ice cream." For although children will still clamor for ice cream when the mercury in the thermometer drops as low as it can, grown people prefer unfrozen desserts in the colder months.

I believe that the dessert introduced in the dinner menu given below, is every bit as delicious as ice cream:

Tomato Soup
Lamb Pie
Mashed Potatoes	Stewed Celery
Pickel Beets	Quick Biscuit
Coffee	Best-Ever Dessert

Best-Ever Dessert: This is a delicious dessert made in three layers and topped with whipped cream. The first layer is a cake layer; the second an orange cake-filling layer; the third is a chocolate cake-filling layer. Just before serving time sweetened whipped cream is piled generously on top. This dessert is served on a fancy platter and offered to the guests cut pie shaped. To make it, follow these directions:

To Make the Cake Layer: Cream together ¼ cup of butter and ⅓ cup of granulated sugar; add the beaten yolk of one egg and ½ cup of sweet milk. Now sift together 1¼ cups of flour and 1 teaspoon of baking powder; add this to the mixing bowl and stir well. Fold in the stiffly whipped white of one egg and flavor with ½ teaspoon of vanilla. Pour this batter onto a greased layer-cake pan and bake 25 minutes in a hot oven. When it is baked slip it into the fancy dish which you mean to serve this dessert and let it cool, then put on top of this layer the following:

To Make the Orange Layer: Mix together ¼ cup of granulated sugar and 2½ tablespoons of flour; add to these the grated rind of ½ orange and ⅓ cup of orange juice; then stir in 1 well beaten egg and add 1 teaspoon of butter. Cook this mixture in the top of a double boiler over gently simmering water for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Let cool before adding it to the cake layer. When it is cool, put on top of it the following:

To Make the Chocolate Layer: Melt 2 squares of unsweetened chocolate and add to it 1 cup of boiling water, 3-4 cup of granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon butter, 2 tablespoons of cornstarch which have been dissolved in ½ cup of cold water, and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Heat gradually and let boil for 6 minutes, stirring all the time. Let cool before pouring it over the orange layer of the dessert.

Even children like this dessert as well as ice cream—and that's saying a good deal for it! It is a suitable dessert to serve at "lap parties" when a woman's club is being entertained by one of the members; or it is equally suitable to offer with sandwiches and hot coffee on the refreshment table at an evening party.

Of Interest to Women

NOTE TO PARENTS

Have you fortified your daughter who is about to leave home to earn her living or to travel for profit or pleasure, by warning her of the danger which may confront her?

Many evil-minded men and women make a business of enticing, tricking and exploiting the innocent and helpless. These agents of vice travel on trains and boats and loiter about stations and pleasure resorts because they find newly arrived strangers the most accessible and easiest to ensnare. They seize upon the unexpected difficulties and emergencies of travel to lure away the unsuspecting and credulous and even those who think they are on their guard. They watch for the psychological moment to offer friendship or assistance or to make appeals for sympathy or help and thus they frequently succeed in capturing their unsuspecting prey.

Statistics show that thousands of young women and girls are lost every year. They simply disappear; no trace of them can be found. These disappearances do not all take place in large cities, but they sometimes befall the girl while traveling through rural districts.

Do not lay yourself open to bitter regrets for the remainder of your life through a neglect to warn your girls and boys of the snares set for them by those lepers of society lurking in the most unexpected places.

Travelers' Aid is prepared not only to meet travelers at their point of destination or where changes or stopovers are necessary, but it has methods of investigating the many and varied inducements that cause persons to leave their homes through questionable influences such as deceptive letters, advertisements and offered positions or dangerous addresses, acquaintances, etc.

All service rendered by the Travelers' Aid workers are free regardless of race, creed or sex. The local representative is Mrs. T. D. Ruston, 28 Cedar street.

In Persia, women are forbidden to wear hats.

In the Japanese home the mother-in-law is the boss.

Five out of every ten women in Great Britain are smokers.

Statistics show that out of every five marriages there comes one divorce.

Short-haired women are banned in Norway.

Russia has more than 2,000,000 excess females over males.

Girls of Civil Service Staff of Ontario resent order which prohibits sale of chewing gum at Parliament Buildings. Take it as a slur bcause of the insinuation it contains. The girls say they are no more addicted to chewing gum than the men are to cigars or "chewing the rag."

THREE TIMES IS TWO TOO MANY

Red Fox came thru the forest on his way to visit O Possum. He had not paid his friend the attention that he should and now he was on his way to see him for the last time before the Winter set in.

O Possum lived in a hollow tree in the midst of the forest. It was a tall tree and the hole on the outside was small but the inside was big and roomy so he could turn around many times if he wanted to. About 15 feet from the bottom of the tree O Possum had made a pocket where he could sleep and not be disturbed.

Red Fox stopped to rest under a great oak till he could locate the tree where O Possum lived. It happened that at this time Mr. Woodchuck and his friends and family had left their home in the meadow to go to the forest for the Winter. The ground would be so wet that they couldn't stay in it all Winter. This made it a little confusing for Red Fox. He didn't want to call on Mr. Woodchuck and he didn't know which tree O Possum was in for the holes leading into the trees all looked alike.

While Red Fox sat quietly under the Old Oak an acorn fell and hit him on the head. He thought nothing of it at first for he had been under the Old Oak before and knew that there were acorns on it and there was nothing strange aout one falling and hitting him. In a moment another one fell and hit him on the head. Now it was a little strange to have two acorns hit him on the head. Reddy looked up this time but could see nothing but the moving leaves in the breeze.

He thought that perhaps some forest dweller would come along by and by who could tell him where O Possum lived so he sat quietly under the Old Oak. It was only a moment when another acorn came down and hit him. Three was two too many and Reddy became suspicious that someone was playing a trick on him.

Now if there were any tricks to be played on anyone Red Fox wanted to do the tree to see who might be up there throwing acorns at him but he could see it himself. He was not pleased to have a trick played on him. He walked about no one. Then he sat down in another place thinking they would not find him there.

Only a moment passed and down came two acorns and both hit him on the head. That was too much, Reddy sprang to his feet and cried out, "Who is up in that tree throwing acorns at me?"

Down came two acorns and both hit him on the head.

Just then a face that was familiar appeared over the edge of the highest limb. It was the face of Sammy Squirrel and Sammy was laughing as hard as he could laugh.

"That's all right you can laugh now but wait till I catch you on the ground."

"But don't you want to know where O Possum lives?" asked Sammy.

"I sure do and if you will tell me where he is I'll never touch you." Sammy is a wise fellow.

BISHOP CHIDES VICAR FOR SPEECH BY DOYLE

London, Nov. 1.—Because he allowed Sir A. Conan Doyle to occupy the pulpit of Oxford Church, the Rev. G. Vale Owen, vicar of the church, has been sharply rebuked by the Bishop of Liverpool. Although Conan Doyle did not actually speak on Spiritualism the Bishop thinks he used words directly bearing on it when he said that he and those of the same faith who desired to restore the spirit life England regarded Oxford Church as the lighthouse to lead them to higher and purer planes.

Canadian Rockies Abound In Legendary Lore

MINNEWANKA—THE SPIRIT WATER
BY STEAM AND STEEL OVER OLD INDIAN TRAILS
CHIEF YELLOW HORSE

The countless peaks that cover vast stretches of western Canada are wrapped in Indian legends as well as clouds of snow. Many of these are locally familiar, some are widely known, but a rich field awaits the delver into the Indian lore concerning this region. Perhaps another Canadian woman with a strain of Indian blood in her veins will do for the Canadian Rockies what Pauline Johnston did for Vancouver by collecting the Siwash legends.

Banff and its environs are particularly rich in legendary atmosphere. It is safe to say that ninety per cent. of the thousands who stop at Banff annually enjoy a boat ride across Lake Minnewanka, a beautiful sheet of water rimmed in by forbidding mountains. The Indians had many legends concerning this lake, the most popular hinging on its name, which means Spirit Waters. The legend runs that an Indian chief was crossing the lake in a canoe when an evil spirit arose from the waters, wrecked the frail craft and carried the chief down into the depths of the lake, from which the body never rose again. Firm belief in this story caused the Indians to shun the lake, but white men laugh at the tale and find these waters attractive for boating, fishing and camping.

Lake Minnewanka is some 15 miles long and between two and three miles wide. A comfortable launch makes the 22-mile trip regularly. At the southern end a stop is made to allow passengers to inspect the scenic marvels, one of which is a gigantic "Hoodoo," which rises like a monument from the back of a rushing torrent, and bears a balanced rock upon its apex. Nearby is an excellent camping site and another is on the north shore opposite the entrance to Aylmer's Canyon, from which it is comparatively easy to reach 10,365 foot Mt. Aylmer.

Lake trout of great size inhabit Minnewanka and prove a magnet sufficient to counter-balance the fears of any superstitious fishermen, as attested by the numbers who stop at the Chalet beside the lake.

GOVT. REPORT ON CROP CONDITIONS

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The weather during the past week was favorable for root harvesting, and a considerable acreage was cleaned up. Kent says that beets are well matured and are now showing a good sugar content.

Fall pastures have improved of late, and all kinds of live stock are doing well on the grass.

The price of peas has picked up in Renfrew, $3 a bushel being paid. The supply is getting scarce.

Huron tells of a farmer in that county whose bean crop averaged forty bushels an acre.

Elgin says that clover seed is turning out well in the threshing.

Certified seed potatoes (Irish Cobblers were last week loaded in Murillo, in the Port Arthur district, at $2.25 a bag at the point of shipment. Twenty carloads of ordinary field quality were shipped from New Dowell, in Simcoe County., at prices ranging from $1.20 to 90c. a bag.

Fort William reports a considerable quantity of hay changing hands around $25 a ton. Rainy River places prices at from $20 to $23, and Kenora at $30 a ton. Victoria notes sales of hay at $5 and straw at $8 a ton.

Brant states that apples are selling from $1 to $1.50 a bushel for tree run with culls out.

Manitoulin has been marketing large number of cattle and sheep, but speaks of very low prices.

Huron finds the figures paid for young animals disappointing and cites the fact that seven spring calves of beef type were recently sold for $9 a head.

Middlesex reports farrow cows selling at from $30 to $50 each.

Dundas states that at a recent auction sale good milkers and springers sold at around $50, and that dry cows that would dress at about 450 lbs. went for $25.

Bruce, however, says that a farmer near Walkerton recently disposed of six pure-bred Holsteins to a breeder near Tavistock at an average of $300.

Leeds quotes creamery butter at 41c. whey butter 38c. and cheese 14 1-8c. lb.

Interest in sheep raising is being revived in Grey county where a number of farmers are replacing their old flocks with Downs, both rams and ewes being in good demand.

Bacon hogs are moving rather slowly to market at prices ranging from $8 to $8.50 a cwt.

Grey reports the shipment of a carload of horses from Princeville at fair prices. York reports sales of good horses at from $150 to $185 each.

Dundas is pleased to observe that mill feeds are down to nearly pre-war prices; Bran $1.15 and shorts $1.25 a cwt.

Fall wheat is looking very promising as a whole. In fact, several representatives are afraid of too much top, should growing weather continue much longer. The injury from Hessian fly has not been serious.

The area of fall plowing up to date is larger than usual, and at present the land is in good condition for more.

"OUT OF THE SNOWS" A POWERFUL DRAMA OF THE NORTHLANDS

One of the best of the many stories of the great northwest country which have been seen on the screen in some time is "Out of the Snows," a Ralph Ince Production, which is the feature attraction at Griffin's to-night where it is being shown for the last time.

The story is of a girl who is a foundling and knows nothing of her parentage. She is engaged to a member of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, but she hears that he was the man who killed her father some years before and she breaks off the engagement and gides away in the far north. A succession of dramatic climaxes bring out the truth, and also brings the story to a startling and happy conclusion. There are but two women characters in the photoplay—one Anitah, an Indian maiden, ably depicted by Zeena Keefe and the other Ruth Hardy, the foundling, played by Gladys Coburn.

"The City Slicker," a funny 2-reel comedy, the latest chapter of the western mystery serial "Vanishing Trails" and Pathe Review are being exhibited in addition to the above feature offering.

FOUGHT WITH OCTOPUS.

Daring Deed of Canadian Diver Off Honduras.

Capt. Johnson, a Canadian diver, was at work on the wreck of a fruit ship which had gone ashore on a coral reef near Ruatan, Honduras. A new leak had developed, and it was necessary to stop it at once, although the hour was four in the afternoon. Capt. Johnson called his assistants, and they anchored the diver's boat with the apparatus. On his way down Johnson noticed the rare beauty of the translucent tropical waters and the lovely color of the coral and the thousands of fish swimming about.

As he was approaching the point where the work was to be done a long, dark arm shot across the face of his helmet. He had been in tropical waters before and knew the sign. It was the octopus—the devilfish—feared by all divers. He gave the danger signal and was pulled up.

At the surface he considered the situation. The ship was leaking badly and could not be safely left thus all night. He called for a heavy harpoon and cut the handle, making a weapon about three feet long. Armed with this, he went down again to fight the octopus and stop the leak.

Slowly he approached the spot where the octopus was hidden under the bilge of the vessel. As he approached the creature moved from the under side of the vessel, gathering itself for the attack.

There were but four or five feet between the coral reef on which the vessel had grounded and her side at this point, and Johnson settled himself for the battle. It was not slow in coming. The creature extended one of its long arms. Johnson gave a quick thrust with his harpoon, but the devilfish was quicker than he and snatched away the arm.

Again the creature struck, and this time it touched Johnson on the lip. On the instant it lost its arm, severed by a blow from the harpoon.

Then the fight began in earnest. The devilfish tried to envelop the man in its many tentacles and the diver kept slashing with the harpoon. He inflicted wounds enough to disconcert the creature and prevent it from enwrapping him, but for some time none of the wounds were serious.

At last, just as the creature had come to alarmingly close quarters, he managed to drive the harpoon into the body. When badly injured the cuttlefish discharges a great quantity of dye, which colors the water a jet black. Instantly Johnson found himself in a volume of ink. He gave the signal and was pulled up.

It took some time for the dye to clear away so that anything could be seen in the water. Then Johnson went down again. He did not have to renew the battle. The octopus was dead.

A FOREST OF GEMS.

One of the World's Wonders Found In Arizona.

Among the many wonders of the far southwest of America, the Petrified Forest of Arizona must take high rank.

On the maps it is called Chalcedony Park, but the people of Arizona always speak of it as the Petrified Forest. Neither name is very descriptive. It is not a forest and it is not a park; nor are the trees petrified, in the ordinary acceptation of that term, for instead of having been changed into stone, the wood has been agatized.

It is probable that the forest once covered hundreds of square miles, for agatised trunks, logs, and bits of wood are found throughout a great radius of country. It occupies now about a thousand acres. None of the trees are standing.

The strangest thing about them is that every one is composed of semi-precious stones. There are millions and millions of amethysts; and there is chalcedony of every hue, jasper, topaz, cornelian, onyx, and every imaginable variety of agate.

The greatest wonder of the Petrified Forest is the celebrated Agate Bridge. This is a huge tree trunk, a hundred feet in length, spanning a sixty-foot canyon. The entire tree is made up of agates, jaspers, chalcedony, and other highly-colored and handsome stones. In the canyon, directly below the Agate Bridge, is a pool of water, and around it grow the only trees in the whole country.

There are no true precious stones to be found in Chalcedony Park—no diamonds, rubies, or sapphires; but the chips and bits of wood covering the ground are as brilliant as if they were precious gems, and the specimen hunter is bewildered by the rich display and finds himself at a loss as to what to take and what to leave.

For hundreds of years the Indians resorted to this strange forest for the material with which they made their arrow-heads, and many samples of these arrow-heads, as perfect as any in existence, have been gathered into various collections.

Artist Who Paints With Wood.

In repatriated Alsace in the Vosges Mountains lives Mr. Charles Spindler, an artist who makes pictures with wood alone. Using woods in the natural color, he constructs pictures of great beauty. Each pictures he does from a sketch. Then with infinite patience and care he cuts the veneer and glues it to a backing, and then welds it all in a press. Since Mr. Spindler never used anything except wood in its natural color, he has to know a great deal about trees. In his workroom he has pieces of every kind of wood found in Europe and many pieces from other countries. The peasants aid him whenever they can. One day, for example, a farmer told him that he had a tree for him to look at. It was an oak that had been buried for centuries and that was a beautiful blue-black. The artist, who was delighted with the color, at once purchased the tree. With the various woods Mr. Spindler achieves perfect color. He pictures clouds, rain, sunlight, lace curtains, in short anything and everything that an artist can picture with paints. Some of his veneer takes him hours of study and fitting, and some of it is as fine as hair. Mr. Spindler has wood of every shade of yellow, red, brown, black and white. He has almost all the shades of green also, but he finds the blues hard to get.

The Unlucky Doctor.

The Chinese have a strong sense of humor. The joke, told by a recent writer, should bring a smile to almost any face. There was a doctor who understood so little of his profession that every now and then he killed one of his patients. He had a son and a daughter. One day he had sent the son of a family to the other world, and since the family was much dissatisfied he gave them his own son in compensation. Subsequently he had the misfortune to despatch the daughter of another couple and was obliged to give them his own daughter to make good the loss. He was now alone with his wife. They were feeling lonely and miserable one evening, when again some one knocked at the door and asked for the doctor. He went out himself and inquired of the man who it was that needed him. The man said that it was his wife. The poor doctor went back into his room and, shedding tears, said to his wife, "I see it coming. There must be somebody who has cast an eye on you."

Couldn't Believe That.

When Lord Lonsdale was in America he was entertained one night by some friends.

He told a story of how he had found a petrified forest in Africa. In it were many petrified lions and elephants.

A murmur of astonishment went round the table, but an American, not to be outdone, related how he had seen in Texas a petrified forest, with petrified birds flying over it.

"But that's sheer nonsense," said Lord Lonsdale. "It's against every known scientific law."

"Yes," said the American, "but down there all the scientific laws are petrified, too."

African Game Preserves.

The growing scarcity of specimens in every department of zoology has led to the setting apart of large game preserves in the wilds of Africa and putting them in the charge of experts. There seems to be no animal that can not be partly tamed if a feeding ground and water in plenty are given it. Attendants venture into the inclosures and stroll among the animals to accustom them to the sight of human beings. Gradually the beasts are herded into smaller paddocks, where any peculiarities that they may have are observed. In that way healthy specimens for the zoological gardens are assured.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

How Other Half Lives

O.L.—Last night while on the railway station I saw Inspector Ruston come off the train with a family. They were in a most deplorable condition one could never believe that such existed in this fair Dominion. But seeing is believing is an old adage. The Children's Aid Society is to be congratulated on carrying on such good work.

The Price of Bread

L.R.B.—I see the price of Flour is cheaper now than it has been for six years, yet the price of bread is double what it was in 1915, while the price of Pies, cakes etc., can stand trimming. Gee, Mother, Bake your own.

New Prank

W.P.—While walking homeward the other evening about 10-30, I saw little white spots darting about on a neighbor's lawn. I couldn't imagine what it was. I thought it must be a new Hollowe'en prank, but on closer observation I discovered the spots to be tame rabbits out for a feed of green grass.

Fifty Pounds of Fish

F.S.—A fish weighing over fifty pounds caught in the Bay of Quinte was shown on Front street last week. It excited little attention in this section of big fish and fishermen. Charlie Reid had something to do with landing that lunge and it sure was some catch. Charlie always keeps the proofs to back up his fish stories, either photographs or the real thing.

Cut Out the Peashooter

R.P.—Hallowe'en night a motorist proceeding along Bridge street was struck in the eye by a pea propelled from a juvenile peashooter. The pea pretty nearly put the motorist out of business. He lost control of his car which immediately plunged for the curb and only a miracle prevented a bad accident. A boy on Victoria avenue the same night stopped a rock with his head, result—a severe cut, pain, blood and tears. Boys should cut out the deadly peashooter which is liable to destroy someone's eyesight. Let's play but play right.

Bar the Snakes

A.R.—I saw a rattlesnake on the market Saturday. It was a vicious looking reptile. It was being shown to draw a crowd by a patent medicine fakir, and I just thought how dangerous it is to permit anyone to make pets of these dangerous reptiles and carry them carelessly around the country. Even if the poison sac is removed it will grow in again. Recently a very large snake foreign to this country was found on a Toronto lawn. Snakes should be barred out as undesirable characters.

THE BEEHIVE——Chas. N. Sulman

"I Had To Hear Your Voice To-Night!"

Mother had never used the Long Distance telephone—she had no idea how to go about it.

She longed to hear her daughter's voice; but then, Kingston was a long way from Hamilton—she was afraid she would never be able to hear so far.

But she could wait no longer. "I must speak to my daughter in Kingston" she told Central. A few minutes later she heard, "Ready with Kingston!"

"Is that you, Alice?"

"Why Mother, where are you speaking from?" came the familiar voice that she had longed to hear.

"I'm at home in Hamilton. I just had to hear your voice to-night—I couldn't wait any longer!"

And so mother and daughter, separated by many miles, had a virtual reunion that night.

It's a weekly affair now, those fond, intimate talks. Distance rolls away, and for a few minutes every Thursday night the familiar voices tell the little family gossip that both are so eager to hear.

Ask "Long Distance" to get the absent one on the telephone for you. Often it acts like a tonic to hear the familiar voice that distance has kept silent so long. Your telephone can bridge the gulf that separates you.

Byron Ketcheson, a well-known resident of Hamilton, died at his home, 300 Inverness avenue, Mount Hamilton, Monday evening. Deceased was a son of the late Mr. Nicholas Ketcheson and was born at Moira, Hastings County. He lived in Belleville for some time. He was 67 years of age and had lived in Hamilton 45 years. A widow and one daughter Mrs. Wm. Frank of Hamilton survives.

Wedding Bells

SHORTT—WAGAR

A quiet wedding took place at the Parsonage, Bridge St., East on Tuesday, Nov. 1st when Nellie V. Wagar, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wagar, Deseronto was united in marriage to Wm. H. Shortt, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Shortt, Picton. Dr. Cleaver performed the ceremony.

GREAT WELCOME AT PICTON

Premier Meighen Acclaimed by Audience of Five Thousand in Armouries.

At Picton last night Premier Meighen addressed an audience that packed the armouries to its capacity. It was estimated that upwards of 4,000 persons were in the spacious building and listened most attentively to the Premier who was in fine form for the occasion. Associated with him was Hon. Dr. Edwards. A civic welcome was extended to the distinguished visitor by Major Newman, and he was escorted to the armouries by a torchlight procession. In the course of his able address the Premier argued that protection was a benefit to the farmer; as letting down the tariff bars would mean that flooding of Canada with American products. Hon. Dr. Edwards address was in the main a slashing arraignment of the policy of Hon. Mr. King and Mr. Crerar and the farmer's politically movement in general.

Mr. Hubbs the Conservative candidate received a most cordial reception and gave an address that merited much approval.

The meeting was without doubt one of the best political gatherings ever held in Prince Edward County and augurs well for the success of the Government candidate. Amongst those present was Mr. E. Guss Porter K.C., the Conservative candidate for West Hastings.

University of Toronto schools lengthened their lead in the Inter-scholastic football series.

CENSUS OF SEALS.

These Fur-bearing Creatures Are Protected.

The only herd of wild animals in the world of which a yearly census is taken are the fur seals of the Pribiloff Islands, in the Bering Sea.

Once they numbered between five and six million, but they were slaughtered so ruthlessly for their skins that by 1908 there were less than a hundred thousand on the islands. Now they are protected by international agreement, and the herd is mustered and counted every year just like a flock of sheep.

The fur seal spends about two-thirds of each year far out at sea, making a circuit of 6,000 miles in the open ocean without touching land. It only comes to the Pribiloff Islands in the summer months to breed and rear its young. As soon as the young are born the mother seal goes out to sea in search of food.

When the sealers were forbidden to land on the islands they took to pelagic sealing—killing the animals in the open sea—and the seal's departure from the Pribiloffs was their great opportunity. But it meant the loss of both mother and baby, and the wholesale killing of the females in this way brought the herd near to extermination.

After many conferences, the taking of seals was prohibited within a radius of fifty miles of the island, and the entire ocean closed to sealing from May to September. Then, when war broke out, Britain, Russia, and Japan, anxious to fall in with any reasonable suggestion, agreed to give up sealing within the waters of the Pacific traversed by the Pribiloff seals.

America, as owners of the islands, agreed to compensate the sealers for the loss they sustained, and to give this country and Japan a definite interest in her sealing industry when it was revived.

All told, America expended $7,500,000 on her efforts to protect the seal, but it has been money well spent. Last year's census revealed the existence of 550,000 seals, and this year's count is expected to show at least 600,000. As the pelt of this particular seal fetches $150 in the open market, the herd may be said to represent a value of $90,000,000. About 25,000 young male seals are now being taken annually, which means a yearly revenue to the Government of $3,750,000, of which 15 per cent. goes to Great Britain and another 15 per cent. to Japan.

Counting the seals is by no means an easy task. They occupy various rookeries, and in the height of the breeding season the big bulls are particularly pugnacious. So the bulls and the females are counted from the cliffs, and the young pups before they are ready to go to sea. Parental watchfulness is not then so strict, both parents spending a great deal of time in the water. Accordingly, they are kept out to sea, while men armed with long poles drive the pups to the smoother beaches, where they are herded into groups like cattle. They are then allowed to disperse, and as they make off in lines they are counted.

Eskimo Skeletons.

Thirty-three Eskimo skeletons arrived in Halifax from the Far North recently for examination and measurement on behalf of the Canadian Government by Dr. John Cameron, Professor of Anatomy at Dalhousie University. The skeletons have been brought from the land of snows by the Canadian Arctic Exploration party, which has spent five years in Canada's frigid zone studying the customs, language and characteristics of the Eskimo race. They were found in the region north of the Mackenzie river.

Dr. Cameron estimates that upwards of three years will be required to complete the study of the skeletons and make the thousands of measurements necessary. The greater part of the work will be devoted to the skulls and the peculiarities of their formation. When completed the information obtained from the examinations will be included in a book to be published by Dr. Cameron. The book will be a standard work of reference on the physical characteristics of the Eskimo race.

A special study of the teeth of the skeletons will be made by Dr. S. G. Ritchie, of Halifax.

A Memorial at Queen's.

Queen's University has received a grant from the administration of the Khaki University, which was conducted in England during the war. This is to be used to help the returned soldier students. The fund will be called the "The Khako University and Young Men's Christian Association Memorial Fund," the interest from which will eventually be used for making loans to returned men, who are attedding college, and who are in actual need of money to complete their course.

Queen's has instituted what is known as a "Health Insurance Fund," to which each student is required to pay three dollars yearly for medical attention when required. This fund provides for the student who is taken sick, getting free services of the university medical officer and free hospital treatment.

He Was Going Back.

Willie, aged six, was going through an orchard, looking for the easiest tree to climb, when he came face to face with the irate owner, who had with him a ferocious dog.

"Where are you going?" demanded this unwelcome individual.

"Back," said Willie, after one look at the dog.

Montreal's Population.

Population figures issued recently by the census branch give Montreal Island 712,909 for 1921, as compared with 554,761 in 1911, the increase for the decade being 28.51 per cent. Montreal city proper has a population of 607,063, as compared with 489,880 ten years ago, or a percentage increase of 23.92.

Liberal Clergyman Argues With Premier

Liberal—Take 2

King, and you won't see it in the Toronto Globe, if you read until you're blind." He was proceeding to state the terms of the Liberal resolution, when Rev. F. L. Farewell, principal of the Ontario Ladies' College at Whitby, enquired, "Is that free trade?"

"Pretty nearly; if my friend will listen a few minutes, I will show him", replied Mr. Meighen. The Premier was about to go into the details of the platform when Mr. Farewell asserted: "You will find that the policy of Mr. King is a tariff for revenue."

No Revenue Tariff There

"I know that there is many a man in this country who has been deceived" replied the Premier. He announced his intention to read the whole of the Liberal convention resolution. "I hope you will feel proud of it," he added. "Did you hear anything about revenue tariff?" he asked when he had concluded. "My friend is only one of the deceived." Notwithstanding the absence from the resolution of any reference to tariff for revenue, Mr. Farewell was not convinced. "I submit that the Liberal policy is a tariff for revenue," he asserted doggedly. "Well I have read the policy, have I not?" replied Mr. Meighen, "this policy does not mention tariff for revenue."

"It's not free trade," persisted his interlocutor, shifting his ground.

"It proposes to admit free of duty commodities produced by 8,745 factories in Canada," answered the Prime Minister.

"These factories normally employ 186,749 workmen. That is pretty near free-trade, and I venture to say that my friend is not one of the workmen. Besides stripping these 8,745 factories of protection, that resolution exposes wholly without protection, the producers of food in this country, who are the farmers. I say put on the free list all the commodities mentioned in our opponents' resolutions and you have gone two-thirds of the way to free trade. Do you think you can put the vital industries of the country on the free list and leave the others protected? How could you justify that? I don't care whether you call it free trade or not. I say that, if you adopt the tariff policy of either of the Opposition Parties, you have staggered the industrial system of this country."

Revenue, and Protective Tariffs

"I ask Mr King if he is going to put implements of production on the free list," continued Mr. Meighen, "and he tells me he is going to have a revenue tariff. Does anyone know what a revenue tariff is?"

"Everybody knows what it is," ejaculated Rev. Farewell, "Did you ever hear of a tariff which was not a revenue tariff?" retorted the Prime Minister sharply, and evoked applause from the crowd. "Is our present tariff a revenue tariff or a protective tariff?"

"It is a protective tariff." replied Mr. Farewell.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier made it,"

MUSIC AND DRAMA

CECIL B. DEMILLE'S NEW PICTURE MARVEL OF REALISM

Genuineness and absolute realism are two factors in the enormous success which Cecil B. DeMille has attained as a motion picture director. These qualities are present in "Male and Female," Mr. DeMille's latest Paramount Artcraft picture, which was adopted from Sir James M. Barrie's famous play, "The Admirable Crichton" and will be on view at Griffin's to-morrow to Saturday with a matinee Saturday. Properties used in his latest picture total thousands of dollars in value. One toilet set alone cost five hundred dollars and the gorgeous gowns worn by Gloria Swanson, Lila Lee and Bebe Daniels, who are in the cast are worth a handsome price.

The story of Crichton, the butler in the family of English nobles who was wrecked with his master's yachting party at sea and became their leader, has long delighted thousands. Under the master hand of Cecil B. DeMille it is a screen masterpiece. Thomas Meighen plays the leading role and Theodore Roberts, Raymond Hatton and Guy Oliver are included in the cast.

A 2-reel comedy, Fox News Weekly, Kineto Review and other selected attractions will also be exhibited on the same program.

An added feature at Griffin's starting to-morrow night will be the introduction of a special overture number by the Griffin orchestra under the direction of Frank Sills, to be played just previous to the exhibition of the feature attraction.

"HULLO CANADA" TO BE PRESENTED IN BELLEVILLE

Never in the history of the Canadian stage has an attraction of such magnitude as Albert DeCourville's London revue, "Hullo Canada" been transported across the continent. Not only from the standpoint of numbers does this company eclipse any other making a like tour, but it is by far the most expensive.

First, take the transportation from London, England, to Montreal when it was found an entire ship would have to be used to carry the scenic equipment and other effectes. On arrival it became necessary to charter five cars to move the company and scenery from point to point. When one starts to enumerate the cost of production aside from the carting expenditures the amount becomes appalling to anyone but a real Napoleon of the theatre.

Nevertheless, the Trans-Canada Theatres Limited have guaranteed over five hundred thousand dollars for the tour, depending solely on the Canadian public to rise to the occasion and do their bit to assure the success of this record-breaking venture. 'Hullo Canada' will be presented at Griffin's Opera House, Armistice night, Friday, November 11th.

said Mr. Meighen. "That tariff, except that we have reduced a few items in the tariff, Sir Wilfrid Laurier left. In England they had a tariff on goods not made in the country. It was a revenue tariff. We have a tariff on goods made in the country, a protective tariff: it too, is a revenue tariff. The man who talks about a revenue tariff simply does so because he doesn't want his hearers to know what he is going to do. If he says a tariff simply on goods not made in Canada' that will mean something."

The Prime Minister was unable to see why an Eastern Canadian farmer should favor free goods, inasmuch as 85 per cent. of the food products of the Dominion were sold in the home market.

"Yes, but our market is controlled by the foreign market,' interjected a man in the audience.

"It will be far more controlled if you adopt the Liberal policy," replied Mr. Meighen. "You are told that although your products are shut out of the United States market by the Fordney Tariff Act, you should allow the surplus products of the United States to flow into Canada free of duty." To a questioner who suggested that the Ontario farmers had favored free foodstuffs, Mr. Meighen replied that the Ontario farmers had so far never done so.

Would Paralyze Woollen Industry

A reduction of preferential duties on British goods to 50 per cent. of the general tariff duties as proposed by both Liberals and Agrarians would in his judgment paralyze the woollen industry in Canada. "These things were adopted," said Mr. Meighen "without any investigation at all, without any inquiry as to their effect upon industry.

Mr. Meighen said that the Liberal and Agrarian tariff resolutions embodied concrete pledges of legislation not mere declarations of principle.

"What about the pledge of your party to resign in 1919?" asked an elector, reviving an ancient Opposition tale.

"There was no such pledge," declared Mr. Meighen. "We adopted in 1917 a platform calling for legislation both during the war and after its conclusion. We have carried out our pledges and we are now appealing to the people."

Anthracite Prices
As dealers in Anthracite we wish we could reduce prices,—but we can't.
The causes of high Anthracite prices are higher costs of Labor and higher Freight Rates—both fixed by law—not higher Profits.
Neither producers nor coal dealers are making any more money than they made when prices were lower.
The increased price ALL goes to pay higher costs of production and transportation.
How, then, can prices be reduced?
It is wise to lay in your winter's supply now rather than wait until thousands of consumers are trying to have their coal bins all filled at the same time.

THREAT OF COAL STRIKE LOOMS LARGE IN UNITED STATES

TARIFF ALONE WAY TO SAFETY

Meighen at Peterboro' and Campbellford Reaffirms His Policy.

KING VERY SHIFTY

Changes His Attitude on the Tariff According to His Audiences.

PETERBORO, Nov. 2. — "When is this country going to learn that it can make its way by one road and one road only, and that is by a tariff made by Canada for the Canadian people," exclaimed Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, toward the close of a powerful appeal for support for the policy of protection to an audience of 5,000 people in the armouries here. A general lowering of the tariff, he declared, meant disaster to the country. Even under the Underwood tariff, the United States had had a tariff higher than that of Canada. That Underwood tariff had been superseded by the more highly protective Fordney Act. Great Britain under the safeguarding of Industries Act passed a few months ago he believed, had a higher average tariff than Canada and practically every other country of any importance was operating a protective system. "If you propose to act as citizens in a manner satisfying to your consciences and are opposed to the Liberal convention platform," said Mr. Meighen, "don't vote for the Liberal party in the hope that it will be dishonest, don't vote for Mackenzie King in the belief that he will repudiate his platform, dishonor his convention, betray three provinces and commit black perfidy."

SAVED ON BRINK OF FALLS RAPIDS

Two Men in Small Boat Rescued After 3-Hour Struggle.

Niagara, Falls, N.Y., Nov. 2.—Two men in a small boat were rescued at the brink of the rapids above the falls after a struggle of three hours.

The pair, William E. Galley and Phillip A. Killiams, lost an oar while on the river and drifted toward the rapids. Fortunately they bumped against a crib to which they clung. Darkness had fallen, but their cries were heard and the alarm given. The fire department on both sides of the river put searchlights into play, and hundreds of automobiles faced the river bank in an effort to locate the men, whose cries could be heard.

The illumination lights of the Cataract were turned on and men were stationed on the Goat Island bridge to rescue the victims should they be swept toward the Falls. After three hours, when the men had not been located, a motorboat crew of firemen volunteered to skirt the Rapids. They found the pair clinging to the crib and brought them safely to land.

ROBBERS DISGUISE SELVES AS KU KLUX KLANSMEN

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—To be held up and relieved of their valuables by two men whose identity was hidden by the regalia of the Ku Klux Klan was the experience of 40 masqueraders at a house party here Monday night.

The merry-makers were dancing when the robbers rushed in, and although the male members of the party put up a stiff resistance, they succeeded in gathering up a quantity of valuables.

As they backed out a determined rush was made by the men of the party, who, though the robbers made their escape, recovered the jewelry.

A Pen Picture of Point Anne

THE NEW CLUB HOUSE

Modern business is concerned nowadays with the welfare of employees as much as in the more prosaic task of seeing that each man and machine produces a certain amount each day. The welfare of the employee, comfort, contentment, and health, congenial surroundings, opportunities for recreation, safety appliances to prevent injury while at work, and general welfare work is one of the high lights of modern business and has a beneficial effect upon greater production per machine and per man, better work, a better class of employees, contented and efficient, and a consequent lowering in cost of production as well as the satisfaction of conducting business upon a higher level.

Belleville citizens as a rule consider Point Anne as little more than a smudge of smoke upon the horizon and a place where the dawn comes up like thunder in the blasts from the quarries, also as a place where the inhabitants are mostly foreigners.

All wrong, Point Anne is a very interesting place, a centre of an immense industry, the works of the Canada Cement Company, Limited, with their many buildings and tall stacks pointing skyward, the employees while formerly largely of foreign extraction are now largely Canadian, extremely Canadian in fact, for many of our Mohawk Indians have taken to the cement industry and are numbered among the best workers at Point Anne. Point Anne is also noted for its stone quarries and many of the finest buildings in Canada are faced with the stone from Point Anne, shipped daily in the summer time by quaint old stone hookers up through the Bay of Quinte and Murray Canal and Lake Ontario to Toronto. Then there are the fisheries and the fishermen in their boats can be seen out on the bay any day, rain or shine, blow high, blow low, working at their nets. It also must be mentioned in passing that the genius of an artist first blossomed in Point Anne, the habitat of Manly MacDonald, A.R.C.A., who has just returned from Europe, a collection of his paintings having won a prize which consisted of a tour of Spain and other European countries.

SAFETY FIRST.

But to return to the industrial side of Point Anne, it is interesting to note that the Canada Cement Company officials are strictly up to date in the matter of safety first and welfare work. The superintendent is Mr. A. A. Huck, a very modern industrial giant who wears overalls oftener than white cuffs and can do any job on the works as well or better than the man at it. Mr. E. R. Abbott is the Safety Engineer, and his task is to see that the works are as safe as safety appliances can make them, and as near fool-proof as possible, for the last thing industry wants in its business is an accident.

Mr. Abbott is also very proud of the new club house recently finished, of which he was the designer and master builder. Superintendent Huck is also proud of the club house as another step toward one hundred per cent. efficiency.

THE NEW CLUB HOUSE.

As might be expected, the club house is mainly of concrete, and it is an example of the excellent results which can be obtained from concrete construction as it is ornate, attractive and most comfortable and commodious. On the main floor is a large lounge room with mission furniture, piano, and mammoth fireplaces; adjoining is the pool and billiard room, and at the other end dining room and kitchen. Upstairs are twenty-five bedrooms, most of them occupied, and meals are served daily to about thirty employees. Once a month a dance is held in the club house, which is always an enjoyable event. In all the rooms on the ground floor the large fireplaces, capable of taking a Yule log, attract favorable attention and seem to guarantee comfort the coldest nights of winter. From the balcony a wide sweep of the Bay of Quinte can be seen with the Prince Edward shore green and inviting just over the way, and in the near distance the fishing boats busy at their nets.

SKATING RINK.

Another innovation at Point Anne is a skating rink and there is to be a hockey team this winter, which will be looking for games with Belleville teams, so look out for the cement chasers.

One can not contemplate the immense industrial plant at Point Anne without realizing what it means to Belleville. Many of the employees live in Belleville, and most of them trade here. It would mean more to Belleville if a transportation line was arranged—motor bus or electric railway car—make it as easy as possible for Point Anne folks to get to Belleville. Normally Point Anne industries carry more than four hundred employees on their payrolls and the wages have always been large. Think it over.

The Canada Cement Company at Point Anne use an average of three thousand horse power in electricity from the Hydro daily, and an enormous amount of coal.

Point Anne is a self-contained community, but it is also a part of Belleville and should be recognized as such and steps taken to improve the transportation facilities.

Will Determine U. S. Duties on Agricultural Products.

FAVOR HIGH RATES

Said to Have Working Agreement with Extreme Wing of Senators.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Conferences of Senators of the Republic agricultural group have brought out the fact that there is a practical working agreement between most of this group and high tariff Senators from manufacturing States. As a result agricultural products will be allowed whatever duties the agricultural Senators ask. In return the eastern high tariff Senators will get the support of the agricultural Senators for what they want.

Only a small group of Republican Progressives will unite with the Democrats to oppose this "log-rolling program," which will apparently be forced through whenever permanent tariffs are fixed.

MAY SHUT DOWN U. S. COAL MINES

Court Ruling to Prevent Organizing Areas by Labor Brings Revolt.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 3.—A general strike of coal miners in the United States seemed inevitable if operators heed the injunction issued by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson which proscribed the "check-off" of union dues.

A telegram sent from headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America after it had been definitely learned that the injunction was not yet in effect, advised union officials to regard discontinuance of the "check-off" as breaking the existing wage agreement.

VIOLATION OF AGREEMENT

The telegram, signed by President John L. Lewis, Vice-President Philip Murray and Secretary William Green said:

"Any abrogation or setting aside of any part or section of this agreement, including the section providing for the checking off of dues and assessments, cannot be regarded as other than a violation of the agreements and should be treated accordingly by the district officers and local unions."

While no course of conduct for union officials was outlined by the telegram, it was said authoritatively that the international officers regarded the strike as the union's only weapon to enforce a contract. The telegram was sent to officials in 16 States where the check-off provision obtains and where 350,000 of the 550,000 union miners are employed.

BARNS AND STOCK WIPED OUT BY FIRE

Implements, Cattle, Horses, Pigs and Poultry, All Destroyed by Fire.

PETERBORO, Nov. 3.—Two barns with their entire contents of stock and implements, belonging to Charles Healy on the old Tully farm in North Monaghan on the 1st concession, or the Smith boundary, were wiped out by a fire of unknown origin Tuesday morning between four and five o'clock.

The livestock lost by Mr. Healy included three horses, seven head of cattle, a number of pigs and all his poultry. The implements stored in the barn were also destroyed.

A fresh northeast wind fanned the flames and carried the sparks dangerously near to the buildings on the farm of W. L. White close by. When the fire was first noticed, about 4.40 o'clock, both barns of moderate size were ablaze and beyond help.

Mr. White's property was threatened by the sparks and brands thrown by the wind, and it is more than likely that had the direction of the wind been more easterly his barns would have been burned too.

JOHN BULL'S MILLIONS TO RELIEVE WORKLESS

Supplementary Estimate Involves Large Amount—A Big Total.

LONDON, Nov. 3—A supplementary civil service estimate of eight million pounds sterling has been made, to be exclusively devoted to unemployment relief. The colonial office grant of free passages for the encouragement of overseas settlement will be increased by a grant of three hundred and thirty thousand pounds, making a total of eighty-nine thousand pounds for the year.

The state contribution to the unemployed workers' and dependents' fund accounts for another 2,192,000 pounds, while five and a half million pounds have been voted for relief to be administered by the ministry of health in connection with the schemes for land, improvement, drainage, forestry, roads, light railways and for loans to local authorities.

The proposals for the relief of the unemployed further involve an expenditure of 1,978,000 pounds from savings on exchange for future votes, and the sum of 2,000,000 pounds to be available from the road fund for expenditure by the ministry of transport. The sum in all to be immediately provided by the state will be 12,000,000 pounds.

BARS OF HIS CELL WERE HALF SAWN

Remaining Member of Murrell Gang Tries to Escape From London Jail.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 2.—A sensation has been created at Middlesex County Jail by discovery of the fact that bars in the window of the cell occupied by "Slim" Williams, only remaining member of the Murrell gang had been sawed nearly through. The slots, evidently cut from the inside, had been plugged with black soap, after the manner employed by the Murrells in their successful getaway. It is reported that jail attendants were tipped off that something of the kind had been attempted and a thorough examination resulted in the discovery. Williams and others confined in the cell with him were at once transferred to another ward in the jail.

Williams succeeded in having a letter addressed to a local newspaper, sent out of the jail. He complains that since the escape of the Murrells "the turnkeys have treated me rotten." He says that he would rather be back in France and asks that arrangements be made to remove him to Kingston Penitentiary, pending trial as he believes he would receive better treatment there.

Sheriff D. M. Cameron and Governor James Carter vacated their positions and their duties have been taken over by Deputy Sheriff Waterworth and Chief Turnkey McLoud. No appointments have been announced from Toronto as yet.

COAL SHORTAGE NOT IMMINENT

Large Supplies Are Said to be on Hand in United States.

"CHECK OFF" SYSTEM

350,000 Miners Would be Affected by Threatened Strike.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—A strike of 350,000 coal miners of the principal bituminous producing fields of the country will follow enforcement of Judge Anderson's injunction against the "check off" system, according to union officials. Already 25,000 miners have quit work in Indiana.

Frank Farrington, head of the Illinois miners, wired his chiefs to-day that while a stoppage of the "check-off" system would be a violation of contract, he could not order a strike until it had actually occurred. It was understood he had received his instructions from headquarters in Indianapolis.

The Illinois miners will not be paid for two weeks, and until that time they will not know what action has been taken by the Illinois operators on Judge Anderson's injunction.

Illinois miners were reported ready to strike and 400 quit work in the Central Iowa district. They were the first to go out in this state. It was not expected there would be a general walkout before next pay day.

Approximately 350,000 miners would be idle if a general strike is called. The mines of Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Michigan, Missouri, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Kansas, Teas, Wyoming, Iowa, and Montana would be tied up. The "check-off" system prevails in these states as well as Indiana where the miners have already gone out.

Under the "check-off" system the mine operators deduct union dues from the men's pay and turn it over to the union treasurer. Judge Anderson held money raised in this way was being used to prolong the West Virginia mine war.

Danger of a coal shortage was not regarded as serious by Chicago mine operators and coal dealers. It was estimated Chicago has a supply sufficient for two months. Supplies of both bituminous and anthracite were reported above normal, due to the industrial depression. Similar conditions, it was said, exist throughout the country.

THE UNBROKEN LINE.

(Poppy Day in Belleville, Saturday, Nov. 5.)

We who have trod the borderlands of death,
    Where courage high walks hand in hand with fear,
Shall we not hearken what the Spirit saith,
    "All ye were brothers there, be brothers here?"

We who have struggled through the baffling night,
    Where men were men and every man divine,
While round us brave hearts perished for the right
    By chaliced shell-holes stained with life's rich wine.

Let us not lose the exalted love which came
    From comradeship with danger, and the joy
Of strong souls kindled into living flame
    By one supreme desire, one high employ.

Let us draw closer in these narrower years,
    Before us still the eternal visions spread;
We who outmastered death and all its fears,
    Are one great army still, living and dead.

as a result of a division in the ranks of supporters of Government elected a Liberal—G. N. Gordon at the by-election, held last February. In that contest five candidates faced the electors; Roland Denne, a nominee of the Government party; J. H. Burnham, whose resignation on the ground that his mandate had expired, had vacated the seat, as an Independent Conservative; Mr. Gordon; a Labor candidate and an Agrarian.

At that the result of the by-election was not rejection of principle of protection by the people of West Peterboro, of which the City of Peterboro is an important part. Both the Government candidate in that election and Mr. Burnham are ardent protectionists. And Mr. Gordon, the Liberal, chose to ignore the policy to which his party was pledged and which it was asserted, he assisted in passing at the Liberal convention of 1919, and to represent himself as a protectionist. Today the situation is changed. Mr. Burnham, who represented the constituency from 1911 to the beginning of the present year, is again the Government candidate, and has behind him an undivided following. He is supported by Roland Denne who was his opponent at the by-election and was warmly endorsed by Mr. Denne. "If you are all as sincere as I am in supporting Mr. Burnham," Mr. Denne said, "there is no fear of result." He called upon all who had stood by him at the by-election to rally to the support of Mr. Burnham in the present contest. He recalled, moreover, that Mr. Gordon, who had posed as a protectionist at the by-election, had at the very first opportunity after he entered the House of Commons, voted for Hon. Mr. W. S. Fielding's motion approving of reciprocity with the United States. So far Mr. Burnham is the only candidate in the field. Mr Gordon has not yet been nominated and though he is expected by most people to be a candidate, is said to be not over anxious for the honor. Neither has an Agrarian candidate yet been selected.

POLITICAL AGRICULTURE PRESS

"Speaking at Campbellford, the Prime Minister replied to the "political agricultural press" which was criticizing the Government on the ground that it expended last year only five million dollars on agriculture. "Five million dollars is no more the amount spent on agriculture," he said, "than the hat a man wears is his apparel." He pointed out that of the expenditures of the Government some thirty million dollars was for demobilization. Nearly one hundred million dollars went to keep up the service of railways mainly for the settlers along the roads, particularly for agricultural settlers. A large portion of expenditures of the Post Office Department were for the maintenance of rural free mail deliveries. Furthermore, the Federal Department of Agriculture had more expenditures, more branches and services and did more than all the provincial departments of agriculture put together, although two of them were administered by Farmer Governments.

MENACE OF FREE TRADE

Hon. J. A. Stewart, Minister of Railways and Canals, joined the Prime Minister on this, the closing day, of the latter's present Ontario tour, and spoke effectively at both Campbellford and Peterboro. He took the opportunity, in dealing with the situation of the National Railways, to refer to the operating profit of that system last month. Mr. Stewart asserted that the Government had carried out the pledges which it had made to the people before the general election of 1917. The main issue in the present contest was the tariff, though opponents of the Government had been endeavoring during the past month to run away from that issue. The Agrarian party, the Minister of Railways averred, was endeavoring to convince those engaged in agriculture that their interests were directly opposed to the interests of those engaged in manufacturing industries. If the leaders of that movement attained to power, the country would have free trade in five years. Where, asked Mr. Stewart, would the farmers of Eastern Canada market their produce if the Dominion no longer had an industrial system.

"You have a factory here manufacturing boots and shoes," said Mr. Stewart. "In the manufacture of boots and shoes in this country $33,000,000 are invested. The industry is valued at $46,000,000, its employes last year numbered 9,000, and its wage bill amounted to $9,950,000. Would it benefit Campbellford or Canada to have the boot and shoe industry cut down?"

IMPLEMENT INDUSTRY

Similarly the Minister of Railways discussed the position of the agricultural implement industry. He told the audience that a firm engaged in the making of implements had investigated the European markets and found that German manufacturers were in complete possession of the market in Denmark and Scandinavian countries, because they were able to reduce production costs by securing labor at from 70 to 80 cents a day for a day of from 12 to 14 hours. "Do you believe it would be in the interests of Canada to have German implements come in here and have our own workmen walking the streets?" asked Mr. Stewart. Furthermore, the United States factories were twelve months ahead of their domestic requirements for implements. "Yet, there are those who would advocate a policy which instead of keeping our factories working would keep United States factories working," said Mr. Stewart.

REV. C. J. YOUNG'S HOME BURNED

Rare Collection of Birds, Eggs and Valuable Manuscript Also Destroyed.

The many friends of the Rev. C. J. Young, who formerly was in charge of the English Church on Wolfe Island, will regret to learn that his home in Brighton was completely destroyed by fire a few days ago. Mr. Young for long over half a century has been known in the old world and the new as an ornithologist of standing and repute. Mr. Young made the study of birds the hobby of his life. He commenced the collection of birds eggs, birds and data in 1852 in the old country and brought with him to Canada a large and rare collection. This he built up by a collection of American and Canadian specimens augmented by trips to the Magdalene Islands and other places far from the beaten track.

Mr. Young also possessed a wonderful general library with books on birds, which can never be replaced. Mr. Young has completed a manuscript covering his research for seventy years, and this, with all its value to the literature of ornithology, has been destroyed. Some very rare eggs of such extinct birds as the English "Kite" was included in Mr. Young's collection, for which the collector had refused as high as four pounds sterling for every egg. The home so recently destroyed by fire was a veritable museum which can never be renewed, as Mr. Young has reached that age where his research work is necessarily limited. Mr. Young was last stationed at Madoc and is at present on the superannuation list of the church.

St. Thomas has only 160 idle men at present.

Games were the order of the evening. A solo was given by O. Osby of Trenton, Mrs. Westlake of Belleville at the piano. Mrs. Hicks gave a recitation called "Deacon Bunkers' Proposal" which caused a great deal of excitement and laughter. Mrs. Clarke and Mr. Henderson also sang comic songs, after which a dainty luncheon was served by Mrs. Nelson, assisted by a number of the ladies present. All were pleased with the evening's entertainment and returned to their homes in the wee sma' hours of the morning.

No Appetite

Nervous exhaustion leads to distaste for food. The nerves of the stomach are weak, digestion fails and you become generally upset and out of sorts.

The secret of complete restoration is in getting the nervous system fully built up.

Mrs. R. Cheney, 208 Richmond St., Chatham, Ont., writes:

"I was troubled with indigestion, which caused me many sleepless nights. I would be in terrible distress at times, and would get no relief for two or three hours. For sixteen months I ate nothing but Shredded Wheat biscuits, as I dare not eat anything else. I did not know what to do, as I had tried so many different remedies, as well as doctors' medicines, without gaining permanent relief. Finally I got some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and while on the second box noticed that I was improving. I continued the treatment until I am now fully restored, and have returned to my regular diet. My husband has also taken Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results, so we are glad to recommend it to others."

Y.M.C.A. BOWLING

The Excelsiors and Intelligencer bowling teams met last night and again the typos proved to be the victors, rolling up a good score, namely 2350 as against 2267 for their opponents. L. Hill of the winning team had the highest single score of 219, and G. Draycott of the same team, highest three string with 550. In the first two games it looked as if a new team score record would be hung up as The Intelligencer boys made great scores, namely 889 in the first and 854 in the second. Good scores were made by R. Woodley, G. Gilbert and J. Yerex. The typos have played five games thus far, lost the first and won the other four, a fairly god record. That great interest was taken in last night's game was evidenced in the number of bowlers present. The players and scores were as follows.

The Grand Trunks defeated the Bankers by the narrow margin of 26-23. Holland and Armstrong did all the scoring for the Bankers, while Young, Hurley and Weir were the stars for the Trunks. The line-ups for the evening were as follows:

COLLINGWOOD TO DROP FROM INTERMEDIATE O.H.A.

Collingwood, Nov. 1.—After beeing five times champions of the O. H A. intermediate series, the cances look slim for Collingwood having a team on the ice this winter. The Park has been rented by the Town Council this year to a man whom the intermediates have been unable to come to suitable terms, the result being that the older members including Fryer, Burns and Cook, have practically decided to hang up thir sticks and rest on their laurels. The juniors will, however, be in the game with very strong line-up, and should uphold the honor of the old gold and blue.

FOOTBALL

On Saturday November the 5th two games in the Belleville Soccer League will be played at the Agricultural Grounds. The first game will be between the O. S. D. and the Tiger Tires Both teams have improved 100 per cent. since the opening of the season therefore a good game is expected. The second game is not liable to be very exciting but one never knows. This game is between the Taplin-Baker crew and the Belleville Tigers.

The 34th Battery has been released from the League owing to non-attendance at their scheduled weekly games. But the best game of all will be on Thanksgiving day Monday 7th at the Agricultural grounds, providing the weather permits. This game will be between the Belleville Tigers and the Grand Trunks. Neither of these teams have lost a game this season and Syd Taylor is quite confident in his showing. Robinson of the Trunks thinks his team is the best by far and that's the ways of the world. It is likely both managers will have their strongest line-up and if the weather is permissable why let's go for a big day of it. Roll out you Belleville sports by the thousands and see the superior teams of the City Soccer League battle for supreme honours. Don't forget Monday 7th at the Agricultural Grounds.

RUGBY

PUBLIC RECORD OF HON. MR. LEMIEUX

One of the Outstanding Figures in Parliament, Irrespective of Party.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—(By Canadian Press)—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, K. C., B.C.L., L.L.D., with 25 years of service in the House of Commons, is, irrespective of party, one of the outstanding figures in parliament. First elected to the House of Commons for the constituency of Gaspe in 1896 he has been a member of the House ever since. Hon. Mr. Lemieux was re-elected in the general elections in 1900 and was chosen by acclammation in the same year on his appointment as solicitor-general. In this by-election he was also elected in Nicolet by a majority of 342. In the general elections in 1911 Mr. Lemieux was defeated in Gaspe but was elected in Rouville having accepted two nominations. At the general election in 1917 he was elected in both Maissoneuve and Gaspe.

Under the Laurier government Mr. Lemieux held the posts of solicitor-general, postmaster-general, and eventually became minister of marine and fisheries on August 11, 1911 in succession to Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Mr. Lemieux retired from office with the Laurier government on October 6, 1911. During his parliamentary career Mr. Lemieux has gained for himself a splendid reputation as a speaker and parliamentarian, and it is freely rumored in political circles that he will be one of the strong men in the cabinet should the Liberals secure power.

Mr. Lemieux is a member of the Eighty Club of the Liberal National Club, London, England, in addition to many clubs and associations in Canada. In recognition of his services in promoting better and closer relations between France and Canada, the French government in March 1906 created him a Knight of the Legion of Honor and later an officer of that order. In 1907 Mr. Lemieux acted and in 1910 represented Canada at the inauguration of the parliament of the Dominion of South Africa. In 1918 he was elected president of the Royal Society of Canada.

Mr. Lemieux was born in Montreal, November 1st, 1866 and was educhted at Nicolet College and Laval University. In his early days Mr. Lemieux engaged in active journalistic work but practically gave this up when he was called to the bar in 1891. In 1896 Mr. Lemieux was appointed to the Law Faculty of Laval University and lectured on the History of Canadian Law until 1906.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

MANY LETTERS BEING RECEIVED FOR "HULLO CANADA"

Already the box office staff of Griffin's Opera House has been flooded with applications for seats for the engagement of Albert de Courville's latest and greatest revue "Hullo Canada!" in which the famous London producer will present his entire Metropolitan company, including Shirley Kellog, Harry Tate, Mazey Gay, Edith Kelley Gould and Margaret Bannerman, as well as the famous Gaiety beauty chorus and wonderful London orchestra. "Hullo Canada!" will be presented at Griffin's Friday, November 11th.

NOTABLE CAST FOR NEW CECIL DEMILLE PRODUCTION

Notable casts have always been features of productions by Cecil B. DeMille, but in "Male and Female", the Paramount-Artcraft screen version of Sir James M. Barries's famous play, "The Admirable Crichton", the master director has fairly outdone himself. For the important roles in this picture, which opens a three days' engagement at Griffin's commencing to-night some of the most prominent players in filmdom have been assembled. Thomas Meighan, leading man for Billie Burke, Marguerite Clark and other stars, has the part of Crichton, the extraordinary English butler who becomes practically a king. Gloria Swanson, who scored so decisively in "Something to Think About", is Lady Mary, the lord's daughter who falls in love with Crichton. Lila Lee, Paramount Artcraft star, is her servant-maid rival. Theodore Roberts has a characteristic role. Others in the cast are Bebe Daniels, Raymond Hatton, Mildred Reardon, Robert Cain, Edna Mae Cooper, and Guy Oliver.

A 2-reel Christie comedy, Kineto Review, Fox News and other selected attractions will be exhibited on the same program.

A new musical feature is to be presented at Griffin's nightly commencing to-night when a special overture will be played just before the feature offering by the Griffin Orchestra, under the capable direction of Frank Sills.

DRURY GOVERNMENT SKIM CREAM FROM POLICE COURT FINES.

Municipal officials were obliged to hotfoot it to Toronto this week to protest against the Provncial Government's grab of the fines collected in local police courts. Mayor Hanna, Ald. Bennett and Ald. Fisher represented Belleville, and a number of other places were also represented. Attorney General Raney refused to stop the steal and another burden is added to municipalities in civic revenue diverted to Toronto and the provincial treasury. Not content with doubling the annual provincial expenditure the Drury Government works overtime thinking up new schemes of taxing the public—taxes, taxes, and yet more taxes—disguised, but none the less taxes, and now the spendthrifts seek to lay hands upon the civic treasuries to provide more funds for the "greater expenditure than has been government."

The Drury Government is an expensive luxury, but the electors are to blame; certainly the U.F.O. did not wish or expect to get the job of running the province. The people wanted a change and got it with a vengeance. The Hearst Government was the best government Ontario ever had, but a careless electorate allowed it to be discharged and the present bunch of amateurs with their expensive patchwork administration given the keys to the treasury.

If the Drury Government insists upon taking all the police court fines worth having, then it is up to the government to pay the police salaries and also the salary of the police magistrate.

SHADOW OF FREE TRADE THREATENS BELLEVILLE'S INDUSTRIAL FUTURE.

Don't blame Industrial Commissioner Herity for not getting American industries now. He knows, and everybody else knows, who looks into the situation, that no American manufacturer is going to locate a branch factory in Canada before the electon determines whether free trade or protection is to be the future guiding policy of Canada.

With Canada a free trade country or on the gradual road to free trade, a la Crerar, Yankee manufacturers would not need factories in Canada, and would soon dominate this market at their own prices. Industrial Commissioner Herity knows this and that is the reason he appeared before the Dominion Tariff Commission at Kingston in favor of protection, the grand old National Policy of Sir John A. Macdonald and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

AN AMUSIN' LITTLE CUSS.

The Montreal Daily Star recently had a delightful editorial, brimful of raillery and persiflage, sad to relate at the expense of "Young Mr. King," as it styles him. The paper says that if the public is neglecting the elections for football, "it is losing a lot of fun," adding that "there has already been some delicious comedy and even flashes of roaring farce." It continues:

"One of the best 'turns' on the stage is, of course, the effort of the Boy Leader to convince far-away audiences that he is really the commander-in-chief of the party which permits him to carry its banner." . . . .

"But conditions war against him. A real leader would never have been 'ordered' by his alleged following to sacrifice himself in North York. A safe riding would have been found for him. As it is, Young Mr. King is already in the defeated column for the evening of December 6th.'" . . . .

"That is precisely the kind of a leader Mr. King is—a leader whose absence on any occasion would not be noticed and might even be acceptable on some. The ruling body of the Liberal party appears entirely willing to do without him exactly when leadership will be most needed. They have already nominated him to walk the plank, and he is so supremely and powerfully The Leader that he, after balking visibly for a few fretful weeks, decided to obey his masters' voice and walk it." . . . .

"But this does not prevent him from still being, on occasion, "an amusin' little cuss." For instance, at St. John, N.B., on Saturday, he undertook to read Mr. Lemieux and the Quebec group generally out of the party." . . . .

"This raises the interesting question: What is the Liberal party? Is it Mr. King who—in the graphic Irish phrase—is "on the run," so far as his prospect of getting a seat is concerned; or is it the Quebec group which is the only substantial section of the Liberal party in view? Moreover, it was the Quebec group which made Mr. King 'leader.' He would not have had a dog's chance if the French Liberals had not remembered that he stood by Laurier when "the Grand Old Man" was fighting against conscription, while Mr. Fielding 'deserted' to the ranks of conscriptionists." . . . .

"Mr. King is wholly the creature of the Quebec Liberals, in the sense that they made him politically." . . . .

"Hence it is the purest farce for him to tell the Quebec Liberals that it is he and not they who speak for the Liberal party. As well might a megaphone disown the man who has lifted it to his lips." . . . .

"Moreover, it must be very annoying for Rodolphe to be bitten on the ankle in the snappish fashion by the pet canine which he and his French colleagues carefully picked out to bark for them in the English provinces."

Sing a song of munitions, a ship full of shells; Willie running up the road, his mouth full of yells. Come and see the powder, watch out what your about, for the T.N.T. will get you if you don't watch out,

CRISP COMMENT

An important position requiring experience and ability is to be filled. Three applicants present themselves, their records and their references. Mr. Good Business chooses the one with the most experience, ability and best references. Meighen, King and Crerar are applying for the most important position in Canada, the Premiership. Who is the most fitted for the position? The selection is a matter for the individual judgment of the elector.

If the electors decide for a free trade Canada, sudden or gradual, good-bye to our expected Yankee branch factories. Then what? Back to the land or back to the land of Uncle Sam? Canadian mechanics migrated in large number to the United States during the period of national insanity under Mackenzie, but they have learned a lot since then and history is not likely to repeat itself in this particular.

Brockville Recorder says the Tories snatched the reins of government in 1911 by false pretences, and in 1917 stole the election with the aid of the soldiers overseas. The Recorder is evidently afraid that the Tories are going to score another knockout in this election some way and is doing its hollering now. Some one should favor the dear old Recorder with a few kindly words, remembering its hundred years of consistent Gritism.

PLAIN SPEECH

New York Times

The very railroad employes who have voted a general strike on October 30 must know that their project is mad. At any time the complete tying up of the railroad systems of the United States would be an outrage; under present circumstances it would be a crime. Through much suffering and after many sacrifices the country is struggling back to fuller work and brighter hopes. Yet here it has a threat of chaos come again—of industrial paralysis, commercial ruin, disease, want and starvation. The unemployed have been a subject of anxious national concern; but now 2,000,000 of the employed propose to quit work, and to force tens of millions into idleness. While thousands of workers in the great industries have accepted lower wages, as a necessary part in the deflation of swollen war values, the railroad men are talking of plunging the whole people into fear and misery rather than admit the need of a reduction in their pay. The thing seems lunacy. No great strike ever succeeded without the support of at least a part of public opinion. But a general railroad strike now would frof the start meet with swift and over-whelming reprobation. "It means life or death for the railway unions," declares one of the leaders of the men. Well, if the issue is raised and pressed, dead against the public interest and the governing sentiment of the country, it will mean their death.

MR. CRERAR'S "BIG BUSINESS"

Hamilton Herald (Ind.)

Mr. Crerar tries to sidetrack the tariff issue by representing the Government campaign fund to have been subscribed by "Big Business" and by demanding of Mr. Meighen that he reveal the sources of the fund. This is supposed by Mr. Crerar to be "good politics"—a permissable way of discrediting his opponents. But he should first set an example in revelation to Mr. Meighen by disclosing the amount contributed to his own campaign fund by the huge corporation of which he is the official head—the Grain Growers' Association, which is a sample of the biggest kind of Big Business.

MULES

I never would have done it if I'd known what it would be,
I thought it meant promotion and some extra pay for me,
I thought I'd miss a drill or two with packs and trenching tools,
So I said I'd handled horses—and they set me handling mules'

Now horse they are horses, but a mule he is a mule,
(Bit o' devil, bit o' monkey, bit o bloomin' beundin' fool),
Oh! I'm using all the adjectives I didn't learn at school.
On the prancin', glancin', ragtime dancin' army transport mule'.

They buck you off when ridden; they squish your leg when led.
Theys are mostly sittin on their tail or standing on their head,
They reach their yellow grinders out and gently chew your ear,
And their necks are india rubber for attackin' in the rear.

They are as mincin' when they're 'appy as a ladies' riding school.
But when the fancy takes 'em they're like nothin' but a mule.
With the off-wheels in the gutter and the near-wheels in the air,
And a leg across the traces and the driver Lord knows where.

They are 'orrid in the stable; they are worse upon the road,
They'll bawl with an rider; they'll jib with any load,
But son we're bound beyond the seas and when we cross the foam
I don't care where we go to if we leave the mules at home.

For horses they are horses, but a mule he is a mule;
(Bit o' devil, bit o' monkey, bit o' bloomin' boundin' fool)
Oh, I'm usin' all the adjectives I never learned at school.
On the rampant, raw-boned, cast-steel jawboned army transport mule!

NATIONAL RAILWAYS SURPLUS LAST MONTH

Net Revenue Was Ten Times That of August—Pres. Hanna Optimistic.

During September the gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways was more than sufficient to cover expenses by about a half million dollars, it was announced on Saturday. The net revenue for the month is more than ten times that for the month of August.

Gross earnings reached the huge toal of $11,500,126, with working expenses of $10,995,951, leaving a net balance of $504,175.

President D. B. Hanna, in congratulating the staff of amalgamated lines, says: "These figures embrace the operations of the Intercolonial, National Transcontinental, Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern in all some 17,000 miles of railway."

"This statement merely confirms what I stated previously, to the effect that the Canadian railways situation should not be regarded from too gloomy a viewpoint. I am sure every officer and employe heard with the greatest pleasure that the result of operations of the national lines, during the month of August, produced a small margin of net earnings. It was a matter of extreme gratification to me to be able to announce to the public news of such importance. It gives me greater pleasure to congratulate those who are responsible for this good showing."

Mr. Hanna added that he hopes for a better showing than this in October. "There is nothing at the present time that will do as much for the Canadian National Railways as a better showing. Every officer and employe, it is hoped, will put his shoulder to the wheel and make a more determined effort than ever to show the public the value of the property with which we are identified."

Government soon to introduce 8-hour day on works says Gideon Robertson.

Advertising!

The biggest men in the country have found that the easiest way to spell success is to A-D-V-E-R-T-I-S-E. Suppose the newspaper did not publish the news, how would the people know what is happening? If you don't publish the Store News how will the people know about your goods? You can never sell the goods people do not know you have.

Advertising is telling about your stock. The firm that advertises gets ahead, every time, of the firm that does not advertise. Shop-worn and out-of-date stock is the penalty merchants pay for not advertising.

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"You must nevertheless have committed a crime since you are here and are accused of high treason."

"Of high treason!" cried the terrified Bonacieux. "Of high treason! How is it possible for a poor mercer, who detests all Huguenots and who abhors all Spaniards, to be accused of high treason?"

"M. Bonacieux," said the commissary, looking at the accused as if his little eyes had the faculty of reading to the very depths of hearts; "M. Bonacieux, you have a wife?"

"Yes, monsieur—that is to say, I had one. She has been carried off from me, monsieur."

"She has been carried off?" said the commissary. "And do you know who the man is that has committed this outrage?"

"I think I know him."

"Who is he?"

M. Bonacieux was in the greatest perplexity possible. Had he better deny everything or tell everything? He decided upon telling all.

"I suspect," said he, "a tall, dark man of lofty carriage, who has the air of a great lord. He has followed us several times, as I think, when I have waited for my wife at the wicket of the Louvre to fetch her home."

The commissary appeared to experience a little uneasiness.

"And his name?" said he.

"Oh, as to his name, I know nothing about it, but if I were ever to meet him I should know him in an instant, I will answer for it, even if he were among a thousand persons."

"You have answered that you should recognize him," said the commissary. "That is all very well and enough for today. Before we proceed further some one must be informed that you know the abductor of your wife. Take away the prisoner."

"Where must we place him?" demanded a guard.

"In a dungeon—the first you come to, provided it be a safe one," said the commissary, with an indifference which penetrated poor Bonacieux with horror.

"Alas, alas," said he to himself, "misfortune hangs over me! My wife must have committed some frightful crime. They believe that I am her accomplice and will punish me with her! She must have spoken; she must have confessed everything. A woman is so weak!"

Bonacieux could not close his eyes, not because his dungeon was so very disagreeable, but because his uneasiness was too great to allow him to sleep.

At dawn he heard his bolts drawn and sprang up with a terrified bound, only to face the commissary.

"Your affair has become more complicated since yesterday evening, my good man, and I advise you to tell the whole truth, for your repentance alone can remove the anger of the cardinal."

"Why, I am ready to tell everything," cried Bonacieux, "at least all that I know. Interrogate me, I entreat you!"

"Where is your wife, in the first place?"

"Why, did not I tell you she had been stolen away from me?"

"Yes, but yesterday at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, thanks to you, she escaped."

"My wife escaped!" cried Bonacieux. "It is no fault of mine, I will swear!"

"What business had you, then, to go into the chamber of M. d'Artagnan, your neighbor, with whom you had a long conference, in the course of the day? What was the object of that visit?"

"To beg him to assist me in finding my wife. I believed I had a right to endeavor to recover her. I was deceived, as it appears, and I ask your pardon for doing so."

"And what did M. d'Artagnan reply?"

"M. d'Artagnan promised me his assistance. But I soon found out that he was betraying me."

"You are imposing upon justice. M. d'Artagnan made an agreement with you and in virtue of that agreement put to flight the men of the police who had arrested your wife and has placed her out of reach of all inquiries. Fortunately, M. d'Artagnan is in our hands, and you shall be confronted with him."

"Ah, ma foi! I ask no better!" cried Bonacieux.

"Bring in M. d'Artagnan," said the commissary to the guards. The two guards led in Athos.

"But!" cried Bonacieux, "this is not M. d'Artagnan that you have brought before me!"

"Your name?" asked the commissary of the musketeer.

"Athos," replied the musketeer.

"But you said that your name was D'Artagnan."

"My guards said to me, 'You are M. d'Artagnan?' I answered, 'You think so, do you?' My guards again exclaimed that they were sure I was."

"But, I tell you, M. le Commissaire," cried Bonacieux, "there is not the least doubt about the matter. M. d'Artagnan is my tenant, although he does not pay me my rent, and even better on that account ought I to know him. M. d'Artagnan is a young man, scarcely nineteen, and this gentleman must be thirty at least."

At this moment the door was opened quickly and a messenger, introduced by one of the gatekeepers of the Bastille, gave a letter to the commissary.

"Oh! unhappy woman!" cried the commissary.

"How! what do you say? of whom do you speak? It is not of my wife, I hope!"

"On the contrary, it is of her. Your affair is becoming a pretty one."

"But," said the agitated mercer, "do me the pleasure, monsieur, to tell me how my own proper affair can become the worse by anything my wife does while I am in prison?"

"Because that which she does is part of a plan concerted between you, of an infernal plan!"

"I swear to you, M. le Commissaire, that you are in the profoundest error, and that if she committed any follies I renounce her, I abjure her, I curse her."

"Reconduct the prisoners to their dungeons," said the commissary, designating, by the same gesture, Athos and Bonacieux, "and let them be guarded more closely than ever."

"And yet," said Athos, with his habitual calmness, "if it be M. d'Artagnan who is concerned in this matter I do not perceive too clearly how I can take his place."

They led back the mercer to the same dungeon in which he had passed the night and left him to himself during the day. Bonacieux wept away the hours. In the evening at the moment he had made his mind up to lie down upon the bed he heard steps in his corridor. These steps drew near to his dungeon, the door was thrown open, and the guards appeared.

"Follow me," said an exempt, who came behind the guards.

"Ah, my God, my God," murmured the poor mercer, "now indeed I am lost." And he followed the guards who came for him mechanically and without resistance.

He was placed in a carriage, which was put in motion as slowly as a funeral car.

They reached Croix du Trahoir, the place where obscure criminals were executed. Bonacieux could not yet see the dreadful cross, but he felt as if it were in some sort coming to meet him. When he was within twenty paces of it he heard a noise of people, and the carriage stopped. This was more than poor Bonacieux could endure, depressed as he was by the successive emotions which he had experienced. He uttered a feeble groan, which might have been taken for the last sigh of a dying man.

CHAPTER X.

The Cardinal's Gold.

THE crowd was not produced by the expectation of a man who was to be hanged, but by the contemplation of a man who was hanged.

The carriage, which had been stopped for a minute, resumed its way, passed through the crowd, threaded the Rue Saint Honore, turned the Rue des Bons Enfans, and stopped before a low door. The door opened, two guards received Bonacieux in their arms; they carried him along an alley, up a flight of stairs and deposited him in an antechamber upon a bench.

At this moment an officer opened a door and came up to the prisoner.

"Is your name Bonacieux?" said he.

"Yes, M. l'Officer," stammered the mercer, more dead than alive, "at your service."

"Come in," said the officer.

And he moved out of the way to let the mercer pass. The latter obeyed without reply and entered the chamber, where he appeared to be expected.

Standing before the chimney was a man of middle height, of a haughty, proud mien, with piercing eyes, a large brow and a thin face, which was made still longer by a royal (or imperial, as it is now called), surmounted by a pair of mustaches. Although this man was scarcely thirty-six or thirty-seven years of age, hair, mustaches and royal, all began to be gray.

This man was Armand Jean Duplessis, Cardinal de Richelieu, then an active and gallant cavalier, already weak of body, but sustained by that moral power which made of him one of the most extraordinary men that ever existed, preparing to drive the English from the isle of Re and lay siege to La Rochelle.

"You are accused of high treason," said he slowly.

At first sight nothing denoted the cardinal, and it was impossible for those who did not know his face to guess in whose presence they were.

The poor mercer remained standing at the door, while the eyes of the cardinal were fixed upon him.

"Is this that Bonacieux?" asked he after a moment of silence.

"Yes, monseigneur," replied the officer.

"That's well. Give me those papers and leave us."

At the end of ten minutes' reading the cardinal was satisfied.

"You are accused of high treason," said he slowly.

"So I have been told already, monseigneur," cried Bonacieux, giving his interrogator the title he had heard the officer give him, "but I swear to you that I know nothing about it."

The cardinal repressed a smile.

"You have conspired with your wife, with Mme. de Chevreuse and with milord Duke of Buckingham."

"In fact, monseigneur, I have heard her pronounce all those names."

"And on what occasion?"

"She said that the Cardinal de Richelieu had drawn the Duke of Buckingham to Paris to ruin him and to ruin the queen."

"She said that?" cried the cardinal with violence.

"Yes, monseigneur. But I told her she was wrong to talk about such things."

"Your wife has escaped. Did you know that?"

RED FOX SEES THE KING

Red Fox was glad to make friends with Sammy when he said he would tell where O Possum lived. "I can tell you exactly where he lives, but I'll not say till you promise to let me alone when I come down to the cornfield," said Sammy in an important manner.

Sammy was a wise little fellow. He wasn't like Jerry, the Jay. He didn't tell all that he knew to everybody he met. He sat on a limb and bobbed his tail up and down as though he knew more than he would ever tell to any Fox.

"I will do anything you say, Mr. Sammy, if you will tell me where O Possum lives. It must be near here somewhere but you know I can't stay long in one place for that Hunter's Hound may be this way and he will surely find me. I must see O Possum and go back home.

"Well, tell me, Mr. Fox, what you want to see Mr. O Possum for? He may be sleeping now and if he is he will not come down out of his house for you or anyone else. This time of the year he sleeps nearly all day long. He never comes out till late in the evening or early in the morning. Now, Mr. Fox, if it is so important I will tell him what you want."

You can see that little Sammy was using a wise plan to find out what Red Fox wanted with O Possum. It was certain that Red Fox couldn't deliver his message till he knew where his friend was. If Sammy would not tell him he would have to make arrangements with him in one way or another to get the message to O Possum. "Suppose you tell me where he is and then if he is not there I will give you the message to de[illegible]

[illegible] don't seem to understand that [illegible] awakened out of a sleep he will [illegible] down out of his house for [illegible] Sammy was anxious to know [illegible] message was.

"Well, if he is as grouchy as all that I will not tell him at all. I can keep it to myself." Red Fox started off toward his home.

When Sammy found that he could not get Red Fox to tell him the message he suggested another thing to him. "Well," said he, "I will go with you and show you where he lives. I can go across the tree tops and you can run on the ground and we will soon reach the tree where he lives."

Red Fox started off toward his home.

"All right," said Red Fox, "You show me the tree and I will do the rest."

They went thru the forest more rapidly than Red Fox thought, for Sammy was some traveler. He could jump from one tree to another so fast that Red Fox could hardly keep track of him. Suddenly Red Fox stopped short for standing in front of him was Tinker Bob, the King. Sammy came back to see what might take place when the King met Mr. Fox.

We will see to-morrow.

LET BULBS BRIGHTEN YOUR WINTER DINING ROOM

Psychologists have proved that a sun-shiny dining room is conductive to good digestion and general optimism at meal-time. The cheeriness that emanates from flowering plants is almost equally as necessary in the dining room as sunshine.

Many women have poor success with regular plants; and many others who do have success with in-door plants have tried forcing these plants with the result that now, at the beginning of winter, the plants are in need of a rest and refuse to bloom. Such women should resort to the planting of bulbs in rotation.

Of course, there is the question of expense to be considered in this plan. Good bulbs, and enough of them so that about 3 bulbs can be planted every two weeks from now till January first, will cost several dollars. But to my mind, it is several dollars well spent. For, for this sum one can have bright, cheery flowers in the dining room from six weeks from now until February first—when our regular potted plants are ready to flower or when our Spring seeds are ready to be planted.

A good choice is: first Hyacinths (Holland and Roman); second, early Tulips; third, Narcissi (Van Sion, Horsfeldii, Empress, Trumpet Major and Paper White—the five best forcing varieties); fourth, Bermuda Lilies, more commonly known as Easter Lilies and catalogued as "L. Harisii."

I have named these in the order of their planting. For economy's sake plant three in the same pot. The bulbs may touch each other in the pot. They should not be pressed down into the dirt, but merely rest on top of it. The dirt should not be packed down around them. A little bone fertilizer may be mixed with a heavy variety of soil.

After you have planted the bulbs, water them well just once and place the pot in a dark, cool place for six weeks; this is very important for the reason that it is necessary to give the roots a chance to grow before the flowering roots come up. The pot should be well filled with roots before the shoots appear. The cellar is the place that most people put their pots after planting the bulbs in them.

After a bulb has once flowered it had best be thrown away. For although many women try to keep their bulbs from year to year, it is almost a vain hope that they will flower again—and even when they do they are never satisfactory blooms.

FIVE-MILE PARACHUTE LEAP FROM PLANE BEATS RECORD

Kansas City, Nov. 2.—Sergeant Encil Chambers, of Post Field, Fort Sill Lawton, Okla., broke what officials say is the record for high altitude parachute jumping, when he leaped approximately 26,000 feet, 400 feet less than five miles, from an army plane. The stunt was performed in connection with the American Legion flying meet. The descent took 18 minutes.

When the flyers had reached the "Ceiling," Chambers climbed out on the fusilage, dived head first into space and dropped fully 500 feet before his big silken parachute opened.

Chambers said he suffered intensely from the below-zero temperature during the early minutes of the descent. He said he lighted a cigarette and smoked it during half of the downward journey.

REWARD FOR TRYING TO FOIL BANDITS

Two Employees of Bank of Hamilton, One Toronto Girl, Given Watches.

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 3.—For bravery shown by them when bandits visited the banks in which they worked, Miss V. K. Harris, of Toronto, an employe of the branch of the Bank of Hamilton there, recently visited by hold-up men, and Edward K. Pottinger, of the Sanford Avenue branch here, were this afternoon presented with gold watches by J. P. Bell, general manager of the Bank of Hamilton. The presentation took place at the head office in the presence of the bank officials and employes. Illuminated addresses, the gift of the Board of directors, were also presented Miss Harris and Mr. Pottinger. Mr. Bell, in officiating, praised the two employes for their courage in doing everything possible to foil the bandits.

An interesting announcement was made by Col. B. O. Hooper, of the Bank, during the ceremony. He said that in future revolver practice would be compulsory and that practices would be held twice a week, which all employes who might need to use a gun must attend. An expert had been engaged to conduct the classes, he said, and special attention was to be paid to snap shooting.

CAMPAIGN NOTES

Campaign oratory is not always up to the mark of the best as delivered by William Ewart Gladstone or Edmund Burk or John Bright or Lord Maccaulay, but there are always a few bright spots. Judging from the impatiences expressed by The Peterboro' Examiner, that paper or that city is becoming "fed up" with those whose utterances signify nothing. It declares certain features might easily be omitted from the platform campaign. "One of these is the custom of inviting a prominent chieftain to address a meeting and then spoiling the event for the visitor and the audience by unmuzzling a long list of half-baked local orators, each with nothing to say and requiring half an hour in which to say it, until the patiences of the audience is exhausted and the orator of the evening has to curtail his address and even then is talking to a half-filled house. All political parties seem to make that mistake, and the whole effect of the visit of a party leader or lieutenant has often been spoiled as a result. Another bete noire is the garrulous Chairman who insists on making a speech before and after each of the other addresses, summarizing what the previous speaker has said and guessing at what the next one is likely to say. He is a well-meaning citizen usually, but that does not prevent him from boring his audience and doing much to ruin the meeting over which he presides."

Measuring Oil Deterioration

Guess Work And Rule Of Thumb Should Be Discarded

ADVICE AS TO RENEWING ENGINE OIL is always given in miles of service, for instance, "at the end of each 1,000 miles run in summer and of each 500 miles in winter," but this rule is a very unsatisfactory one. Oil should be renewed when and not until its lubricating qualities have become seriously impaired and the mileage run has no exact bearing upon this point. The mileage rule is given only in the absence of a more positive means by which the user can tell how seriously his oil has deteriorated and is framed to meet average unskilled driving and oil of ordinary quality. Under extremely unfavorable conditions the mileage rule may not cause frequent enough oil renewals while, under ideal conditions it leads to serious oil waste. What the user needs is some automatic or readily operated device to tell him the lubricating value of his oil at any time, so that before it becomes dangerously low, he will be warned to discard it. With good filtering arrangements, loss of body or viscosity—thinning, in other words—is the best indication of impaired lubricating value and some simple form of viscosity meter, attached to or readily applicable to the engine lubricating system, conveniently read and properly corrected for temperature is what is needed. Instruments designed to accomplish this purpose are already appearing upon the market and, if they operate satisfactorily, should prove a boon to the motorist.

ODOMETER READS TOO LOW

E. M. R. writes: My speedometer does not register correctly. When the car has run 20 miles it only shows 15 miles and it appears to record only three-quarters of the distance actually run. Can you inform me how to correct this?

Answer: Evidently, your speedometer gears are wrong. The driving gear should have a larger number of teeth or the driven gear a less number, or both. If this speedometer is front wheel operated, the change can be very readily made, but if it is driven from the transmission, the required change will be somewhat more difficult. Any service station of your make of speedometer will tell you just what gears you require to give exact results.

MANUFACTURERS' WARRANTY ON CARS

C. A. L. asks: Are autos guaranteed by their manufacturers and if so, to what extent? I have been having some trouble with mine.

Answer: The usual warranty given merely obligates the manufacturer to replace any parts which are returned, transportation charges paid to his factory, within 90 days of the delivery of the car to its original owner, and which he, the manufacturer, considers to be defective in material or workmanship in respects which should have been detected before being delivered. This guarantee does not apply to parts of the car which are made by and warranted by others than the car manufacturer and it ceases to apply to a car when any of its original parts have been replaced with others not made by the guarantor. Fortunately, car manufacturers are generally quite liberal in standing behind their product and frequently, as a matter of fair dealing or of business policy, go far beyond their obligations as set forth in this very mild form of guarantee.

ELECTRICAL LEAKAGE THROUGH PLUG PORCELAINS

C. B. F. writes: I have had much trouble with spark-plugs in large (aviation?) engines. New plugs work finely for about 100 hours and then show a poor spark, although the porcelains are not broken and there is no apparent short-circuiting. The plugs seem to put up a high resistance. How can this be the case if the porcelains do not crack nor the electrodes burn excessively?

Answer: Most of the trouble with spark-plugs under heavy continuous service is from breaking down of the insulation resistance of the core with the result that, after a few hundred hours service, ignition current leaks through the porcelain to such an extent as to rob the spark of much of its energy. There is much to be learned about this matter, but it appears that there is a structural change that occurs in the porcelain, due to intense heating and that further, there is an embedding in its surface of conductive particles, both of which actions tend to create electrical leakage. The failure seems to me a matter of lowered instead of increased resistance, which can most probably be obviated by improvement in the dielectric qualitites of the material.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Why Should You Follow A Crooked Path?

Often a cowpath has been allowed to become a village street, and as the village expanded, tradition has made the winding way an expression of a cow's will.

Habit is always forging chains to enslave us, so that what has been found bearable by the fathers is accepted by the sons.

As children, we were not permitted to drink tea or coffee, because it would stunt our growth or make us nervous and irritable. When older, however, we craved a hot drink with meals, and custom gave us our tea or coffee.

Finally, upon the instructions of the doctor, Mother gave up her tea and coffee. But that meant nothing in our young lives. Our vitality was then strong enough to throw off any ill effects.

But our time came, and we learned by experience that we could not drink tea or coffee. When we had it for breakfast it put our nerves on edge. When we drank it at the evening meal, we tossed about in wakefulness most of the night.

And then we found Postum, a pure cereal beverage, free from the harmful drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee. We liked the rich, satisfying flavor of Postum—and also the better health which resulted. And, too, we were surprised to find how many of our neighbors had made the same discovery—had learned the value of "health first."

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

CENTENNIAL OF M'GILL

MONTREAL UNIVERSITY HAS HAD HONORABLE CAREER.

It Is Named After Patriotic Canadian Citizen Who Gave Endowment In 1811, Which Practically Started Higher Education In Canada—College Had Hard Struggle During First Years of Existence.

"We must not forget that the father, not only of this university, but of university eduction in Canada, was James McGill, a citizen of Montreal. His endowment in 1811 was the first practical step toward the erection of our first Canadian University."

These were the words spoken by Sir William Dawson at the inauguration of Molson Hall, one of the buildings of McGill, to which returned on October 12 many hundreds of its alumni to assist in the observance of the anniversary of this leading university of the Dominion of Canada, and which is always a centre of interest to educators and students visiting Montreal. McGill has had an interesting history. One hundred years ago, on March 21, the college received its charter and came into existence as an institution qualified to offer courses in higher education to those seeking such advantages and to bestow degrees, says the Boston Transcript. James McGill, who was the first to conceive the idea of such an institution, was a Scottish gentleman of far-sighted vision.

Upon his death it was found that his will contained generous provision for the university or college "with a competent number of professors for the purpcses of education and learning in the province," which should itself, or one of its colleges, "be named and perpetually distinguished by the appelation of McGill College." The property, which consisted of his dwelling house and buildings known as "Burnside," together with forty-six acres of land, was left in trust to the Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning, and it was upon this property that he stipulated the college should be erected within ten years of his death, which was in December, 1818. In front of the old Central Arts Building, erected in 1843, there is a low monument surmounted by an old-fashioned urn. Beneath this rest the remains of the founder, which were transferred from the old Protestant cemetery in Dufferin Square, Dorchester Street, Montreal, in 1875.

The medical school was the first department of McGill. It was organized at a time of social distress and to meet a pressing educational demand by men of high professional status and it was carried on in the early years of its existence through great difficulties and at a cost of much personal labor and sacrifice. Up to this time the hospitals and educational institutions were only adapted to the needs of the French population and, with the need of the increasing Protestant immigrant population, there was need for resources to meet their wants. Those who really may be considered the founders of this medical school were Dr. William Caldwell, Dr. William Robertson, Dr. Andrew Holmes and Dr. John Stephenson.

On June 29, 1829, these officers of the Montreal Medical Institution were constituted the medical faculty of McGill. Thus while finances were still entirely lacking were these three great undertakings merged, namely, the provision made by James McGill for a college, the activities of the Royal Institution and the labors of the Montreal Medical Institution. During the next twenty-five years practically all of the active work of the university was carried on by the medical faculty. Permission having been obtained from the proper authorities to grant degrees, the first of these honors from McGill was awarded May 24, 1833, in medicine to W. Logis.

The record of the first thirty years of McGill is an unbroken tale of financial embarrassment and administrative difficulties. But after thirty years several gentlemen undertook the responsibility of its re-organization, and in 1852 an amended charter was secured. The Governor-General of Canada for the time being, Sir Edmund Head, became interested in the institution, and in 1855, with the advent of a new principal, an era of progress and prosperity was entered upon. A course in law was begun in connection with the faculty of arts in 1848 and the department was established as a separate faculty in 1853. The faculty of applied science was not regularly organized until 1878, but a course in engineering, which was amplified into the department of practical science in 1871, was given under the faculty of arts as far back as 1856. The faculty of agriculture was established in 1907. Within the last twenty years the several buildings that have been opened up have been the Strathcona medical buildings, 1901; the conservatory of music, 1904; the Macdonald College, 1907; new engineering building, 1909; and the new medical building, 1911.

To-day one finds the various buildings rather widely scattered and a casual inspection of the intervening distance between the Royal Victoria Hospital at the one end over to the gymnasium at the opposite end will give a good idea of the growth of McGill in these hundred years. There are the old medical buildings and the new medical buildings, the arts building, Redpath Museum and Redpath Library, Macdonald engineering building, Macdonald chemistry and mining building, and Macdonald physics building, conservatory of music, Royal Victoria College for Women, Wesleyan College, Diocesan College, Strathcona Hall, observatory and other buildings, not to mention Macdonald College, wherein scientific agriculture is taught, twenty miles distant.

BELLEVILLE'S POPPY DAY ON SATURDAY

Under Auspices of Local Branch G.W.V.A.—November 5th.

Canada's National Memorial flower, in memory of our sacred dead, will be sold on the streets of Belleville on Saturday, Nov. 5th, by the ladies of the Argyle Chapter, Quinte Chapter and St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., assisted by the G.W.V.A. The objects of this campaign are as follows:

"(1)—The inauguration of the custom of wearing a poppy as a memorial flower on Armistice Day, and thus cherish the memory of the sacred dead.

(2)—A means of providing local branches in 857 centres in Canada with relief funds to meet the distress occasioned by unemployment during the coming winter.

(3)—Extending much needed assistance to the orphan children of France by purchasing at a reasonable price the product of their handiwork.

The poppies are made in France by the widows and children of fallen French soldiers. The campaign is going on all over Canada and the Poppy Headquarters, Toronto, cannot fill any more orders for poppies, the local branch received their supply on Wednesday and a fine display is on exhibition at the Lindsay Music Store. Any information regarding the poppies will be furnished by the local branch of the G.W.V.A.

The natural size poppies are to be sold at 10c. and upwards, the large size 25c. and upwards, every citizen should be prepared on Saturday to have their change ready and wear a Flanders' Poppy in memory of our sacred dead. Citizens are requested to wear the Poppy on Monday, Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 7th and also on Armistice Day, Nov. 11th.

Lord Byng of Vimy, our Governor General has consented to act as Patron to the Poppy Day Campaign, by request of the Dominion Command, Great War Veterans' Association.

Two thousand circulars bearing the poetry "In Flanders Fields" by Lt.-Col. John McCrea and "The Unbroken Line" by Canon F. Y. Scott, C.M.G., D.S.O., Senior Chaplain, C.E.F., were circulated through the public and High Schools on Wednesday, copies of the above poems can be obtained at the different banks of the city, post office or G.W.V.A.

Let us not forget our sacred dead. Wear a Flanders' Poppy.

IN FLANDERS' FIELDS

In Flanders' Fields, the poppies blow,
Between the crosses, row on row
That marks our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you, from failing hands, we throw
The torch. Be yours to lift it high'
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow
In Flanders' fields.

—Lt.-Col. John McCrae.

AUSTIN CHESTNUT SHOT WHILE AT PLAY

Boys Were Celebrating Hallowe'en When One Was Shot.

Port Hope, Nov. 2.—Evidently Hallowe'en pranks, innocent or otherwise, are not appreciated by some residents of Welcome. Monday evening when a number of young boys were enjoying themselves at the four corners there was a sharp report from a gun and Austin Chestnut, one of the party toppled over into the ditch. The full contents of the shell had entered young Chestnut's left leg below the knee causing a large gaping wound. The party of merry makers rushed their friend to town by automobile and after an examination by the doctor he was taken to the hospital. Mr. Chestnut is resting quite comfortable to-day.

It is alleged that the shot was fired by Mr. Edward Martin while not more than six feet away from the victim. Martin, we understand, states that he fired in the opposite direction to where the boys were standing and was not aware that any person was in the section where he pointed the gun. Chestnut and his friends deny this story and claim that Martin took deliberate aim. The whole affair is most unfortunate. It is only natural that boys will have a little amusement on Hallowe'en and persons should not be too eager to resort to the use of firearms.

STEEL PLANT CUTS WAGES RATHER THAN CLOSE DOWN

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 2.—E. P. Merill, general manager of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company, posted a notice this morning that a reduction of ten per cent. in wages became effective to-day at the plant. The manager says "the necessity for taking such action is deeply regretted, but as the only alternative is practically complete suspension of operation we are reluctantly compelled to reduce wages."

Enquiry at general office elicited the information that this reduction applies also to the salaried staff.

Juice Tangled in Moonshine

S.M.—By the winking of the electric lights last night and the ensuing dark session there must have been something doing on the line. Perhaps Scottie will tell us if the juice got mixed with moonshine coming down the Trent or was there a short circuit about that little still which lays behind the hill, by heck. And Scottie while you're at it why not change the juice to monshine once in a while, Thanksgiving Day for instance. You can bet no one would be asleep at the switch if you can put this through.

On Their Way

S.S.—I see that there is an improvement noticeable in the speed of some of our city motorists who are seemingly trying to observe the law of ten mile speed at street intersections. Others, however, are still hustling headlong toward death, injury or the police station.

Opening of Second Round

H.R.—Well, well, Ex-Alderman Robinson has stirred up Industrial Commissioner Herity, and there is a little verbal duel in progress as to taxes, industries and the general value of the Industrial Commissioner as an asset or liability. Good open discussion conducted in such a friendly fashion will be appreciated by everybody.

Bovril saves your housekeeping money

It may be pretty safely said that Bovril pays its own cost by the extra nourishment you get out of the other foods you buy. For Bovril has a remarkable power of enabling you to extract nourishment which would otherwise not be absorbed by the body, and so would be wasted.

But there is an even bigger gain than the money one. The very fact that you are getting more nourishment from your food means that you are stronger, more full of vitality, better in health in every way. Thereis no better food economy than to use Bovril.

Convalescence
Requires Wincarnis

In a state of convalescence, while the crisis is over, the danger of relapse may not be over. It is then that strength and vitality should be restored as quickly as possible.

Fresh air, sleep and such nutritious articles of food as can be easily digested are required to restore the lost vitality and repair the wasted tissues. But as the system is too weak to absorb the mineral elements that compose the body—it is here that WINCARNIS is so wonderful. For it contains Iron and Manganese for enriching the blood; Phosphorus for Brain and Nerves; Calcium, Sodium and Potassium—Phosphates essential for Bone and Tissue-Building—in a form that promotes their ready absorption into the system.

Everyone recovering from illness should take WINCARNIS. If you would quickly restore rosy cheeks and the glow of health to friends or loved ones who have been ill, take them a bottle of WINCARNIS.

At all druggists—16 oz. Bottle $1.50

SUMMER COTTAGE BURNED

Oshawa, Ont., Nov. 3.—Fire late last night completely destroyed the cottage of H. C. Lander, at Oshawa-on-the-Lake, the building, being one of the largest at the Beach, and had just been completed. Although the fire was outside the city limits, the fire department responded to a call and protected the pumping station, besides other cottages close at hand, from the flames.

BARN BURNED

A small frame barn situated in rear of a terrace on Highland Avenue used by Mr. Burke and owned by Mr. William R. Wallace was at noon today destroyed by fire. It is alleged that children playing with matches caused the blaze. Loss about $400 partially covered by insurance.

HER PROBLEM SOLVED

When the lady of the house has been getting three (and sometimes more) meals a day for, say, twenty years, she begins to get fed-up on thinking up new dainties for each meal and a daily repetition is not conducive to a good appetite. "Efficient Housekeeping', a special feature published daily in this paper gives many novel, new and economic recipes. You many rest assured that these recipes are true, as they have all been tried and found practical.

REAPED TWO CROPS

To grow two crops of peas from the same field, thrash them and sell them in five months is the feat of Mr. Fred W. Smith, of Enniskillen, Darlington Township County of Durham, a farmer who is well known to many in Oshawa. Mr. Smith brought the peas to the store of Hogg & Lytle, King street west, where he disposed of them. It is the first time in the experience of Mr. J. L. Whattam, manager, for over 25 years, that such an event has occurred, while it is considered unique among experienced agricultural men. Mr. Smith sowed his first crop in the spring at the usual time, and realized 28 bushels to the acre. The peas shelled out, after the ground was plowed up the second crop appeared. It looked so promising that Mr. Smith watched it with interest until he was able to harvest it, realizing this time 12 bushels to the acre. The second crop was of splendid quality.

NOT A JOKE

Hallowe'en will be Hallowe'en no matter how many years it goes on. On Monday evening some Hallowe'en merry-makers got hold of a stone waggon and placed it across the street car track on Montreal Street. Evidently the stone wagon had beeen taken from the quarry by some youngsters and placed across the track as a joke. The street railway does not join in the joke, however, and a reward of $100 has been offered for the apprehension and conviction of the party or parties who put the wagon on the track. So far no one has "come across" with any enlightening information on the question.—Kingston Standard.

JACK FROST ARRIVES

The children of the forest are in an uproar. Jack Frost has arrived and seemingly, come to stay. This can mena only one thing and that is that Winter will soon be along. The stories in the "Tinker Bob" feature deal with the present day troubles of the wee furry, feathered folks of the forest. How they prepare for winter is a most interesting tale for the little folk of the home. Don t fail to let the kiddies read these stories. They will give the youngsters and big youngsters something different to think about.

SHOT PHEASANT

The bird Mr. Corke, Bloomfield, shot on his lot proved to be an English pheasant of beautiful pulmage. This appears to be the first bird of its kind found around there. Mr. Corke is having it mounted.

CHEESE FACTORY BURNT

The old Ferry Road cheese factory, located on the outskirts of Perth, was destroyed by fire supposedly through a spark. Some 25 boxes of cheese were saveed. Insurance of about $2,000 was held, but this will not coveer the loss. It is likely that the shareholders of the company, owning the factory will decide to rebuild.

JOINTS G. T. R. FORCE

Louis A. Gravel, of St. Lambert, Que., has joined the Grand Trunk police force at Brockville as a constable. He is a former captain in the Canadian army who served in the Siberian expedition and is a son of the chief of police of St. Lambert.

WON COMMENDATION

Cheese manufacturers at Kinburn factory represented on the Brockville Dairymen's Board of Trade by John B. Wilson, of Lansdowne, was commendeed at the 1921 dairy show held in the Royal Agricultural Hall, London, England, recently. The maker at this factory is Benson Avery, formerly of Leeds county.

A GOOD STORY

When the kiddies gather round before bedtime or on a rainy afternoon or evening, and bother for a story it is puzzling to know just what it is good to tell them as childish minds are most receptive. A good story makes a like impression and a nonsensical story leaves an impression also, but one that will never be of any value. "Tinker Bob" stories, which appear daily in this paper, are just what you have been waiting for. They are entertaining and, at the same time, instructive in the ways of the little wild things of the forest.

Gradually — though not so very slowly — the public is realizing the importance to the preservation of good health of caring for the EYES and the Teeth.

BRIDE'S RECEPTION

The luncheon served at a bride's first reception is always up for criticism, whether kindly or the adverse. Thus the young bride of moderate income has a rather trying time in arranging her menu. "Efficient Housekeeping" a special feature for the feminine readers of this paper, deals most efficiently and clearly with just such problems as the one cited above. Recipes are given for delicious cakes, deserts and novel tasty ways of fussing-up meats and salads. Everything most essential in the daily or special menu is dealt with in a skillful manner.

LODGE DANCE

The Quinte Lodge No. 411, Ladies' Society of the B.L.F. and E., held their annual dance in the Johnstone Academy on Wednesday, November the second. Over one hundred couples were present, all enjoying to the full the program provided. Music was provided for by Sills' four-piece orchestra. Dancing was indulged in from 8-30 to 12 when a dainty repast was served. After luncheon the program was again attacked and on account of the many encores the dancing kept up till 3 o clock, when "God Save The King" ended a delightful affair.

DESTROYED BY FIRE

On Sunday evening last about five o'clock fire destroyed the barns of Myro Schryver, about four miles from Napanee. The barn, with the summer's crop, was totally destroyed. Mrs. Schryver, who was milking when the fire was discovered, had just time to get the cows and horses out. It is not known how the fire originated, as Mr. Schryver was, most particular about matches around the barn, never using them or allowing any one else to use them. There was some insurance carried, but the season's crop and about one thousand bushels of 1920 crop was stored in the barn.

RECEPTION FOR TROUPE

The committee of the G. W. V. A. interviewed the members of the Argyle Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire on Wednesday afternoon and gained their consent to serve the lunch at the reception for the "Hullo Canada" company at the armouries after the show on Friday, 11th. A number of tickets have been sold for this reception and Mr. Roy L. Madden was in Picton on Wednesday and saw the president of the Picton branch and arrainged to have a delegation from that town present. The Trenton branch of the Great War veterans are also sending a delegation of about ten to attend the reception.

NEW POLICE MAGISTRATE

Mr. R. R. Casement of Madoc has been appointed Police Magistrate for the Townships of Marmora, Madoc, Elzevir, Hungerford, Huntingdon and Rawdon, including the incorporated villages therein. The new powers and increased jurisdiction with which Mr. Casement has been invested will enable him to give the public greater service in his capacity of Police Magistrate than he could formerly do as Justice of the Peace.

LIVE HOG PRICES

There is apparently no prospect at present for a rise in the price of live hogs. Today they were purchased in this locality at $8.25 per hundred weight. This price has prevailed for the past two weeks.

BIRTH

JOHNSTON—To Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Johnston, 100 John street, on Oct. 28th—a son, Albert Douglas.

Wedding Bells

EVANS—BAILEY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized November 2nd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bailey, Moira street, when their only daughter, Rose Mary was united in marriage to Officer T. Evans of the Belleville Police Force, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Evans of Stafford, England.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. C. M. Ashley, cousin of the bride, the groom took his place under an arch of evergreens. The bride who was given away by her father looked very pretty in a dress of white Duchess satin, very daintily trimmed with silk braid and ornaments of silver beads and pearls, and the usual bridal veil with wreath of orange blossoms, carrying a boquet of carnations and chrysanthemums and wearing the gift of the groom, a handsome necklace set with pearls.

Little Misses Patsy and Isabel Turner, cousins of the bride, made charming flower girls, gowned in blue silk and carried a basket of orange blossoms and carnations.

The Rev. A. H. Foster performed the ceremony in the presence of about fifty relatives and friends. During the signing of the register, Miss Mollie Spencer sang very sweetly, "Because," and Master Ralph Shaw gave a very pleasing recitation. Then luncheon was served by girl friends of the bride.

The bride received many costly and useful presents, among them being an envelope of money from the groom's parents and a cheque for one thousand dollars from her parents. The groom's gift to the pianist was a beautiful bar pin and to the flower girls, signet rings.

The happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes in a well-decorated car to catch the 5.30 train for Detroit where they will spend their honeymoon.

Social and Personal

Miss Christina Jones of Montreal, attended the K.V.A.'S social evening and is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wheeler, city.

Mrs. Wilmot and Miss Wilmot left for New York City on their way to Scotland. Mr. Eardley Wilmot accompanied his mother and sister as far as the American metropolis where they were met by Capt. Coats who returned with them to Scotland where they will spend the winter with Capt. and Mrs. Coats.

Manley MacDonald, A.R.C.A., and Mrs. MacDonald, of Point Ann and Toronto, have returned from Europe where they spent some months taking advanced studies in art. They travelled extensively in Spain and no doubt the talented brush of Mr. MacDonald will soon transfer to canvas some of the inspiration he received overseas. Mrs. MacDonald is also a talented artist and their many friends are looking with interest to their future work. Just now they are preparing to move to Toronto where they have taken a studio.

THE ADOLESCENT SCHOOL ATTENDANCE ACT

In 1919, the Ontario Legislature passed what is known as the Adolescent School Attendance Act of 1919. This Act requires the attendance at school of adolescents or young people between the ages of fourteen and eighteen unless excused as provided for in the Act. These Adolescents are divided by the Act into two classes, namely those between fourteen and sixteen, and those between sixteen and eighteen. It is provided in the Act that the various clauses shall come into effect by the proclamation of the Lieutenant Governor.

By such proclamation, the clause affecting the class between fourteen and sixteen came into effect on September 1st, 1921.

In the discharge of official duties, I find considerable uncertainty as to the requirements of the Act, and as a matter of information I would point out to those concerned that no adolescent between the ages of fourteen and sixteen can now be legally employed by anyone between the hours of 8 a.m and 5 p.m. unless said adolescent holds an employment certificate issued by the school attendance officer of the municipality. Nor may a parent employ such adolescent during these hours without a home permit similarly issued. A violation of this Act incurs a penalty of $5 for the first offence and $25 for a second or subsequent offence.

This clause applies to all adolescents between the ages named whether they have been employed before September or not. To continue so employed they must obtain the required employment certificate or home permit, as the case may be, or their employers are liable for the penalties imposed by the Act.

MADE GOOD AS FARMER.

This ex-Soldier Has Splendid Record on the Land.

What the right sort of man may accomplish in one full season of hard work on raw prairie is exemplified by the case of Capt. Herbert Baker, a returned soldier who took up a quarter-section of school land in the Medicine Hat district of Alberta less than a year ago. A story of the marvellous progress of this settler is told by the reports that have reached the Soldier Settlement Board at Ottawa from its district supervisor.

Capt. Baker purchased his quarter through the Board in November, 1920. He had agricultural experience both in England and Canada before the war and on his return from overseas he was attracted by the generous inducements offered by the Government to physically capable and resolute men who desire to follow the vocation of farming. The Soldier Settlement Board purchased from the Provincial Government the quarter section desired for $2,800, Capt. Baker paying a deposit of ten per cent. The settler also secured advances of $1,500 for stock and equipment and $1,000 for improvements. This was in November last, too late to do anything before the winter. He, however, formed his plans, was on the ground early in April and before the sixteenth of the month he had 25 acres broken to the plough, a small shack built and his farm fenced. When the Soldier Settlement Board supervisor visited him on July 15 he had 120 acres in crop; 25 acres to wheat; 48 to oats; 40 to flax and 7 to potatoes. He planted 2,000 trees, 75 per cent. of which have shown satisfactory growth.

How much Capt. Baker will realize from his crops this year it is too early to state, but photographs of his fields are available and they show a very healthy growth of his wheat and other grains. The wheat was especially good yield and there is no room for doubt that this settler will be in a splendid financial position next year. The whole of his 160 acres are cultivatable. He made his own arrangements to connect with an irrigation project and secured a supply of water for his land in the dry season. The breaking of the land was done with a rented tractor.

When one considers that the whole of this farm was raw prairie less than a year ago and that for the most part it yielded bountifully in crops this year, the progress made by Capt. Baker is indeed remarkable. The farm will be fall ploughed and irrigated as soon as the crop is cleared off. The wheat, potatoes and part of the oats were irrigated twice—on June 15 and again on July 20. The field supervisor, in reporting his visits to this settler, remarks that he understands farming and is carrying on in first-class shape.

Capt. Baker has demonstrated what any willing and physically alert and capable returned man can do. The opportunity is open to any returned soldier who is willing to work.

Daylight Saving.

How many people know that our "summer time" is not a new thing at all? As a matter of fact, it is only a feeble imitation of a common practice of the Romans.

But while we alter the clock twice a year, the Romans made changes every day.

In every province of the Roman Empire day began, at all seasons of the year, at sunrise, and ended at sunset. The day consisted of twelve "hours," whose duration was not sixty minutes, but one-twelfth of the total period of daylight.

Hours were normal only in the spring and autumn equinoxes—that is, on March 21 and September 21, when night and day are of equal length.

In winter-time, when the sun rose at 8 a.m. and set at 4 p.m., the day was only eight of our hours in length. The Roman mid-winter hour was therefore only forty minutes. Thus the first hour was from 8 to 8.40 a.m., the fifth from 10.40 to 11.20 a.m., the twelfth from 3.20 to 4 p.m.

In high summer-time, with sunrise at 5 a.m. and sunset at 9 p.m., each "hour" consisted of eighty minutes. The first hour was from 5 to 6.20 a.m., the second from 6.20 to 7.40 a.m., and so on.

Redistribution of Population.

The Agent-General for British Columbia has written to the press emphasizing the urgent need for redistribution of the population of the Empire. He points out that Australia and Canada at the present time support less than three persons to the square mile, as against 618 to the square mile in England and Wales.

Continuing, he suggests that Canada's position is more precarious than that of Australia. He points out that the "same cloud of restless, ambitious, powerful people" which lowers over Australia threatens Canada. The latter country, however, has a greater danger, says the agent-general, from the overflow from the United States.

He gives figures indicating the serious influx of immigrants from the United States as compared with those from British sources, and declares that Western Canada is rapidly becoming Americanized."

Lord Byng an Indian Chief.

The Governor-General was made an honorary chief of the Huron tribe on Oct. 14 at Indian Lorette. Chief Ovido Sioui received the Governor-General, Lady Byng, Sir Charles and Lady Fitzpatrick at the reserve. Baron Byng's new title is "Sateia Tahadechiatrio," meaning "he has fought heroically." An address read by Chief Sioui pointed out that while former Governors - General have been similarly honored Baron Byng is the first great warrior to be so honored by the tribe. The cere is scrolled on birch bark. The ceremonies were brought to a close by an Indian war dance.

Anthracite Prices

As dealers in Anthracite we wish we could reduce prices,—but we can't.
The causes of high Anthracite prices are higher costs of Labor and higher Freight Rates—both fixed by law—not higher Profits.
Neither producers nor coal dealers are making any more money than they made when prices were lower.
The increased price ALL goes to pay higher costs of production and transportation.
How, then, can prices be reduced?

It is wise to lay in your winter's supply now rather than wait until thousands of consumers are trying to have their coal bins all filled at the same time.

Splendid Addresses—What Life Assurance Means—Many in Attendance.

Under the auspices of the local branch of the Underwriters' Association, a dinner was held last night at the Chamber of Commerce building and it proved to be a most enjoyable affair. Among those present were a number of ladies who entered heartily into the proceedings. The dinner provided was all that could have been desired and was faultlessly served.

Mr. George A. Reid, President of the Association, occupied the chair as a toast master and Mr. George F. Cole, Vice-President, was in the vice chair.

After due justice had been done to the good things provided, those present were entertained and edified by songs and an address by Mr. Carpenter of Toronto.

Recently the pupils of the High School in Belleville were asked to write an essay, the subject being, "The Needs and Benefits of Life Assurance in the Home." Three prizes were offered for the best papers and three prizes were presented. The prize winners were as follows: First, Miss Muriel Embury, 171 Victoria Ave., second, Master Robert Boyes and third Miss Hazel Horton, 152 West Moira St. The young competitors read their papers which were, as expressed by the speakers, capable productions, showing careful preparation.

PRIZES PRESENTED

Mr. E. D. O'Flynn made the presentation to Miss Embury and referred to the fact that the papers presented would do credit to a person more advanced in years, and showed careful preparation. The speaker spoke very complimentary to the ability displayed by the young lady.

SECOND PRIZE

Master Robert Boyes read the second prize paper, and the presentation of the testimonial was made by Rev. A. S. Kerr, who complimented Master Boyes upon his perseverance and the success attendant upon same. During his remarks the Rev. gentleman stated that the profession of ministers and insurance agents was somewhat similar as both were preaching a gospel that was important to mankind in general.

THIRD PRIZE

Miss Hazel Horton read the third prize essay and the presentation of the prize was made by Mr. George F. Cole, Vice-President of the Association, who in his remarks stated that the essays were a revelation to all and would, no doubt, do good.

Song—"When Baby Smiles At Me," by Mr. Sandy Burrows.

SPEAKER OF EVENING

Mr. C. H. Carpenter, Agency Manager of the Great West Assurance Company at Toronto, was the speaker of the evening. Life insurance as a stabilizer, in the home, business and community was the subject of his address, and it was handled in a manner that showed careful preparation. That life assurance was a benefit to the home, business and the community was clearly demonstrated by the speaker As in the home, the head of the house was cognizant of the fact that assurance was a great benefit so were many business men realizing it was equal benefit and placing policies upon many of their employes as a business proposition. It was also good to the community as it provides in many cases subsistence to families when, if there was no assurance the community would have to provide same. We should be serious in this business. No better place to sow the seed of life assurance than in the school. It is a matter of influencing the minds in regard to life assurance. There is a wonderful force in this business life assurance as men who insure are better off than those who do not insure. Our success depends upon our ability to show the results of the investment. Life assurance is being seriously considered today as statistics show. Security investment for all four sides of mankind. All should strive to reach the pinnacle of success in this business. This business of life assurance is the greatest business in the world.

Brief addresses were given by Messrs. Storms, Williams, Sword and Pine of Picton and Mr. Elliott of Napanee.

VOTE OF THANKS

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson in a few, well-chosen remarks, moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Carpenter for his able and instructive address.

Mr. Demo seconded the vote of thanks which was unanimously adopted and fittingly acknowledged.

During the evening Mr. S. Burrows rendered two solos in a manner that showed that he had lost none of his time honored enthusiasm.

The proceeding closed with the National Anthem.

5000 BRITISH FARMERS FOR 5000 CANADIAN HOMES

Vigorous Immigration Policy of Ontario Government Outlined by

HON. M. DOHERTY

More People and Greater Production Will Pay the National Debt.

"Five thousand British farmers for five thousand Canadian homes," is the slogan which the Ontario Government will use in its campaign in the British Isles this winter in carrying out its immigration policy to bring desirable settlers to Ontario, said Hon. Manning Doherty, in addressing the guests at the fifteenth annual complimentary banquet tendered to the members of the Belleville Cheese Board by Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Belleville branch of the Standard Bank of Canada, on Thursday afternoon at the Hotel Quinte.

Canada has a heavy national debt as the result of the war and a sane aggressive immigration policy will provide more shoulders to help to carry that debt and pay it off, said the speaker. It will not do to open the doors of Canada to all peoples without the capacity to grasp Canadian ideals or respect for British law. A sane aggressive immigration policy is needed to work out Canada's destiny, and the upheaval caused by the war and the consequent heavy taxation in England is causing many of the large estates to be broken up and sold with the result that many English tenants of agricultural holdings are planning to leave for other lands to make new homes. This is Canada's opportunity and the Ontario Government proposes to make the most of it by conducting a vigorous campaign overseas. Already Canadian exhibits have captured many prizes at English exhibits and thus drawn attention to the possibilities in Canada for British farmers. Their soldier sons and our soldier sons met and mingled during the war and learned to know one another, and consequently there is a very friendly feeling for Canada in the British Isles which only needs direction to result in many new and desirable citizens coming here.

RURAL CREDITS

Hon. Mr. Doherty paid an eloquent tribute to the worth of Mr. John Elliott who, he said, was a man living a life of real true Canadian citizenship. Mr. Elliott had been a great factor in developing the cheese industry both in Canada and overseas and had also been of great assistance to the Ontario Government in the carrying out of its immigration policy. If all bank managers were like Mr. Elliott it was doubtful if there would be any crying need of the rural credit being developed by the Ontario Government, but as all bank managers did not possess his sound judgment and broad vision and grasp of agricultural problems it would not be safe for all the banks to carry out his policies.

GOES ON FOREVER

The development of the dairy industry in Canada was next touched on by the speaker who quoted figures showing that the dairy industry of Ontario, cheese, milk and butter, had reached an annual total of $105,860,951 out of a total of about $236,000,000 for the whole Dominion. Ontario's total can be swelled to two hundred millions with efficient direction and co-operation. The dairy business is the most profitable line for the farmer as it goes on forever and the land remains just as fertile as ever. Dairying is the safest branch of agriculture.

WAR FOR MARKETS

The next twenty-five years will witness a war for markets and it is necessary that Canada be up and doing to hold its markets and gain new ones. New Zealand is making a strong bid in dairy products for the world markets and other nations are following suit.

Canadian products must have a high standard of quality and the government must be able to guarantee Canadian quality in the markets of the world against all comers. The best method is in the formation of strong, safe, co-operative marketing organizations, not pap-fed by any government, said the speaker. The government would help in the organization but the farmers must operate them. The first year's operation of the organized fruit business of Niagara has shown what can be done by business methods and co-operation. The home

MILLION DOLLAR FIRE IN NEW YORK

Entire River Front on New Jersey Side of Hudson Swept.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

WEEHAWKEN, Nov. 4.—Erie railroads, piers, and waterfront are waste today by fire that started at midnight last night consuming five piers laden with freight, thirty loaded barges, train of thirty loaded freight cars and another of five oil tanks. Estimates of loss range from million dollars up. All available fire apparatus from New York, Hoboken, Jersey City and New Jersey towns fought flames.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The greatest fire New York has ever known swept the entire river front on the New Jersey side of the Hudson River at Weehawken. The flames, which started on a pier at the Erie Railroad at midnight, have already destroyed all of the piers of that company and, driven by a northeast wind, are sweeping up the river.

The entire fire fighting forces of Weehawken, Jersey City and Hoboken have been massed at North Weehawken on the river front, in an endeavor to block the flames.

Although it is as yet impossible to accurately estimate the damage, Erie Railroad officials declared this morning that the loss would run into millions.

Showers of live sparks were falling in Times Square and the theatrical district of Manhattan which is directly east of the section of Weehawken, which is in flames and for a time it was feared the river front structures on the New York side of the river might catch fire.

The cause of the conflagration could not be learned. Flames were first noticed in the freight yard on the Erie piers.

Three tugs owned by the Erie Company together with several freight car barges and smaller river craft were destroyed. Tugs and other river craft belonging to other companies were also in flames.

TORONTO MAN MISSING

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 2.—After three day's search in Halifax, John Logan, West Toronto, is still without any trace of his son, Frank, who has been missing since early this year. Frank Logan left Camp Borden to join the Canadian Submarine Depot here.

MR. JOHN ELLIOTT,
Host at Fifteenth Annual Banquet to Belleville Cheese Board.

VOICE SPANS 3,000 MILES

Chime of Bells, Sound of Bugle Heard from San Francisco in New York

TELEPHONE MARVEL

Test of Mechanism Which Will Spread Harding's Voice Across Continent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The call of a bugle, the chime of bells and the voice of a man were swept across the continent from San Francisco today with every note, every vibration of the bells and every spoken syllable as distinct as though sounded a hundred feet from the listeners' ears. The speaker stood on the roof of the great auditorium in San Francisco, and the music came from phonograph records played in the building in which he stood for an audience three thousand miles away.

It was the formal dress rehearsal of the mechanism by which President Harding's voice, as he speaks on Armistice Day over the casket of the United States' unknown soldier at Arlington National Cemetery will be carried to an audience waiting before the amplifiers in New York and to another gathering in San Francisco.

Telephone wires by the thousands of miles, linemen by the hundred, telegraphers by the score were needed for the test, as they will be needed on Armistice Day, to bring the experiment to the success so certainly foreshadowed by today's perfect results. High officers of the army, and the officials of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which is making this contribution to the memory of the dead soldier, had no doubts of that success after the first sentence spoken at San Francisco was clearly audible to them at a half-mile distance from the amplifiers on the Amphi-theatre at Arlington.

Similarly there was a long reading of speeches from the stage of the amphitheatre here to be carried out over the wires to San Francisco.

Similarly there was a long reading

KING ALEX. OF JUGO-SLAVIA

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

BELGRADE, Nov. 4.—King Alexander will take the oath of office as ruler of Jugo-Slavia to-morrow. Reports that there is a probability of a change in the occupant of the throne are regarded as groundless here.

DRURY MOVES WILL BE MET

Conservatives Are Not to be Caught Napping by a Snap Election.

ASSOCIATION MEETS

Encouraging Reports Are Presented — Discuss Organization.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—Judging from the spirit shown at yesterday's meeting of the Provincial Liberal-Conservative Association in Victoria Hall, the Conconservatives are ready for Mr. Drury whenever he chooses to go to the country, whether he tries to get a snap verdict, in the event of a fair measure of Agrarian success at the polls in the Federal contests, or awaits until next Summer. Delegates from every riding in the Province were present and reports presented by the chairmen of the six divisions into which the Province has been divided for organization purposes, showed that in every division the organization was in excellent shape. At the last meeting of the Provincial executive officers were appointed to make a survey of conditions in the province, and their reports submitted yesterday, were of a thoroughly encouraging character. One feature of these reports was the evidence of a change of heart upon the part of many farmers who supported the U.F.O. in the Provincial election. To some extent this is attributed to disorganization in many of the local U.F.O. clubs, as a result of dissatisfaction with the way in which the co-operative business operations have been carried on. In not a few places the operations of the entertrises launched with the backing of local farmers, have been unprofitable, and cases have been reported where the farmers have had to "dig deep" in order to make up losses. An experience of this sort does much to disillusion the farmer who suffers.

New Organization Method

The chief business of yesterday's sessions, which wre presided over by Capt. Joe Thompson, was a discussion of organization and the completion of the work started at the big Provincial convention, which chose Hon. Mr. Ferguson as leader. Among other matters dealt with was the nomination of riding presidents follow country and township lines, but the new organizations will follow riding boundaries with the sub-divisions as units. The nominations were put in by the delegates for the riding. In the afternoon Hon. Mr. Ferguson, who was given an enthusiastic reception, gave the delegates a talk upon organization, emphasizing the value of carrying it right into local work.

LADY LAURIER LAID TO REST

Most Distinguished Gathering Attend Funeral.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

Ottawa, Nov. 4.—Side by side with her late husband in a sheltered knoll in Notre Dame cemetery Lady Laurier was laid to rest this morning. The funeral was an impressive manifestation of the public regard for a charming personality.

Thousands of people including some of the most distinguished men in the country paid tribute to a noble woman. The Governor-General was represented by Major Willis O'Connor, the Government by Sir James Lougheed, the government of Quebec by Premier Taschereau, the Liberal party by Hon. Mackenzie King and Sir Lomer Gouin and a score of Senators and Members of the Commons.

FLORAL EMBLEM OF EMPIRE ON U. S. SOLDIER'S GRAVE

London, Nov. 3.—Red roses from England, maple leaves from Canada, violets and forget-me-nots from Wales, shamrocks from Ireland and heather from Scotland will have their place in the wreath which Mrs. Julia McCudden mother of a British soldier who fell during the war, will place on the tomb of the United States "unknown soldier" at Arlington, Virginia, on November 11. Mrs McCudden is now on her way to the United States with the wreath. The flowers were placed on a block of ice six feet square so that their freshness might be preserved.

BELLEVILLE CHEESE MEN AGAIN GET TOGETHER

Fifteenth Annual Banquet Tendered by Mr. John Elliott to Belleville Cheese Board—Addressed by Minister of Agriculture on Past, Present and Future of Dairy Business.

For fifteen years the men interested in the cheese industry of Belleville district have gathered in Belleville once each year as the guests of Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Belleville branch of the Standard Bank of Canada, and around the banquet board discussed the dairy industry and the best methods for expanding it and making it more prosperous. Year after year this annual cheese dinner as it is called has been growing in size and importance until its fame has spread from coast to coast. Many men high in public life have addressed this gathering which is always eagerly anticipated by those fortunate enough to be among the favored guests. The cheese industry of Belleville district is in a very healthy and prosperous condition and one of the big factors in building up this industry has been Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank of Canada, Belleville branch. Mr. Elliott is credited with being the pioneer in the banking business to adapt modern banking methods to the needs of the agricultural industry and realize the field for business in building up and expanding the dairy and other allied industries of agriculture. Belleville cheese, particularly cheese of mature age, is Mr. Elliott's strong point and he never tires of advertising Belleville cheese wherever he goes in Canada, the United States or overseas, and in hotels, dining cars and wherever meals are served he always asks for Canadian cheese and gets all his friends to do likewise, always adding that Belleville cheese is preferred. As a result of the publicity methods and propaganda inspired by Mr. Elliott Belleville cheese commands a better price overseas than any other cheese and is in great demand, several large Canadian hotels have purchased a large supply of Belleville cheese and placed the same in cold storage for use next year when fully matured, the Toronto Board of Trade with 2,500 members has also purchased a supply of Belleville cheese for next year's luncheons which means a tremendous advertisement for the local industry. This followed the efforts of Mr. Elliott in supplying the delegates to the British Empire Chambers of Commerce with old Canadian cheese, made in Belleville, which made a wonderful hit with the overseas visitors. Mr. Elliott this summer extended his missionary work to Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island where he visited in company with Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, and as a result of that visit a cheese and butter business with Belleville has been opened up.

The fifteenth annual banquet tendered to the members of the Belleville Cheese Board by Mr. Elliott was held at the Hotel Quinte, Thursday, November 3, 1921, and fully upheld the reputation of previous years. There was a large attendance, over two hundred, the handsome dining room never looked better and the food and service was the best. The speaker of the day was Hon. Manning Doherty, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, and he showed how the dairy business could be improved and expanded by co-operative publicity methods, creating new markets and creating a larger demand for cheese everywhere, in fact an "eat more cheese' campaign. A synopsis of the Minister of Agriculture's address is given in another column.

One feature of these banquets is the fact that the chairman is permanent and perennial in Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, solicitor for the Standard Bank, and Thursday was his fifteenth appearance at the head of the table. Chairman O'Flynn is the right man in the right place and always has the program well in hand. Prof. Hunt officiated at the piano and Mr. W. H. Wrightmeyer contributed vocal solos. The speakers were Hon. Manning Doherty, Mr. R. M. Mitchell, President of the Belleville Cheese Board, Mr. R. J. Graham, Mr. Jamieson Bone, President Belleville Chamber of Commerce; H. F Ketcheson, Mr. Bob Bushnell (Kingston), and Mr. Elliott.

Ven. Archdeacon Beamish opened the banquet with prayer.

Among those present were Messrs. H K. Denyes, M.P.P., Ven. Archdeacon Beamish, Rural Dean Swayne, Dairy Inspector Publow, Bob Bushnell, (Kingston Fair King), Dr. Coughlin, Ald. French, C. M. Reid, Ald Fisher, Jamieson Bone, Owen Herity, Capt. McManus, Ex-Mayor Riggs, H. F. Ketcheson, W. B. Deacon, D. V. Sinclair, John McIntosh, Col. W. N. Ponton, Ald. Sam Treverton, Howard Clarke, Mac Robertson, Col. Ketcheson, Col. Vanderwater.

Out of respect for the funeral of the late Dr. Yeomans' community singing was dispensed with, during the banquet.

Owing to the large attendance more than taxing the capacity of the Quinte dining room an overflow spread was arranged for in another room.

Guests Welcomed

Mr. Elliott extended a gracious welcome to the many guests and especially thanked Hon. Manning Doherty for coming to address the gathering. Mr. Elliott referred to former speakers at these banquets including Archdeacon Cody when Minister of Education, Dr. Creelman, Hon. Mr. Henry Principal Reynolds of the Guelph Agricultural College, Messrs. Bailey, Roadhouse, and others. Several who were present at the banquet last year have crossed the Silent River in W. J. Barber, John W. Gay, Wm. Clazie, D. Poucher, John Nightingale; several were also absent through illness, but all were kept in kindly memory.

BOAG TOOK HIS WIFE'S ADVICE

Since Taking Tanlac, Toronto Man Says He Feels Like a Different Person.

William G. Boag, a well-konwn landscape gardener living at 1522 Bathurst street, Toronto, Ont., is still another witness to the remarkable reconstructive powers of Tanlac. Here is what he says:

"About two years ago I had a severe case of the 'flu' which left me in a mighty bad fix. I had alternate hot and cold spells which often came on me at night. I actually dreaded for bedtime to come, for my troubles made it almost impossible for me to sleep. No matter how careful I was about eating, I suffered after meals from gas and intense pains in the pit of my stomach. Attacks of violent headache were frequent and at times my whole body ached. My strength all seemed to leave me, I was dull and lanquid and felt miserable all the time.

"Well, I took Tanlac on my wife's advice, and that was about the best thing I ever did, for today I am a well man. I can eat and sleep like I haven't in years, and nothing ever hurts me. In fact I am in prime condition in every respect. Tanlac has certainly proven the friend in need to me and I am happy to recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store.

First Night At The Movies

GENIUS OF CECIL B. DEMILLE DISPLAYED IN "MALE AND FEMALE"

It would seem that Cecil B. DeMille has been working up toward the production of "Male and Female," his Paramount Artcraft picture, through his entire career. For this picture, which was shown for the first time last night at Griffin's represents the consummation of his many-sided genius, the finest fruit of years of artistry.

"Male and Female" combines the luxuriousness of "Something to Think About," and the spectacular beauty of "Forbidden Fruit." The opening scenes, in the London home of Lady Mary, are the last word in luxury. Mr. DeMille has spent money on his pictures before but it is doubtful if he has ever spent so much, and so effectively as in these scenes. Gloria Swanson has more wonderful gowns than ever, and the settings down, to the tiniest detail, are in keeping with the storied characters.

Then there is the Babylonian episode—short, thrillingly beautiful. Here is the spectacular, if you like, combined with the exquisite. Thomas Meighen, is the King in this episode. Gloria Swanson, more beautiful than ever in the barbaric splendor of the Babylonian costumes, is the untamed slave. In the end she is thrown to the lions and they're real lions, too. As everyone knows, J. M. Barrie wrote the play, "The Admirable Crichton," from which "Male and Female" is adapted. Sir James is one of the last authors to allow his works to be filmed. He held off for a long while, but finally allowed DeMille to try his hand. When the author sees this he will not be disappointed The dramatic strength of his play, and its deep and keen characterizations are enriched by the presentation DeMille has given it. The story has not been changed in the least.

5,000 BRITISH FARMERS FOR 5,000 CANADIAN HOMES

market should be so developed that three times the amount of cheese now consumed will be used which will be better for the people and better for the cheese industry.

EAT MORE RAISINS

Hon. Mr. Doherty gave a graphic description of the methods used by the Raisin Growers' Association of California which in three years had increased the sale of raisins by three hundred per cent., and the price from three-quarters a cent per pound to seven cents per pound. Judicious advertising and experts to show bakers, householders, etc., how many ways raisins could be used to advantage boomed the industry.

It takes one pound more milk today to make a pound of cheese than it did twenty years ago, said Mr. Doherty, and that means just two million dollars per year. He advocated weeding out herds intelligently and told of profitable experiments on his own farm in testing milk production for each individual cow, eliminating all cows with a production of under ten thousand pounds.

BELLEVILLE CHEESE BEST

At the London Dairy Show, Australia had carried off the gold cup trophy for the best dairy exhibit. This caused the Ontario Government to get busy and an exhibit of Canadian cheese was sent over which swept the list. Mountain View Cheese Factory of Ameliasburg, J. A. Beckwith, maker, took first prize; Madoc Cheese Factory, G. H. Bailey, maker, second, and the Dominion Cheese Factory, third. The Ontario fruit exhibit won gold and silver medals at the London show and the gold challenge trophy.

While thousands of British farmers intend leaving the old land for new homes overseas, the idea which seems to be prevalent in some quarters that England is going to the bow-wows is all tommyrot, said Hon. Mr. Doherty. While they were now being taxed through the nose, Britain would be the first out of debt and the first on the high road to prosperity.

The address of the Minister of Agriculture was plain, practical and constructive and an inspiration to the two hundred odd stalwarts of the dairy industry assembled as the guests of Mr. John Elliott. Enthusiastic and prolonged applause showed the appreciation of the audience of the speaker's able exposition of the dairy industry and how to expand it and make it even more prosperous.

I suffered with muscular rheumatism for three years and have been completely cured of same by taking a few packages of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery after doctors' medicines failed to do any good. I am now free from all signs of rheumatism for which I most heartily thank Dr. Pierce and his wonderful medicines." Mrs. Kerwood Cook, Box 464.

Woodstock, Ont.,—"My husband always speaks a good word for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and we both feel that he owes his present good health to this splendid medicine. Bronchial pneumonia, as a child, left him with chronic bronchial trouble and it just kept getting worse every year even though he doctored and tried every remedy recommended to him. Some nights he would cough so hard I used to be afraid he might die before morning. Last fall his mother advised him to try the "Golden Medical Discovery" and from the first few doses he improved. It is just a year now and he seems to be entirely cured of all bronchial ailments." Mrs. S. M. Greer, 27 Sydenham St.

CHEESE MEN GET TOGETHER

Reviewing the cheese trade for the past year Mr. Elliott told of the publicity methods used overseas to create a demand for Belleville cheese and missionary efforts all along the line resulting in a greater demand for Belleville cheese and a better price.

Mr. Elliott gave some interesting figures showing the progress of the dairy industry, the development of Canadian trade, and some particularly interesting figures about trade in Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island. These figures are given in a separate article in another column.

Making Belleville Famous

"My object in having this dinner" said Mr. Elliott "is to bring our urban and rural citizens together that they may better understand each other's needs and cultivate that spirit of co-operation which is so essential in the proper development of the Bay of Quinte district, and further, that they may join with me in extending a cordial welcome to our esteemed guest, Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture for the Province of Ontario." Mr. Elliott read letters from dealers in Newfoundland and quotations from other letters of an interesting character as follows, showing that cheese is going to make Belleville famous if nothing else will.

A. E. Hickman Co., Ltd,
Exporters and Importers
St. John's, Newfoundland
Sept. 27th, 1921.

Mr. John Elliott,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Mr. Elliott,—I have your letter of the 19th instant, and thank you very much for sending me the cheese. No doubt I will receive it O.K., on its arrival, and will certainly be very pleased to share same with Messrs. Cowan, Ayre and others whom you met when you were here in connection with the Board of Trade. I am looking forward with great delight to this good Belleville cheese which we heard so much about since you were here, but so little about before your arrival. It is surprising how near we are to products which we can use about which we know nothing.

Appreciating your kindness, and with kind regards, I remain,

Yours Very Truly
(Sgd). A. E. HICKMAN

Ayre & Sons, Limited,
Merchants,
St. John's Newfoundland,
October 20, 1921

Mr. Elliott, Standard Bank of Canada
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Mr. Elliott,—I must thank you very much for the Cheese you sent down to Mr. Hickman, a portion of which he passed on to me at your request.

It certainly was very nice cheese and quite out of the ordinary from what we get here.

Could you put us in touch with the people that have this in stock. I understand from Mr. Hickman that it is two years old.

Yours Very Truly
(Sgd.) JAMES S. AYRE.

Quotation from letter received from the President of the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, under date of Oct. 25, 1921, giving an order for Belleville cheese.

"We have no doubt of the quality after trying the sample in our dining-room."

Quotation from a letter received from the Toronto Board of Trade ordering cheese under date of Oct. 5, 1921.

"When replying I shall be obliged if you will kindly let me know whether it is possible to secure any more cheese like the one you sent. A member of our House Committee, who has had considerable experience in the cheese business, says that the one you have forwarded is of very good quality.

The question of ordering a year's supply for our Club will be considered at a Meeting of the House Committee to be held during the next week or so, after which I will write you again.'

At a later date an order for next year's supply of cheese was received.

Belleville Past and Present

Mr. R. J. Graham in replying to the toast of "our manufacturing interests" said that he was a farmer as well as a manufacturer and felt quite at home in such a gathering. He was delighted to assist in this tribute of honor and appreciation to Mr. John Elliott who was a stalwart in the cheese industry and had helped materially to organize it to its present standard of efficiency. Mr. Graham also paid a warm tribute to the instructive and helpful address of the Minister of Agriculture. Referring to the manufacturing of this district he harked back to the time when Belleville was the centre of a large lumbering industry which had long since passed. The future of Belleville as an industrial centre was rich in possibilities and to be most successful must be principally concerned with the development of the raw materials at our doors. We must do our own thinking and develop our own manfactures with our own brains and money instead of depending upon the importation of foreign experts. Belleville has many natural advantages of great value and can become a great manufacturing centre with an energetic and progressive policy on the part of its citizens, a high standard of quality being the main objective. Mr Graham's address was interesting, practical and appreciation was shown by the hearty applause accorded him.

Other speakers were R. M. Mitchell, President of the Belleville Cheese Board; Jamieson Bone, President of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce; H. F. Ketcheson, Ex-Mayor of Belleville; and Robert Bushnell, Manager of Kingston Fair, who announced a competition for the best cheese open to Belleville district, Frontenac and Leeds at Kingston Fair for cash prizes.

Among the letters of regret read was one from W. A. Coates, of the Robert Reford Steamship line, inclosing a German banknote representing in Canadian money about two and one half cents, which the writer said was to buy the best drink possible for his very good friend W. Cook of Belleville Needless to say this inspired a great laugh at the epense of Mr. Cook who was present.

WANT TEN MILLION

Washington, Nov. 4.—Congres will ask for ten million dollars for enforcement of prohibition during the next fiscal year.

ROBBED OF $5,900

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Five men in an auto held up two Corn Exchange National Bank runners to-day and robbed them of $5,900.

Millions Ready To Strike!

Not men—but millions of virulent infectious germs which are discharged into the air every time a person coughs! In crowded street-cars, trains, theatres, picture shows, concert halls, etc., it is impossible to breathe without inhaling them. These germs strike at the weakest point—the sensitive lining of the throat and breathing tubes. There they start the soreness and inflammation which begin chest trouble.

The sure way to prevent this dangerous infection is to keep your mouth and throat bathed with the pleasant germ-destroying vapour that is liberated from Peps tablets as they dissolve in the mouth. This powerful air-like Peps medicine mingles with the breath and thus directly reaches every part of the throat and lungs, exterminating the germs and nipping trouble promptly in the bud.

Peps are Canada's best remedy for obstinate coughs and colds, sudden chills, bronchitis, sore throat, night-cough, cold on the chest, laryngitis, old folks coughs, and children's weak chest 50 cents.

SOCCER

An outstanding feature in the City League and a big treat will be in store for Bellevillians on Monday, 7th, when the Belleville Tigers and the Grand Trunk meet for the final game of the season. The enthusiasm of the rival teams credit a good, fast, vigorous game.

The Rev. D. C. Ramsay, Honorable President of the City League, is being asked to accept the duties of referee. His reverence has always taken a keen interest in sport and admirers of football will have every reason to believe that the Hon. President will go a long way to assure a clean and creditable game.

Mr. Syd Taylor, manager of the Belleville Tigers assures us that his team will be in the pink of condition and leaves no room for doubt. Mr. Norman Maker, captain of the Tigers, is confident of an easy victory.

Mr. Wm. Harvey, manager of the G. T. R. is leaving nothing undone to bring the laurels home and Mr. Robinson, captain of the Grand Trunk, says defeat will not come his way.

The clerk of the weather wires that the "sun shines bright on the Agricultural grounds on Monday, 7th," so come along, you Bellevillians and witness THE game of the season.

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlysle H. Holcomb

TINKER BOB PLANS A PARTY

"O King, I came here to see O Possum, the creature who gave me such a good start in life, said Red Fox when he saw the King standing before him. "I don't know which tree he lives in but Sammy Squirrel is in the tree tops directing me to the right one. I wouldn't dare to come up here if the leaves were all off the trees. It would be so light that the Hunter could see me from a great way off."

"Well, well, you must have had a change come over you being that you have decided to visit the old fellow who gave you a start in life. He lives in that tree right there," said the King. "I think he must be asleep now and if he is you will never get a chance to see him unless you stay around here till night. He wakes up just as the sun is going down."

"O King, I want to be home by the time the sun is down for I have business to tend to that will take all of my attention. I am having company this evening and I will have to be there. You see I wanted to invite my old friend, O Possum to come over and have a good time with us to-night." Then Red Fox happened to think what he had said. The idea of having a party and not inviting the King of the forest—that would be a terrible thing! But there were some things under way that Reddy did not care to have the King know. But he would have to change his plans and invite the King or he would think something was wrong and would come anyway. "O King, I would like to have you come to my party to-night, it will be held in the hollow near my home under the cliff by the bend in the river. I would like to have you invite all of the creatures of the forest you can find. We will have a good time in the light of the moon."

"Now, Mr. Reddy," said the King. "I was just going about to invite the forest folks to come to the Palace of the King where we would have a grand frolic before the next visit of Jack Frost. You know Jack Frost has been here and he will be here again in a day or two and then the leaves will all fall from the trees. We must have a frolic to sing farewell to the wonderful leaves that have given us shade all the Summer thru. This will be a great time for all of the creatures of the forest. Mr. Frog will be there with his orchestra for the last time. His concerts on the bank of the lake will cease the next time Jack Frost comes so we must enjoy them while we can."

He wakes up just as the sun is going down.

"I shall tell the friends of your party," said Red Fox, "and we will all be there. I can have mine some other time." Away he went to tell his friends.

GRAMERPHONER GRITS STILL SORE AT OVERSEAS SOLDIER VOTE

Hon. Charlie Murphy was up Kitchener way helping W. D. Euler to get renominated, and in characteristic Murphyesque style lambasted the Meighen Government for its alleged sins of omission and commission. As a tit-bit sure to make a hit in Berlin-Kitchener with the gramerphoner Grits there Murphy charged the Government with using the war for political purposes and the soldiers' votes to strengthen the Government. Inasmuch as very few soldiers overseas voted for the Murphy-King-Euler anti-conscription bunch, the wails of Murphy, et al, as to the distribution of the overseas vote is ludicrous. What Murphy and his pals would have done with those overseas votes would have shown Mr. Borden and his bunch that at playing politics they were in the kindergarten class.

WHERE DOES THE MONEY COME FROM FOR CAMPAIGN?

From time immemorial politicians out of office have accused governments of extravagance and corruption. No political campaign would be complete without accusations of that character, nor would it be a real campaign without "holier than thou professions." Mr. Crerar fills both roles. He unctuously claims a monopoly of purity and high principle for his party, and he condemns the Government as one ruled by the big interests. "Where does the campaign fund come from?" he shouts from every platform. Since he attaches more importance to that kind of warfare than to educating the people by arguing his free trade cause, we propose to meet him on his own ground. The facts are easy to understand. For the last three or four years the farmers have been carrying on a desperate campaign to destroy the Government. To that end their great trade organization in the West has financed the Grain Growers' Guide and assisted in the financing of other newspapers. The Farmers' Sun, of Toronto, devoted especially to the movement, has been financed and supported by the organization and by individual members thereof. The organized farmers as individuals and through their organizations have also contributed funds, which in the aggregate is stated to be over $1,000,000 for the purpose of backing their free trade policy, the effect of which, if placed in operation, could only be to destroy the manufacturing institutions and general business interests of the country—manufacturing and business of all kinds being interwoven.

Protecting Their Own Businesses.

In the face of these conditions surely the business men of the country would be the worst kind of fools if they did not retaliate in kind by subscribing of their means to prevent the destruction of their businesses. Does Mr. Crerar expect that these men, whose businesses are today imperilled by the free trade menace, which he holds over their heads, are going to sit down calmly and see their businesses uprooted, their investments and their work of a lifetime destroyed, without putting up a fight? Does he imagine for a moment that these business men are going to be frightened out of their boots by a glorified schoolmaster, such as he, who lacks the ability to argue his own case and who relies upon the tricks of the demagogue for victory? Does he think they will meekly accept his designation of them as jobbers and robbers of the public, battening and fattening under an immoral policy? If he imagines any of these things, he is more unsophisticated even than we had imagined him to be. The business men of this country are not fools and they are well able to play Mr. Crerar at his own game and beat him. On the principle that self-preservation is the first law of nature, subscriptions of business men to campaign funds were never more justified than today.

Crerar's Big Joke.

Considered calmly, Mr. Crerar's attitude is the biggest kind of a joke. He puts on boxing gloves stuffed with farmer gold-pieces and insists upon Meighen fighting with feather pillows. Nay—worse, he wants the Premier's hands tied behind his back! He, naively, asks the people to believe that any propaganda of the Government must necessarily be paid for from corrupt sources; whereas the United Farmer propaganda which has been flooding the country for years, is of semi-divine inspiration and origin and therefore unchallangeable .His babyish attitude is enough to draw tears from the lachrymose glands of a flour barrel.

CRISP COMMENT

The "munitions scare" W. L. M. King is trying to work up shows a paucity of real ammunition in his locker. It is a political "shell" game, says the Mail and Empire, in which he wants the public to find the elusive pea.

If any private citizen had a business as large and important as the business of the government of Canada, and Meighen, Crerar and King applied for the position of Managing Director, who would he choose? Would he take any chances with his own business? Would he enquire from the spirit of his great grandfather how the family vote should be cast in the biggest business deal of his lifetime? The nation will get good or bad government just in proportion to how earnestly the individual citizen considers the importance of his or her ballot as a determining factor in the future prosperity and welfare of the country.

A NATION THAT LOVES FIGHTING

Cleveland Plain Dealer

National psychology is a hard study. It had been freely predicted that the failure to capture Angora and the necessity of keeping a great army in camp and mostly inactive during the winter would create great dissatisfaction among the Greeks and might even lead to a second dethronement of Tino. The result is just the opposite. The Greeks seem to like the war. Neither heavy casualties nor heavy expenses have sickened them. They must surely be classed as a war-like race, for no race not distinctly war-like could stand what the Greeks have stood and still be eager for more.

BLAME ON THE RIGHT SHOULDERS

London Observer

Everybody realizes that riots help not one atom to solve the complicated and heart-rending problems of unemployment. The unemployed themselves know this perfectly well. The police have now told us that the disorders in Trafalgar Square were due not to the unemployed, but to a few professional agitators allied to a small band of revolutionary irreconcilables. An insignificant number of these gentry can unfortunately do a lot of damage and make an even bigger lot of noise. But the public must not confuse these Communists with the great mas of the workless od imagine that character and common sense are on the wane in England. The steadiness of the genuine unemployed is a promise of hope in these tragic and difficult times.

ITS USEFULNESS GONE

Florida Times

When the old Ku Klux Klan was organized efforts were being made to force social equality on the South and to place the negro above the white man in power. These efforts were made by the party in control of the Government at the time and the negroes under alien white leadership, were measuring their strength with the whites. They are not doing it now. Then the states of the South under negro and carpet bag government were being robbed right and left. An era of unlimited extravagance and unbridled dishonesty prevailed against the will of the whites. The old Ku Klux Klan was organized as a matter of self preservation and it did its work, and for half a century has been out of existence because its work was completed. There is no call for even the denatured organization that bears the name now. Anything that stirs up strife between races is inimical to the South and to the United States of America.

LOVE BESIDE THE FIRE

The pride of autumn fades away on wooded vale and hill,
The days are growing grayer and the nights are growing chill,
Then hey for home, and happy eyes and joys that never tire,
We'll face the worst that winter brings with love beside the fire.

O, sweet as youth the springtime was, and fair were summer's bowers,
And gaily flowed the pageantry of autumn's golden hours!
With sadness from the hills we saw their sunlit days retire
But winter brings us back again to love beside the fire!

So bolt the door against the blast, and start the cheerful blaze,
And let us sit, sweetheart of mine, and talk of olden days,
Of days when first you woke in me the dream of young desire,
When yet I hardly dared to hope for love beside the fire!
love beside the fire!

Letters to the Editor

APPEARED AS OFFICIAL

November 4th, 1921.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—My attention has been called to an editorial in your issue of yesterday in which the following statement appears:

"With Canada a free trade country or on the gradual road to free trade, a la Crerar, Yankee manufacturers would not need factories in Canada and would soon dominate this market at their own prices. Industrial Commissioner Herity knows this and that is the reason he appeared before the Dominion Tariff Commission at Kingston in favor of protection, the grand old National Policy of Sir John A. Macdonald and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen."

In reference to the foregoing assertion I desire to state that, as a paid official of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce I was asked by the directors of that body to present to the Tariff Commission at its meeting at Kingston, a resolution that had previously been endorsed at a directors' meeting. With the presentation my mission began and ended. I expressed no opinion and made no comment of any kind whatever either "in favor of protection" or opposed to such a policy.

Very truly yours,
J. O. HERITY,
Industrial Commissioner.

TRAIN WRECKER AT LAPEER ADMITS SIMILAR CRIME

Lapeer, Mich., Nov. [illegible].—Henry W. Gates, charged with wrecking a passenger train on the Grand Trunk Railroad last Friday and who has confessed that he caused several other wrecks in Michigan within the past three months, admitted, according to railroad detectives, that he also had caused the derailment of a train at Muncie, Ind.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Speeding Freak

M.O.—On Sunday afternoon last as I was going along the Belleville-Shannonville highway one of the now—common road freaks passed us. Boy! No wonder we have so many motor accidents. In the front seat of that flivver (it was a two-seater) was the driver, and two girl companions, arms all about one another, tonsils showing to the world at large as they were having one hilarious outing. The speed, I reckon, they were travelling at would be anything between 35 and 40 miles per, in a flivver! Can you beat it "

Good Effect

W.G.—I saw two letters in this paper a couple of days since, above the signatures of B. A. Sanford and Miss Martin, respectively, relative to the selling of cut-up meat on our local market. I hear from reliable sources that as a direct result of the interest thus aroused, that one, perhaps two, of our butchers are going to cut up and offer for sale meat at considerably lower prices than those at present in vogue. Hurrah for lower prices. To compete is to live! Onward ever you price-cutters!

Destructive Children

E.L.N.—I saw, some time ago, how a local physician repaired and seeded his lawn. To protect the newly seeded ground large stakes were driven in the ground at various points and wire stretched between. Twice in succession have I seen the large corner stake lying on the ground pulled up by thoughtless young vandals. Now that "Bunny" is safely away, work such as that described must be laid at the door of some, at present, mysterious destroyer.

A ROMANCE IN FIGURES.

Canada's Progress in Dollars and Cents, and What's What in the Cheese Industry—Also a Look-in at Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island.

Some very interesting and instructive figures on Canadian trade with especial reference to the cheese industry were given by Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank, in course of his adress at the fifteenth annual complimentary banquet tendered by that gentleman to the officers and members of the Belleville Cheese Board. The speech is reported in another column but the figures are so interesting and illuminating that they are given special prominence here. Mr. Elliott also gave a graphic sketch of a visit to Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island this summer and what he found there as expressed in figures.

of speeches from the stage of the amphitheatre here to be carried out over the wires to San Francisco.

Then it was announced that the next words to be heard would be spoken in San Francisco. The faint whirr of the mechanism rose to a higher hum and a new, deep-toned voice announced that chimes played on a phonograph record played in San Francisco would come next. As clearly as if it were not a dozen feet away, the click of the phonograph mechanism came as the needle dropped on the face of the whirling record disc, 3,000 miles away; the familiar introductory scrape began, then the bells boomed out, waking echoes in the cemetery, pealing over the thousands of graves.

To accomplish this latest marvel of communication, the telephone company employed nearly ten thousand miles of circuit, double that length of wire; it had linemen stationed every 18 miles all the way to San Francisco, 308 picked men, to keep it all going; it had more than 90 telegraph operators on Morse circuits paralleling the talking lines to see that all moved smoothly and that orders were promptly obeyed.

THE MISERY OF BACKACHE

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Meaford, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for backache, and I also had a female weakness. I felt dizzy and nervous, and was without energy. I had to force myself to do my work, and was always tired. Saw a Pinkham advertisement which induced me to take the Vegetable Compound, and my back gradually stopped aching and I felt lighter in spirits. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound with pleasure to all I meet who complain as I did."—MILDRED BROOK, Meaford, Ont.

Woman's Precious Gift

The one which she should most zealously guard is her health, but she often neglects to do so in season until some ailment peculiar to her sex has fastened itself upon her. When so affected women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a remedy that has been wonderfully successful in restoring health to suffering women.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

MOTOR BANDITS ROB STORE

Steal Truck-Load of Goods Valued at $500 from Village Store.

STRATFORD, Ont., Nov. 3—In the village of Shakespeare last night burglars entered the store of Herold Bros. and carried off goods to the value of nearly $500. They entered by a side window in the warehouse and must have had a motor truck to carry away the quantity of goods they did, including 100 pounds of tobacco, four auto inner tubes, $30 worth of canned salmon, 300 pounds of sugar and a large number of sweaters.

This is the second store to be entered inside of a week close to Stratford and indications are that this burglary was performed by the same crew who entered the shoe store at Sebringville a few days ago.

A CASSEROLE GUEST SUPPER FOR SUNDAY NIGHT

On a cool Sunday night when the air has a crisp tinge to it and a hearth fire feels good, I know of no better supper to offer "the stranger within thy gates" than the following:

Stuffed Olives
Chicken en Casserole
Piccalilli
Pimento Cheese Sandwiches
Hot Coffee Buttered Apples
Cup Cakes, Orange Icing

In this menu all the food properties necessary to health are found—carbohydrates in the sugar and rice, fats in the butter and oils, protein in the chicken and cheese, and vitamines in the fruits and pickles. It is a well-balanced little menu and a most delicious one. I believe that the two hot casserole dishes are the only part of it for which my readers may need a recipe:

Chicken en Casserole: The meat from two cooked chickens will be needed if more than four persons are to be served. Cut the meat into pieces small enough to saute (that is, to fry in butter or drippings), and put the bones in 1 quart of water to simmer with 1 garlic clove, 2 stalks of celery diced and salt and pepper to suit taste When the chicken pieces are warm and slightly brown and when the bones and water stock is reduced to one pint, arrange the fried chicken pieces in the bottom of a buttered casserole, pour the hot stock over them, eliminating the bones, and cover all with a layer of cooked rice. Add a little more of the hot stock which has been saved out. Bake in a moderate oven for 1½ hours covered at first, then without cover so that it will dry on top.

Buttered Apples: Peel ten large apples and cut them in eighths, discarding cores. Arrange these pieces in a buttered casserole, sprinkling over them 3-4 of a cup of brown sugar and adding 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract. Cover the top with small small pieces of butter, place cover on the dish, and bake in a moderate oven until the apples are tender (this will be in about 1 hour). Serve hot with the following sauce:

Cream Sauce for Buttered Apples: Cream ¼ cup of butter and add to it gradually cup of powdered sugar, stirring it smooth each time a little of the sugar is added. Flavor with ½ teaspoon of vanilla and add last ½ cup of heavy cream whipped stiff.

Although the average housekeeper cannot afford the heavy cream for whipping purposes on her table for everyday use, she nevertheless makes an effort to have it when a guest is present. For she realizes that there is nothing that gives a meal a gala appearance more readily than whipped cream—no matter how it is served.

A TREASURE HOARD

Daily in this paper different little stories, which really are all one great continued story, appear. Doings and sayings of the little inhabitants of the forest are herein recorded, making in all a very interesting, instructive volume for the wee folks of the household. It would be a good idea to let the youngsters clip each story as it appears, paste it in a big copy book and when the year ends he or she is in possession of an A 1 story book. Something to treasure for years to come.

TERRIBLE DISASTER

—A disaster, unequalled by anything in the history of the family, occurred on Sunday afternoon. The cook, without one minutes notice, was up and away because she'd suddenly decided to acquire into herself one second rate hubby. Well—company coming and no cook—no supper. But then the wife's eye was caught, and held, as she saw a copy of the Daily Intelligencer, excitedly she took it up, scanned eagerly the Efficient Housekeeping" section and found just what she needed. A Sunday casserole guest supper. Don't miss it!

A PARTY PLANNED

If you want to find out how the children of the forest plan a party turn to the page where "Tinker Bob" stories appear daily in this paper. In this story for to-day Tinker Bob plans a great party. See who will be invited and how the King of the Forest entertains his guests. Don't miss it.

PRISONERS RE-CAPTURED

Word was received by officials of the Municipal Farm at Langstaff, from the police of Brockville that they had arrested two men who were stealing a ride on a freight train, answering to the description of George Harris and Frank Sweeney, who escaped from the farm Saturday evening. They stole an overcoat at Belleville and were traced to Brockville.—Kingston Standard.

ACCIDENT AT LANSDOWNE

When the horses driven by Frank Mitchell, carter, ran away on Saturday, he was thrown from the waggon and injured. Dr. J. deL. Campbell found on examining Mr. Mitchell at his home that he had not only received a severe shaking up, but had suffered the fracture of two ribs.

IMPROVING C. P. R. YARD

Extensive repairs are being made to the C. P. R. tracks in the yards both near the city station and at points in the vicinity of the Roundhouse at Kingston. New switches are being put in, and in some places new steel is also being placed. A large gang of men are kept busy at the work.

FIRES NEAR ELGINBURG

Fire destroyed the fine barn owned by Mr. Brash, who lives just north of Elginburg, and with the barn there went up in smoke practically all his stock of implements. No cause can be assigned for the fire. A second fire started in a bush on the farm of Bert Tolls near Elginburg, and before the large number of farmers who turned out could stop its progress it had spread to the woods owned by Mr. Irwin and Mr. Graham. Considerable damage was done to trees and fences by the flames before they were conquered.

ARM MANGLED

A very painful accident happened Monday morning at Norwood to Johnny Brown, who, when oiling a part of his threshing machine, had his arm broken and badly mangled.

MODEL TRAIN

Mr. R. A. McVean, Travelling Passenger Representative Canadian National Railways, was in Belleville on Thursday arranging for the visit of the Canadian National model train which will be in Belleville on Saturday, Nov. 12, and will be open for public inspection.

CALL BOY HIT BY CAR

A G.T.R. call boy named Nicholson last evening narrowly escaped being fatally injured when he was knocked down by an auto. The lad was riding his bicycle at the entrance to the G.T R. depot premises when a car coming out struck the wheel, throwing Nicholson to the ground. Fortunately he escaped with slight injuries but the wheel was badly damaged.

A WAY OUT

If you Mrs. Smith, Brown or White or whatever you name may happen to be, are in a quandary as to something delectable to prepare for dinner or tea buy an Intelligencer, read one and you'll subscribe by the year. The "Efficient Housekeeping" feature which is published daily in this paper will show and intruct you in a way out of your dilmma by giving good, reliable recipes of dainty yet substantial dishes. Look at it now, cut them out and start a real "Home Interest" Book. Try it!

When They Are Young

The proper time to discover and remedy eyesight defects is when the boys and girls are YOUNG.

No child should be carelessly or knowingly sent out into the world handicapped by a defect that in most instances could be overcome by a pair of glasses carefully adjusted at the proper time.

Our Optometrist's methods of examination are the essence of carefulness.

CARRIED OFF SILENT "COP"

Last evening shortly before 7 o'clock a Ford sedan car was being driven up Front street, when at the junction of Victoria avenue and Front street, it picked up the silent policeman. The traffic indicator was carried upon the front of the car for some distance up Station street before it was dislodged.

FIRE AT NAPANEE

At Napanee on Thursday afternoon, a fire broke out in the public utilities pump house. The commission had just completed installing a complete new set of machinery, and workmen were in the building at the time. A broken steam pipe made it impossible for them to extinguish the blaze, which rapidly spread and completely destroyed the floors and roof. The old steam pumping plant was uninjured, and the town's water supply will not be interrupted.

A GENEROUS CONTRIBUTION

After the canvass of the congregation of Christ Church, the sum of $750 (with considerable more to hear from) was handed in at a social evening held in the Parish Hall last night. This campaign took the place of the annual bazaar and the result is most gratifying, especially when it is considered that only a few weeks ago the congregation gave a Thanksgiving offering of over $430.

PRESENTATION

The members of the Belleville Lodge No. 123, A.F. & A.M., last night tendered a reception to Most Wor. Bro. Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., of this city and Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario. A large number of the brethren were in attendance, and in addition to the Grand Master, Rt. Wor. Bro. Logan of Hamilton, Grand Secretary, was present. During the proceeding a pleasing event took place, namely, a presentation to the Grand Master. Ver. Wor. Bro. D. Barragar. on behalf of the members of the lodge presented to the Grand Master a handsome cut glass electric lamp. The gift was suitably acknowledged by the recipient. At the conclusion of the Lodge business, the brethren repaired to the banqueting hall where, after luncheon a toast list was carried out. Addresses were given by the Grand Master, Grand Secretary and a number of the brethren. These were interspersed with vocal and instrumental selections.

WAR DEBTS TO BE ADJUSTED

British Chamber of Commerce Urges That Steps Be Taken at Once.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

MARTHA—Housework and washing is only an excuse for red and ugly hands. I know a great many women who do all their own housework and yet have beautiful white hands. They use, what I use, CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM. It is the most wonderful thing in the world for preventing chapping and redness of the hands. I wouldn't be without it. Keep a bottle of CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM on your bathroom shelf and rub a little on your hands every time you have had them in water to do cleaning. It will soften and whiten them and will protect them from the wear and tear of housework. You can buy CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM at any Druggist. 40c a large bottle.

Anthracite Prices

As dealers in Anthracite we wish we could reduce prices,—but we can't.
The causes of high Anthracite prices are higher costs of Labor and higher Freight Rates—both fixed by law—not higher Profits.
Neither producers nor coal dealers are making any more money than they made when prices were lower.
The increased price ALL goes to pay higher costs of production and transportation.
How, then, can prices be reduced?

It is wise to lay in your winter's supply now rather than wait until thousands of consumers are trying to have their coal bins all filled at the same time.

CONTEND FINES DUE TO CITIES

Municipalities of Province Ask Government to Hand Over Penalties.

Toronto, Nov. 3.—Twenty-four leading Ontario municipalities were represented in a deputation which waited upon the provincial government for the purpose of requesting that police court fines be allowed to the municipalities where such fines are imposed, rather than paid over to the province as at present requested, with the understanding that there would be a return of fifty per cent. of the monies thus paid over.

Mr. S. H. Kent, city clerk of Hamilton, acted as chairman of the deputation and the government was represented by Hon. W. E. Raney, Hon. Peter Smith, Hon. Harry Mills and Deputy Attorney-General Bayley. Mr. Kent, presenting the argument for Hamilton, stated that up to 1917 the city had the use of all its own fines. In the past five years the cost of police protection in Hamilton had been $834,803 with revenue totalling $258,713. "It is unreasonable," asserted Mr. Kent, "that the government should seek to take the revenue so urgently needed." The part played by the city police forces in doing work for the provincial and federal governments was stressed and an appeal made that in every case where the municipality was at expense in police court matters they be permitted to keep any fees or fines. Where the province or dominion was responsible for prosecutor the various municipalities were willing, Mr. Kent stated that fines and fees should go to the prosecuting government.

Mr. Maguire cited Toronto's cost of administering justice as totalling one and one half million dollars the past year with revenue paid to the province of $230,000. In the hearing of the various speakers it developed that many municipalities had refused to pay the fines required by the province.

Mayor Church and Controller Maguire spoke on behalf of Toronto. The Mayor stated that he would venture to say that three mills of Toronto's tax rate would be dropped if certain provincial requirements could be rightly adjusted. A large burden was being unjustly imposed in connection with police court fines.

Hon. Mr. Raney in replying to the deputation stated that the question of the disposal of police court fines which the municipalities desired to retain was not a simple one and the responsibility was not all on the legislature. "The criminal code of Canada," stated Mr. Raney, "provides that all police court fines shall be paid to the province." It was a fact that this requirement had been generally disregarded but in 1916 the province requested that such payments be made. Subsequently it was arranged that fifty per cent. of such payments should be returned to the municipalities. Mr. Raney stated that two questions arose as a result of the deputation's visit, first, what to do so far as the past was concerned; second, what action to take regarding the future. As for the past the attorney-general held that there was only one course to pursue and that was to secure a complete accounting from every municipality in the matter under discussion as provided by statute. Regarding the future he said: "I think the time has probably come when there ought to be a complete revision of the whole system of financial relations between municipalities and the province." Mr. Raney suggested that the Ontario Municipal Association pass a resolution asking for an inquiry into such relations and gave as his opinion that such a petition would receive the government's most earnest consideration.

GRAIN PROBE TO PROCEED

Royal Commission on Grain Trade Legally Constituted, is Finding.

MAY NOW GO AHEAD

Investigation Was Halted by Previous Decision Holding Appointment Invalid.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—The Manitoba court of appeal has decided that the royal grain enquiry commission is a legally-constituted body and is entitled to proceed with its investigation of the Canadian grain business.

The court delivered judgment allowing the appeal of the commission from the decision of Mr. Justice Curran, which was to the effect that the commission's appointment was invalid.

This judgment dissolved the injunction which restrained the commission from going on with its investigation.

"MUST BE SIFTED" — MEIGHEN

Montreal, Nov. 5.—It is altogether likely that the grain investigation, which was halted by an injunction on the application of the grain companies will be proceeded with immediately now that the Manitoba court of appeal has decided that the commission is a legally constituted body. Premier Meighen asked whether the investigation would proceed immediately and intimated that this question was one for the commission to decide. He preferred not to be quoted in the matter. He has stated from the platform on different occasions, however, that the investigation, up to the time it was shut off, had produced enough evidence to asure him that it must proceed and that the whole grain business must be sifted to the bottom. It is understood that the premier is favorable to having the investigation car-

SANDWICHES OF GOLD AND GEM-STUFFED EGG

Berlin, Nov. 3.—Sandwiches of gold and eggs stuffed with diamonds constituted the delectable luncheon found by customs officers in the lunch basket of a traveller on the Lithuanian-Prussian border.

The customs men opened the basket and took out the sandwiches to look at the bottom of the basket. They were impressed by the weight of the thick sandwiches and, upon opening them, found them spread with gold coins, over which was a layer of butter.

This discovery led to an examination of the eggs, which revealed that they were filled with diamonds and pearls.

An appraisal showed that the traveller's luncheon had a value of 18,000,000 marks.

LADY SUES FOR $10,000

Defending Alleged Breach of Promise, Says He is Under 21.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—Rose Langler, who sues M. Geller for $10,000 damages for alleged breach of promise has filed her statement at Osgoode Hall, and, in turn, Geller has filed his statement of defense. The latter is short: "The defendant is under the age of twenty-one years and not liable on the alleged breach of promise of marriage herein."

The parties reside in Toronto.

"About four years ago," says the statement of claim, "the plaintiff and the defendant becamed enamored of each other, and about three years ago the defendant and plaintiff agreed to marry one another; and subsequently the defendant gave the plaintiff an engagement ring as a token and earnestness of the said engagement and his affection for her.

"Following thereupon, the defendant kept company with the plaintiff continually, until about the end of June, 1921, his attention to the plaintiff at all times being unceasing and accompanied always by protestations of love and affection for her and continued promises to marry the plaintiff as soon as possible.

"The defendant also, during the said period, presented the plaintiff with various gifts from time to time in accordance with the usual custom in that respect between engaged persons.

"On the 18th of June, 1921, the defendant and plaintiff had and celebrated a public engagement, in accordance with the Jewish custom in that behalf.

"The plaintiff was always ready and willing to marry the defendant, but, toward the end of June, 1921, the defendant, without any previous notice of any kind to the plaintiff, and without any lawful reason or excuse whatever, broke his engagement and promise to marry her, and told the plaintiff that he was going to leave her and would never come back to her again.

"Following thereupon, the defendant left the plaintiff and broke the engagement with her.

"In consequence of the breach aforesaid, the plaintiff has lost the said marriage and the benefits therefrom, and has been greatly injured in her health, feelings and affections as a result of the conduct of the defendant."

POPPY PROFITS FOR EX-SOLDIERS

Worthy Local Object Will Benefit by Poppy Day Sales.

NOT COMMON TAG-DAY

Similar Campaigns Are Being Conducted by British and American Legions.

Although the committee in charge of the local Poppy Day Campaign have endeavored to make clear the character and purpose of the collection there still exists in some quarters some misapprehension, the most frequent form of which is that all the proceeds are being sent to France. This is entirely erroneous. The poppies are made of mercerized cotton and silk by women and children in the devastated districts of France and are sold by the Children's League of Paris at a nominal cost price to patriotic organizations in Britain, Canada and the United States for re-sale on Poppy Day. The difference between the cost price and the offerings of the public goes to the organizations undertaking the campaign, and the collection is for the benefit of the Disabled Soldiers' Employment Association which hopes to secure a fund sufficient to guarantee that no incapacitated soldier need suffer hardship in the course of the coming winter. As every poppy sold represents an obligation, a minimum price is fixed. Thus, the cotton poppies are sold at 10 cents and the silk at 25 cents, although it is expected that most persons will be more generous in their offerings, as the surplus goes entirely to the local object. How reasonable are both the cost price and the rate fixed for re-sale is shown by the statement of a manufacturer of millinery supplies, who said that the silk poppies bought by the committee here at six for a dollar and re-sold for a minimum of 25 cents each could not be purchased commercially for less than $3 per dozen.

THANKSGIVING DAY MESSAGE OF PREMIER

Montreal, Que., Nov. 5.—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister of Canada, has given out the following Thanksgiving Day message.

"Thanksgiving Day has now been fixed so that it falls in the week in which the anniversary of the Armistice occurs. This gives us opportunity to acknowledge our manifold national blessings, and will recall the cessation of the great struggle and our obligations to those who strove to secure the blessings of peace. To the conference at Washington our minds at this time will turn with thankfulness that the nations are to meet in a spirit of concord to seek the removal of causes and means of dispute and conflict."

ASSASSIN WAS DEMENTED YOUTH

Murder of Japanese Premier May Not Have Been Political Crime.

Tokio, Nov. 5.—Cablegrams expressing horror over the assassination of Premier Hara poured into the Capital today from the Capitals of virtually all nations. Attack on the Premier was made by a demented youth, aged nineteen and there is no definite knowledge as yet that it had its genesis in political rancor which actuated bitter assaults upon Mr. Hara and his government in recent past.

ECONOMIC POSITION MUCH IMPROVED

Only Industrial Enterprises of State Importance Nationalized.

RIGA, Nov. 5.—The economic position of the Far Eastern Republic with headquarters in Chita has much improved lately, affirms A. T. Krasnotchekoff, formerly a Chicago lawyer and until recently premier of that republic.

Interviewed in Moscow by the newspaper, "Novy Put" he said:

"Government undertakings are approaching the level of pre-war production. The republic has nationalized only industrial enterprises of state importance or owned by enemies. Private external and internal trading is legalized. Finance is based on the free circulation of gold and silver rubles, while 1,000 paper rubles equal 10 copeks, gold. (A copek normally was 1-100 of a ruble).

"At the head of the Foreign, War and Home Departments are Communists. A powerful revolutionary army safeguards the republic's independence assisted by red guerilla troops, which combined, constitute a considerable force.

"The increasing number of applications made for gold and lumber concessions indicate the favorable opinion entertained abroad of our resources Many proposals have also been received from Japanese capitalists seeking concessions, but the republic is disinclined to entertain them until its territory is cleared of Japanese troops."

HEAR WOLVES HOWLING NEAR NORTH BAY

North Bay, Nov. 3.—With the approach of fall and the cold weather, wolves are again beginning to make themselves heard in the district, and, while no damage has yet been reported from their ravages, their nightly howling is to be heard in the lumber camps across Lake Nipissing, near the mouth of the French River. A lone wolf was recently bagged half a mile from the town's reservoir at Trout Lake.

'KILLERS' BEHIND MAIL ROBBERY

International Gunmen Believed to Have Inspired Mail-Truck Hold-up.

TWO ARRESTED.

Suspects Alleged to Be Members of Secret Criminal Society.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The hand of the Camorra, stretching across the Atlantic to guide gangs of international gunmen in this country, was today believed to be behind the $2,000,000 mail truck hold-up here October 24.

Two men were today locked up in Jersey City, suspected of connection with the robbery. They are Italians, with criminal records.

The audacity and thoroughness with which the robbery was carried out by four men, who threw a sack over the truck-driver's head and helped themselves to five sacks of registered mail and the fact that the suspects are alleged to be members of a secret society here, and to have criminal records led to the belief that the same agencies controlling the "Good Killers" and the warring boot-legging factions, might be higher up in this second largest of American mail robberies.

Michael Arbesi, alias Rafaele Derosa and Frank Calabrese, suspected of being tools of the Camorra, were held in $5,000 each. They were captured by a mounted policeman, who leaped to the running board of the truck in which they were speeding through Jersey City and covered them with a revolver, forcing their chauffeur to stop. The police declined to reveal their exact connection with the mail hold-up.

A widespread investigation has been ordered from Washington.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS ARRESTS

New York, Nov. 3.—Mystery today enveloped the arrest of two men in connection with the recent mail truck robbery in which automobile bandits escaped with securities and currency now believed to total $2,000,000.

Public Safety Commissioner Bentley of Jersey City, said the men had been arrested in connection with the mail hold-up and were being held for the Federal authorities. W. E. Cochran, chief of the post office inspectors working on the case, denied, however, that the men were Federal prisoners.

Th two, known to Jersey City police as Michael Arbesi, alias Rafaelo Derosa and Frank Calabrese, both of Hoboken were held in $5,000 bail as suspicious persons.

NO ROOM AT THE INN

Boston, Nov. 4.—Urbain Ledoux, who staged "auctions of shorn lambs of labor" on Boston Common, led 38 followers in their rain-soaked raiment into the Copley-Plaza and Toursine Hotels last night "in search of shelter." From the church of the unemployed, which he ordered closed yesterday, "until Boston's sense of God is reawakened," the straggling group marched behind Ledoux into the lobbies of the hotels. Ledoux informed the clerks that he bore "16 credentials," which he said were excerpts from the Bible. Among these was one from Matthew: "I was a stranger and ye took me in."

"There are 38 hungry and homeless men," he said. "We are a Christian people and this is a Christian hotel, and so we have come to you and we ask that you give shelter to these men who are without work, through no fault of their own."

The hotel clerks replied there were no vacant rooms. Ledoux then took the men to the Salvation Army lodging house, where they were given shelter.

BANDITS BLOW SAFE OPEN

Steal Two Thousand Dollars From General Store and Post Office.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

Swift Current, Sask., Nov. 5.—Bandits blew open the safe of the general store and post office at Blumenhof, Thursday and escaped with two thousand dollars.

STEEL CARS BEING SHIPPED TO RUSSIA

First Cargo of Tank Cars Now Being Loaded on Ship.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—Approximately a mile of harbor tracks were occupied by the first cargo to leave this country for Soviet Russia. The cargo consists of specially constructed steel cars made by the Canada Foundry Company to the specifications of the Soviet Government.

The first consignment reached the city on flat cars, the upper body of the Russian cars being detached from the trucks for loading purposes. The new cars are designed for the oil traffic and are expected to help considerably in the business ventures of the Soviets.

The Canadian Government Merchant Marine have the freighting of the cars from Montreal to Novorissk, a Black Sea port, and share with the Canadian Car and Foundry Company in the profit end of a highly lucrative and safe contract. It is stated that the foundry company and the steamship company are both paid cash in advance before the cars leave Canada. There are 500 cars all told, built at a cost of $2,000,000.

Loading commenced on two Government ships, the Canadian Seigneur at section 42 and the Canadian Ranger at shed 27. These freighters will be followed by the new Canadian Challenger but it was impossible to ascertain how many more vessels will be required to carry such an unwieldy cargo.

AN AWKWARD CARGO

Estimates differed very much at section 42 as to how many of the cars with their trucks could be loaded on the Canadian Seigneur. Even the most experienced stevedores differed in their calculations. The trouble with the Russian cars, which are cylindrical in shape is due to a funnel which is attached to the top and makes the car an awkward thing to stow away. Incidentally the cars are 27 feet 6 inches long and each weighs 7 tons. The truck which will be loaded separately, weighs 6 tons. The capacity of the cars is 1,939 cubic feet.

Not until the Seigneur and Ranger are fully loaded will it be known how large the Government fleet will be to transport the cars to Russia. The original port for this order was Petrograd but the Soviets have altered it to a Black Sea town which will be easier of access and comparatively free from drifting mines. The waters around Petrograd are still considered a danger zone.

Government steamship officials have nothing to say as to the amount of prepaid freight, but smilingly hint that it is quite satisfactory. The loading of the Canadian Seignuer and Canadian Ranger is being rushed. The C.G.M.M. have not reqiustioned the use of the big harbor crane and intend loading the cars with their own loading equipment and C.G.M.M. stevedoring gangs.

BLUE SKY BILL FEASIBLE

Hon. Mr. Raney Gets Interim Report on Proposed Legislation.

A SUCCESS IN U. S.

Type Approved is Similar to Bill Abandoned Several Years Ago.

Some time ago Hon. W. E. Raney asked A. H. O'Brien, a Toronto barrister, to report upon the advisability of "blue sky" legislation for Ontario. Mr. O'Brien handed in to the Attorney-General an interim report which favors legislation of the type of the bill introduced into the House two or three sessions ago by Hon. I. B. Lucas, but withdrawn in the face of strong protest from the mining interests of the North County, as well as a realization of some serious objections to the measure from the point of view of the Government.

Mr. O'Brien, however, points out that, before even attempting to draft a bill, there should be an examination of existing types of legislation from a practical standpoint. In the inquiries he has made since he began to study the matter at Mr. Raney's request, he found the choice resting chiefly between two types of legislation, the one known as the "Fraud Act," adopted in three American States, and the wilder type of "blue sky" legislation, adopted in some forty States and in three Canadian Provinces. The latter type, which was followed in the bill brought down by Mr. Lucas, practically involves approval by the Province of all stock issues and the issuing of a certificate before stock can be offered for sale. The other provides authority for the Attorney-General to interfere to prevent the sale of stock to the public in cases where it is reported that any fraud or false pretense is being employed in the issue or sale.

Mr. O'Brien's inquiries showed opinion favorable to the wider measure in the State and Provinces where it had been given a trial, while the opinion in regard to the "Fraud Act" seems to be that it is inadequate, since by the time complaint is made the stock has generally been sold out and the harm done. Mr. O'Brien cites the following difficulties to be solved:

1 To frame a law which will check speculative and fraudulent companies and yet not hinder legitimate business.

2. To meet the claim of the mining interests that such a law will retard the development of the Northern mining district.

3. That notwithstanding any law, the Province will be invaded by letters and circulars of such companies sent by mail, and by newspapers containing their advertisements.

4. The question of registering and granting certificates to companies.

5. The licensing of agents.

6. What kind of securities should be exempt from the Act.

All the objections with the exception of the third, must be reasonably met by legislation, if possible," he says.

"The third difficulty (as to the mail and newspapers) is at present a subsisting one; but I may be prepared, later, to make some suggestions regarding it."

OTTAWA IN GRIP OF BLIZZARD

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—Blizzardly weather descended on Ottawa last night, delaying trains, affecting long distance telephone and telegraph communication and causing minor accidents in city streets.

WEEDS!

Outlawed Plants Can Be Put to Many Uses.

Weeds by the wayside, and in the garden, are looked upon by the average person as part of a curse we are compelled to accept, their utility and commercial value being considered practically nil.

That is due to their value not being recognized. The extraordinary height to which vegetable and cereal cultivation has been carried, the food values secured by years of selection, have tended to eclipse the common wayside growth.

It may be that our forefathers' better knowledge of these things was a matter of sheer necessity. The values of many of our wayside weeds are not only unknown to-day, but are even condemned as useless.

It will surprise our readers to learn that many of these so-called useless weeds are systematically gathered in their seasons, and have a distinct commercial value.

Manufacturing chemists and herbalists are ready buyers of certain varieties, but it is chiefly in the interests of the aviculturist that the harvesting of weeds is done.

Captive bird life would be scarcely possible apart from this annual harvest of weeds, secured from all sorts of nooks and crannies.

Search for these weed seeds is carried on in old quarries, up railway embankments, around rubbish-heaps, over stone dykes, and through hedgerows. These places all yield a goodly store for the feathered songsters of the home.

The secret of a successful weed harvest is to gather only on a dry day, spreading everything out in the sun later on.

For finches no better food could be secured than knapweed, better known as hardheads—they are easily recognized by their pink flowers. In some ways they resemble thistles, but have no fagging powers.

The ordinary thistles, whether purple headed or yellow flowered, contain rich food properties, and are devoured with great relish by cage birds. These seeds act as a delightful tonic when the feathered friend is run down.

After moulting a handful of these heads will add vigor and bloom to the new plumage.

The dandelion occupies a high place among profitable weeds. Whether as tender shoots, flowers, seed heads, or roots in all stages, they command a ready sale. It is even a cultivated weed which finds its way into the catalogue of certain seed merchants.

It possesses strong digestive properties, and has a marked effect upon a sluggish liver. Dandelion wine or tea used to be regularly made by country people for its medicinal value. Extract of taraxicum is obtained from it, and is extensively used in the manufacturing of digestive mixtures and coffee.

All lovers of bird life should make a point of securing a supply of these valuable seeds before winter sets in.

Hardheads, rats' tails, teazle, and thistles can all be dried in the sun, and make a delightful change of diet for the home songster.

Certain birds are very fond of rowans, and these, if picked and stored in sand, will keep fresh well over Christmas.

Wild oats, cats' ear, goatsbeard, hawkweed can be added to the collection, each proving an acceptable natural food. Each of these stalks will be gone over minutely by the birds until not a seed is left.

The common rats' tail grows on every roadside and in almost any neglected piece of ground. The long stalk is laden with hundreds of little seeds, and in appearance is not unlike a thin millet spray.

These stalks, whether in the great state of early summer or the ripe purple of autumn, form a perfectly natural food relished by all captured birds.

Poppyheads, from which maw seed is obtained, is highly prized as a pick-me-up for birds, and provides a useful drug in chemistry. The yellow-flowered charlock, the tiny white-flowered shepherd's purse, and the wild mustard play an important part in the world of vegetation.

Even the despised stinging nettle, red sorrel, and common dock yield their quota of seed pods to the world's granary.

British Trade Marks.

In Canada the word sterling, when stamped on silver, means simply that the manufacturer declares the article to be made of silver eleven-twelfths fine; but the British marks, arranged in column, give a sort of history of the article. Usually the first mark that shows where the article was made—for London, a leopard's head; for Birmingham, an anchor; and for Sheffield, famous for its silver, a crown. Dublin has the Irish harp, and Chester uses the city arms. The third mark, a lion, indicates the standard of fineness. The date mark, a letter, usually comes last. Since each city uses a different system for indicating the year when the article was made, it is necessary to know the "plate" of the town in order to find the date of a particular piece.

Want the Doukhobors.

Simultaneously with the opening in Moscow of the central office of the new Russian State Bank, branches will be established at Petrograd, Kazan, Kharkov, Rostov and Novo Nikolsievsk. Mr. Schienemann, who signed the Russia-German trade agreement on behalf of Russia, will be president of the bank. The official quotation on the dollar is 62,000 rubles, but some speculators give as high as 92,000.

The Commissariat of Agriculture has published an appeal to Russian Agrarians abroad to return to the country, offering them favorable terms to colonize agricultural communes. The Doukhobors of Canada also are invited to return.

Cash registers are to be had fitted with phonographs, which announce the figures of every purchase.

SHIPWRECK IN NEW PICTURE

Cecil B. DeMille, famous for his long string of motion picture successes, is declared to have excelled all previous efforts in "Male and Female," his new Paramount-Artcraft picture which is being exhibited at Griffin's to-night for the last time.

The story was adapted for the screen by Jeanie McPherson from Sir James M. Barrie's great play, "The Admirable Crichton." No effort was spared by Mr. DeMille to make it a faithful reproduction in every respect.

The story centers around Crichton, the butler in an English lord's family. He is extremely intelligent, and when the lord's yachting party is wrecked on a tropical island, Crichton takes command. After the party is rescued and returns to England, Crichton is forgotten by all but the lord's daughter, who has fallen in love with him. Thomas Meighen, Gloria Swanson, Lila Lee, Bebe Daniels, Theodore Roberts and other prominent players are in the cast.

A two-reel Christy comedy, Kineto Review and Fox News are also being exhibited on the same program.

FLORENCE ROBERTS HERE MONDAY IN STORY OF INTEREST TO EVERY WOMAN

A feature photoplay of unusual interest to every woman in Belleville is the exhibition at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday of "No Woman Knows," the amazing story of "Fanny Herself" by Edna Ferber. It is a picture that will make every woman think because it is true to life. The story is told in scenes of compact action which scores because of its dramatic quality.

A two-reel comedy, the latest Snapshots, showing famous screen stars at work and play will also be exhibited on the same program.

"HULLO CANADA" HERE NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Those who have been looking forward to the local engagement of Albert de Courville's latest London revue, "Hullo Canada" will be pleased to know that this attraction will be the offering at Griffin's Opera House next Friday night, November 11th, for one night only.

Seventy people, including the famous Beauty Chorus from the Gaiety Theatre, London, will comprise the organization. For his stars, Mr. de Courville has brought over Harry Tate, the best known and most popular comedian in the world today, perhaps, and Shirley Kellogg, a lovely and brilliant comedienne who is almost as widely known and equally as popular.

Entirely new scenery, properties and sets, have been specially built for this Canadian tour. The new revue which will be called "Hullo Canada" will include the principal hits from Mr. de Courville's previous great London successes, as well as much new material.

The undertaking is unique of its kind, and quite the biggest thing ever yet attempted between the integral parts of the British or any other Empire. Upon its reception throughout Canada depends the success or failure of the scheme to link the Empire by theatrical entertainment bonds.

Stern Reminders of Rheumatism

The Trouble Must be Treated Through the Blood

Every rheumatic sufferer should realize that rheumatism is rooted in the blood and that to get rid it must be treated throught the blood. The old belief that rheumatism was caused by cold, damp weather, is now exploded. Such weather conditions may start the pains, but it is not the cause. Liniments and outward applications may give temporary relief, but that is all they can do because they do not reach its sources in the blood. The sufferer from rheumatism who experiments with outward applications is only wasting time and money in depending upon such treatment; the trouble still remains, and it is all the time becoming more firmly rooted. Treat this disease through the blood and you will soon find relief. Dr. William's Pink Pills act directly on impure, weak blood; they purify and strengthen it, and so act on the cause of the rheumatism.

Mrs P. J. McPherson R.R. No. 5 Cardigan, P.E.I., says: "About three years ago I was attacked with rheumatism. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and soon the trouble disappeared and I am in better health than before. I also know of an old lady acquaintance who was badly crippled with rheumatism in her arms and legs, and who suffered very much. She, too took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and is now able to do her housework. I tell you this in the hope it may be of benefit to some other sufferer."

You can procure Dr. Williams' Pink pills through any dealer in medicine or they will be sent you by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

10 Years of Eczema —A Sample Cured Her
Are you reading the weekly Canadian letters, telling stories of suffering from skin diseases and how cure was effected?
Here is part of a letter from Mrs. Henry Harvey, Black Lake, Que. Write her if you desire.
"Ten years of eczema on the face. Treated unavailingly by doctors. A sample alone of D. D. D. cured me, etc."
The proof of the pudding is in the eating. When a prescription for skin disease has letters of cure and endorsement from nearly every city and town in the Dominion, surely it is enough to convince the most skeptical.
Belief from itching torment is immediate. Just try one bottle of D. D. D. today on our positive guarantee. $1.00 a bottle. Try D. D. D. Soap, too.

MIDGETS ALL TOGETHER

The Lindsay Midgets will be held together, intact, for another season, if the plans of the promoters materialize. All the boys still fit in under the O. H. A. age rule and are all anxious to be in the game once more. A number of excellent subs will be added to the list this year. These boys have worked up from the juvenile teams and will make excellent material for future use.—Lindsay Post.

FOOTBALL

Belleville Tigers vs Grand Trunks

These teams will meet on the Exhibition Grounds on Monday afternoon at 2 p.m. for the City Championship and The Merchants Football Cup. There is no doubt this will be the best match of the season, and a hard game with clever combination is assured. Considerable interest is being taken in the game and the merits of both teams are being discussed by their rooters. Here are some facts:

Both teams are undefeated in the City League. Each one defeated the O. S. D. by the same score of 3-0, and both teams were defeated by outside teams by again the same score of 3-0, Trenton winning from the Tigers, and Campbellford did the trick against the G.T.R. Thompson, goalie for the Tigers, has yet to be beaten while Gorman of the Trunks allowed only one to get past him. So both teams are evenly matched and the crowd will have to pick the winner and see this game.

Maker, captain of the Tigers, is a clever right inside forward and has scored most of the club goals. While the Trunks claim, Robinson the best centre half in the League and will be opposing Maker all the time, so both captains will have some rare struggles Charlie Summers, the crack defense man of the Trunks has had the misfortune to be injured and will not be able to play.

The Trunks will line up the following: Goal—Gorman; Backs—Taylor and Griffin; Halves—Gill and Robinson; Captain—Grant; Forwards—Hickin, Binney, Harvey, Knott and Lancaster.

Now, you sports, roll up on Monday and see this game. Both teams will be working hard all the time to bring the cup home.

Y.M.C.A. BOWLING

No startling scores were made in last night's game between the Bowlers and K. of C. at the "Y" Alleys. Bowlers had a shade on their opponents and headed all three strings and finished the game 190 points ahead of the K. of C. team.

The game scheduled for to-night between the Teachers and Shop Team will not be played as there will be a number of players of both teams away for the holiday.

WRECKER OF TRAINS GIVEN LIFE TERM

Henry W. Gates Confessed to Causing G.T.R. Accident in Michigan.

Lapeer, Mich., Nov. 4.—Henry W. Gates, 59, of Huntingdon, Ind., who confessed Monday that he wrecked a fast Grand Trunk train near here last Friday night, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court here to-day and was sentenced to life imprisonment, in the Michigan penitentiary at Jackson.

Gates admitted he loosened a rail, causing the train to plunge into a ditch. Three persons were injured and scores of others endangered. He also admitted to officers, the latter state, that he had derailed trains at Muncie, Ind., and Dearborn, Mich., within the last year and had attempted to wreck a train at Montrose, Mich.

Gates attributed his desire to wreck trains to the results of a sunstroke suffered several years ago. He was arrested the day following the wreck here, after being seen in the vicinity of the derailment.

Thee first report of the train accident near Lapeer stated that a train had crashed through a bridge, but investigation showed that the derailment was due solely to the work of a train wrecker.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Scope of Work

Many citizens think that the principal work of the Social Worker and Indigent Committee is only to furnish material relief, such as groceries fuel, meat, milk, and various other things of that kind. As a matter of fact this is the smallest part of our work, and the easiest to handle. We do furnish material relief but in addition, we—

1.—Place old people in the Belleville Home for the Aged.

2.—Place sick people in the Belleville Hospital.

3.—Place epileptics in the Woodstock Epileptic Hospital.

4.—Place the mentally diseased in the Rockwood Sanitarium, Kingston.

5.—Find out the ability to pay or otherwise of Public Ward patients admitted to our Hospital.

6.—Find out the ability to pay or otherwise of Public Ward patients of his municipality admitted to out-of-town institutions.

7.—Widows with children are directed to the Mothers' Allowance Board through our office.

8.—We settle family quarrels by bringing husbands and wives together, and parents and children together.

9.—With the assistance of the Police Department we compel recreant husbands to support their wives and children.

10.—We secure legal aid from lawyers for those unable to pay for this service.

11.—We give general advice on many questions not needing a lawyer's expert advice.

12.—We arrange for the deportation of undesirable citizens.

13.—We send back to their homes in other cities, the aged and sick people who are stranded here.

14.—We investigate cases for other local organizations.

15.—We investigate cases for societies in other cities.

16.—We direct the unemployed to the Employment Bureau and often secure employment for them ourselves.

17—We place applicants in touch with the social agencies in our city, best able to give them the specialized service they require.

18.—We try to co-operate with all other organizations and societies in the city in order to prevent overlapping of time and effort.

19.—We secure material help for many of our clients from relatives, employers, and other sources.

20.—We help both men and women who have been improvident, immoral, or dissolute, to make a fresh start and live better lives.

These are some of the things we do that take a big part of our time, and that cannot be shown in dollars and cents, or in statistics.

The Indigent Committee is the recognized civic organization for the purpose of rendering material relief and general service. It is our aim to establish a Confidential Exchange for the benefit of all benevolent societies as well as our own. We find that at various times much confusion, misunderstanding and overlapping has been the result of private citizens giving relief without reporting the case to us. We thoroughly appreciate your interest and sympathy and we need your assistance but you will work more effectively if you will co-operate with us. Therefore if a relief case is drawn to your attention will you kindly communicate with us in order to find whether or not the family is already on our records?

Please communicate with Miss Lynch, Chairman of the Indigent Committee, Telephone No. 585 or Miss Smith, Social Worker, Telephone 1047.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

MYRA H. SMITH
Social Worker.

T. & N. O. CONDUCTOR QUITS POLITICS

North Bay, Nov. 3.—E. E. Sheppard, Government candidate in Timiskaming, says he has retired from the fight.

He said that conditions which had developed since the convention at Engleheart some weeks ago, when he was nominated, and which were "entirely unforeseen" then, had compelled him to resign.

Mr. Sheppard is a conductor on the T. & N. O. Railway, and his withdrawal from the contest in Timiskaming directly follows the recent edict of the Provincial Government requiring civil servants of the Province to take no active part in political affairs.

Another convention will be called immediatedy, and it is likely the nomination will bee offered then to A. J. Kennedy, a prominent farmer who lives about four miles from New Liskeard.

United States will not enter permanent alliance with Britain and France.

EAT MORE CHEESE.

California raisin growers increased the sale of their raisins by three hundred per cent., and the price from less than a cent a pound to seven cents, by improving the quality and manner of marketing and putting on an immense advertising campaign in the daily newspapers from coast to coast. A similar campaign to "Eat More Cheese" would add millions to Canada's cheese trade. Canadian cheese is the finest in the world and is eagerly sought in all quarters of the globe by particular people who know a good thing when they taste it. Canadians do not eat half enough cheese for their own good and for their country's good. Cheese is good for the health, is more nutritious than most other foods and cheaper as an article of daily diet. Eat more cheese is a good slogan. Let's go to it!

MUCH TO BE THANKFUL FOR.

Thanksgiving Day, Monday. What have we to be thankful for? A whole lot—health, friends, plenty to eat, a comfortable place to sleep, wife, husband, mother, father, brother, sister and a whole lot of other things not enjoyed by everybody. If we don't feel thankful our thoughts should be directed to the trouble belts of Europe and Asia, Bolshevik-cursed Russia, famine-scourged China, shattered France, tattered Belgium, overtaxed England, blood-soaked Ireland, and all the places where trouble reigns supreme and any traces of happiness are tinged with dread or anxiety. Have we anything to be thankful for in this prosperous Canada? Just count the blessings—one by one—and it will take most of us all day Monday to get our counting done without an adding machine.

TWO SIDES TO THE MEAT QUESTION.

Like almost every other question in dispute there are two sides to the meat question. The city meat merchant is a specialist whose patronage depends largely upon quality and service. He is in the same place tomorrow and the day after and then again the day after, and he pays heavy taxes to help provide pavements, police protection, fire protection, and all the many privileges enjoyed by the meat eaters of Belleville. One enterprising meat merchant bought a quantity of meat on the market and displayed it in his store alongside of some choice cuts of his own and with large printed cards called attention to the difference in his favor. In passing it might be said that meat merchants who advertise in the daily paper and tell the people how good their meat is and how reasonable in price for guaranteed quality meat handled by experts from the feeding to the killing and cutting up thereof, have no trouble selling all the meat they can hand out.

CRISP COMMENT

This is the last day of opportunity to register in order to have a vote at the Dominion election. After nine o'clock to-night the opportunity will have passed. No one should assume that his or her name is on the voters' list, it probably is not, and no amount of argument on election day can put it there if it is missing. The most important duty of the citizen is to protect and exercise his or her franchise. Protect it by registering.

Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture, says that the Ontario government's rural credits scheme will help the bankers, who need not be afraid of its operation encroaching upon their preserves. May be so, but many bankers have their doubts of the wisdom or practicability of the scheme which they think a most dangerous experiment.

The high cost of living gets another smack from the Dominion government in offering fresh fish for sale at the Belleville hatcheries. White fish and other finny prizes from the Bay of Quinte can be bought now at the hatchery at the cost of catching with profit eliminated. People can buy their winter's supply and thus cut down their food bills.

"Young Mr. King" makes the Montreal Star laugh. "If the public is neglecting the election for football it is losing a lot of fun, says the Star, which intimates that Mackenzie King is being deliberately sacrificed upon the North York altar to make a Quebec picnic and pave the way for a French-Canadian national leader. Otherwise a "safe" riding would have been provided for him, according to the Star.

Ottawa minister preaches about "'Sleeping in Church." Rev. Henry Ward Beecher used to suggest that, when members of his congregation fell asleep in church, it was time to wake up the minister, says the Ottawa Journal. But we have known people go to sleep while watching an exciting moving picture. Fact is that in too few of both our churches and theatres is the ventilation adequate.

OFFENDER AND HIS VICTIM

Toronto Star

Some of these young burglars who, in a panic of fear, commit murder when resisted, are after being arrested regarded more with regret than reprobation by some people.

'They are so young", it is said. They are, as a rule, no younger than thousands like them who fought and fell like men in the war. They are not so young as the orphans they make by the crime they commit.

"It is one thing," says Rudyard Kipling, "to see the assassin pose before the tribunal, and quite another to see the body of the victim, which does not pose."

When fences the fold where the sheep are fed,
When the stems of the purple fireweed fail,
And the bracken, losing its russet red
Takes the livid hue of the clouds o'er head,
When the fear of the Ghost from the White North grows
In sullen pines where the wolves are bred—
In Gold and in Crimson the maple glows!

When under the stars on an unseen trail
The hosts of the clamorous fowl have sped;
When the old folks dies and the young folks ail,
And the homing cattle by instinct led
Come wandering down to the rancher's stead!
When the Old Year draws to a dreary close,
And the hearts of men are oppressed by dread—

When the rain storms thresh with pitiless flail
The last faint flowers in the garden bed,

That the feet of its dying are round its dead—

The shock was too great. The electrician fainted.—Tit-Bits.

HE STOLE A RIDE.

But Rose to Honored Position as Railroad Employer.

The railways claim the loss of millions annually in unpaid fares from the gentry who consider the blind baggage or the open box car preferable to the day coach. The non-paying guests of the common carriers say that a brake-beam is as good for sight-seeing as an observation coach. They prefer cheating the company from the bumpers to being cheated by the company in the diner.

Not all such travelers are confirmed hoboes. Some are college students or farmers' sons seeing the continent on a summer holiday. One York County farmer lad tells of getting to sunny Southern California and return by the box car route without paying a penny. Once he was one of over fifty to drop off a freight in a wreck. The conductor, accepting the situation, rounded them all up and announced: "Gentlemen, knights of the road, we've given you a free ride; we're in trouble; help us out."' And they did. As a wrecking crew they were excellent. When the track was clear, the train crew turned the blind eye while all hopped aboard and continued their journey.

But whoever heard of a box car expert repaying the company with a lifetime of service? The exception is now discovered. Frank P. Mullen, formerly of Joyceville, Ont., who tells the Gananoque Reporter that he left home 43 years ago in a box car. He has since risen to become general superintendent of construction on one of the roads which involuntarily took him West. He came home in an automobile, scorning even the de luxe trains of his own Great Northern Railway.

All of which may present his comrades of the free rail ride with the motto: "Go and do thou likewise! if you cannot pay now, give the nation and the railways your best services."

Seaweed as a Food.

Scientists have been investigating the possibilities of seaweeds as producers of materials useful for food and other purposes.

The first experiments were made with the common "Irish moss," which is plentifully found along the coast of Nova Scotia. It yields a gelatinous substance which has long been in use for the sizing of paper and cloth, in the manufacture of soaps, paints, dyes and hair ointments, and in the preparation of certain medicines and foods.

It is found that the gelatine derived from this kind of seaweed serves admirably as a medium in which to pack fish that are otherwise too soft to "stand up" in cans. Gelatinous product called "agar-agar," derived from certain red seaweeds, which is used in making foods and confections. Also it is the best-known substance on which to grow "cultures" of bacteria, and medical laboratories and hospitals could hardly get along without supplies of it.

Recent experiments have proved that two species of seaweeds common on our Pacific coast yield agar-agar equal or superior to the imported article. Before long, therefore, we ought to be able to produce for ourselves all of it that we need.

It is found that only the red seaweeds yield gelatinous products useful for food or other purposes such as those above mentioned. They are not obtainable from the green species.

From the brown seaweeds is derived a substance called "aligin," which may, it is thought, become commercially important in the preparation of waterproof fabrics.

In the Good Old Days.

Down across the creek there were a hundred acres of bottom land that always laughed a harvest. Yet the market for surplus products was distant, so luxury and leisure were out of the question. And yet work wasn't drudgery.

Woods, hills, running streams, the open road, the sawmill and the gristmill, the path across the meadow—the miracle of the seasons, the sugar bush, the freshet that carried away the bridge, the first spring flowers peeping from the snow on the south side of rotting logs, the trees bursting into leaf, the hills white with blossoms of wild cherry and hawthorn, the Saturday afternoon when the boys could fish, the old swimming hole, the bathing of the little ones in the creek, the growing crops in the bottom land, bee trees and wild honey, coon hunts by moonlight, the track of deer down by the salt-lick, bears in the green corn, harvet time, hog-killing days, frost upon the pumpkin and fodder in the shock, wild turkeys in the clearing, revival meetings, spelling bees, debates in the log schoolhouse, barn raisings, dances in the new barn, quilting bees, colts to break, apple butter, soft soap, pickled pig's feet, smoked hams, side meat, shelled walnuts, coon skins on the barn door, winter and first fall of snow, boots to grease, harness to mend, back logs, hickory nuts, cider, a few books and all the other enchanting things that a country life, not too isolated, brings to every one of us who was born where the rain makes musical patter on the roof. Are any of these applicable to your memories of the days you spent on the farm? asks The Teller, a house organ of the Sterling Bank.

Antiquity of Asbestos.

The silky fibre derived from certain rocks which we call asbestos was familiar to the ancient Greeks and Romans, and was commonly used by them to make fireproof rope, and fireproof cloth. These are the uses to which asbestos is chiefly put at the present time. It is now spun so fine that a pound of asbestos will yield two-thirds of a mile of thread. To "wash" a piece of asbestos cloth one has only to put it into fire. That cleans it. Canada's asbestos mines are very valuable.

Better Light

M.L.—I see that the hydro electric employees are changing poles from the north to the south side of Victoria Avenue, between Front and Pinnacle, the object of which is to have that portion of the thoroughfare better lighted. I am informed that it is the intention of the company to place more powerful lights upon the new line which will be much appreciated by the travelling public as that piece of the avenue was by no means lighted in the manner that it should be. Other portions of the city it is to be hoped, will be similarly improved.

Cat Came Back

W.B.—I see that the old saying "The Cat Came Back" was a truism in the case of a resident in West Belleville. Some three months ago a black partially Persian cat was donated to a relative who resides in the Township of Thurlow some three miles from the city. Pussy evidently desired to return to her former home, and wended her way back to the bright lights of the city. On Friday morning the inmates of the city household were awakened by the cat making efforts to gain admittance and when admitted made itself at home.

Displaying Colors

R.T.—I see that the Queen's University rugby team of Kingston, which journeyed from the Limestone city to the Queen City by means of autos, passed through Belleville on Friday afternoon. The cars used were lavishly decorated with the college colors and attracted the attention of pedestrians. The Queen's boys were en route to play a deciding game with Varsity and were bubbling over with confidence as to the result of the game.

THE JOURNEY.

It's a wild night for a soul to go.
Stars shine, but winds blow,
And the flood tides flow.

It's a long road to the nearest star
Where the band of well-beloved are,
But I shall reach it, near or far.

A wild night for a naked soul
To cast aside the broken bowl
And start for the distant goal.

A wild night and a lonely way,
And Death is terrible, they say,
Yet methinks I like his looks today.

And glad I'll lay my garments by
And fling me forth to the windy sky
When Death rides by.

A long road to the nearest star,
Where the band of well-beloved are,
But I shall reach it, near or far.

CAMPAIGN NOTES

Gen. Ross at Kingston

Brig.-Gen. A. E. Ross, C.B., C.M.G., M.P.P., M.D., was chosen as Conservative candidate in the coming general election for the riding of Kingston. Gen Ross was the unanimous choice of a big gathering held in Ontario Hall, and at which the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Gen. Ross, in accepting the nomination, stated that the Government had the best policy and the best Leader, and he felt that he could strongly support Mr. Meighen if elected.

Give Great Reception

Hon. George P. Graham opened his North Essex campaign with a public meeting at Essex, and was given a rousing reception by an audience that taxed the standing room of the Patricia Theatre to the extreme limit. He was accompanied by W. C. Kennedy, ex-M.P., candidate in North Essex, and Dr. Bowie. Upon the platform were reprsentatives from every municipality in the riding. Mr. Graham spoke on the difficulties encountered by tobacco growers, and pledged himself to the welfare of their interests should he be sent to Ottawa. Replying to criticism of his candidature because he was not a resident of the riding, he cited the cases of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Robert Borden, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Hon. E. C. Drury and others who sat for ridings in which they did not live.

OIL SHIPMENTS HEAVY

Mexico City, Nov. 4.—More than 20,000,000 barrels of petroleum are stored in tanks and behind dams in Mexico of which two-thirds is American owned, according to recent figures given out by the Department of Industry and Commerce.

Reports from Tampico indicate that oil shipments are exceedingly heavy from that port and that approximately 12,000,000 barrels were exported in September. Less than 5,000,000 barrels were taken out during August, prior to the settlement of the controversy at Tampico between American oil producers and the Mexican government.

THANKSGIVING SERMON

A SERMON FOR THE "SHUT-IN"—THOSE WHO ARE UNABLE TO ATTEND CHURCH SERVICES THROUGH ILLNESS OR INFIRMITY.

By Rev. W. H. Wallace, Pastor of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church.

"It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O Most High. To show forth thy loving kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night (in the nights).—Psalm 92:1-2.

There is a remarkable incident in Scottish history recorded in one of our old school books. In the days of Bruce and during the wars for the freedom of my native land, one day shines out bright for old Scotland, but dark for England. It was the day the memorable battle of Bannockburn was fought. Before the battle began the Scots knelt to pray. "The southern army numbered 100,000, the northern barely 40,000. Nevertheless the Scots by their careful planning, their faithful praying, and their brave fighting, proved victorious that day." Another remarkable incident is related in holy writ. When the Ammonites and the Moabites came with the men of Sier to fight against Judah it appeared that the latter would be overwhelmed by a mighty host. But Jehosaphat, King of Judah, prayed with his people unto the Lord. Then in anticipation of victory they appointed singers unto the Lord to go with the army of Judah. And when they began to sing and praise the Lord began the work of vanquishing their foes. The heathen armies fought against one another and destroyed each other so that not one escaped, and Judah returned to Jerusalem to continue the service of praise and thanksgiving to God. The Old Testament theocracy learned that it was a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord and to sing praises unto the name of the Most High. Let us catch the echo of the Old Testament saints and learn to sing their songs of praise.

The life of Jesus breathes the spirit of thanksgiving: "Father, I thank Thee," and again, "He took the bread, and looking to heaven, gave thanks." The apostolic exhortation is "In everything give thanks." A mythical story is told of an old painter who discovered a colorless liquid which, mixed with his paints, gave an added brightness to every color, and by its use he became a famous painter. If we put thankfulness into everything in life we will be masters of the art of living. In Africa the natives have a fruit they call "the taste berry." After they eat it everything they eat after it, even if sour, tastes sweet. We need thankfulness in our hearts, then our sorrow shall be turned into joy, the bitter things of life shall be made sweet. "It is a good thing to give thanks to God"

For the Mercies of the Past.

"What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me?" Here we raise our Ebenezer and say "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." If we try to count up the many mercies of the year we shall be led to give thanks unto the Lord.

(1) We thank God for spiritual mercies, for the many times we have been able to meet God's people and worship, for the blessings of Christian intercourse, as we have met together and with one another; for the help we have received to our souls by hymns and prayers, and the reading and preaching of God's blessed word; for the clearer vision of our Saviour and Lord as we have remembered Him in His death for us; for the conscious presence and sanctifying and overcoming power of the Holy Spirit; for the stronger faith, the greater love and the larger hope we have and cherish in view of the life to come; for answered prayers, and unanswered (for these are often mercies); for all things that have worked together for our good—for all these spiritual mercies of the past we thank God.

(2) Also temporal mercies: for the health of body and soundness of mind we have enjoyed; for the love, and counsel, and comforts of home; for the friends who have cheered and helped us by the way; for all the way God hath led us and blessed us—we give Him thanks.

In Scotland there is a pass called Glencoe; it is very steep in ascent and has a great many windings and turns before the top is reached. But when the top is reached a stone is seen by the wayside with these simple words cut on it: "Rest and be thankful." This is Thanksgiving Day," let us rest and be thankful. Thank God for a bountiful harvest. A farmer once complained that his hay crop was a failure. "But how about your potatoes?" he was asked. They were all right. "And your corn?" A fine crop. "And your oats?" An excellent yield. Then a friend spoke up and said: "Why don't you mention your success first, and then put that one failure in a parenthesis at the end?" It is a good thing to give thanks and cherish a thankful heart.

A man at a camp-meeting, in relating his experience, said he had lived at Grumbling Corner, but had moved up to Thanksgiving Street and found the air better, the sunshine brighter, and the company more delightful. We, too, shall find it true in our experience if we give thanks unto the Lord. We shall also find it is a good thing to Give Thanks for Present Blessings.

For the blessings of peace and prosperity—what boons these are! We thank God the dove of peace is resting over this land and over the whole British Empire, likewise over the United States. Other countries are suffering the ravages of war, for which we are sorry; but we are profoundly thankful that the two greatest nations are living in peace and enjoying the great blessings of peace and prosperity.

Stanley spent three years in Africa fighting the jungle and the forest, the fever and the savages. At last he drew near to the sea, and saw in the distance a missionary station, and the cross gleaming above it. With what joy he hailed that cross, which he called "the blessed sign of civilization!" We can see that sign not once in three years, but every day. Do we thank God daily for the blessing of the gospel, the harbinger of peace and civilization?

We thank God not only for these large and general blessings, but for personal blessings, for loved ones still with us.

"Draw near the board with plenty spread;
And if in its accustomed place
You see the father's reverent head
The mother's patient, loving face,
Whate'er this life may hold of ill,
Thank God that these are left you still."

These lines came into a home where the father and mother were the loved and loving centre of a large circle of children and grandchildren, and where the good old custom of "going home to father's on Thanksgiving Day" had not gone out of fashion. The oldest daughter had all the children memorize and repeat them together.

It is also a good thing to thank God for the Christian life, its love and service. We can never get tired and God never wearies hearing us thank Him for "His unspeakable gift" and the blessing Christ has brought us. A distinguished London oculist once took a poor blind man sitting on the curb stone and restored his sight. Overwhelmed with joy and gratitude he exclaimed "Doctor, I haven't a farthing in the world with which to pay you!" "Oh, never mind that," said the doctor. "There is just one thing I want you to do to repay me. It is very simple. Tell it. Tell everybody whom you meet that you were blind, and that you see, and who healed you." The man willingly did this, and in a little while the oculist had more patients than he could attend to. Suppose we all repaid Jesus in this way. Think of the probable result. Would not spiritually blind people flock to the Great Physician for spiritual sight. Many of us can truly say, "Once I was blind but now I see." It is a good thing to thank God for this, and for the privilege of showing love in service for all the Lord has done for us.

Speaking of the blind reminds us of the pathetic little story of a blind girl told by Ian Maclaren. "If I dinna see," and she spoke as if this were a matter of doubt, and she were making a concession for argument's sake—"there's naebody in the glen can hear like me. There's no footstep of a Drumtochty man comes to the door but I ken his name, and there's no voice out on the road that I canna tell. The birds sing sweeter to me than to onybody else, and I can hear them cheeping to one another in the bushes before they go to sleep. And the flowers smell sweeter to me—the roses and the carnation and the bonnie moss rose, and I judge that the oat-cake and milk taste the richer because I dinna see them. Na, na, ye'r no to think that I've been illtreated by my God, for if he didna give me ae thing he gave me mony things instead. And, mind ye, it's no as if I had seen once and lost my sight; that micht ha' been a trial and my faith micht ha' failed. I've lost nothing; my life has been all getting. And if I see nothing here there is one thing I am most thankful for, the first thing I shall see when God opens my eyes in heaven will be the face of my blessed Saviour."

Then, again, let us give

Thanks for the Good in Store.

We know what is written in the Old Testament and repeated in the New—"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things God hath prepared for them that love him." What great things God hath done for us, what great blessing we enjoy for the present, but greater things are in store for us, "God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit." We should catch the spirit of the little boy whose prayer on a cold January night was: "Jesus, I thank Thee for skating and sleds and snowballs and my big snow man in the yard; and, Jesus, I thank Thee most for next spring, when I won't have to wear an overcoat and when I can go out and pick flowers." We thank God not only for what is in store for each one of us personally, but also for what is in store for the Church. I mean the Presbyterian and Baptist and Methodist and Episcopalian, and Christian churches everywhere. A brighter day is dawning for the church universal. In spite of our denominational differences we are enjoying much helpful fellowship now. But the spirit of unity is increasing, more real brotherly love is being manifested, and even if organic unity is never realized we will thank God with all our hearts for the greater and better unity. When we are under the one Lord, the one faith, and the one baptism, then we shall have, what is best of all, in the judgment of all those who have the spirit and mind of the Master, namely, spiritual unity.

And, once more, we thank God for what is in store for the great world that lies in wickedness. We believe there is God-given prophecy yet to be fulfilled: "When nations shall learn war no more." "When the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea," "When Christ shall reign from the rivers unto the ends of the earth." These are the things in store for this earth. When some of the things in store come to us we shall know who sent them. We shall not be like the friend who had received a beautiful bound volume for Christmas but did not know who sent it. On the flyleaf were these words: "Presented to us, Christmas, 1890. We never knew who sent it to us." But, alas, too many are found with life's choicest blessings, but they do not appear to know who sent them. Let none of us be found in that condition, but ever learn to know by blessed experience that it is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises to the name of the Most High. I read a beautiful story of an old laborer who, when there was a great deal of talk about the danger of U. S. gold reserve falling below the danger point, went to the sub-treasury and demanded to see the "boss." From an old leather purse he counted out $200 in golden eagles, saying that he had heard the government was in trouble from not having enough gold. He owed all he had to the country, and if she needed it now he had come to give it back. What a beautiful example of thankfulness.

Thanksgiving Day.

We give Thee thanks, O Lord!
Not for armed legions, marching in their might,
Nor for the glory of the well-earned fight
Where brave men slay their fellows, also brave;
But for the millions of thy sons who work,
And do Thy task with joy, and never shirk,
And deem the idle man a burdened slave:
For these, O Lord, our thanks!

We give Thee thanks, O Lord!
Not for the turrets of our men-of-war—
The monstrous guns and deadly steel they pour
To crush our foes and make them bow the knee;
But for the homely sailors of Thy deep,
The tireless fisher-folk who vanish sleep
And lure a living from the miser sea:
For these, O Lord, our thanks;

We give Thee thanks, O Lord!
Not for the mighty men that pile up gold,
Nor for the phantom millions, bought and sold,
And all the arrogance of pomp and greed;
But for the pioneers who plough the field,
Make deserts blossom, and the mountain yield its hidden treasures for man's daily need:
For these, O Lord, our thanks!

We give Thee thanks, O Lord!
Not for the palaces that wealth has grown,
Where ease is worshipped—duty dimly known,
And pleasure leads her dance the flowery way;
But for the quiet homes where love is queen
And life is more than baubles, touched and seen,
And old folks bless us, and dear children play:
For these, O Lord, our thanks!

COMPLETELY FREE OF CONSTIPATION

Tried for Years to Find Relief

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" GAVE IT

Chronic Constipation or insufficient action of the bowels, is one of the great causes of disease. Some authorities even claim that Constipation cannot be permanently corrected. This is a great mistake, because here is the proof that constipation can be cured and the bowels made to act regularly and naturally.

YARMOUTH, N.S.

"For years, I was troubled with Constipation, and had to take laxatives and purgatives all the time. If I neglected to take these, the bowels would refuse to do their work.

About two years ago, a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives", which I did. The first box helped me so much that I obtained further supplies of the remedy and continued the treatment. After using about eight boxes, my bowels were able to perform their particular function without aid.

The relief in my case has been lasting, as up to date, I have never had any further trouble. I can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to all suffering as I did and I am sure they will derive equal benefit".

A. W. FRANKLIN.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c., or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

WOULD WED MR. KING IF GIVEN THE CHOICE

World-Famous Opera Star Indulges in Pet Hobby of Character-Reading.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 4.—Galli-Curci, world famous opera star, indulged in her pet hobby of character reading while en route from Detroit to London. A reporter showed her pictures of Canada's three national political leaders.

"As a public personage it would be very, very foolish for me to say which of these three men I would pick to determine the destiny of Canada," she said, "but I will tell you which one I would marry should it ever be my good fortune to marry one of the three." Mr. Crerar's picture happened to be the first which caught her eye.

"Oh, hair-on-the-face," she exclaimed. "No, no, no. I could not bear that."

Mr. Meighen was received with much greater favor. "He is a very able man," was her first comment on the face of Canada's premier. "His eyes show that he is very clever and very serious. He doesn't joke, that one. Any task he assumes he will endeavor to complete to the best of his ability. He is all serious and very conservative. See his high forehead. That shows he is clever. Or," with a ripple of laughter, "perhaps it is lack of hair. Is it? I can't tell from the picture."

Then her eyes lighted on Mr. King. "Oh, I like this man," she said with enthusiasm.

"He looks like a jolly family man—the type of man who makes real women truly happy. See his ears. They indicate he is full of—what do you say—generosity, liberality—the type who will give his all for the 'common good' and he has a brilliant intellect, judging from his eyes, and plenty of pep."

"Yes, that man is a liberal in a real sense of the word. He is a free spirit, an independent type with a good sense of humor and—he is the man I would choose to marry, were I given the choice."

SALES TAX REJECTED BY THE U. S. SENATE

Washington, Nov. 4.—The sales tax was rejected by the Senate. The Democrats voted solidly against the sales tax and were joined by seventeen Republicans. The vote, forty-three against, to twenty-five for, was on a proposal for a one-cent levy, with certain exemptions. The vote was regarded generally as decisive of the whole question of sales tax at this time, but Senator Smoot offered another amendment, embodying a business sales tax of one-half of one per cent. on gross sales in excess of $6,000 a year. This was held over.

IN FLANDERS' FIELDS.

Poppy Day in Belleville, Saturday, November 5, 1921.

In Flanders' fields, the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are hte dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you, from failing hands, we throw
The torch. Be yours to lift it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though pappies blow
In Flanders' fields.

—Lt.-Col. John McCrae.

FORM SEPARATE GROUP

London, Nov. 5.—According to the Saturday Review, recalatrant Unionists who supported the motion of censure of thfe Government have decided to form a separate group and that the chances of an approachment between Lord Cecil's followers are becoming more remote as they remain in sympathy with the conservatives.

In the event of a breakdown of the Coalition Government there is every prospect of a strong unified Conservative party, headed by Lord Birkenhead, and including Hon. Winston Churchill, it says.

INTERNAL BATHING ENDS CONSTIPATION; DRUGS THROWN OUT

"After using your J. B. L. Cascade for four months I feel it my duty as a thankful patient to express my enthusiasm for the great blessing it has been to me," writes William Devoy of Lethbridge, Alta., to the Dr. Tyrrell Hygienic Institute, Toronto. "Previous to using it I could not go a day without a drug of some sort, and since using it I have not swallowed five cents' worth of drugs. I spent more than $300 in two years previous to hearing of the J. B. L."

Chronic constipation is never cured permanently by the use of medicines. Larger and larger doses usually become necessary to obtain even temporary relief, the consequence being a weakening of the system.

Nature's own cure, just sterilized warm water, is the only scientific and permanent treatment for constipation, and its attendant ills—headache, indigestion, sleeplessness, and loss of energy.

T. Babin, Proprietor Hotel Alexandria, Ottawa, writes: "I have used the J. B. L. Cascade two years. It has made a new man of me. In reality I feel that I would not sell it for all the money in this world if I could not buy another."

The J. B. L. Cascade will be shown and explained to you by J. S. McKeown, Druggist, Belleville, Ont., who will give you free on request an interesting booklet by Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell, on "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient."

CO-OPERATION OF AIRCRAFT VALUED

More Information Gained by Flight Than Journey on Foot.

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—(By Canadian Press)—That he obtained more general information in a two hours' flight by aeroplane than he could have learned in a month's trip on foot is the statement of an engineer of the Reclamation Service who hecently made a survey from the air in connection with a drainage project in the hinterland. Reports being received by the Air Board here show that the co-operation of aircraft with the different departments is becoming increasingly valued.

This latest example was a special reconnaissance undertaken for the Reclamation Service of the Department of the Interior in the vicinity of Le Pas and Cumberland House, lying on the boundady between Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The survey covered the Carrot River Triangle for a drainage scheme involving the reclaiming for productive purposes of from 800,000 to 900,000 acres. It had been found that a big part of the area was inaccessible owing to floods; reeds and willows made canoeing impossible. The Air Board was accordingly requested to arrange a flight over the region, so that an engineer might secure the desired information from the air.

Reports from the Victoria Beach, Manitoba, air station, which was the main base, indicate that the operation was a complete success. Most valuable data was secured in an infinitely shorter period of time than would have been possible by any method of ground transportation, and by no other method could the same general perspective have been arrived at.

Cannot Speak Too Highly

The hydraulic engineer of the Reclamation Service, commenting on the trip says it is impossible to speak too highly of the benefit derived from a flight of this kind for survey on a project of such magnitude. Much of the district, he says, is unsurveyed, and very little information of the topographical features is obtainable without running a traverse survey. From the air one may see the various drainage channels in the interior quite distinctly, and information of this kind would prove of great value in determining where to run the interior traverse lines, and where lines would not be necessary, thereby saving time and money. Information regarding the timebr in the interior could also be obtained.

'I do not wish to convey the idea", he says, "that numerous flights of this kind would offset the necessity of making a detailed survey of a large drainage area. The rise and fall in land would only be obtained by running traverse lines and levels over the district, but I do think, in possibly half a dozen flights, the whole Carrot River Triangle could be covered, thus familiarizing the engineers engaged on the work with a general idea of the interior in a short space of time. This would be of much value in planning the general layout of the work there."

Made Demonstration Flight

Advantage of the fact of the hydroplane being in this neighborhood was taken in order to enable R. C. Wallace, Commissioner for Northern Manitoba, to make a demonstration flight. The Commissioner was equally enthusiastic as to the value of aircraft in making topographical surveys. "More than anything I had previously imagined", he writes, "this trip impressed me with the future of the air service in northern territory. I obtained a grasp of the topography and water system in the Saskatchewan River Valley that I had not had any clear conception of. I have had considerable experience in mapping territory from the canoe, and feel satisfied and more than ever impressed with the conviction that the only way in which northern territory can be mapped is by camera from the air. I quite appreciate the fact that as a freight carrier, even in northern territory, it may be many years before the air service will supplant water transportation; as a patrol agency, however, and more particularly for systematic mapping of the whole northern territory, I feel that there is a great future for this service."

Chief of Police Chas. H. Goodman of Port Stanley dies suddenly in St Thomas.

NEW MEDICINE MAKES MILLIONS WELL

Will be a Revelation to Suffering Humanity—Cleans Liver in a Few Minutes — Symptoms of Liver Trouble are: Sallow Complexion, Bad Taste in Mouth on Rising, Tired, Out of Sorts, etc.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles, as: Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No Salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self-eliminating. It does not have a nauseating, sickening feeling next day, like so many similar drugs. You no doubt have been taking all sorts of laxatives, salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these drew liquid from the blood and tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the Bile to be excreted from the Liver into the Bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your Bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your Bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious, bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sale by McKeown, Druggist.

BOY SCOUTS TAKE UP THE TORCH

Will Make House to House Canvass for Muskoka Hospital.

The Boy Scouts of Belleville have rallied to the aid of consumptives of this province by granting their assistance to the local campaign to secure funds for rebuilding the Muskoka Hospital.

It was thought at an earlier date that a house-to-house appeal would not be necessary but returns have not been what were expected. Of the $6,000 allotted to Belleville, only a little over one-third has been raised.

Many needy consumptives of Belleville have received treatment absolutely free in this institution in the past. There are many cases at the present time which must be taken care of or remain a menace to their families and their community. There are a number of these right here in Belleville and the early construction of the hospital will give the patients a chance to get well.

A very high percentage of those suffering from tuberculosis can be cured with only a few months' treatment at the Muskoka Hospital if the disease is taken in its early stages. Let us give these poor victims a chance.

This is the season of Thanksgiving. The great majority of our citizens without any severe sacrifice can give a smaller or greater amount to assist in this worthy cause. The Boy Scouts are leaving envelopes at your homes today. On Tuesday afternoon they will call around to receive your offerings. Do what you can to raise Belleville to the allotted standard. If your Scout does not find you at home or if you desire to give a larger amount than what you care to put into an envelop, hand your contribution to Mr. J. G. Moffat, Manager of the Union Bank.

POSERS PUT TO MR. CRERAR

Heckler Asked if U. S. Free Trade Had Caused the Canadian Exodus.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Nov. 5.—A heckler made his appearance when Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressives, spoke in Charlottetown, closing his Prince Edward Island campaign. Mr. Crerar had been outlining his fiscal views, and had said that 750,000 Canadians had emigrated to the United States within the last ten years, when a voice sharply called from the rear of the hall: "That's wrong; tell the truth, Mr. Crerar, tell the truth."

"What I am saying is correct," Mr. Crerar sharply replied. He continued that the census returns would show that Canada had now only a population of 8,500,000.

"You don't know yet," the heckler again interposed. "That's your story."

"It is not my story,' warmly rejoined Mr. Crerar. "I have made the statement before and challenged Mr. Meighen to deny it, but he has not done so; and I don't make statements I can't back up. The returns kept by our Immigration Department do not show that many people have left Canada. But the United States figures show that within the last ten years 750,000 people left Canada for the United States."

At this there was an outburst of cheering.

"Well, what did they go for—did they go for free trade?" the heckler questioned.

Mr. Crerar: "If you want to discuss these questions I shall be very glad to have you come on the platform; but I will tell you one reason why they went." They went because we have had a fiscal policy that prevented prosperity in this country."

Considerable Hubbub

The heckler: "What did they have in the United States What policy built up the United States '

By this time considerable hubbub had developed, and there were shouts from the body of the hall that the heckler should "shut up." "My friend should not get excited." Mr. Crerar remarked when the hubbub had died down somewhat. "He has made reference to the fact that the United States had a tariff for many years. But I would remind him that the United States is the largest single free trade area in the world. I would ask him to use his reason and not his imagination." There was more cheering and one Progressive advised Mr. Crerar to "take no notice of that fellow; he sells expensive boots."

Mr. Crerar referred to census returns as showing a declining population for Prince Edward Island. "Where had they gone?' he asked.

The heckler was once more to the front. "They went west," he shouted.

"They did not," Mr. Crerar responded. "I wish they had gone west; they went to the New England States."

Charges that western grain growers were combining to hold up the eastern farmer were termed by Mr. Crerar as "emanations of an imaginative mind totally unacquainted with actual facts."

No Secret Understanding

Mr. Crerar referred to further newspaper reports of a secret understanding between himself and Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party. "As evidence of this so-called understanding,' said Mr. Crerar, "a telegram is quoted from a gentleman in Manitoba. You can read that telegram carefully as I read it twice. But how any person can find in that telegram evidence of a secret understanding is more than passes my comprehension. What are the actual facts? I have a personal experience of the so-called understanding in that a Liberal is running against me in my own constituency, as well as a Government candidate. Nor do I think Mr. King has any illusions about a secret understanding. He is himself being opposed in his own constituency by Mr. Burnaby, and Mr. Burnaby will probably beat him." Such stories Mr. Crerar added, were the work of the Government propaganda bureau at Ottawa. "I think," he went on, "the propaganda bureau tooks its lessons from the German propaganda bureau during the war. At any rate it is just as accurate."

The Prime Minister had challenged him to name the big interests behind the Government. "I have already given some proofs", observed Mr. Crerar, "and I say here again, that the manufacturers who have benefitted at the expense of the Canadian people are to-day behind the Government in its appeal to the people.'

NO PAPER MONDAY

Monday being Thanksgiving Day and a public holiday, there will be no issue of The Intelligencer that day.

BRILLIANT PROSPECT

Every housewife or girl who may someday become a housekeeper, takes great pride and pains in being able to prepare an edible luncheon or dinner fit for the most discriminating of guests. Sometimes, however, one longs for a change of menu, perhaps nothing elaborate but just a dainty appetizing dish to tempt and pacify hubby when he comes in tired and oftimes out-of-sorts. "Efficient Housekeeping" a feature appearing daily in this paper gives a varied list of menus and general ways of beautifying and cheering up home and hubby. Read it and tell your friends.

GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

I was simply delighted, and greatly surprised, when, on being invited to tea by a girl-bride friend of mine, I had such a delicious tea. Before her marriage said friend had never bothered with cooking therefore I was prepared for a spread of dainties from the delicatessen. Maybe I wasn't surprised when a dainty substantial home-meal was before me. The secret of my friend's wonderful achievement was she was taking the "Daily Intelligencer" and in this paper is a feature specially for their lady readers called "Efficient Housekeeping". In this section she had got all her recipes for the dainties on the board and besides being economical they were easily prepared. Don't miss this feature!

SOCIAL GATHERING

At the King's Palace on Friday a social gathering was held most successfully of all the feathered and furred inhabitants of the Great Forest. This was one of the most brilliant functions ever held. Read Tinker Bob's story for to-day and see what a wonderful time everybody had and how it affected them to be guests of the King of the Forest. Don't let this interesting story slip by you as it won't come again.

SCOUTS AT ARMOURIES

Through the kindness of Captain-Adjutant McManus, the Belleville Boy Scouts have been given permission to use the armouries as permanent headquarters, and in this military atmosphere the Scouts will no doubt increase in stature, wisdom and konwledge of how best to negotiate life's winding trail.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE

Wednsday evening, according to a Hydro report, a Grand Trunk car left the track near Campbellford and cut one of the Hydro high tension poles clean in two. The result was that the Hydro system in this district was out of business for about twenty minutes.—Lindsay Post.

No thunderstorm, no wind, or as the most of us thought no reason at all for the Hydro to plunge us into darkness at 10.30 o'clock last evening. But the Hydro did and there was a reason. A freight train left the tracks at Trenton, collided with one of the Hydro poles and down came poles, wire and all. The lights were off for about fifteen minutes and my, wasn't it dark?.—Port Hope Guide.

CONDITION VERY CRITICAL

Austin Chestnut who was shot in the leg while celebrating Hallowe'en at the four corners at Welcome last Monday night is reported to be in a very seerious condition to-day. General septic poisoning and gangerene have developed and at the time of writing his condition is very critical —Port Hope Guide.

CUTTING HILL

What has been commonly known as Crawford's Hill, near Omemee, will be treated through the blood. The hill will have vanished into a mere grade. The steam shovel owned by the Good Roads system has been operating for a number of days, and several teams are busy drawing the earth to the iron bridge in town where the approaches are being widened before the new bridge is erected.—Lindsay Post

GOVERMENT SELLS FISH

Three years ago the Dominion Government conducted a very successful sale of fish at the Belleville fish hatchery and many citizens of Belleville and vicinity took advantage of it to lay in a winter's supply of fish. This fall with so many people out of employment the Government has decided to again sell the fish caught in the pound nets operated in the Bay of Quinte by officials of the Dominion Fisheries Department for hatching purposes, instead of returning them to the water after the eggs are deposited. This sale will only continue during the spawn-taking season and the prices for whitefish, herring, and other lake fish will be very low. It is worthy of note that the spawning season opened a week earlier this year. Superintendent Joseph Oakes and a representative of the Marine and Fisheries Department will be at the hatcheries every day to supply fish buyers.

W. N. Ponton, and music will be rendered by the Salvation Army band. Mayor Hanna will occupy the chair.

ROADWORK FINISHED

The road work on the provincial highway east of Belleville will be finished to-day and Monday afternoon Mayor Hanna and a party of civic officials will motor over the road on a tour of inspection accompanied by the resident engineer.

SATURDAY'S MARKET

The outdoor Saturday market was not as large as usual, but the hall was crowded. The outer market prices were advanced in some instances but all produce was readily disposed of. Pears sold for 60c basket; potatoes sold at $2.00 per bag, while apples went a little better at 25c per peck. Pumpkins sold at 10c and 15c. Strawberry tomatoes although not in abundance sold at 25c. The prices for the inside market still hovered near the breaking point. Honey in 5 lb. pails sold for 75c and $1.00. Smaller pails sold at 50c and section at 20c. Butter sold at 45c to 48c. Fowls were the greatest in abundance and sold generally at $1.75 per pair. Eggs still brought 60c. Home-made cooking also occupied a good position in the market and found many buyers.

FREE EXHIBIT OF MODEL TRAIN

Canadian National-Grand Trunk All-Steel Train Here Sat., Nov. 12.

An unique opportunity will on November 12th be afforded the residents of Belleville and vicinity of inspecting one of the trains which the Canadian National Railways employs in its daily across Canada service.

The train is of outstanding interest in a two-fold sense. In the first place it shows the kind of locomotive and cars that are being used in the transcontinental service, while in the second place it is an ocular demonstration of the high class locomotives and railway cars which are being made in the factories of the Dominion.

The train is complete in every respect, being composed of sleeping car, dining car, day coach, tourist car, colonial car and express car. Each car is the embodiment of the latest and most up-to-date ideas designed to secure for the traveler the maximum of comfort and safety. Steel equipment is employed in every instance.

Practically all the comforts of home life are provided by the sleeping car attached to the train. Those who desire more than the usual measure of sleeping car privacy can by a simple device be accommodated with individual sections. The interior of the car is finished in mahogany. Seats are of the latest design in friezette short nap. Lighting is by electricity throughout. The car is heated by the largest size Pullman standard type of hot water heater. Berths are equipped with the latest conveniences. The water supply is obtained from underfed tanks. By the electric-driven suction fans installed, the air of the car can be changed every twenty minutes. The cost of a car of this kind is $53,000.

The dining car has seating capacity for thirty persons. It is finished in quarter-cut oak, and is equipped with the largest innovations in respect to cooking facilities, lighting arrangements and the convenience of travellers. Housewives will be particularly interested in the kitchen. Among the features of its equipment are removable carving tables, hot tables for cooked meats and poultry, and special arrangements for heating cups and dishes. Refrigerators are equipped with the Bohn system of refrigeration, separate compartments being provided for poultry, meats, milk and vegetables. Stewards, chefs and waiters are on hand to explain equipment and reveal the mysteries appertaining to the kitchen and dining room of a travelling hotel. Cost entailed in building and equipping a dining car such as the one on exhibition is $46,000.

To the average citizen who may contemplate a cross-Canada trip in a less expensive way than in the standard sleeper the tourist car shown is of particular interest. It is just as substantialle built as the standard sleeper and is exceedingly well equipped with modern conveniences, but is less luxuriously finished. The car is lighted by electricity, one peculiar feature of which is the location of electric lamps under the seats for use at night when the ceiling lights are out. The car is also equipped with a modern kitchen, containing range, refrigerator, sink, cupboard, etc., for the convenience of travelers who wish to provide their own meals. This car cost $39,000.

Another car that will pobably be of particular interest to many is the colonist car. The car shown is of an improved type, and is such as is now used by the Canadian National Railways in harvesters' excursions. The berths are adjustable in order to accommodate themselves to day or night travel. A car of this kind costs $32,700.

The day coach is of the well-known standard type used on the Canadian National system, and cost $33,000. The express car is the type that is regularly used by the Canadian National Express Company.

Total cost to reproduce a train such as that now on exhibition would be approximately $370,000, cars alone costing over $300,000. A similar train was shown at the Canadian National Exhibition and was visited by 100,000 people.

The train is accompanied by a staff of men efficient in the various departments appertaining thereto. Their office is to explain by practical demonstrations the "why and wherefore" of the equipment on an across Canada train such as that in use on the Canadian National Railways system.

This train will be placed on Pinnacle street and will be open for inspection from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

MINERS OF BRITAIN ASK NEW SUBSIDY

Demand Financial Help From Government.

London, Nov. 4.—With the chaotic condition of the coal industry due to the relinquishment of Government control and the disastrous eleven weeks' strike last Spring English miners have now submitted to the Government a new scheme for revival of the industry which involves financial help from the Government to the exent of £89,000,000.

In order to restart the industry and create a demand for coal which is glutting depots and wharves it is proposed that the maximum price for industrial purposes should be fixed at 30 shillings a ton, while the Government for a certain period would make up the difference to the owners and railways which would transport it at a greatly reduced figure.

The chief contributing cause to the failure of last June's settlement has been the unfulfilled expectation for an improved demand which in turn is due to high prices. There is widespread unemployment among the miners, their pay is not satisfactory, propects are uncertain and altogether the men are again growing restless despite their unfortunate experience earlier in the year in trying to force the Government's hand. In June Parliament voted £10,000,000 to prevent undue reduction in wages to the end of September, when the miners estimated that the industry would be out of the depressed period, and £30,000,000 of this remains unexpended.

The principal objection to the plan of the miners is that such a guaranty would plunge into a new and very close control of the industry in order to make sure that its contributions were devoted exclusively to reduction in prices. The disadvantages of such a control are well understood, and it is considered unlikely that the Government will accept the plan.

The supply is greater than the demand and a reduction in price at a timy when prices generally are falling is not considered a permanent solution of the troubles of the industry. The owners consider the miners' new scheme as simply a camouflaged plan for further subsidizing the wages of the miners and maintaining them at an uneconomic level. They point out further that the Government's contribution will have to come out of industry and taxation. They argue that the Government might as well subsidize all industries if this will revive trade. They insist that the plan is merely a second subsidy which will last another three months, when they predict a third will be needed.

Both sides are getting their guns set in a way that shows clearly that the English coal trouble is far from settled.

MANY BRITISH WOMEN NOW STUDYING MEDICINE

The number of British women who have chosen medicine as a career has increased greatly. Many entered for the five years' course of hard study which began in the London medical schools October 1.

New women students this year at Charing Cross Hospital, London, medical school slightly outnumber men, and the totals of the two sexes are now practically equal.

The rush of women to the London Hospital has been so great that there will be no more vacancies until 1923; about one-fifth of the students there are women. At St. Mary's School two fifths of the students are women.

A doctor connected with the British Medical Association says: "The number of women who have entered the medical profession in this country is something like 43,000. In the United States there are 100,000. "In this country at the present time there are many more women students than there are in the United States. Far too many women are entering the profession, but very few go into medical practice afterward."

Anthracite Prices

As dealers in Anthracite we wish we could reduce prices,—but we can't.

The causes of high Anthracite prices are higher costs of Labor and higher Freight Rates—both fixed by law—not higher Profits.

Neither producers nor coal dealers are making any more money than they made when prices were lower.

The increased price ALL goes to pay higher costs of production and transportation.

How, then, can prices be reduced?

It is wise to lay in your winter's supply now rather than wait until thousands of consumers are trying to have their coal bins all filled at the same time.

Advertising!

The biggest men in the country have found that the easiest way to spell success is to A-D-V-E-R-T-I-S-E. Suppose the newspaper did not publish the news, how would the people know what is happening? If you don't publish the Store News how will the people know about your goods? You can never sell the goods people do not know you have.

Advertising is telling about your stock. The firm that advertises gets ahead, every time, of the firm that does not advertise. Shop-worn and out-of-date stock is the penalty merchants pay for not advertising.

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"No, monseigneur. I learned it since I have been in prison and that from the conversation of monseigneur the commissary, a very good kind of man."

The cardinal repressed another smile.

"Then you are ignorant of what is become of your wife since her flight?"

"Absolutely, monseigneur. But she has most likely returned to the Louvre."

"At 1 o'clock this morning she had not returned. You must, in the first place, reveal to the cardinal all you know of your wife's relations with Mme. de Chevreuse."

"But, monseigneur, I know nothing about them; I have never seen her!"

"When you went to fetch your wife from the Louvre did you always return directly home?"

"Scarcely ever; she had business to transact with linen drapers, to whose houses I conducted her."

"And how many were there of these linen drapers?"

"Two, monseigneur. One Rue de Vaugirard, the other Rue de la Harpe."

"Did you go into these houses with her?"

"Never, monseigneur; I waited at the door, as she told me."

"You are a very complacent husband, my dear M. Bonacieux," said the cardinal.

"He calls me his dear monsieur," said the mercer to himself. "Peste! matters are going all right!"

"Do you know the numbers?"

"No. 25 in the Rue Vaugirard; 75 in the Rue de la Harpe."

"That's well," said the cardinal.

At these words he took up a silver bell and rang it. The officer entered.

"Go," said he in a subdued voice, "and find Rochefort. Tell him to come to me immediately if he is returned."

"The count is here," said the officer, "and requests to speak with your eminence instantly."

"To your eminence!" murmured Bonacieux, rolling his eyes round in astonishment.

Five seconds had scarcely elapsed after the disappearance of the officer when the door opened and a new personage entered.

"It is he!" cried Bonacieux.

"He! What he?" asked the cardinal.

"The man that took away my wife!"

The cardinal rang a second time. The officer reappeared.

"Place this man in the care of his guards again and let him wait till I send for him."

"No, monseigneur; no; it is not he!" cried Bonacieux. "No; I was deceived. This is quite a different man and does not resemble him at all. Monsieur is, I am sure, a very good sort of man."

"Take away that fool," said the cardinal.

The newly introduced personage followed Bonacieux impatiently with his eyes till he was gone out, and the moment the door closed he advanced eagerly toward the cardinal and said:

"They have seen each other."

"The queen and the duke?" cried Richelieu.

"At the Louvre."

"Who told you of it?"

"Mme. Lannoy, who is devoted to your eminence, as you know."

"Why did she not let me know sooner?"

"Whether by chance or from mistrust I don't know, but the queen made Mme. de Sturgis sleep in her chamber and detained her all day."

"Well, we are beaten! Now let us try to take our revenge. How did it take place?"

"At half-past 12 the queen was with her women in her bedchamber, when some man came and brought her a handkerchief from her dame de lingerie."

"And then?"

"The queen immediately exhibited strong emotion; she rose, and with a trembling voice: 'Ladies,' said she, 'wait for me ten minutes. I shall soon return.' She then opened the door of her alcove and went out."

"How long did the queen remain out of the chamber?"

"Three-quarters of an hour."

"Did none of her women accompany her?"

"Only Donna Estafania."

"Did she afterward return?"

"Yes; but to take a little rosewood casket, with her cipher upon it; in it the diamond studs which his majesty gave to the queen."

"Mme. Lannoy, then, is of opinion that she gave them to Buckingham."

"She is sure of it."

"How can she be so?"

"In the course of the day, Mme. de Lannoy, in her quality of tirewoman of the queen, looked for this casket, appeared uneasy at not finding it, and at length asked the queen if she knew anything about it. The queen became exceedingly red and replied that, having on the preceding evening broken one of those studs, she had sent it to her goldsmith to be repaired."

"He must be called upon and so ascertain if the thing be true or not."

"The goldsmith has heard nothing of the kind."

"Right, right! Rochefort, all is not lost, and perhaps—perhaps everything is for the best. Do you know where the Duchess de Chevreuse and the Duke of Buckingham are now concealed?"

"No, monseigneur; my people could tell me nothing on that head."

"But I know, or at least I guess. They were, one in the Rue Vaugirard, No. 25; the other in the Rue de la Harpe, No. 75."

"Does your eminence command that they should be both instantly arrested?"

"It will be too late. They will be

"Bring the prisoner in again," said the cardinal.

Master Bonacieux was introduced afresh, and upon a sign from the cardinal the officer retired.

"You have deceived me," said the cardinal sternly. "Your wife when going to Rue de Vaugirard and Rue de la Harpe went to meet the Duchess de Chevreuse and the Duke of Buckingham."

"Your eminence is right. I told my wife several times that it was surprising that linen drapers should live in such houses as those—in houses that had no signs—but she only always laughed at me."

"You are a worthy man, my friend," said the cardinal with that paternal tone which he sometimes knew how to assume, but which deceived none who knew him, "and as you have been unjustly suspected—well, you must be indemnified. Here, take this purse of 100 pistoles and pardon me."

"I pardon you, monseigneur!" said Bonacieux, hesitating to take the purse, fearing, doubtless, that this pretended gift was but a joke. "Pardon you, monseigneur, you cannot mean that?"

"Ah, my dear M. Bonacieux, you are generous in this matter and I thank you for it. Thus, then, you will take this bag, and you will go away without being too much dissatisfied with your treatment."

"I shall go away enchanted."

"Farewell, then; that is to say, for the present, for I hope we shall meet again. Au revoir, M. Bonacieux, au revoir!"

And the cardinal made him a sign with his hand, to which Bonacieux replied by bowing to the ground; he then went out backward, and when he was in the antechamber the cardinal heard him, in his enthusiasm, crying aloud: "Hurrah for the great monseigneur! Vive son eminence! Vive le grand cardinal!"

"Good!" said he, "that man would, henceforward, lay down his life for me!"

The door opened and Rochefort returned.

"Well!" said the cardinal eagerly.

"A young woman of about twenty-six or twenty-eight years of age and a man from thirty-five to forty have lodged at the two houses pointed out by your eminence, but the woman left last night and the man this morning."

"They were the persons!" cried the cardinal, looking at the clock, "and now it is too late to have them pursued: the duchess is at Tours and the duke at Boulogne. It is at London they must be met with."

"What are your eminence's orders?"

"Not a word of what has passed; let the queen be ignorant that we know her secret. Tell Vitray to come to me, and tell him to get ready for a journey."

The instant after the man he required was before him, booted and spurred.

"Vitray," said he, "you will go with all speed to London. You will deliver this letter to milady. Here is an order for 200 pistoles; call upon my treasurer and get the money. You shall have as much again if you are back within six days and have executed your commission well."

These were the contents of the letter:

"Milady.—Be at the first ball at which the Duke of Buckingham shall be present. He will wear on his doublet twelve diamond studs; get as near to him as you can and cut off two of them. As soon as these studs shall be in your possession, inform me."

CHAPTER XI.

Men of the Robe and Men of the Sword

On the day after these events had taken place, Athos not having reappeared, M. de Treville was informed by D'Artagnan and Porthos of the circumstance. As to Aramis, he had asked for leave of absence for five days and was gone, it was said, to Rouen, on family business.

M. de Treville was the father of his soldiers. He repaired, then, instantly to the residence of the lieutenant criminel. The officer who commanded the post of the Croix Rouge was sent for and, by successive inquiries, they found that Athos was at the time lodged in the Fort l'Eveque.

Athos, after the scene with M. Moncieux, declared that his name was Athos, and not D'Artagnan. He added that he did not know either M. or Mme. Bonacieux; that he had never spoken to the one or the other; that he had come, at about 10 o'clock in the evening, to pay a visit to his friend, M. d'Artagnan, but that till that hour he had been at M. de Treville's, where he had dined; "twenty witnesses," added he, "could attest the fact," and he named several distinguished gentlemen, and among them was M. the Duke de la Tremouille.

The second commissary was as much bewildered as the first had been at the simple but firm declaration of the musketeer. Athos was then sent to the cardinal, but unfortunately the cardinal was at the Louvre with the king.

It was precisely at this moment at which M. de Treville arrived at the palace. As captain of the musketeers, M. de Treville had the right of entree at all times.

It is well known how violent the king's prejudices were against the queen and how carefully these prejudices were kept up by the cardinal, who in affairs of intrigue mistrusted omen much more than men. One of e principal causes of this prejudice as the friendship of Anne of Austria Mme. de Chevreuse. In his eyes [illegible] perfect conviction Mme. de [illegible] only served the

At the first word the cardinal spoke of Mme. de Chevreuse, who, though exiled to Tours and who was believed to be in that city, had been at Paris, remained there five days and had outwitted the police, the king flew into a furious passion. Although capricious and unfaithful, the king wished to be called Louis the Just and Louis the Faithful.

But when the cardinal added that not only Mme. de Chevreuse had been in Paris, but, still further, that the queen had corresponded with her; when he affirmed that he, the cardinal, was about to unravel the most closely twisted thread of this intrigue; when at the moment of arresting in the fact, with all the proofs about her, the queen's emissary to the exiled duchess a musketeer had dared to interrupt the course of justice violently by falling, sword in hand, upon the honest men of the law charged with investigating impartially the whole affair in order to place it before the eyes of the king, Louis XIII. could not contain himself, and he made a step toward the queen's apartment with that pale and mute indignation which when it broke out led this prince to the commission of the boldest cruelty.

Women of Canada

"I ask from all the people of Canada an earnest review of the real issue before Canada today. I ask from men and women a calm, thoughtful consideration of serious public questions; and, so far as I am concerned myself, I ask not favors but fairness."—ARTHUR MEIGHEN.

WOMEN OF CANADA, the coming General Election will be one of the most momentous in Canadian history, and Arthur Meighen asks YOU to give the issue fair, unbiassed consideration.

Women and men alike are called upon to decide whether political, industrial and economic stability is to be replaced by class rule, political and industrial chaos and possible economic bankruptcy.

The facts are clear, and every Canadian woman will do her own thinking. She will not be misled by others. She will not blindly follow family political precedent, neither will she be carried away by the false theories or empty "isms" of theorists and extremists. Every woman will arrive at a personal decision by the application of practical common sense.

The great issue is the Tariff and here are briefly the facts.

The present Canadian Tariff, so far as it affects the necessaries of life, is a very moderate one. It is simply a tariff maintained to keep Canadian factories in Canada, employing a steadily increasing volume of Canadian labor and developing Canadian resources.

Meighen stands firm for the continuance of a reasonable tariff. It is now even more imperative than in the past. All other important countries are retaining or increasing their tariffs in order that they may hold their home markets for their own people.

Under Crerar's Free Trade policy Canada would be swamped with foreign goods, principally from the United States, Canadian industry would be ruined, thousands of men and women would be out of work with all the hardships to themselves and their children that must result. The farmer's great home market would be seriously affected, taxes would be increased, and Canadian working men would have to go to the United States for employment.

While King's Tariff policy is wobbly it nevertheless tends toward the destruction of the Tariff and would bring with it practically the same results.

MEIGHEN'S POLICY EVERYBODY KNOWS. It is the only means whereby confidence may be maintained and employment given to all classes of the people.

The foregoing is a plain statement of logical conclusions arrived at from the facts. Think the matter over carefully "without favor but with fairness".

Make your own decision, stand by it unmoved and be sure to exercise your vote.

Canada Needs Your Vote; and—

Canada Needs Meighen

The Pike Is a Cannibal Fish

How many people realize that our ponds and rivers contain a fish which, in proportion to his size, completely outdoes the shark as a cold-blooded assassin?

The shark will eat dead meat; but the pike is a killer pure and simple. He preys entirely upon living things. Fish, eels, rats, mice, ducklings, waterhens, and frogs—on each and all of these he wages an incessant warfare. He is a veritable ogre of the waters, hated by every other creature that swims in or upon them, with one exception. He has one great foe who is not afraid to tackle him single-handed, and that foe is the otter.

In April the eggs are laid from which will hatch a swarm of future terrors of the waters. Within a few weeks of their birth they make themselves felt by attacking and eating all their little brothers and sisters who are not so well developed as themselves.

When they are three inches long they are gulping down minnows half as big as themselves. And the baby pike does not do things by halves. He has a rapid digestion which leads to keenness of appetite. Often he will devour two or three times his own weight of small fish in a day.

In a remarkably short time he becomes a jack, weighing from two to six pounds, and capable of dining off trout, roach, and dace eight inches or more in length.

Except on very rare occasions he does not give chase to his prey. You will find him lying motionless amongst the weeds, whose color his own olive-green coat matches perfectly. There he waits until some luckless fish ventures his way. Then the motionless body is galvanized into life; there is a lightning dart, and the prey is held by the middle in his terrible jaws. He may keep it there for some time before turning it round and sending it head first down his gaping throat. Occasionally, if he is not very hungry, he will play with it as a cat plays with a mouse.

The pike's head is lengthened out in front into a kind of beak, which is armed above and below with rows and rows of strong needle-pointed teeth. So powerful are the muscles that work the jaws, that on many occasions a captured pike has bitten clean through an angler's boot.

Frank Buckland, the famous naturalist, had an amazing stuffed specimen of two large pikes, one of which had tried to swallow the other. He had got the other's head and shoulders right down his throat, and both fish died of suffocation.

Another remarkable instance of the pike's voracity occurred a short time ago. Several tame swans were kept on a lake which contained large pike.

One day the owner saw a swan floating with its head under water. As the head did not reappear he rowed out in a boat, and on investigation found that a pike had grabbed the swan's head, which was fixed firmly in his throat.

The pike grows to an enormous size. Even if we do not credit the old chronicler's account of a fish which was two hundred years old and weighed about five hundredweight, we have authentic records of pike of seventy pounds which have been caught in this country. Several of fifty pounds have been taken during the present generation.

In some foreign countries they grow to even greater sizes. In the Lake of Geneva, for instance, you may see far down in the gin-clear water large shadowy shapes whose weight must be enormous.

Pioneer Churches.

The first settlers came into Woodville district in 1827. In 1832 there were a dozen families, enough to build a church. But the roof fell in during the first winter after a heavy storm. That was enough, but they could not get outside help, for their minister was not recognized by the church because of some indiscretion in Scotland. So the square timber church with the fallen log roof and rude benches was never rebuilt. Not until 1846 was there erected a frame church, the pride of the settlement. In 1854 they secured a minister, McTavish, whose mark is still on the congregation. In 1875 came the first brick church, which was destroyed by fire two years ago, and has now been replaced.

To fall victims to fire and the ravages of time seems to be usual in country churches in this province, but for a church to remain an unsightly ruin for years because of the recollection of a minister's faults, which surely the Atlantic might wash away, is something novel, and quite fortunately so, in Ontario.

Candles In Mines.

The gold, diamond, and other mines of South Africa are enormous consumers of candles. According to the commercial year book for 1920 of the Johannesburg Chamber of Commerce, these mines in the preceding twelve months used 9,917,716 pounds of paraffin ten-ounce candles. The bulk of these (8,218,367 lbs.) was consumed in the gold mines of the Rand. In the coal mines of the United States no candles are used, for fear of dust explosions, but a great many of them are burned in the Canadian metal mines. Even in the latter carbide lamps are preferred, and these have been replaced to some extent by electric lamps fed from small storage batteries. The battery is attached to the miner's back at the waist, the cord passing up behind and over his head to the lamp fixed above his forehead.

ADOPTS LABOR RESOLUTION

London, Nov. 4.—The Hous of Commons unanimously adopted labor resolution on Washington conference.

NEW GERMAN KING.

Herr Stinnes Planned to Pay Canada a Visit.

With rooms already engaged at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto and his eyes set on Sudbury, it was only an accident at the last moment which prevented Hugo Stinnes, pan-German, multi-millionaire, captain of industry and would-be restorer of the Hohenzollerns, from paying Canada a visit not long ago. Reputed to be worth two billion dollars, controlling 60 German newspapers, lord of innumerable banks, factories, mines, with carefully camouflaged interests reaching into various parts of the world, Stinnes is to-day, the greatest power in Germany. "Stinnes, the new shadow of the world," is how a German-American writer describes him, going on to say that Stinnes is a very potential danger.

Horribly clever, a tireless schemer and a man who will brook no opposition, Stinnes is said to have one great ambition. He hopes to see a Kaiser enthroned again in a mighty Fatherland and to be that Kaiser's Imperial Chancellor. To this end 'tis said that Stinnes is daily adding to his wealth and power. It is an ominous picture that J. A. Stillman paints in the New York Tribune. Stillman, born in Germany but resident all his life in the United States, was at one time in the service of Stinnes. Hence his intimate acquaintance with that unscrupulous wizard of German finance.

Unlike most men of his industrious ways, Stinnes was born to wealth. Of a German Rhineland family, his father, who owned a great trawling fleet, left him a fortune of some $2,000,000 which the son quickly increased. Immensely rich before the war his wealth has increased enormously since. Stinnes is about 50 years old, medium sized, heavily built, with a small Vandyke beard, very dark with a Spanish cast of features, short-cropped hair, heavy, vulgar, grasping hands with stout fingers, and thick bushy eyebrows from under which keen penetrating eyes look out. Stinnes is insolent and overbearing with anyone who differs with him. His conversation is of business and when that subject is exhausted, of politics, which he follows with keen attention and on which he can rarely be tempted to say what he really thinks. At heart he is a complete Prussian junker, with all the arrogance of that particular class of human beings—a character which fits with his imperialistic ambitions for the Fatherland and himself.

Stinnes lives simply, dresses almost like a beggar, in which his eldest son imitates him, wears the same suit of clothes summer and winter, hob-nailed boots, a small black tie which is invariably the same and has probably no evening clothes—at least no one remembers having seen him wear them, so says Stillman. Stinnes' main home is a very plainly furnished place with just the necessary tables and chairs to accommodate his family and guests—devoid of pictures, flowers and works of art. The food served is plain though good, but the wine is plentiful and of the very best quality, and includes abundance of champagne. After dinner his sister-in-law usually turns on the gramophone, to which the guests dance.

The wife of this remarkable man is a good-looking woman but dressed plainly and lacking jewellery almost entirely. Stinnes, Jr., the eldest son, is a man of about thirty years, and a chip of the old block. Stinnes, Jr., has just been over in England with some German friends. He has a scheme to buy up for a song the supposedly worthless slag heaps at British mines, ship them to Germany and distill therefrom by a new process immensely valuable oils and chemicals. His father doubtless had some idea of obtaining cheap natural products in Canada from which German science could win riches.

Stinnes has New York offices, though carefully disguised under another name. Among his numerous enterprises is the proposed construction of a trans-Atlantic fleet mightier than the Hamburg-America line. Stinnes' ramifications enable him to influence business in all parts of the world. He has agents in all the German Government departments. During the war he was a confidant of the kaiser and it is said that Stinnes persuaded the new German republic to restore a portion of his fortune to the dethroned monarch. Stinnes bitterly laments that Germany did not borrow heavily from the United States before the war, for he thinks that would have kept the United States from the side of the Allies.

Old Theories.

The foundation on which much of the progress of chemistry has been built was the proposition that matter is indestructible; and likewise the notion that energy was indestructible, or the theory of the conservation of energy, was responsible for reconciling the laws and ideas of physics, and pointed out the way for tremendous progress. More recent investigation, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, has shown an interrelation between these two things—matter and energy—and that, as in radioactive substances, energy may appear at the expense of matter, so that according to more recent ideas the sum total of matter and energy is constant, but each one of them separately is not necessarily so. However, a small quantity of matter corresponds to a prodigious amount of energy, and reversely a very large amount of energy, corresponds to a very small portion of matter.

Niagara's Horse-power.

If the falls of Niagara were fully utilized it is computed that they would supply energy equal to 7,000,000 horse-power, while on the upper Mississippi 2,000,000 such units of work should be available.

Suicides in the United States during 1920 numbered 6,171, including 707 children.

Filling Up With Anti-Freeze

Use Alcohol And Water In Correct Proportions And Mix Well

HAVING CLEANED OUT AND STOPPED all leaks in the cooling system, it is well to look up in the instruction book or elsewhere obtain its liquid capacity in quarts as a basis for mixing the anti-freeze. To be on the safe side it is well to use the stated capacity, rather than the amount of water that actually escapes, as data for making the mixture, but it is a good plan to measure the amount which runs out from the fully filled system, in draining it and, if this is much less than the stated water capacity, it may indicate that the radiator is still partly clogged. During the first cold weather, it is seldom necessary to use a mixture stronger than one part of alcohol to four parts of water by volume or a 20% alcohol mixture, which freezes at about 14 degrees above zero Fahrenheit, but in the "dead of winter," a 40% solution, freezing at 20 degrees below zero, may be required. Assuming the weaker mixture to be used, the following is the procedure. Measure out as many quarts of denatured alcohol as are represented by the number of quarts of capacity in the system, divided by five (for instance 4½ quarts of alcohol for a system holding 22 quarts), pour it directly into the drained radiator and then fill the system completely with water. Supplying the lighter alcohol first will assist the mixing of the two liquids in the radiator, but it is well to run the engine for a time to complete this process. If a circulating pump is used, a very short run will thoroughly distribute the alcohol through the water, but if thermo-siphon circulation is employed, the engine should be allowed to run until the liquid is slightly warm—enough to create the required circulation. Probably, after the liquid has been in motion for a time a little more water will be required to fill the system, as some air that has been caught in the jackets will have been displaced. This solution when at a temperature of 60 Fahrenheit should test about 0.975 on the specific gravity scale for liquids lighter than water and about 14 degrees above zero on a freezometer marked directly in freezing temperatures. The following solution will protect to 5 degrees below zero and evaporates but little—30% of a mixture composed of equal parts of denatured alcohol and glycerine and 70% of water. Glycerine, however, is costly and this solution cannot be tested with the hydrometer, but the cost of the glycerine may be offset by the saving in alcohol otherwise lost through evaporation.

PROVING VALVE TIGHTNESS

W. A. W. asks: What is the best way to test valves after grinding them, to prove that they are tight?

Answer: One very good method is to wipe clean both valve face and seat and then to apply a thin, even coating of prussian blue to the valve face, insert the valve into place on its seat and rotate it a small fraction of a turn only. If the job is perfect, there will be a continuous band of blue transferred to the seat. Do not rotate the valve very far or the result of the test will be uncertain. Instead of using prussian blue, a series of closely spaced pencil marks squarely across the valve face can be made, the valve put in place and rotated a very little. If all the lines are broken, the seating is continuous. The ability of a valve to hold gasoline is very good proof of its correct seating and this test can usually be applied to overhead valves, although not readily to those of the pocketed type.

MISFIRING WITH OPEN THROTTLE

E. E. P., Jr., asks: What makes my car travel well, on high gear, on level roads, but miss on the hills, when the engine will "hit" on all cylinders, as soon as I throw into second or low?

Answer: When pulling hills, on high, the engine is running rather slowly on open throttle, but when you engage a lower speed it is running much faster on much less open throttle. Anything that prevents good ignition at slow speed and with full gas, may account for your trouble, such as poor compression, faulty carburation, too wide spark-plug gaps, plugs with poor porcelains or a weak spark coil. If the carburetor delivers too weak a mixture at low speed with full throttle or if it or the gas line is somewhat obstructed, missing such as you describe, will occur.

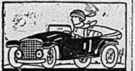
Preparing For Anti-Freeze

See That The Cooling System Is Tight And Unobstructed

THERE ARE MANY EXPEDIENTS that offer the cooling system some protection in cold weather, but the only way of absolutely safeguarding it against damage is by filling it and keeping it filled with a liquid that cannot freeze at any temperature to which it may be exposed. Long experience has proved that there is one anti-freeze liquid that is superior, everything considered, to all others namely, a mixture of denatured alcohol and water, to which may be added, if desired, enough glycerine to reduce the rate of alcohol evaporation. When freezing temperatures begin to prevail in the day time, and when nightly emptying of the cooling system becomes the only safe course, the time for putting in anti-freeze has come. Before filling up with it, the whole system, but especially the radiator, may have to be cleaned out with alkali; primarily to make sure that there are no obstructed radiator passages, which will be left filled with water, when it is attempted to empty the system and will thus fail to fill with anti-freeze, with a liability of freezing and bursting when exposed to cold. If the circulation through the radiator is known to be poor and there are "cold spots" on the radiator front, cleaning out is peremptorily required, in case oil is to be used for non-freeze purposes and it is a very wise precaution, even when alcohol is to be used, although this liquid has excellent mixing powers and will penetrate wherever there is a passage. Not only should the whole system be cleaned out, but all leaks in it must be stopped, as no one can afford to waste expensive alcohol. Rubber connections should be tightened or replaced, if leaky, the pump stuffing-boxes taken up or re-packed, if they are not perfectly tight and any leaks in the radiator itself, soldered. If one has not already an alcoholometer or freezometer—an instrument similar to a battery hydrometer, but adapted to measure the percentage of alcohol in water—as a matter of security and convenience one should be obtained.

IDLING ENGINE TO WARM IT



H. L. A. asks: When an engine is started from a cold condition, does it pay to let it run idle a while before making it move the car?

Answer: This practice is generally recommended, on the ground that it is better to have the engine running reliably before work is demanded of it, thus obviating the annoyance due to possible stalling on the road and also on account of the advisability of having the oil warmed and circulating properly before hard pulling is required. Our personal preference, however, is to avoid prolonged idle operation and to let the engine drive the car slowly as soon as it is running, keeping low gear engaged and the load thus very light until it is warm enough to carry on second speed or high gear, without the carburetor being choked. One may as well be getting somewhere, even slowly, on the gasoline that would otherwise be burned in idling, but severe work should not be demanded of an engine until it is somewhat limbered up.

READJUSTING CARBURETOR FOR WINTER DRIVING

A. L. G. asks: Why is it that somewhat more gasoline has to be fed by the carburetor in cold than in warm weather? My engine has lately been a little weak and I find that my instruction book says that the needle-valve adjustment should be opened a little when cold weather comes on.

Answer: Cold gasoline is less perfectly fluid than warm gasoline and thus less fuel passes through a given size of carburetor jet in cold than in warm weather. Each cubic foot of cold air contains more oxygen than the same volume of hot air and thus, at a given rate of flow, more oxygen enters the carburetor in cold than in hot weather, which requires that somewhat more gasoline be supplied to mix with it to form a mixture of certain proportions. The practical reason, however for increasing the fuel feed is because, in cold weather, only a part of the gasoline evaporates so as to be available as fuel. Thus an excess must be supplied to make up for the loss sustained.

LIGHT-SIX NOW $1725

Why Studebaker can sell the LIGHT-SIX at the new low price

The LIGHT-SIX is built complete in the most modern automobile plant in the world, designed especially for the production of this car.

Studebaker manufactures in this plant its own drop forgings; its own castings, stampings, motors, axles, transmissions; its own steering gears, springs, bodies, and other vital parts.

Under these favorable manufacturing conditions—because of its enormous production and standardized methods of manufacture, Studebaker is able to make important savings, these savings are reflected in the price of the car to you.

The LIGHT-SIX is a real step forward in automobile engineering. No other light, six-cylinder automobile yet produced has a motor so free from vibration, nor so flexible and powerful.

What you should know about the LIGHT-SIX

Power—40 H. P. in a detachable-head motor of great flexibility, remarkably free from vibration, and with the exclusive Studebaker inclined valve feature.

Economy—21 to 26 miles to the gallon—12,000 to 18,000 miles on tires.

Balance—You could cut the LIGHT-SIX in two parts or four parts and find that each section would weigh the same. Such perfect balance means steady road-holding—there is no side sway or creeping.

Comfort—Equal distribution of weight means easy riding and easy handling. The touch of one hand on the steering wheel is sufficient to keep it on the road.

See this car—drive it—test it. You will be won by it. You will understand why it is the Studebaker ideal of what a light, six-cylinder car should be

Of Interest to Women

Has anybody realized that Mendelssohn is the most popular composer? Why, no marriage takes place without him, or at least without his famous Wedding March. Its theme is synonymous with nuptial benediction 'for better, for worse.' In the movies in vaudeville, a few notes from that noted composition brings better than any other suggestion a complete picture of the altar before your eyes. Mendelssohn has married more couples than all the ministers in the world put together.

Amongst the fifty-five personages who were distinguished at teh special convocation of McGill University, which last week celebrated its centenary, were two women, Lady Grace Julia Drummond and Helen Richmond Young Reid, B.A., L.L.D. Both of these women have most distinguished war records, the first in the service of the Red Cross and the latter as convenor of the Montreal Patriotic Fund. This recognition of women marks, if nothing else should, the advance in the breadth of thought of a great university. The thoughts of univesities may be long, long thoughts, and even deep, deep thoughts, but it is not always so that they are distinguished by breadth.

The Paris autumn races seem to indicate strongly that the great vogue for matelasse fabrics will not only continue throughout the winter, but will cover the early spring, and Rodier says crepes will be as good as ever next season.

New York reports all shades of red, orange, pumpkin and the deep yellows now in eardrops, hat pins, necklaces, girdles and other accessories, which were never more a feature of the wardrobe, and give a smart touch to the costumes of mixtures and dark plain materials, for the sports and promenade.

For trimmings the grey furs seem to be away in the lead, with squirrel and Australian opossum still strong and mole also on the more conservative and finer models, and, while the martens retain their popularity for scarfs and stoles the light grey fox gains some share of favor.

Quite a sensation is being created in Paris by Jenny's lovely evening frocks in fuchsia shades, which show a blending of pinkish mauve with the deep fuchsia blue. Taffeta is used for these dresses and the garniture is metal lace and flowers.

Beer, Jeanne, Halle, Arnold and many other couturiers sponsor the distinctly new movement of the low hoop which presages, of course, the long skirt, and the slightly fitted bodice.

AMATEUR SOVIETS.

Satirical Article Written by Well-known Canadian Humorist.

What is the best weapon against Bolshevism? A machine gun in your cellar, or a laugh on your face?

There are some earnest people in Canada who, not long ago, were urging the private machine gun method, although somehow they did not look like citizens particularly adept in shooting.

Other Canadians believe in the "laugh" theory. There may be a middle course and neither extreme group may be right, but the "take it lightly" contingent have the support of Stephen Leacock.

Stephen Leacock, in "Vanity Fair" describes, in his satirical vein, the organization of "our little soviet" in an apartment house.

The way they got the idea was by hearing so constantly how the Soviet system was working, and the great things it was doing. Leacock had a friend who belonged to the same mandolin club as he did, and who always used to say when things went wrong, "now under Soviet government this sort of thing couldn't happen."

This idea was so prevalent that Leacock and his friends spoke about the matter to a certain Globenski, who told them how to organize a Soviet, and generously offered to be dictator himself.

This Globenski used to mend shoes but he said he had grown sick and tired of the capitalist regime and bourgeois society. He said he had no wish to take part in capitalism any more.

Leacock and his cronies went to Globenski, and said: "Globenski, do you know how to make a Soviet?"

"I do."

"How much will you take to make a Soviet for us?"

"I will take nothing. The Soviet is based on love. I will do it for love."

Then he rose from his bench and kissed them. "It was wonderful," says Leacock.

Globenski moved into the apartment house chosen as the locale of the Soviet. The new communal methods effected a striking change of life. Instead of the nasty selfishness or each family living in its own little den, like hostile animals, the whole building was now open to them all.

"We go where we like," explains the Montreal writer. "Only last night three of the comrades sat in my room beside my bed after I retired, and sang Russian songs by the hour. Under the old, selfish regime, I should have slept—as it was, I didn't."

If a comrade, under this new system, wants food, he takes it. Three nights ago Leacock woke up and saw a comrade looking into his ice-box.

"What is it, brother?" he asked, mildly.

"Cold ham, comrade. Hast thou any?"

"Take, and take gladly," Leacock replied.

As a matter of fact, he had eaten all the ham before the comrade came up, but it illustrates the principle of the thing.

When a brother feels that he can work no longer in bourgeois society, all that he has to do is to go before Globenski and hold up his two hands and say: "Look, brother, I work no longer." And Globenski says: "I notice that you don't."

To learn Russian is a help, but difficult. Globenski is teaching little oral phrases, such as, "Have I the property of my brother?" "No, but I mighty soon mean to."

This apartment house Soviet wrote to Comrade Lenine, and received the nicest letter. He said he kissed them all.

Mrs. F. B. E.: "Here are some of my recipes which other women might like:

Sure Dumplings: 1 quart flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, enough milk or water to stir to a stiff dough. Drop large spoonfuls of this mixture in luke warm water and leave uncovered while boiling. Turn carefully with a spoon after cooking 15 minutes, and then cook 10 minutes longer.

Let cool, then beat vigorously, adding to it 3 beaten eggs. Drop the mixture in gem tins, brush over tops with white of egg. Bake 3 minutes in a quick oven.

Cream Filling For Cream Puffs: 1 egg, ½ cup of suga, 1 pint of milk. Heat together in a saucepan and when boiling add ⅜ cup of cornstarch or flour mixed smooth in a little cold milk, and also add a little butter; season with vanilla and it is ready to put into the puffs.

Miss E. M. W.: "I would like other women to have my cake recipe:

My Chocolate Cake: 2 eggs, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups flour, ¾ cup butter, ¾ cup sour milk, ¼ square of unsweetened chocolate shaved thin, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter and sugar together, add sour milk with the soda dissolved in it, then add the eggs well-beaten, the flour, the vanilla and teh chocolate dissolved in ½ cup of boiling water. Bake 45 minutes in loaf form or about 30 minutes in layer form.

E. K. C.: "Some time ago the question was asked in your column, 'Please tell me why, in baking pies with fresh fruit or berries, the bottom crust does not get done.' The way that I personally, have found aound this trouble is to bush the lowe cust with the white of an egg befoe baking. This gives excellent esults. Will you publish it so that housekeeper who asked that question may see it? I do the same with custard pies."

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlysle H. Holcomb

THE KING TALKS WITH THE MOON

That night, I mean the night that Tinker Bob the King was going out to tell some of the forest creatures about the last frolic they were to have before the next visit of Jack Frost, the Moon rose early. The King of the Forest knew hat it meant to see Mr. Moon so early in the evening. It looked to him as though it would be a clea night.

Said he: "I will have a talk with the Moon and see what is on his mind for I wouldn't have him ruin our frolic for anything."

Tinker Bob went to the highest tree top adn there he waved his hand and the moon saw him. He smiled upon the King with a big smile. "Mr. Moon are you going to shine brightly all tonight?" asked Tinker Bob.

"I had it in mind to shine on the forest all night," said the Moon.

"I wanted to have a frolic for the forest creatures before Jack Frost retuns again. I am afraid if he sees you shining so brightly he will come in the midst of our frolic and spoil it all."

"Ha, ha," laughed Mr. Moon, "you don't want me to shine for your frolic then. You wanted me to shine in the summer time every night, and you didn't like it if a cloud came sailing along and made it dark. Now you want a cloud to come along and make it dark."

"You understand, Mr. Moon, Jack Frost comes this time in the year and you know he will not come now till you are shining brightly. I just want to ask a favor—that you ask the clouds to sail by tonight till the frolic is over."

"But don't you know O King of the Forest, that I want to see the frolics too, and then some of the creatures [illegible] night."

"Does your [illegible] they should be both instantl-ed?"

"[illegible] will be too late. They will be now and then to see what is going on just so that Jack Frost doesn't get the idea in his head that you are coming out to stay."

"I think, O King, we can arrange it all right. I will be glad to see you have a frolic and I will see to it that Jack gets no chance to come along and interrupt the good time you are planning for the forest creatures. I travel around the world every day and I do not see, such a King as you are. Every forest ought to have a King that would see to it that its creatures are protected, but they are not protected in the other forests of the world. I think you are the most wonderful King in all the earth and I will surely see ot it that no one disturbs you while you have a good time for the many dwellers of your great forest."

[illegible] Bob went to his Palace happy that Mr. Moon was going to

"I had it in mind to shine on the forest all night," said the Moon.

WHAT DID BETTY BUY?

COPY OF BETTY'S LETTER

Dear Mr. Simpson

You know Clara Green, don't you? WELL SHE WANTED TO BE A NURSE. What do you think of that? OF COURSE SHE WAS SIMPLY TRYING TO APE A SISTER OF MINE. However she left for Toronto taking her maid Topsy to carry her luggage. When they got to the station the train was pulling out. THEY RAN SO FAST TOPSY RUPTURED A BLOOD VESSEL IN HER LEG. However Clara got on the train alright. Then what do you think happened? SHE TUMBLED AND FELL PEL-MEL ON HER BAGGAGE. Isn't that funny? I BET SHE WANTED TO BAN A NASTY ENGINEER FOR JERKING THE TRAIN SO. She soon got herself in order and reached her seat safely. SHE TOOK OUT A BOOK BY CHARLES LAMB READ A PAGE AND FELL ASLEEP. On arriving in Toronto she woke with a start, and hurried off. Her baggage was heavy and looked a burden. A NICE CHAP PLEADED TO HELP HER. She refused to let him as he was a stranger. But after walking two blocks she was tired out. THEN SHE THOUGHT HERSELF A SIMPLE MONSTER FOR REFUSING HIS HELP. She finally reached the Training School and registered. But she didn't like it a bit. She felt very blue. IN FACT AT HER DINNER SHE ATE A VERY LITTLE. She fought with her room mate. IN A FIT OF JEALOUSY OR ANGER SHE LEFT. However before going home she bought a new dress at Smith's store. When she tried it on it didn't fit. SO SHE TOOK IT TO SMITH'S ALTERATION ROOM FOR CHANGES. Even then it didn't fit, and she wouldn't keep it. SO APPLYING FOR REFUND SHE GOT HER MONEY BACK. Then she took the next train for home. Isn't that an interesting story?

PUZZLE

FIND ABOVE THE NAMES OF 12 ARTICLES SOLD IN A GROCERY STORE

John Simpson was amazed when he read the above letter, which Betty Beatty had handed him. "Our order is in that letter," said Betty. "I've hidden the name of each article I've come to buy in each of the underlined sentences. Puzzle it out, and I'll tell you the quantities." "Well," said Mr. Simpson "I can't find the name of a single article in my store, that is mentioned [illegible]." "Of course you can't" said Betty. "[illegible] the clue. In each underlined sentence I've hidden one name. It is only the name of a grocery, fruit or vegetable, and there is just one thing in each sentence. The letters aren't jumbled and all you have to do is to find the right place to start on. For instance, if you start on the letter "B" in the fifth word of the first underlined sentence you will quickly see B-E-A-N. That's the name of one of the things I want. There are twelve items altogether, and the name of each one is hidden in one of the underlined sentences. So now what do I want? Find the names and you get the order."

John Simpson puzzled the letter out and got the order. Can you do as well? If you can mail your answers at once. Over $2500.00 in prizes and rewards is being given. Remember there are no trade mark names or products of any particular manufacturer. In many cases, as in the first underlined sentence, the single name as "Bean" and not the plural "Beans" is used. Be very careful, therefore, if you find the names to spell them exactly as they appear in the sentence.

NEAR TIBET BORDER.

Canadian Tells of Celebration of King's Birthday.

From the Tietan borders of China, Miss Elizabeth Wilson, a missionary, formerly of St. Mary's, Ont., writes a description of a visit to the British consulate at Chengtu to attend a king's birthday celebration:

"Arrived at the Consulate we found the usual decorations of flags and pennants and the usual gay, crowd of foreigners, men, women and children. There are ninety-two foreign children in Chengtu, not including the out-of-town children, about twenty at the Canadian School — and a good many of the hundred odd were there. There were races and sports for the children, who grew quite excited over the pole vaulting, which was finally won by Tom Freeman, who is twelve, at 7 ft. 2 in. He afterwards did 7 ft. 4 in. just to show us he could. How does that compare with junior pole vaulting in our country?

"There was a British general there as guest of the consul. His name is Gen. Pereria (the name is of Portuguese origin) and he served in France with some battalion of the Engineers. Gen. Pereria has walked here 1,100 of the 1,300 miles from Pekin. He is on a hunting expedition. Just now he is looking for a golden monkey (gold-colored, I mean) and some queer kind of bear. He is willing to spend three years in securing a specimen of each. He intends to go home by South America, cross the Andes on foot and come down the Amazon. At present his corns are so bad that he was going round in carpet slippers. Tea and cake were served, and then there were more sports.

"The new church at Shen Hsie Gai has just been dedicated and there was a concert there in the afternoon. The foreign choir furnished the music. The place was packed with Chinese and foreigners. The foreign women sat in the back gallery. The audience was never still for a minute. They came and went, moved hither and thither and paid no attention to the amount of disturbance they were creating or to the amount of noise they made."

Our Pension Lists.

Canada's annual pension list in respect of the late war amounts to $30,802,406, payable to 50,287 disabled soldiers and 19,411 dependents.

The figures, which are up to June 30, 1921, include allowances for 25,413 wives, 24,721 children and 172 parents of disability pensioners, and 16,142 children of dependent pensioners. The total amount paid out in pensions up to August 31 last was $101,414,216.

Since September 1, 1920, when the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act came into operation, 5,636 veterans have taken out policies ranging from $500 to $5,000, the aggregate amount of the policies being $15,410,000, and the premium income $189,240. Up to September 30 last 71 claims had been paid, totalling $185,862.

According to the report of the Soldier Settlement Board at June 30, 1921, the number of soldiers' loans approved was 20,465, and the amount of money advanced totalled $83,884,210.

Following vocational training, carried on by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment which had taken care of 51,455 men up to August 21 last, loans have been made to some of the students for the purchase of tools and equipment, and also to university men in order to complete their courses. In the case of 2,271 approved applications for such loans, $623,857 has been advanced.

For six years ending June 30, 1921, the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Department has expended $105,159,531, of which some $15,000,000 only went into building, equipment and furnishings. The total outlay for war service gratuities approximated $164,000,000.

Church History of Ontario.

The church history of Ontario communities is a theme of romance, if sympathetically and patiently looked up. Naturally, it depends on each congregation to present its own story. Owen Sound Methodists have recently published in local papers the history of the First Methodist Church, which commenced with the beginning of the settlement in 1841. One curious featutre is the comparatively large number of pastors in the intervening eighty years. The new pastor is the thirty-fifth.

The congregation has the first crown warrant granting the site for the first Wesleyan log chapel. Next came a building of stone flags from a local quarry. In 1860, the church was enlarged. After a heavy fall of snow in 1875 the roof caved in and the present structure was erected. The New Connexion Church united with the Wesleyan at the general union and the New Connexion church became a residence.

Most celebrated of the many pastors was Rev. John A. Williams, who later became general superintendent of the church.

Vancouver's Ambition.

Vancouver's ambition to rival Montreal ultimately as a grain port may yet be realised. The officials of the Johnson line of Stockholm, in declining to accept a cargo of 100,000 British Columbia sleepers for the Sudan, wrote to the British Columbia authorities in London that all their tonnage in the North Pacific will be needed for the movement of grain, flour and other cargo from the Pacific coast via the Panama Canal.

THE ADOLESCENT SCHOOL ATTENDANCE ACT

In 1919, the Ontario Legislature passed what is known as the Adolescent School Attendance Act of 1919. This Act requires the attendance at school of adolescents or young people between the ages of fourteen and eighteen unless excused as provided for in the Act. These Adolescents are divided by the Act into two classes, namely those between fourteen and sixteen, and those between sixteen and eighteen. It is provided in the Act that the various clauses shall come into effect by the proclamation of the Lieutenant Governor.

By such proclamation, the clause affecting the class between fourteen and sixteen came into effect on September 1st, 1921.

In the discharge of official duties, I find considerable uncertainty as to the requirements of the Act, and as a matter of information I would point out to those concerned that no adolescent between the ages of fourteen and sixteen can now be legally employed by anyone between the hours of 8 a.m and 5 p.m. unless said adolescent holds an employment certificate issued by the school attendance officer of the municipality. Nor may a parent employ such adolescent during these hours without a home permit similarly issued. A violation of this Act incurs a penalty of $5 for the first offence and $25 for a second or subsequent offence.

This clause applies to all adolescents between the ages named whether they have been employed before September or not. To continue so employed they must obtain the required employment certificate or home permit, as the case may be, or their employers are liable for the penalties imposed by the Act.

The Foundation of Health is Habit

"For every man who has lost his life by what he did in the last five minutes a hundred men have died because of what they had been doing in the last five years."

Life is made up of habits. There is the health habit. And also the habit of ill-health. It is surprising what a lot of people have developed the latter.

What hosts of women have bilious spells and bilious headaches about every so often, year in and year out, and never think of correcting the action of the liver, and thereby removing the cause of this oft-recurring trouble.

They have formed the habit of being bilious.

Many are the men, indoor workers as well as those who spend their time in the open, who frequently suffer from backache, and yet neglect to get the kidneys in healthful condition.

It is the backache habit which is robbing life of its pleasures for them.

These are dangerous habits.

Some people live for many years with their systems poisoned by impurities—they live and suffer.

I had tried various other pills and remedies with no effect whatever, but immediately I started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I got relief, and

TOLMIE SPEAKS AT WOODSTOCK

Government's Work For Farmers Told by Minister of Agriculture.

TARIFF IS NEEDED

Protection for Agriculture Declared Imperative in View of Fordney Act.

Wooodstock, Ont., Nov. 7.—"Premier Meighen policies are the same in Quebec as they are in British Columbia, and the country over. They suffer from no geographical deviation, but are the same everywhere. He is anxious to see the people prosper to the fullest extent," said Hon. F. S. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, in paying a tribute to Arthur Meighen at a mass meeting held here on Saturday in support of E. W. Nesbitt, the National, Liberal and Conservative candidate in North Oxford. The meeting was held in the City Hall, which was filled, mostly with farmers from the surrounding country. Dr. Tolmie claimed he was no politician, simply a farmer. He resented the imputation of Mr. Crerar that the farmers had no representation in the Meighen Cabinet and went on to prove that he knew a little about farming, that he had been born on a 1,200-acre farm in British Columbia, and had spent most of his life there, and had been closely associated with all the leading agricultural associations of Canada. The Minister of Agriculture told of the splendid record of work accomplished by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, a record of facts and figures which told of a constant endeavor to help the farmers, to encourage them in the improvement of their crops and their live stock, and to give them every possible opportunity of bettering their markets. The Government today was spending five millions through the Department of Agriculture alone, to help the farmers. Sir Robert Borden had made one grant of $10,000,000, one million of which had gone to Ontario, and $350,000 to $400,000 to the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph alone. Turning to the tariff, he spoke of the need of the farmer for a protective tariff. He told of attending a mass meeting of farmers in the United States, where they were unanimous in demanding a tariff to protect their markets that the markets of Europe had gone, for the want of money to buy and that for the next five or six years they would have to depend on the home market. Canada was the second best customer of the U. S. and consumed yearly $770,000,000 of produce from that country. They had placed a high tariff against Canadian goods, and therefore it was necessary to find other markets and protect Canadian farmers from the United States.

28,000 On Strike Against Temporary Injunction.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 7.—All union locals of the Indiana coal fields from which reports have been received at district headquarters here, have announced the striking miners will return to work, William Mitch, secretary-treasurer of District No. 11, of the Mine Workers' Union, said. Twenty-eight thousand miners in the field have been on strike apparently in protest against the temporary injunction granted by United States District Judge Anderson, pronouncing use of the "check-off" system of collecting union dues. The men were ordered to return to work after the United States Circuit Court of Appeals had suspended that part of the order discontinuing the check-off.

RURAL QUEBEC HEARS MEIGHEN

Premier Speaks to Residents of Argenteuil and Terrebonne at Lachute.

ARGUES FOR TARIFF

Indignantly Repudiates the Calumny That He is Enemy of French Canada

Lachute, Que., Nov. 7.—Right Honorable Arthur Meighen expounded his Government's policy of protection for Canadian producers before an audience of more than a thousand electors here and administered a rebuke to those who in this province are seeking to distract attention from the predominant issue of the election by representing him as unfriendly to the French-Canadian people. The Prime Minister spoke mainly to residents of the counties of Argenteuil and Terrebone, both of which have in years gone by, generally returned Conservative members. In Argenteuil about 50 per cent. of the population is English and 50 per cent. French. It is one of the constituencies in this province which since Confederation has returned an English-speaking member to parliament. Until 1891 it was always represented by a Conservative; from 1891 to 1904 it had a Liberal member in the Commons. From 1904 to 1917 the electors of Argenteuil returned Sir George Perley, now Canadian High Commissioner in London, to the House of Commons. In 1917, however, P. R. McGibbon, a Liberal, won the seat. It is believed there is a good chance of the county electing a Government supporter. Thomas Christie, who was originally a Liberal, but who is an ardent advocate of the policies promulgated by the Prime Minister and the National Liberal and Conservative party, is the Government candidate against P. R. McGibbon, the Liberal nominee.

Fauteaux is Candidate.

In Terrebonne, Hon. Andre Fauteaux, the Solicitor-General, is the Government candidate against J. E. Provost, the Liberal who sat in the last Parliament. Mr. Fauteaux is carrying on an aggressive campaign.

ENTERS SUIT TO CONTEST WILL IN FAVOR OF SISTER

J. A. McCammon, sheriff of Leeds and Grenville Counties, has filed a caveat against the will here for the high court. The caveat alleges that "the will was partly prepared and procured through undue influence of Edith Mary McCammon, and that it is not the will of a free and independent testator." Miss McCammon has filed a petition in the Surrogate Court asking that she be granted letters probate. The value of the estate is estimated at $50,000.

GOLDBERG GETS TWO-YEAR TERM

Mr. Justice Riddell Hands Out Stiff Warning to Motorists.

MUST PAY THE PRICE

Declares Accidents Are in the Class With Killings.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—In giving a sentence of two years less one day to Harris Goldberg, in the Assizes on Saturday for having run down and killed Miss Rose Stein with his automobile, Mr. Justice Riddell declared declared that something must be done to teach the lesson that motor accidents are not misfortunes, but that they are crimes.

In commenting on the automobile accident situation, Mr. Justice Riddell remarked that the time has come when the killing of people by motors should be treated in the same manner as other killings should be handled. "Too many imagine that as long as they do not exceed the speed limits they may proceed as they please and leave others to look out for themselves," he declared. "That is not the law, nothing could be more erroneous: the statue prohibits running above a certain mileage, twenty or twenty-five miles per hour, but it does not authorize anyone to run up to that speed. The law is quite clear that such vehicles must not be driven recklessly or negligently or at a speed or in a manner dangerous to the public under all circumstances, including the traffic which might reasonably be expected.

CUNNING PLOT, SAYS ULSTER

Dragging Ulster Into Parley Result of Design, Says Belfast Paper.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

Belfast, Nov. 8.—The Northern Whig presents the typical Ulster view of the present Irish parley in commenting on the summoning to London of the Ulster Cabinet. It says: Dragging Ulster into the picture is not an impulsive act, it is the essence of a careful, cunning plot which Lloyd George hopes to make successful through the treachery of men calling themselves Unionists." It concludes, that the "plot" will fail and that the authors will be driven from power.

LABOR LOSSES

London, Nov. 4.—The Scottish Municipal results show considerable labor losses in Glasgow. There were four losses and no gains in Airdrie. In Coibridge, there were four gains and seven losses. In Hornsey, all three Conservative candidates were returned, which perhaps indicates what will happen in the Parliamentary by-election which is now proceeding.

FAKE ARMISTICE GERMAN TRICK

Plan to Show Eagerness of People Suited Foe Needs.

HOW THE PAPERS FELL

Telephone Message From an Unknown Started the Lie.

The belief that the "fake" armistice report on Nov. 7, 1918, was a hoax of German propagandists who wished to stir sentiment, in the allied countries for the real armistice—which came four days later—is expected by Arthur Hornblow, Jr., army intelligence officer at Brest during the war in an article in the November issue of The Century Magazine.

It was at Brest that the erroneous report received credence that carried it almost around the world and stirred peoples of the United States from the French Ministry of War. Mr. Hornblow tells of the receipt of the report by Admiral Wilson at Brest from the commander who was naval attache at the Embassy in Paris, of the Admiral's courtesy in showing the telegram to Roy Howard, president of the United Press and of Howard's energy in leaping to what he believed would be the greatest news beat or 'scoop' in newspaper history.

"But if the Wilson statement exonerated Howard," wrote Mr. Hornblow "as it did and as it should have done, for in my opinion he was somewhat less responsible for the false armistice celebration than the Canadian and American newspapers which printed the cable as absolute truth—despite other conflicting despatches they were in receipt of at the time, who was to blame?"

DRIVER IS ARRESTED

Claims Weather and Bad State of Roads Contributed to Accident.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—Slippery pavements, due to the light fall of snow yesterday morning and the rain later in the day, were largely to blame for motor accidents which resulted in the death of Miss Nellie Burgess, aged about 35, of 70 Clarendon Ave., opposite 720 Lansdowne Ave., last night, and more or less serious injury to others in various parts of the city. David Parker, Gladstone Ave., was driving the car that killed Miss Burgess. He was taken into custody by Detective Silverthorne and Plainclothesman Beach on a charge of manslaughter. The body of the unfortunate lady was removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held.

According to the police Miss Burgess had been on a visit to the home of John L. Fitzgerald, 720 Lansdowne Ave., and had just stepped off the curb in front of the Fitzgerald home, when Parker's auto struck her. Parker put on his brakes and brought his car to a stop a few yards further on. Miss Burgess was picked up and hurried to Dr. Morgan's office, 8185 Lansdowne Ave., where an examination showed life to be extinct. Parker remained on the scene until the police arrived, when he was taken to Ossington Avenue Police Station and locked up. Miss Burgess' death was due to a fractured skull.

LEADING LAWYER DIES SUDDENLY

Robert McKay, K.C., Succumbs to Blood Poisoning Following Operation.

WAS AN ABLE COUNSEL

Had Been Identified With a Number of Big Cases in Recent Years.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—Following an illness of less than a week, Mr. Robert McKay, K.C., of 263 Russell Hill Road, one of the city's most prominent counsel, died at the Wellesley Hospital yesterday morning at nine o'clock, and with his passing the legal profession has lost one of its most brilliant and promising men. The announcement of his death came as a distinct shock to his many friends in the business circles of the city, as it was not understood at first that his illness was of a serious nature. His sickness first developed on Monday last, when he had trouble with his throat, but even then he did not consider that it was serious, as he was intending to carry on with his regular work until his medical adviser, Dr. J. E. Elliott, told him to remain at home. On Tuesday, following an examination, there was a light operation on his throat, and for some time it seemed that the trouble was passing away, then later more alarming symptoms developed, with the result that he was removed to Wellesley Hospital, where a more serious operation was performed. It was before this operation was performed that the seriousness of Mr. McKay's condition became apparent, as it was discovered that he was suffering from an acute septic affection of the throat in which the strepttococci germs were present. This affection is extremely dangerous, as the germs are inevitably fatal in their effects once they enter the blood. Following his second operation, Mr. MacKay became rapidly worse, and though every possible medical assistance was given to him he passed away on Sunday morning.

Tears And Tears

G.T.—Talk about sob stuff in the papers, why I saw a picture play where the tears ran like Niagaras and the audience had to wade out. That Ferber woman is some genius with the wet brush.

Where Was Auto Owner?

A.S.—I saw an automobile parked all Saturday afternoon and late in the evening in front of a business place on Front street. Another car came along and parked opposite it, blocking up a considerable portion of the street. People in business do not like to have their view blocked by an automobile at the curb for hours at a time, and there does not seem any good reason for leaving a car that long in one place.

No Interest

S.J.—While watching a football match on Monday I was amazed at the few people I saw standing around. The representatives of other teams were present but outside of these men not twenty people were spectators. Is there no interest in football in this fair city?

Bandits

L.R.—While walking homeward at a late hour the other night or rather morning I heard a noise at my side but saw nothing. Soon I saw a black object moving toward me and immediately I thought of bandits but what would they get from me. Do not be alarmed. To my dismay it was only an old hound out after a bone.

What's It Maen?

..P.Q.—I see that the financial statement of the city for the year ending December 31, 1920, has been issued in book form. The city financial statements have been limping along about two years late, and it looks as if the city council in an effort to catch up had jumped a year or two ahead. Now the financial statement is less than a year behind which is encouraging in a way, but what use is this book outside of a record as a passbook of purchases? It doesn't tell the average person anything, whether the year 1920 finished with a surplus or a deficit, what we are worth or what we owe, what mistakes have been made and why. It is just a mass of figures leading nowhere as far as the most of us are concerned. However, one interesting exhibit, stands out like a sore thumb for the electors to ponder, viz., page 31, overdraft in bank, Dec. 31 1920 . . . . $294,136.16 overdraft in bank Jan. 1, 1920 . . . . $72,678.53.

"NO WOMAN KNOWS" REVEALS GRIPPING STORY

It is difficult to imagine a more perfect role than that of the Mother in "No Woman Knows", and it's equally impossible to imagine any other actress who could interpret it as supebly as Grace Marvin does in this picture which opened a three night's engagement at Griffin's last evening.

It has been picturized by Edna Ferber, who has made the most of her dramatic and very human theme, proving that Mother love is invulnerable, suspense is skillfully maintained throughout the piece. But even an actress of such calibre as Miss Marvin has to be surrounded by a strong supporting cast if her work is to be most effective, and in this picture the supporting cast works in perfect harmony, the nicest attention being given to details that go to make "No Woman Knows" a picture which will help to make children appreciate the sacrifices they so easily take for granted. Special mention must be made of the wonderful emotional acting of Mabel Julienne Scott in the role of the daughter of Fanny Hurst, also of Edward Kantor as Theodore the son, upon whose ambitions to be a renowned violinist much of the story centres, and to Stuart Holmes who gives a finished performance of the Mail Order King.

A Hallroom Boys' comedy, Screen Snapshots, a new chapter of the Western serial picture "Vanishing Trails" were also exhibited during the evening and were favorably received.

EXHIBITION TRAIN TOURS ONTARIO

Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways have made arrangements for the splendid all-steel train which was exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto and visited by over 100,000 people, to be taken on a tour and exhibited at important cities and towns in Western Ontario so that the people of these districts may have the opportunity of seeing and examining the fine turned out Canadian made equipment used on their own road—the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways.

This splendid all steel train consists of a mammoth Pacific type locomotive and six cars, namely, an express car, colonist car, tourist car, standard day coach, standard sleeper and a dining car.

Courteous attendants are in charge of the train and wherever it is exhibited the townfolks will have the opportunity of thoroughly examining and going over every part of the train, while the attendants will be glad to answer questions and supply visitors with informative literature concerning their own road.

This train will be placed on Pinnacle street and will be open for inspection from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

TOOK PHOTOGRAPH OF SOUL

French Scientist Declares Plates Showed Indications of the Spirit Leaving the Body.

Some years ago Dr. Baraduc of Paris attempted to photograph the soul at the moment of its departure from the body, at death. His wife was lying upon a bed, and from her body issued, at the very moment of dissolution, three white, misty balls, which gradually condensed and consolidated into one—being bound together, apparently by white threads, Hereward Carrington writes in Leslie's. Dr. Baraduc took photographs, on specially prepared plates, every fifteen minutes for three hours after death, and on all these plates obtained these markings—showing the gradual process of the withdrawal of the soul from the body, and its final detachment therefrom some hours later. These photographs represent so far as we can see, the first successful actual photographs which have been taken of the departure of the soul from the body at the moment of death.

They are not, however, the first "psychic" photographs which have been made, since Dr. Durville, in France, and others, have obtained successful markings upon photographic plates, of radiations issuing from the human body. Dr. McDougall of Haverhill, Mass., also, some years ago, succeeded (apparently) in weighing the soul at the moment of death. He found that it weighed about two and a quarter ounces. He placed the patient, bed and all, upon a delicate balance, and, at the very moment of death, the balance showed a sudden and unaccountable loss of between two and two and a half ounces.

Ineffable Contempt.

Two small children, a four-year-old girl and a three-year-old boy, disgraced themselves during a Sunday morning walk. They sang nursery rhymes and even fragments of a comic song heard on a gramophone, to the horror of respectable church-goers, and finally quarrelled and had a rough-and-tumble fight, arriving home in a very grubby condition. The nurse duly reported their sins to their mother, who pointed to three good little creatures in spick-and-span garb, and said: "You ought to behave like those dear little children!" "Pooh!" exclaimed her little daughter, tossing her dishevelled red-gold locks, "they ain't children; they're only pets."

MUSIC AND DRAMA

CHORUS OF "HULLO CANADA"

That the life of a "king of review" is not entirely filled with joy is attested to by Mr. Albert De Courville, who is bringing his entire London company in his newest production "Hullo Canada!" to Griffin's Opera House this Friday night, November 11th.

Six months before sailing for Canada Mr. De Courville started on a quiet search for the forty most beautiful girls in the British Isles. A month later he was not so quiet about it and was running want ads. in the papers all over the country—but all to no avail. Of course there were thousands of applicants, but still it seemed that the captious De Courville's eye for beauty could not be satisfied.

Finally the entire Gaiety Theatre Press Department was set to work to ferret out girls with the required amount of pulchritude. In this eleventh hour drive a storm was raised in the press by those who claimed that Mr. De Courville's statement that he could not secure forty girls in Britain with beauty and talent enough to work in the chorus was an insult to English womanhood.

Mr. De Courville said nothing, but still kept up his campaign, and it was not until his boat was on the eve of sailing for Canada that he issued the following statement: "Now that I m on my way with the entire company filled, I'll frankly admit that during the past few weeks I've seen more beautiful girls with talent than I thought existed in the whole world, let alon England, but I think you'll agree that my reason for getting in touch with so many is a good one. In Canada, I am told, the young men have a habit of getting what they are after, some of these chaps are bound to fall in love with some of my girls, and, if they do, what chance have I or anyone else to stop the wedding bells from chiming, if the young lady is willing, therefore, I have brought fifteen extra girls of the number needed for my revue.

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlysle H. Holcomb

THE KING INTER VIEWS RING NECK

Tinker Bob was happy because the Moon had promised to keep behind a cloud so that Jack Frost would not disturb the last frolic of the season. The next thing for Tinker Bob to do was to see some of the folks about coming to the Palace at the right time. It wouldn't be a very good time for the feathered friends to gather for the most of them liked the sunlight better than the shadow. But they would turn out for the King of the Forest, if he would explain.

The first one Tinker met was a young fellow feeding off a patch of little red berries. Some of them were hid beneath the dark green leaves. Some were in sight and lay on top of the leaves. They were beautiful little berries and the King had never noticed them before any more than he had noticed the thorn apples. This seemed an interesting fellow and he ate the berries as fast as he could, never once seeing the King as he approached.

Tinker Bob watched with pleasure the handsome fellow's actions because he was a very careful creature. You are asking who it was? Well, it was none other than Ring Neck, the Pheasant.

It was seldom that the King had a chance to see Ring Neck for he is a shy dweller of the forest. He was eating what the King called Red Berries but which he called Pheasant Berries.

"I haven't seen you for a long time," said Tinker Bob.

"I know you haven't, O King" said Ring Neck "but I have been so busy with our family that I could not go out much. You know that Red Fox is always watching for us and it is difficult for us to bring our children up without his knowing where we are. It just keeps us moving all the time when we are out to keep away from him. I found this patch of berries and thought I would have a feast and then go home and tell the children about it so they could come here with their mother tomorrow and have a feast also. There will be more berries ripe to-morrow. This is the biggest patch I have found this year."

Ring Neck was a fine looking fellow. Around his eyes was a patch of red like old Tom Turkey and back of that was a patch of green and below that green was a circle of white. That is the reason he is called Ring Neck, because he has a ring of pure white about his throat. His back and breast is decorated with reddish brown feathers with a little patch of green in the middle of his back and a patch of white under his breast. Then he has a long, handsome tail as long as Tom Turkey's but not so big.

They were beautiful little berries

Tinker Bob asked him if he would bring his family to the frolic and he said he would. This made the King feel good for Ring Neck had never entered into the frolics of the forest before.

To-morrow—Tinker Bob Finds Willy Chuck.

CONVENTION OF ASSOCIATED BOARDS

Brantford Place of Meeting For Ontario Associated Boards of Trade.

The eighth meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce is to take place in the Y.M.C.A. building in Brantford, November 17 and 18, at which the cities of Brantford, Hamilton and the town of Cochrane will introduce resolutions dealing with the unemployment situation and will ask to have them forwarded to the government for action, and urging that the government by all practical means urge the absorption in the great rural and urban industries of the country of the greatest possible amount of labor, employing the existing labor bureaus and other machinery to facilitate the flow of workers from one section to another.

By instituting public works by the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal authorities extensive enough to absorb if possible the balance of available labor. Adding that in justice to the ratepayers the public works instituted should be of an entirely useful character and such as shall be required in the near future, and that they shall be carried on efficiently and economically, applying all the customary safeguards against all excessive costs.

The Cochrane Board of Trade will ask that the government build trunk roads in the unorganized districts; to link up with the present existing colonization roads, and that the work be undertaken by the Public Works Department under the Provincial Highways Act and that in view of the absence of County organizations in the North, that the twenty per cent. of the cost of such roads, which is borne by the County organizations in Old Ontario be paid out of the Northern Development Branch Fund.

The cities of Guelph, Hamilton and Sault Ste. Marie, will ask the convention to pass a resolution asking the government for legislation directed against the sale of undesirable stock in Joint Stock Companies.

Hamilton Chamber of Commerce will ask the governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta that the undeveloped lands in their respective provinces be reserved for settlers who will be a practical help to the country rather than allowing them to get into the hands of the alien speculators.

Another resolution which Hamilton will introduce will ask the government to continue and if possible enlarge its present campaign for the betterment of the cattle industry, realizing it to be the basic industry upon which the agricultural prosperity of the country depends.

Iroquois Falls Board of Trade will ask the convention to pass a resolution asking the government to continue the school teachers excursions through Northern Ontario as an annual affair.

Kingston would ask the government to control the marriage ceremony to the end that ill-advised marriages should be discountenanced, both from physical, moral and medical standpoints, and that the entrance into the marriage state should be made of great importance and publicity given for some time in advance of the ceremony, and even health certificates and family records should be an element entering into the contracts.

Another matter the Kingston Board of Trade would have the government consider is the question of inaugurating a Dominion Government bureau of Education to act as a clearing house for the best thought and expert knowledge on plans, methods, purposes and development of Education in its relation to the settlement, comfort and intellectual advancement of all its peoples unifying and Canadianizing the whole body with noble, patriotic, social, civil and moral aspirations. This bureau to be regarded as purely instructive in character and to be supplementary to the provincial Departments of Education and in nowise infringing upon the rights granted by Confederation to the Provinces.

Kingston would also ask the government to have a Safety First campaign carried on in all the schools in view of the daily toll of life by automobiles.

Prince Edward County through the Board of Trade convention would ask the Ontario government to electrify the Picton-Trenton branch of the Canadian Northern Railway.

Sault Ste. Marie will ask that in the unorganized Districts where large timber concessions have been given, that these areas be assessed and that the money be divided pro-arta among the schools of the District. This city will also ask that the government pay a larger proportion of the cost of road buildings and maintenance particularly in townships adjacent to the city.

Smith's Falls will ask the government to reinstitute the payment of grants by the Dominion government to urban municipalities for the upkeep of roadways.

Toronto will ask that the Provincial government call a conference of the various Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce throughout the Province for the purpose of discussing the Assessment and Taxation system at present in vogue, with a view to placing commercial and industrial establishments on a more equitable basis as compared to those of other provinces thus enabling them to compete more successfully for domestic and foreign trade.

Toronto will also ask the government that in view of the loss by fire in 1920 being $12,000,000 and for the eight months of the present year $9,000,000 to give a larger measure of support to the Ontario Fire prevention League and other similar bodies so that the losses by fire may be reduced to a million.

Mr. John Elliott of Belleville, is President of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade.

Hints for the Motorist

By Albert L. Clough Editor Motor Service, Review of Reviews

Copyright, 1921, by the International Syndicate

Detecting The Picked-Up Nail

The Sooner It Is Discovered, The Better

IF THE MOTORIST MAKES a practicce of examining his tire treads frequently, when on the road, by the eye or by running the hands over them, the presence of nails and other puncture producing objects can sometimes be detected before they have pierced the inner tube or at least before deflation has been caused. A tack or very short nail, lodged in the tread, may not pass entirely through the tube at once but if allowed to remain will finally prick through it and nails that enter the casing obliquely can sometimes be removed before they have caused punctures. It is at least of advantage to discover the presence of puncturing objects as early as possible in order to avoid the possibility of inadvertently running on a deflated tire. Inspecting the treads when a car is garaged at night is a particularly good custom as it tends to forestall disappointments arising from unexpected flat tires in the morning. If a nail or other sharp object is found in a tread, it should be pulled out at once and it is well to fix the spot by pencil marks made on the side wall of the tire, as a guide in plugging the hole in the casing. Whether or not the sharp object has pierced the tube can be told by applying water or saliva over the hole. If bubbles escape through it, there is an actual puncture and the tube will have to be changed.

TIRES OF OBSOLETE SIZE

W. C. W. writes: I have a car that uses 37x4½ inch tires and cannot find any concern that is making them now, but think that there may be some. Can you direct me to where I can secure this size? If not, I shall have to have the wheels cut down, which I do not want to do, as I have plenty of power with these large tires.

Answer: We doubt if this size is being regularly produced by any manufacturer, but someone may be making them as a special. We regret that we can give you no information as to this. Tires of this size can still be picked up, but there is some difficulty in finding them and they are likely to be old stock. If you intend to keep this car in service, you might as well make the change of rims at once and avoid future trouble in getting tires. You can probably secure a pair of final drive gears, that will compensate for cutting down your wheel diameter.

WHAT CAUSES THIS VIBRATION?

J. F. W. writes: Sometimes, just after my car has gone over a bump, it commences to shake and tremble violently, and I have to give more gas or else to stop and start over again, in order to stop it. What causes this vibration?

Answer: We do not know, but it is a fact that certain car parts may have natural vibration periods and if anything occurs to set them shaking at these special rates, the jarring produced may be very severe. The drive shaft is one of these parts and the steering column another and it is possible that your driving shaft is not rigid enough to prevent its thrashing in this manner, when the right kind of a jolt occurs to start the action.

A REBUILDING PROPOSITION

F. L. G. asks: Would it be possible and practical to equip a 1911 ——— chassis with a new body that would give it a modern appearance? Could the control levers be changed from outside to inside and the drive changed from right to left hand? About what would it cost to make these alterations?

Answer: It would be possible and might perhaps be worth your while to have a new body, hood and fenders fitted and we should advise you to obtain an estimate as to the cost of this work from a reliable body builder. It might be possible to move the control levers but it would not be practicable and it would be almost out of the question to change to left hand drive. Even if these alterations could be made, the cost would be all out of proportion to the results obtained. We are not strong on building over such cars for passenger use, but sometimes a chassis like this makes a serviceable light truck.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

CAMPS FOR PRACTICAL TRAINING

The establishment of camps in Canada where youths on leaving school in the Old Country could come over for a year's practical training before being placed out with farmers was advocated by Commissioner David G. Lamb of the Salvation Army, at present visiting Canada seeking information on immigration problems.

In speaking of this new plan Commissioner Lamb said:

"I would like to see four camps for boys established in the Dominion, one in the East, one in Ontario, one in the Prairie Provinces, and one in British Columbia. My idea is that one camp should consist of 100 boys under the care of a superintendent and wife, with suitable assistants. Buildings with dormitory accommodation, central kitchen, and social hall in close proximity to the dormitories. The boys could help with the harvest—going out for the day or for the week, and during the winter work in the camps would be interspersed with lessons, sports, etc. In the spring of the year, the boys would be placed out in situations with farmers. This scheme meets the winter employment difficulty, keeps the boys out of the towns, gets them accustomed to the winter and country conditions in the happiest and most natural way. A sum of $50,000 would enable us to try out the experiment and I have no doubt as to its success.

"I think Canada should find the money. The Old Country has educated the boys, and brought them up to the stage when they soon become wealth producers. Even 'Labor' could scarcely reasonably object to a scheme of this kind."

PUBLIC INTEREST GREAT

London, Nov. 5.—Public interest in the assassination of M. Hara has been intensified here by consideration of the influence his death will have upon Japan's attitude toward the Washington Conference. Newspapers here express deep sympathy with Japan in the loss of a minister who was regarded as an enlightened Democrat.

TELLS MAN OF DEER, IS KILLED BY GUN

North Bay, Nov. 4.—Five hours after he was shot by Raoul Giroux, at Astorville, 12 miles east of here, on the C.N.R., Homer Callaham, 14 years of age, son of the section foreman there, died from hemorrhage and shock.

On his way to the village yesterday morning the boy saw two deer, and he returned to bring Giroux, who had a gun. The latter, on sighting the animals, became excited, and was raising the gun to take aim when the trigger slipped, Callahan receiving the shot in the thigh.

Coroner Dr. Ranny and Crown Attorney McKee went from here this afternoon and conducted the inquest, at which a verdict of accidental death was returned. Giroux is about 20 years of age.

CAMPAIGN NOTES

Kingston Labor Candidate Quits

It is announced that Dr. F. J. O'Connor, who accepted the Labor nomination for Kingston in the Federal election, is retiring from the field in view of the fact that there is no hope whatever of his success. Hon. Dr. A. E. Ross is in the field as Government candidate, and J. M. Campbell as Liberal.

W. Peterboro Liberal Convention

On Saturday evening the West Peterboro Liberal Association held a caucus and decided to hold a convention on Saturday, November 12, when G. N. Gordon, M.P., again will be selected to carry the Liberal banner in West Peterboro. He will be opposed at the polls by J. H. Burnham, who represents the Government in the present contest. Labor and the U.F.O., have decided to stay out of the fight.

Contradicts Mackenzie King

Since Hon. Mackenzie King made the accusation at this point a week ago that the United Farmer candidate had been brought out by the Conservatives to split up the Farmer vote, Mr. Herbert Taylor, the U.F.O. nominee, dealt with that point in the course of a Farmer rally at this center to-night, and made it quite plain that he is not on the leading string of any party other than the United Farmers, and that Hon. Mr. King must revise his view-point. Mrs. Fred Wilson and Miss McCallum, assistant secretary of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, spoke in the interest of the farmerettes.

Health turns the Clock Backward

Nine Reasons Why Spinal Neglect is a crime

1. The backbone is the foundation of the body.
2. It is composed of 26 joints, 24 of which are movable.
3. From between these joints radiate the nerves of the body.
4. When these joints are in alignment the nerve openings are full sizes and the nerves deliver 100% of their power.
5. A nerve under pressure at the backbone opening causes disease in the part it serves.
6. Chiropractic removes the pressure by an adjustment by hand, and this adjustment opens the way for health (free nerve energy).
7. If chiropractic seems too simple to do all that it can do, remember that every phenomena of growth is caused by as simple a thing as heat.
8. To neglect the backbone invites disease, which is a crime because it is in violation of Nature's laws.
9. Don't be a criminal.

BE WATCHFUL OF COLDS

MONDAY HEALTH TALK No. 53

By WM. P. REDICK, D.C. Ph. C.

A cold, when neglected, may rapidly develop into disease of serious nature and extent. Immediate steps should always be taken to put it in check.

Colds are due to retained wastes in the body and the cause usually is sluggish action of liver, kidneys and lungs. The cause of this sluggish action is the impingement, or squeezing, of spinal nerves at the spine. By chiropractic spinal adjustments this pressure or impingement is removed and the nerves are freed to carry normal impulses of vigor and strength.

COLD AND FEVER.

"I developed a high fever and was so sick I could not raise my head from the pillow. Two chiropractic adjustments changed the course of my trouble. It was quicker work with a cold and fever than I had experienced before."—Hebeh C. Hall, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 1286H.

TIDE OF UNITED STATES OPINION IS SETTING AWAY FROM HEARST.

When Grover Cleveland twisted the British lion's tail in a dispute over a Venezuelan boundary so vigorously that war seemed imminent, little attention was paid to Arthur Balfour's prophecy of a new British-American doctrine that would some day be formulated, says the Literary Digest. Said Mr. Balfour, speaking in the British Parliament in that crucial hour that is now twenty-five years behind us: "The time will come, the time must come, when some one, some statesman more fortunate even than President Monroe, will lay down the doctrine that between English-speaking peoples war is impossible." Is Mr. Balfour one of those rare prophets who live to see their prophecy fulfilled? President Harding, speaking at Yorktown on October 19, at the spot where the British General, Lord Cornwallis, surrendered his forces to General Washington one hundred and forty years ago, declared that today a breach of the peace between this country and Great Britain is "unthinkable."

In this declaration he finds himself in head-on-collision with the published convictions of George Bernard Shaw, Horatio Bottomley, William Randolph Hearst, and a considerable part of the Irish-American journals. Nevertheless, his words seem to find a wide and cordial welcome in the American press.

"The President reflected practically the unanimous sentiment of the American people," says the Richmond Times-Dispatch; "did no more than give voice to the sentiment of all sensible persons of both countries who have given thought to the subject," remarks the Columbia Record.

"We like to think that this is the American attitude," says the Charleston Gazette, "and we repeat, coming at this time, it is a very wise policy."

"By emphasizing the supreme necessity of close union between the United States and Great Britain the President strikes at the heart of the peace problem," declares the New York Tribune. But, urging that he show respect for a great cause by candor, it goes on to say:

"It is said war between the two peoples is unthinkable. Would it were so. But, alas! too many not only think it but talk of it. More than one generation of petty American politicians have devoted themselves to twisting the British lion's tail.

"Sometimes it has been to hoodwink those whose emotional centre is Ireland, and recently it has been to cater to those whose major interest is Germany. In every conceivable way there have been attempts to keep alive feelings born of the misdeeds of George III, of the War of 1812, and of the unhandsome behavior of many British leaders when disunion threatened the life of the Republic. Public men might be friends to Great Britain in their closets, but not on the stump.

"Men and women who have recognized that a statute of limitations runs against memory of old wrongs and have seen that it was peculiarly desirable to have concords between peoples which in many things are strikingly alike have been browbeaten—attacked as Anglomaniacs, as contemptible imitators of alien ways. To dwell on the good qualities of other peoples was permissible, but Great Britain was always bad. Thomas Jefferson, ignoring the outrages he had catalogued, wrote before his death that he would rather have good relations with Great Britain than with any other Power, and expressed the hope that if war ever came to us, that we would fight on the same side with our former foe.

"But Jefferson was about the last American statesman to express such opinions. It has been a convention of our politics that robust verbal antagonism to Great Britain was safe. Indeed, one vainly racks memory to recall another American President who has spoken as President Harding did at Yorktown.

"Great Britain seems to have permanently shaken off her old anti-American psychology. All her parties and elements join in wooing America. In return we must, if we would have peace, conquer the remains of any Anglophobia that still grip us—must subdue the prejudices such as Hearst foments."

THE GRANDMOTHER

Upon her folded hands the sunshine falls,
Bathing their lines and scars of toil in light,
And they are quiet as the evening earth
That waits in peace the coming on of night

She has held children's children in her arms,
Whose babies soon may lie against her breast;
Now, in the shade of memories withdrawn,
In the high midday sun she sits at rest.

To her, remote, with her completed life
About her like a garment, age is kind.
For still her children, small and very dear,
Play in the secret dwelling of her mind.

The Three Gaurdsmen

And yet in all this the cardinal had not yet said a word about the Duke of Buckingham.

At this instant M. de Treville entered, cold, polite and in irreproachable costume. Rendered aware of what had passed by the presence of the cardinal and the alteration in the king's countenance, M. de Treville felt himself something like Samson before the Philistines.

"You arrive in good time, monsieur," said the king, who, when his passions were raised to a certain point, could not dissemble; "I have learned some pretty things concerning your musketeers."

"And I," said M. de Treville, coldly, "I have some pretty things to inform your majesty of concerning these men of the robe. I have the honor to inform your majesty that a party of police have taken upon themselves to throw into the Fort l'Eveque, all upon an order which they have refused to show me, one of my, or rather your musketeers, sire, of irreproachable conduct, M. Athos.

"M. Athos went to pay a visit to one of his friends, at the time absent, to a young Bearnais, a cadet in his majesty's guards, the company of M. Dessessart, but scarcely had he arrived at his friend's and taken up a book while waiting his return when a crowd of bailiffs and soldiers mixed, came and laid siege to the house and broke open several doors"—

"Oh, we all know that!" interrupted the king; "for all that was done for our service."

"Then," said Treville, "it was for your majesty's service that one of my musketeers, who was innocent, has been paraded through the midst of an insolent populace."

"Bah!" said the king, who began to be shaken, "was it managed so?"

"M. de Treville," said the cardinal, with the greatest phlegm, "does not tell your majesty that this innocent musketeer, this gallant man, had only an hour before attacked, sword in hand, four commissaries of inquiry, who were delegated by me to examine into an affair of the highest importance."

"I defy your eminence to prove it," cried M. de Treville, with his Gascon freedom and military roughness, "for one hour before M. Athos, who, I will confide it to your majesty, is really a man of the highest quality, did me the honor, after having dined with me, to be conversing in the salon of my hotel with M. the Duke de la Tremouille and M. le Comte de Chalus, who happened to be there."

The king looked at the cardinal.

"A proces verbal attests it," said the cardinal.

"And, sire, is this proces verbal of men of the robe to be placed in comparison with the word of honor of a man of the sword?" replied Treville haughtily. "If his eminence entertains any suspicion against one of my musketeers the justice of M. the Cardinal is sufficiently well known to induce me, myself, to demand an inquiry."

"In the house in which this judicial inquiry was made," continued the impassable cardinal, "there lodges, I believe, a young Bearnais, a friend of the musketeers, M. d'Artagnan."

"Yes, your eminence."

"Do you not suspect this young man of having given bad advice"—

"To M. Athos! To a man double his age?" interrupted M. de Treville. "No, monseigneur. Besides, M. d'Artagnan passed the evening at my house."

"Let me inquire at what hour he was with you," said the cardinal.

"Oh, that I can speak to positively, your eminence, for as he came in I remarked that it was but half past 9 by the clock, although I had believed it to be later."

"And at what hour did he leave your house?"

"At half past 10, an hour after the event."

"Well, but," replied the cardinal, who could not for an instant suspect the loyalty of De Treville and who felt that the victory was escaping from his hands—"well, but Athes was taken in the house of the Rue des Fossoyeurs."

"Is one friend forbidden to visit another or a musketeer of my company to fraternize with a guard of M. Dessessart's company?"

"Yes, when the house in which he fraternizes is suspected."

"Indeed, I knew nothing of the circumstance. The house may be suspected, but I deny that it is in the part of it inhabited by M. d'Artagnan, for I can affirm, sire, if I can believe what he says, that there does not exist a more devoted servant of your majesty or a more profound admirer of M. the Cardinal."

"Come, how shall we determine?" said the king.

"That concerns your majesty more than me," said the cardinal. "I should affirm the culpability."

"And I deny it," said De Treville. "But his majesty has judges, and these judges will decide."

"That is best," said the king. "Send the case before the judges; it is their business to judge, and they will judge."

"Only," replied Treville, "it is a sad thing that, in the unfortunate times in which we live, the purest life, the most incontestable virtue, cannot exempt a man from infamy and persecution. The army, I will answer for it, will be but little pleased at being exposed to rigorous treatment on account of affairs of police."

The expression was imprudent, but M. de Treville launched it with a full knowledge of his cause. He was desirous of an explosion, because in that case the mine throws forth fire, and fire enlightens.

"Affairs of police!" cried the king, taking up De Treville's words; "affairs of police! And what do you know about them, monsieur? Here's a piece of work about a musketeer. Why, I would arrest ten of them, a hundred, even—all the company, and I would not allow a murmur."

Efficient Housekeeping

BY Laura A. Kirkman

BEFORE PLANNING YOUR "COLOR SCHEME"

Before an artist attempts to paint a picture, he knows that he must learn something about colors. Yet we housekeepers rush pell-mell into the task of choosing a "color scheme" for our rooms—when we know almost nothing about the study of colors!

Time and again I hear women referring to a light tone of a certain color as a "shade" and a dark tone as a "tint." This is wrong. And it is foolish for us to think that we can intelligently combine colors unless we know enough about them to avoid making such mistakes as this.

A "shade" of color is a tone tending from the normal color towards shadow; a "tint" is any one in which the normal color is increasing in lightness. A "hue" is obtained by adding a little of another color to the original color. The word "tone" is applied to any variation in color, including black, white and gray.

Red, yellow and blue are the "primary" colors; and when any two of these three colors are mixed together, the result is called a "complementary" color to the third color, which was not mixed. For instance, yellow and purple are complementary colors (red and blue mixed together make purple) blue and orange are complementary colors (red and yellow mixed together make orange; and red and green are complementary colors (yellow and blue mixed together make green).

So, if you have a lavendar room (perhaps a lavandar-and-grey color scheme) and you feel that there is too much of a "sameness" about it, add just a dash here and there of the complementary color of purple—yellow. This "dash" might be a yellow candlestick, a yellow lamp-shade, a yellow vase, or a yellow cushion.

It is the same with the other complementary colors. If you have a color scheme that is chiefly green (green and buff perhaps) and you feel that it is a little monotonous, add a touch of scarlet here and there to give it life—a spray of bitter-sweet berries in a green vase, for instance. Or if your color scheme is any shade of blue (blue and white, we'll say) and you want to give it more life, place an orange-colored bowl on the mantel, holding a lily bulb.

Black, white and gray are called "neutral" colors. Strictly speaking, they are not "colors" at all but they play a very important part in mixing colors to obtain tones that cannot be produced by mixing the primary colors alone. White and black are the pigments representing light and dark, and gray is a combination of black and white.

So, Reader-friend, when you hear a neighbor say she is trying to "think out" a new color scheme for her living room, ask her if she knows these things about the study of color. For if she does not, she may spend her money on wall paper, rugs and draperies that will produce only a feeling of unrest in the beholder because of their lack of color harmony.

NEW MEDICINE MAKES MILLIONS WELL

Will be a Revelation to Suffering Humanity—Cleans Liver in a Few Minutes — Symptoms of Liver Trouble are: Sallow Complexion, Bad Taste in Mouth on Rising, Tired, Out of Sorts, etc.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles, as: Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No Salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self-eliminating. It does not have a nauseating, sickening feeling next day, like so many similar drugs. You no doubt have been taking all sorts of laxatives, salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these drew liquid from the blood and tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the Bile to be excreted from the Liver into the Bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your Bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your Bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious, bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sale by McKeown, Druggist.

TIGERS VS. GRAND TRUNKS

These teams met Monday afternoon at 2 p.m. on the Exhibition Grounds in the City League fixtures. Although the weather was cold and chilly, a large crowd was present and witnessed the best game of football seen here for many a day. For one hour the teams battled and finished up without a goal being scored. The G.T.R. won the toss and chose to play with the wind behind them. From the kick-off the Tigers got away on the right but were pulled up and the Trunks started nice combination, which Hickin put over the bar. Mid field play followed and the Trunks went away again and a corner was forced which was cleared. Johnson was heading out when he was accidentally kicked over the eye, but resumed playing and was attended to after the game. Trunks still pressed and Knott headed over. The Tigers now got away and Gorman cleared. Lancaster made a good run and centred into the goal mouth and in the scramble Robinson handed which brought the Tigers relief. End to end played followed and a couple of corners were given by the Tigers but Eves and Johnson cleared. G.T.R. was pressing when half time was called with no scoring.

With the change of ends and the wind behind them thinsg loked rosy for the Tigers. From the kicked off Page got away but shot wide and from the goal kick the Trunks went to the other end which found Thompson safe. The Tigers pressed hard but found the G.T.R. defense safe. Once Maker was nearly through when Summers took the ball off his toes, and Hickin went ahead on the right finishing by striking the crossbar, so afterwards in a rush on goal he was laid out for a few minutes. Knott for the Tigers got away nicely and centred Griffin's cleared and Trunks got away now on the left. Gill was playing a fine game for the G.T.R. Both goals were ever in danger, as the forwards on each sides played fast football and they swung the ball from wing to wing. The defences on each side played well just before time a scramble ensued around the Tigers goal, Maker heading away. Time came without any scoring. It sure was one fast, clean game and the return game will be worth seeing. Mr. Childs was referee and handled the game to both teams with satisfaction in his capable manner. Both teams are yet undefeated and each meet the Tiger Tire team and then comes the return game for the medals and cup. May the best team win!

The line-up:

G.T.R.—Gorman, goal; Griffin's, r. b.; Summers, l.b.; Taylor, r.h.b.: Robinson, c.h.b.; Gill, l.h.b.; Hicken, o.r. f.; Binney, i.r.f.; Grant, c.f.; Knott, i.l.f.; Lancaster, o.l.f.

Tigers—Thompson, goal; Eves, r.b.; Johnson, l.b.; Walsh, r.h.b.; Barry, c.h.b.;; Cross, l.n.b.; Maker, i.r.f. Page, c.f.; Knott, i:l:f:; Page, o.l.f.

Saturday's Games—Tiger Tire 1; O.S. D. 0. Taylor's Tigers 4, Taplin-Bakers 0.

Owing to the gray chilling weather a mere handful of spectators assembled at Saturday's games, but their blood tingled with excitement at the swiftness of the play. The first match was between the Tiger Tire and the O.S.D. boys. It resulted in a win for the Tire boys by the score of 1-0. Soup Goyer was responsible for this act and deserves worthy praise. Jack Robinson, Captain of the Grand Trunks handled this game impartially.

The second game between the Belleville Tigers and the Taplin-Bakers was rather a one-sided affair. The score being 4-0 in favor of the Tigers. The Taplin-Baker boys became bewildered at times and it looked as if they thought they were playing tag. Mr. Harvey manager of the Grand Trunks handled this game in a manner satisfactory to all. The line-up for Saturday were:

Tiger Tire

VARSITY 13, QUEEN'S 12

Toronto, Nov. 7.—The Varsity team was given the biggest scare and won the closest victory that any team ever had, and some ten thousand or more rugby fans were almost soundless with excitement and the nervous strain when the final whistle blew on Saturday afternoon in the second and last game of the local intercollegiate senior series with the score reading 13 to 12 in favor of the Blue and White against George Awrey's Queen's team. With only a few minutes to go and Varsity leading 13 to 6 the Presbyterians staged an onslaught and by means of Leadley's kicking and the fast work of the Queen's wings they carried the ball to the local 30-yard line. Leadley had been trying onside kicks in the last quarter, but the Varsity secondary defence had been getting the ball, and after holding for two downs returning the ball up the field. With three minutes to go and the ball thirty yards from the Blue and White goal line, Leadley tried a short kick to the west touch line. Somerville tried to grab the oval, but failed, and Veale, who had dropped back to be onside, raced up, took the ball on the bounce and carried it between the Varsity posts. Leadley took his time in making the convert which altered the score to 13 to 12 for Varsity.

RUGBY

BELLEVILLE BOYS BEATEN

The Belleville High School rugby team on Saturday played at Peterboro with the Collegiate team of that town. It was one of the interscholastic series and proved to be rather disastrous to our boys. The score was 9 to 0 in favor of Peterboro who apparently were superior in team play. One of the features of the game was an 80-yard dash by Young, P.C.I. quarter-back, to within two yards of the Belleville goal in the first quarter. The ball was then pushed through the Belleville line for a touch-down. During the game four of the Belleville players were slightly injured. The local boys played at Oshawa on Thanksgiving Day with the High school team of that town and the result was a win for Oshawa by a score of 21 to 10. The line up of the Belleville team was as follows: G. Hurley, C. Tyers, R. Cole, J. Hurley, C. Kerr, E. Christie, L. Allen, A. Dies, J. Marshall, G. Maidens, L. Ines, I. Elliott, K. Emerson and J. Cook.

GOOD RACING

At Dufferin Park, Toronto, on Thanksgiving Day, Dundee Lad, who won the first two heats of the 2.10 pace, and lost the third by a nose to Dayspring, the Belleville-owned horse. The latter was the freshest in the fourth heat and won by half a length from Dundee Lad, much to the joy of the Eastern delegation. The fifth heat was raced this afternoon. The summary of the four heats was as follows: 2.30½, 2.26, 2.27, 2.30.

RACE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford, Ont., Nov. 7.—Campbellford's second annual five-mile race was held on Thanksgiving Day, fifteen runners starting. The course is nearer six than five miles and the roads were in the worst possible condition. The winner's time was 33 minutes. First, Roy Loucks; second Leo Bush; third, H. Dutton; fourth, Reg. Reynolds. The citizens' Cup was presented to the winner by Mr. C. H. Harris at a public meeting. Starter C. H. Harris; timekeeper, S. A. Maguire.

WON ROAD RACE

Hamilton, Nov. 7.—Albert Smoke the Peterboro Indian, won the Herald Thanksgiving Day road race. He covered the distance of 19 miles 168 yards in one hour, 50 minutes and 4 seconds, which is four minutes behind the record held by the late Jimmy Duffy. Eighteen men faced the starter and 13 completed the route, the others dropping out at various points along the line. Arthur Scholes, representing the Gladstone A. C. of Toronto, finished second four minutes behind the winner and James Dellow, of the same club, was third, about a minute behind Scholes. Dellow won the race last year and was the favorite again this year. He was a close contender for a greater part of the journey, but fell by the wayside in the last few miles.

PICTON BEAT CALEDONIA

Peterboro, Nov. 7.—Picton easily defeated Caledonia 10 to 2 here today and won the intermediate O.B.A.A. championship. The absence of Wright, Caledonia's star pitcher, due to the death of his father, proved a serious handicap to Caledonia. The spectators stood for one minute as a mark of sympathy for Wright. Score:

Picton	0 0 0 0 1 0 0 6 3 0	10	9	1

Batteries—Brown, Morrison and Marriton; Croft and Frederick. Umpires—Kay, Peterboro; Burke, Hamilton.

New Canadians in the Making

Labor may be a commodity, but the laborer is a man. So much is recognized to-day by all patriots. Even the migratory worker, once considered as almost outside society, is finding a man's place in the world. Labor unions may not court him, but the I. W. W. and the O. B. U. consider him as the instrument to be used in bringing about revolution. To social workers he is a problem, but the one thing not to be forgotten about him is his manhood.

Whether he is a foreigner of the "bohunk" type or an unlucky native-born chap, he is a prodigious worker and a wild spender. He migrates because he does not marry and he cannot marry for he does not save, or, as some will have it, he migrates because he must find work and the very character of his work makes it difficult for him to be thrifty. The fact remains that he can be a very useful or a very dangerous person. His work is essential to national prosperity; without him there would be no railways or Chippawa canals. If organized against society, he can be a peril.

The man who is likeliest to be used against Canadian institutions is the foreigner. Knowing little of our language, he learns only the evil about our people and Government. The first step in his Canadianization is his education. This is being undertaken by the Frontier College, an organization which has been at work under several names for a long period, always with the same aim of teaching the alien worker in the camps our language, laws and customs. From the members of the college staff, young Canadians who work beside him during the day and teach him at night, he learns something of Canadian ideals.

All sorts of interests are coming to recognize the value of the instruction work in the camps where migratory workers live. The address of a Frontier College inspector before the International Association of Public Employment Services is just one indication of the interest aroused by a practical attempt to make good Canadians out of the raw material of the foreign migratory worker.

The Frontier College, formerly the Reading Camp Association, has reached its majority this year, having been established in 1900. It is a lusty youth, full of ambition and hope, with many a good deed done and many more in prospect.

The new drydock under construction at Skinner's Cove, Esquimalt, British Columbia, for the Dominion of Canada, will be able to accommodate the largest vessels afloat. This dock will have a total length of 1,150 feet, a width of 120 feet on sill and of 135 feet on the coping level. The depth of the sill will be 40 feet. A Big Haul.

Six grizzlies, two cinnamons and two black bears are the result of a hunting trip made by J. W. French and Leo Tennis about the Big Bend of the Columbia river. Each hunter got his legal bag limit of three grizzlies, all fine specimens, several of the hides measuring eight feet.

LONE BANDITS ROBS SANTA FE MAIL CAR

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 7.—A masked bandit boarded the mail car of a Santa Fe train from California at Ottawa Junction. He compelled one of the six mail clerks in the car to bind his fellow-workers. After placing empty mail sacks over the heads of the clerks, the bandit stole 270 pieces of registered mail out of pouches which he slit open and escaped. No estimate of the value of the plunder could be made.

G. W. V. A's DANCE

One of the best dances of the season was held at Bennett's Dancing Academy on Thanksgiving evening under the auspices of the Great War Veterans Association. The music for dancers was furnished by Prof. Ben Hokea's Novelty Hawlian Sextette of Toronto. The hall was beautifully decorated with orange and blue streamers with the lights all dimmed with red shades. The usual punch bowl existed and soothed the thirst of the warm ones. After the luncheon hour the dancers were entertained by Prof. Ben. Hokea and Company in Hawlian Novelties. After the entertainment dancing was again resumed till 4 o'clock when all went home with a tired but happy feeling and tingling toes.

SOCIAL EVENING

Belleville Lodge, No. 1004, Loyal Order of Moose, held, on Monday, its first of a series of social evenings and the attendance was large, upwards of 100 members being present. After the business of the lodge had been transacted, refreshments were served, followed by an interesting program. Bro. Dr. Platt occupied the chair and gave an address relative to the organization. Songs were rendered by Bros. Blakeley, Matthews and F. Bush, and Bro. A. Wheeler gave one of his characteristic monologues. The affair was most enjoyable. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the social committee for the arranging of the event.

PAINFULLY INJURED

Mr. William Chamberlain, residing on Wickett street, was at noon on Saturday, the victim of a painful accident. He was riding a bicycle and when turning off from Pinnacle street to Campbell street was struck by an auto driven by Mr. Patrick Lynch, residing on Albert street. MASONIC VETERANS MEET War Veterans Lodge A.F. & A.M., U.D., G.R.C., fittingly commemorated the Armistice in the Masonic Temple, Yonge St. Toronto, on Friday night. The lodge was decorated in military style and there was an artistic display of poppies entwined with leaves of oak and maple. Initiation was worked with full musical ritual under the direction of M. W. Br. Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., Grand Master, and W.M. Bro. George Ross. The veterans assembled for the occasion in uniform and brethern in office varied in rank from colonel to private. M.W. Bro. Ponton was presented with a handsome cabinet of silver on behalf of the lodge. At a banquet which followed the Grand Master paid glowing tribute to the Canadian corps in France and characterised Canada as the keystone to the arch by which the two great English-speaking nations are to be joined in better understanding, despite the factions who persist in twisting the lion's tail Tribute to fallen members of the Craft was observed in a silent toast followed by the sounding of the "Last Post." Crescent Quartette and the Post Officce band contributed to the success of the evening.

ARMISTICE SERVICE

Monday afternoon in the City Hall an interesting service was held in commemoration of Armistice Day, a service of Thanksgiving for peace with victory and all the blessings of a world free from the menace of a German military yoke. The service was arranged by Mayor Hanna and the large attendance was an evidence that in the midst of so many distractions, trivial and otherwise, there is still a serious and reverent current running through the minds of the people and a gratitude to God for the defeat of the enemy in the great war. Mayor Hanna occupied the chair and the program was participated in by Col. W. N. Ponton, Ven. Archdeacon Beamish, Rural Dean Swayne, Rev. D. C. Ramsay, Rev. A. S. Kerr, Rev. W. Elliott, Adjt. MILITARY NEWS

The Garrison Military Church Service on Sunday at St. Thomas Anglican church was well attended despite the unusual hour of 10 a.m., and the Veterans and Boy Scouts marching behind the Argylle Light Infantry, were well represented. The service was a purely military one as a memorial to the gallant soldiers who lost their lives fighting for freedom in the great war, conducted by Major the Ven. Archdeacon Beamish, Chaplain of the Argylle Light Infantry, who spoke very feelingly and appropriately. It is the intention to carry out this service annually in perpetuation of the above memorial. Officers present included Lt.-Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., Capt.-Adj. D. Thomas McManus, Major Dr. Wallbridge, Capt. Jack, D.O.M., M.M. and Bar; Lieut. Lorne Greene, Lieut. George Caldwell, Lieut. McIntosh, R.M.C. The A.L.I. band played splendid music for marching, and the Boy Scouts' drum and bugle band held up their end with a vim. The men of A.L.I. certainly looked smart and fit in the parade and many favorable comments were passed by citizens upon the fine appearance of the regiment.

A drill parade is called for Wednesday at eight p.m., and it is hoped that every member will make a special effort to be present.

THE CODLING MOTHS.

Facts About the Parent of the Apple Worm.

The codling moth is the parent of the appleworm, a very unpopular insect. In response to an appeal for help scientists have been making a special study of the moth. To get a line on the habits and life history of the insect, the experts have constructed "cocooning racks" of wood strips so put together as to form rows of compartments or cells, each accommodating one caterpillar.

The rows of cells are covered with strips of transparent celluloid, through which the transformations of the caterpillars into pupae and finally moths can be watched. A record of observations for each caterpillar is kept by the help of a reference number at the top of its compartment. The moth is brownish gray, with a wing-spread of three-quarters of an inch. At rest on the bark of an apple tree, it is hardly distinguishable to the eye. The female lays her eggs on apples, one here and another there, and the caterpillars hatched from them bore into the fruit, eating it as they grew and defiling it in a manner unhappily too familiar. In late summer or early fall the full-grown worms leave the apples and seek concealment in holes or cracks in the trees, or under the bark, spinning tough silken cocoons in which to pass the winter. Many of them, still resident in the apples, are carried with the latter to storage houses, where they spin their cocoons in boxes, barrels or bins. In spring they transform into moths, which fly to the orchards, thus completing the cycle.

Elderly people can to-day remember a time when nearly every apple offered for sale had one or more worm holes. Usually it was the caterpillar of the codling moth that was responsible for the mischief. Nowadays decent apples rarely exhibit such unpleasant imperfections for the reason that a spray of arsenate of lead applied to the trees is death to the insect.

Thanks to this method of treatment apples 98 per cent. perfect are produced in parts of the southwest where, with four generations of the insect developing each year, it was formerly almost impossible to grow apples profitably.

Drowned Saving a Woman.

The perils of the Great Lakes are strikingly illustrated by the case of the late Captain Thomas Lake Vandusen of the ill-fated schooner Oliver Mowat of Picton. The doughty skipper sailed the lakes from boyhood and was completing his fiftieth season on the water when disaster overtook him this year. His vessel was rammed and sunk by the steam barge Key West and he was one of three lost in the night.

The Oliver Mowat, running light to Oswego for coal, sighted the steamer on a bright night. The crew could see the flash from the Main Ducks light three miles away and say they were sure that their flashlight would warn the other vessel. But the big boat cut the little one almost in two, backed out and took a mast away. The captain was in the cabin with the cook and a sailor. The mate rushed down to save them and was joined by Captain Vandusen in an effort to bring up Miss McGregain, the cook. The boat went down in four minutes. The sailor who had been in the cabin was rescued. He saw Captain Vandusen swimming just before the sinking. He saw Mate Corby in the water before the sail vanished, but that was the last. The barge lowered a boat to no avail. It was made clear that the efforts of the captain and mate to rescue the woman cost them their lives. So it can be said that the old sailor died in performance of his duty. He did not leave his vessel until it left him. He had commanded many vessels and had owned several. His ventures had been successful and he was about to retire.

Robbed of Eleven Days.

The Daylight Saving Act with its presumed natural laws as it seemed to many people when proposed, was as nothing, says a recent writer, compared with the step which Parliament was bold enough to take in 1752, when it caused the Gregorian method of reckoning time to be adopted: Gregory XIII.'s reform was introduced in 1582, and in 1752 we were eleven days behind his calendar. Parliament therefore enacted that on September 3rd, 1752, eleven days were to be dropped, and the day to count as September 14th. On the passing of the bill, crowds who seriously believed that by this means they had been robbed of eleven days of their life, congregated outside the Houses of Parliament and clamored at the members as they came out for their eleven days back again. In due course the agitation subsided, but conservative country folk for many years afterwards continued to observe the old Christmas and the old New Year.

Canned Salmon.

Thrifty housewives on the Pacific coast nowadays buy salmon when they are plentiful and cheap, and put them up in jars or cans for winter use. They find it as easy as the canning of vegetables or fruits.

The salmon, dressed and the backbone removed, are cut in crosswise pieces of a size to fit the jar or can. Salt is added, and the process, which includes cooking for three hours in the cans, is the same as for vegetables.

Golf.

Men take up golf for the exercise —as a game it makes walking most interesting. An inexperienced player going over an 18-hole course will perhaps cover five miles. The more proficient he becomes at the game the less he walks, ergo, the less exercise he gets. So, if you are taking up golf for the exercise, what is the sense of becoming expert and thus reducing the amount of exercise?

CAPTURED BY MOORS

ONTARIO MAN HAD A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

E. J. Young, of London, Fell Into the Hands of African Bandits During the Great War—He Tells Something About the Habits of These Sworn Enemies of the Spanish Government.

There is at least one Canadian veteran of the Great War who follows with keen interest the reports of the squabble between Spain and Morocco. Thirty-nine days, E. J. Young, of London, Ontario, formerly of the mechanical transport section of the British army, was held captive in a kraal on a mountain top by coffee-colored bandits, whose audacious and warlike fellows are now seeking to humiliate still further the ancient grandeur and glory that once was Spain's. In Mr. Young's opinion, Spain will have an extended holiday in subjugating her Moroccan insurrectionists.

On Nov. 15, 1915, Mr. Young boarded at Avonmouth a transport which sailed under sealed orders, which happened to imply a destination in Salonica. After passing through the Straits of Gibraltar, the transport was sighted by a German submarine, which kept up a heavy shell-fire for three hours. Although sixty soldiers and sailors were killed or wounded by the shell-fire, the transport kept going, and the U-boat fired a torpedo. Life-boats were lowered and most of those on board had left the transport before it sank.

Mr. Young was in the last boat which got away and the occupants of this boat, ten soldiers and three sailors, lost sight of the other life-boats. He was the only occupant of the boat who was not wounded. For three days and three nights, without food, and with only a small cask of water to drink, the refugees floated without sight of land. On the fourth morning they drifted in to a rocky coast, with no human being in sight on shore, and nothing but high cliffs and cactus plants to be seen.

Immediately upon kindling a fire, however, the party of survivors was surrounded by Moors. One refugee could talk French and was able to communicate with the bandit chief, who had served in the French Foreign Legion. The Britishers were told that they would be held for ransom. The gang were accustomed to lay in watchful waiting for shipwrecked mariners and travelers worth holding for ransom. Britishers and Americans are usually treated fairly well by the Moorish bandits who know that their ransom will be paid, but Spanish prisoners are usually quickly despatched, as ther ransoms are seldom paid.

The bandits sent word to the British consul at Tangier, who informed the Spanish Government that the captives were in Spanish territory and hence the Spanish Government should pay their ransom. Finally, the prisoners were told to prepare for traveling, and after two days and two nights, they came to a bay where a Spanish warship lay waiting. Taken to Melilla, a Spanish settlement, they were held another two weeks, before being transferred to Malaga in southern Spain where they were interned for two months. A British boat, the Polo, one day docked at Malaga and loaded lead for the British Government. Mr. Young and a companion with the connivance of the British sailors, escaped to Hull. They were court-martialed by the British military authorities for escaping from a neutral country while being held as prisoners of war, but later were sent back to war service, Mr. Young to the west front where he remained till the armistice.

For eight years, in fact, since before the Great War broke out, Spain had been carrying on a guerilla warfare with the Moors, whose country she claims. A Spanish official once told Mr. Young that this war was financed partly by the British and partly by the French Governments, in the hope that with the conquest by the Spanish, its rich mineral wealth would be available for development. After a rainstorm, Mr. Young states, the rivers and other streams running down from the mountains are red with iron.

The Moors are born warriors, and the men never do any work except fighting. In addition to warring against the Spaniards and holding other foreigners for ransom, the various bandit tribes war with one another. The women plant rice in the valley marshlands and harvest the crop in six weeks. Ricebread dipped in olive oil is the staple food of the Moorish bandits, and this food they shared freely with their prisoners. Morocco is a valuable and extensive country which the Spanish have held in name for a long time, but have not dared to occupy, except on rocky promontories where they established settlements they could protect by warships. The Moors have no well-organized central government, each wandering tribe being practically independent, but all are devout Mohammedans, and probably most easily influenced through Mohammedan religious dignitaries.

New Boilers.

Emulating the study of the teakettle by James Watt, which resulted in the invention of the steam engine, two men recently accomplished what is claimed to be remarkable progress in the construction of steam boilers through a study of the coffee percolator, says Popular Mechanics. The water, instead of being heated in large quantities, is boiled, a gallon at a time, in a flat receptacle just over the fire pot. The water being only one-quarter inch deep, quickly becomes steam. The excess of water drips down on a lower set of similar plates. The saving in fuel is said to be considerable.

Anthracite Prices

As dealers in Anthracite we wish we could reduce prices,—but we can't.

The causes of high Anthracite prices are higher costs of Labor and higher Freight Rates—both fixed by law—not higher Profits.

Neither producers nor coal dealers are making any more money than they made when prices were lower.

The increased price ALL goes to pay higher costs of production and transportation.

How, then, can prices be reduced?

It is wise to lay in your winter's supply now rather than wait until thousands of consumers are trying to have their coal bins all filled at the same time.

JAPAN WILL CUT NAVAL PROGRAM

Her Safety Assured, She is Ready to Enter Into Agreement.

STATEMENT BY KATO

Head of Delegation to Washington Defines Her Position.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—After reiterating that Japan is ready to cut down her naval program in agreement with the powers, provided the safety of Japan is assured, Admiral Baron Tomosbro Kato, Minister of Marine and ranking ahead of the Japanese delegation to the Armament conference, here in a statement explained why the oriental Empire had a big navy.

Owing to Japan's insular position, he declared, naval force alone must be relied on for her defence.

"The smallness or bigness of a navy depends upon the point of view of each nation concerned," said Admiral Kato. "I do not consider the navy of Japan a big one. The plans already adopted are much inferior to the program adopted by Great Britain and the United States.

Japan, he added, goes into the approaching conference with the willingness to cut down the so-called "eight-eight" program provided agreement with the other powers can be obtained. He explained that the "eight-eight" program will be completed in 1928. It was adopted years ago and the Japanese Diet had made appropriations from year to year to carry the work forward.

The "eight-eight" program signifies that each of the "eight dreadnoughts and eight modern battle cruisers making up the program is to be replaced after eight years' service. This means that Japan must build two super-warships every year at a cost of about $30,000,000 and that simultaneously she must make further tremendous expenditures in replacing the auxiliary ships and aircraft necessary to round out her main fleet.

REV. FATHER WALSH DIED AT NIAGARA

Was Ordained Priest With Archbishop Spratt in 1882.

Many in this vicinity will regret to hear of the death, which occurred at Ann Arbor, Mich., of Rev. Father William E. Walsh. He was a native of Skibereen, County Cork, Ireland. He received his primary and classical education at that place. On emigrating with his parents to Canada he became affiliated with the archdiocese of Kingston. He made his theological studies at the Seminary, at Point Levis, and the Grand Seminary, Montreal. He was ordained to the priesthood at Trenton by the late Archbishop Cleary in 1882. At the same time His Grace Archbishop Spratt, Kingston; His Grace the late Archbishop McEvay, Toronto, and the late Rev. Father Sweeney were raised to the holy priesthood. Following ordination Rev. Father Walsh was appointed assistant to the late Rev. I. J. MacCarthy at St. Francis Xavier's church of Brockville. In 1884 he was appointed the first rector of St. James parish, Ballycanoe. He did splendid work there and was later transferred to Frankford. From that place he went to Spencerville and Throoptown. He remained in that parish for some years and was unremitting in advancing the religious welfare of those confided to his spiritual care. He was promoted by His Grace Archbishop Gauthier to St. Edward's parish, Westport, and after serving there, resigned to join the Vincentian order. For a number of years he was a professor in Niagara University. Last year he was appointed by his superiors chaplain at the Sister's Hospital, Ann Arbor, Mich., where he died.

KITTY FINDS MOTHER-LOVE AND HOME IN PIG'S PEN

St. Thomas, Ont., Nov. 8.—A strange case of maternal devotion is reported by a Middlemarch farmer who claims to have a sow with litter that has adopted a half-grown kitten and permits it to nurse with her babies and to sleep with them. The kitten has been a member of the family of pigs for several days and will no longer touch cow's milk when offered it. At night the kitten curls up on the mother pig's side.

RUSSIA WANTS TO BORROW MONEY

Has Abandoned Theory for Practicality and Will Appeal to Neighbors.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Russia's policies are now directed by economic interests and not by doctrines according to a statement of Foreign Minister Chitcherin who declares in an interview with correspondent of Petit Parisien that insurmountable economic difficulties may compel the Government to appeal to foreign capitalists for aid in order to stave off disaster.

MODEL SETTLEMENT TO REPLACE TOWN

Britaniia Beach, B.C., to Rise Phoenix-like From Its Ruins.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 8.—Another model settlement will replace the ruins of Brittania Beach, B.C., but the site of the town will be shifted slightly to avoid the old creek bed on which the residential part of the town stood. This sandy hollow was swept by flood waters a fortnight ago, to the destruction of a good part of the town, and loss of 36 lives.

President Scholey, of the Brittania Beach Mines Corporation, and other officials are here from New York and have decided against risking another such flood in the old creek bed. The town will be rebuilt, at no extra cost, on higher ground, at the foot of Brittania hills, out of reach of the mountain torrents.

Hylan re-elected mayor of New York by a big majority.

UNKNOWN COMES TO HOME LAND

Cruiser Olympia Arrives With Honored Body of Unknown U. S. Soldier.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Her progress marked by the periodic rendition of a salute of twenty-one guns, the cruiser Olympia today brought the United States "unknown" to his home land. The battleship North Dakota, lying at the entrance to the Potomac, dipped her ensign in salutation as her guns tolled a welcome, and as the Olympia proceeded to her berth, Fort Washington and Washington Barracks signalled her passage with a salute of twenty-one guns.

DOC'S LITTLE PIG AT LIONS' LUNCH

Bowled Over on the Alleys and Introduced to the Lions.

Dr. O'Callaghan's little pig graced the table at the Lions' luncheon to-day at the Chamber of Commerce. Doc being a mighty roller bowled over that little pig on the Y.M.C.A. alleys while Bowler McLean, winner of the three string (not consecutive) competition, took the chickens, and just to tease the Lions, Doc, brought his prize to the jungle-fest. The gathering was full of pep and enthusiasm, Harold Barrett leading the singing and John McGie played the piano. Dr. O'Callaghan was Good Fellowship Chairman, and A. G. Davie contributed "A Ramble Among the Time Conv." Mr. J. R. Finkle, from Los Angeles, California, was present as the guest of Cub Ed. Cherry and gave a short talk. Cub Wheeler reported upon athletics and outlined a movement to get up a city league to embrace all sorts of sport, indoor and outdoor to be participated in by teams from the factories and stores. Next Wednesday Dr. Neilson will give an address on Lionism.

GREATEST STEP OF ALL HISTORY

Place of Arms Conference in Effort for International World.

VIEWS OF BALFOUR

Former Prime Minister of Great Britain Arrives At Quebec.

QUEBEC, Nov. 9.—"I don't believe this disarmament conference at Washington can do everything. I am personally confident it can do much. I am confident that of the steps that are being gradually made to produce a better and improved world—an international world—this step will be of all history the greatest. In that hope I go to Washington."

This was the message Arthur J. Balfour, British ex-Prime Minister and present leader of the British delegation to Washington, in the absence of Premier Lloyd George, gave to newspapermen who welcomed him yesterday afternoon when he landed from the liner Empress of France, which had conveyed him with his suite from Liverpool.

Mr. Balfour was accompanied by Lord Cavan, who commanded the British army in Italy during the war, acting as military adviser to the British delegation; Air Marshal Higgins, Flight-Lieutenant Arnold, Sir Maurice Haukey, chief of the Cabinet Secretariat; Commander Lampson and Sir John Jordon, Chinese authorities and numerous secretaries and stenographers. The party numbered twenty-one in all.

Mr. Balfour, after being photographed, boarded a private car attached to the C.P.R. boat train, which took him and his party to Montreal. It was planned by the delegation to spend the night there and continue on to New York and Washington tomorrow morning. They should reach the United States capital on Thursday morning.

IRISH QUESTION TROUBLES KING

Speech Proroguing Parliament Will Deal Principally With Irish Problem.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Forecasts of the king's speech proroguing Parliament which it is thought, will be delivered tomorrow, are to the effect that it deals almost exclusively with the Irish situation. The Premier presided last night over Cabinet Council at which the terms of the speech were said to have been discussed. It is said that if the Ulsterites do not reconcile their views with those of the Premier he will resign.

FOCH IS GUEST OF K. OF C. ORDER

French Marshal Becomes Millionth Knight of the Society.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Marshal Foch on Sunday was the official guest of the Knights of Columbus and became the millionth Knight of the order.

Marshal Foch visited the Edward Hines, Jr., Government ship at Maywood, where he chatted with some of the disabled soldiers and unveiled a portrait of the boy who died in the war for whom the ship was named.

The Marshal of France started the day by attending Mass at the Holy Name Cathedral with Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty. Archbishop Mundelein presided.

After the Mass the Marshal was extended an official welcome by the Archbishop in his private apartment.

Just prior to the attendance at Mass Marshal Foch was the recipient of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at Loyola University, a Jesuit institution.

Sunday afternoon Marshal Foch reviewed a monster Knights of Columbus parade for half an hour. Leaving the reviewing stand before the parade was finished, he was driven along its entire route in order that all could extend him greeting. The reviewing stand was in Grand Park facing Michigan avenue. Tens of thousands of people were massed in the park and along the street. Local Knights of Columbus officials said there were about 100,000 people in the parade.

Throughout the day while being entertained by the Knights of Columbus Marshal Foch carried the jeweled baton of a Marshal of France presented to him a year ago by the Knights of Columbus at Metz.

The ceremony of conferring Knighthood on Marshal Foch by the Knights of Columbus took place in the Presidential suite at the Congress Hotel immediately prior to the banquet.

HAS LORD'S PRAYER TATTOOED ON BACK

Also Hymns and Angels—Wife Seeks Baldheaded Able Seaman.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—If there is any virtue in tattoo marks then able-seaman W. T. Davis, although he is wanted for deserting his ship, is not very far from grace. According to the detailed description given by his wife, of tattoo marks on his body, one can sing, read a prayer and otherwise meditate on the holy symbios that cover his entire person.

The description given by Mrs. Davis, who is still anxiously looking for her erring spouse, is as follows: "Height 5 feet 10 inches, fair blue eyes, has a large amount of tattooing on his body. On his bald head was the Lord's head, around his neck is a serpent, two angels are holding a Bible on his chest, while the last supper is tattooed across his stomach. On his back are several hymns "Nearer my God to Thee," "Abide With Me," and the Lord's prayer on his arms and a crucifix and the usual tattooing of a sailor.

"He deserted the S.S. Barranca at Montreal, 1918, and I should be grateful for any inquiries made."

The above sailor has in the interval been known at No. 11 Princess street, Auckland, New Zealand, and has also sailed under the name of W. T. Segg, his stepfather's name. There is little chance of finding this prodigy here but bald-headed captains and mates are having their pates scrutinized at the local shipping master's offices by Captain J. O. Grey, and wonder what the game is. Sailors who insist on keeping their hats on are also suspects.

BUT JOHN "BACKS DOWN"

London, Nov. 8.—William John, Labor member for West Rhondda, made a complete and unqualified apology in the House of Commons tonight for the statement he made on Saturday in a public address that a number of wealthy M.P.'s were in the habit of entering the House of Commons in a half-drunken condition. After Mr. John had withdrawn his statement and expressed regret, Austen Chamberlain said he thought the House might best preserve its dignity by proceeding no farther in the matter.

LOWER WAGES FOR RAILWAYMEN

Arbitrators Hand Out Award Sustaining Wage Reductions on National Railways.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—The award of the arbitrators in the wage dispute between the Canadian National Railways and employes handed out today sustains the reduction in salaries of employes paid more than $125 a month and reductions in the wages of stenographers, dining, parlor and sleeping car employes.

For employes receiving less than $125 monthly it recommends a graded schedule which provides a monthly reduction of $5 for those receiving $80 monthly, $7.50 for those receiving $81 to $95, $10 for those receiving $95 to $125, $12.50 for those receiving $125 to $150, and $15 for those receiving $150 and over.

WAR DEBTS MAY BE CANCELLED

As a Result of Washington Conference, and German Terms Revised.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited.

Berlin, Nov. 9.—The belief that the Washington conference will result in the cancellation or postponement of payment of war debts owed to the United States by the Entente nations is expressed by Dr. Rosen, former foreign minister. In this event he believes the German reparations terms will be revised.

COLLISION CAUSED INJURIES

At 7 o'clock Tues. night a collision between an auto and a buggy resulting in the driver of the buggy being injured. Mr. Samuel Colden was the driver of the auto and was proceeding north, whilst Mr. George Maybee of College Hill was driving his horse southward. It is alleged that the latter was driving too near the centre of the road and this caused the accident. The hind wheel of the vehicle was struck with considerable force and Mr. Maybee was thrown to the ground injuring his knee, shoulder and bruising his body. He was attended by a physician after being taken to his home. The injuries fortunately are not considered of a serious nature. The buggy was damaged to some extent.

6,000 AT QUEBEC HEAR MEIGHEN

Premier at First Heckled by Unfriendly Element in Audience.

ANSWERS ALL ATTACKS

Makes Powerful Presentation of Government's Position.

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 9.—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen found several electors of this city ready to question him on public issues here last night, and since he was equally prepared to answer all enquiries, his meeting in the Armouries was an undoubted success. There may have been some who believed that by shouting queries they would disconcert the Prime Minister. They erred grievously. They simply served to provide Mr. Meighen with opportunities to emphasize his arguments on the political issues of the day and to confirm the faith of those who concur in the policies of the Government of the day. The Premier found himself facing an audience of nearly 6,000 when he responded to the invitation to speak. He was supported by Hon. L. J. Belley, the Postmaster-General, and Hon. Dr. L. P. Normand, the President of the Privy Council. He was introduced by Col. J. A. Scott and Col. Chauveau, who acted as joint chairmen and the latter of whom is expected to be a Government candidate in one of the constituencies of the Quebec district.

U. S. SENATE EXTENDS EMERGENCY TARIFF

To Continue in Effect Until Superseded by Permanent Measure.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The Senate passed the House bill extending the Emergency Tariff, but amended so as to continue in effect until superseded by the permanent bill instead of expiring February 1.

Debate on the measure was brief and took the same course as that followed in the two prior appearances of the Emergency Tariff in Congress.

There was no record vote.

In presenting the committee recommendation that the Senate continue the measure in effect, Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, in charge of the bill, said doubt existed whether the permanent tariff bill, now before the Finance Committee, could be enacted before February 1, 1922.

HAMILTON WOMAN'S DEATH A MYSTERY

Husband Says She Came to Her End by Suicide—Marks on Throat.

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 9.—Chief Coroner Dr. George S. Rennie is investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Martha Glaser, aged 50 years, a Jewess, 175 Bold street wife is said to have committed suicide by hanging herself.

The first intimation of her death was when her husband, Ben Glaser, notified some Hebrew women to come and prepare the body for burial, in accordance with the Jewish custom.

When the women arrived they noticed marks on the deceased woman's throat and she gave every indication of having been strangled to death. Dr. McIlwraith was called and declared that death was due to strangulation. He then notified the coroner.

According to the story told by the husband of the dead woman, she asked him to go out yesterday afternoon, stating that she wanted to end her life. He went out and stayed away, and, when he came back she was hanging from the ceiling. He said he cut her down, prepared the room for death, and laid the woman on the floor.

BRUTALITY ALLEGED

Washington, Nov. 9.—Private soldiers and Sailors Legion to-day in a letter to Secretary Weeks declared that "unless the records of the War Department have been tampered with a scrutiny of them will furnish all the evidence necessary to prove conclusively that tyranny, brutality and abuse were the rule and not the exception in the attitude of officers towards enlisted men" in the American Expeditionary Force.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Translation Wanted

T.T.—If the council would now publish a translation of the financial statement for 1920, recently printed in book form the average man and woman could get an idea of what past City Councils have been doing to him or her. Of course they see the general effect in boosted taxes but the details might be interesting, also what are they going to do to us this year? Must the citizens vote in the dark as usual and wait a couple of years for the financial statement of the current year?

Mud and Misery

M.B.—Two minutes of silent respect for the heroes who gave their lives that freedom might live is a duty which all will be glad to observe Armistice Day at eleven o'clock, and it is just one of those worthy customs which prevent us from seeming to forget our great obligations to the boys who endured the mud and blood and misery in Flanders, while we were comfortable and prosperous at home.

Dinner in The Diner

B.B.—Travelling on Thanksgiving Day and the day after I was surprised to find the trains crowded, standing room only in fact, and was told that on the Canadian National steel train from Ottawa to Toronto on one trip alone nine hundred meals had been served. Doesn't look much like hard times and looks as if the government railways might soon be able to declare a dividend instead of these horrid deficits we have been hearing about.

Move Over, Buddy!

W.W.—You may not have noticed it but it is a fact that the water wagon is getting considerably crowded and increased accommodation will have to be provided. Hootch parties are not so numerous and many, formerly accustomed to their bitters regularly, have decided that as they will have to quit some time they might just as well quit now, hence the merry mob on the chlorine juice wagon. Its all right boys and girls the headacheless moringsafter do not leave any maroon taste under the gold bridges.

Tank Town Limit

B.H.—I know a guy what got a prescription for six ounces of booze (6 oz.). A little one-spot changed the script to sixteen ounces,(16 ozs.), and he presented same to Mr. Druggist. Did he get the sixteen, he did not, he came pretty near not getting the six and no amount of argument could get the pillpounder or script chaser out of the six-ounce class. When some of these thirsty guys wake up to the fact that six ounces is the legal limit in the tank towns they will save themselves a lot of worry as to how they can raise the ante.

PROF. ROY'S FINE ADDRESS

Troubled Europe Sees Promise of Light in Conference, Says Queen's Professor.

Alone of the Central European nations, old and new, Czecho-Slovakia seems sufficiently contented with what she has acquired to be able to put her whole energy into the consolidation of her gains. All her national enthusiasm suppressed for so many years under Hapsburg rule, is now active in laying the foundations of an enlightened and progressive State. Her hopes are well founded—she has reason to be cheerful. In the character of the bulk of her people, in her central position as to trade, in the actual potential wealth of her territory she is fortunate. In a world that has more than it can well digest of dissatisfaction and covetousness, Czecho-Slovakia is to-day a pleasant example of comparative contentment.

The rich farm-lands of Bohemia are deep in a bountiful harvest. The many little towns along the rivers and among the gently rolling hills are busy with their individual life, and the large cities, with their smoking factory chimneys, substantiate the impression of industrial enterprise.

Such a scene is due to no accident of national policy or adventitious circumstance. Although Czecho-Slovakia seems to be the one country that gained what she wanted by the Peace of Versailles, her present prosperity is due primarily to the character of her people.

The government has just sent 12 young doctors to America to study the methods of public hygiene and sanitation. On the completion of their course twelve others will go, while those returning will put into active practice the ideas they have acquired. Showing how deeply in earnest they are in their desire for progress, it is interesting to note that, at the same time that these young doctors are abroad familiarizing themselves with modern methods, a number of the highest health officials in the government are now in America studying sanitary problems. This will make for unity of purpose in the future, and prevent obstruction in high quarters.

As a corollery to this absorbing subject of child-welfare, there is great interest in the establishment of a system of district nursing. The rate of infant mortality under Austria was disgracefully high. The present government is determined to improve these conditions, and is planning a wide system for the instruction of mothers.

Czecho-Slovakia, given nation status by the Treaty of Versailles, lost no time in getting down to the business of making a nation, in sharp contrast with other nations of Europe, big and little, torn and troubled with jealousy, fear and unwarranted ambition. A graphic and wonderfully interesting word picture was painted before the Belleville Rotary Club on Tuesday afternoon of the present European political situation with especial reference to the various races of the Slovaks, who have been so much in the public print but about whom so little is understood. The speaker was Prof. James A. Roy, M.A., who is professor of English at Queen's University, Kingston, and that he is fully qualified to speak upon the question of European politics is evidenced from the fact that he served overseas on military headquarters staff and after the war was a member of the Inter-Allied Commission of Control which endeavored to restore order from the chaos which Central Europe with its many and diverse aspirants to nationhood was plunged. The address was a treat of pure and unfaltering English and in its novelty and intense interest and educational value. Prof. Roy's experience as a member of the Inter-Allied Commission was not of the most pleasant nature, being repeatedly fired upon and threatened by malcontents who desired nothing more than to stir up international trouble.

In the brief time at his disposal Prof. Roy could only give an outline of the problems which are making Europe a nightmare at the present time and as a refreshing contrast gave some little attention to the one small nation which is content and busy building up a better system of government.

All Europe is looking with hope to the Washington Disarmament Conference, said Prof. Roy, who has great hopes that much good will come from the gathering of so many of the brightest and best minds of the world every one of whom is fully aware of the world crisis at present existing and the terrible disaster another war would be. Their task is indeed great, but they may be able to solve it for the good of the world, present and future.

Prof. Roy's address was one of the best of Belleville's Rotary's many fine offerings, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker on motion of Dr. Baker, seconded by C. M. Reid, both of whom spoke in appreciative terms of the address.

The speaker was introduced by Col. Herb. Wilson, who occupied the chair for the afterpart. The attendance was large and full of Rotary pep with Sandy the Singer leading the community warbling. Visitors included Abe Brophy of Ottawa; Mr. Springstead, city; J. R. Finkle, Los Angeles; Ernie Finkle, President G.W.V.A.; Rev. A. S. Kerr, Steve License and Hugh Hall.

It was announced that Belleville Rotary would visit Peterboro Rotary on Monday, Nov. 21 for an evening of good fellowship following out the inter-city visiting idea of Rotary.

Letters to The Editor

OLD AGE PENSIONS

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—This is a repetition of a great many appeals that have been made for Old Age Pension. All the other apeals have been made to the Government at Ottawa. This one is made to the people, and will say to the people that all the Nations under the British flag have adopted a national system of Old Age Pension except Canada, and although the Government has been appealed to by nearly all classes of the community, nevertheless they remained deaf to our prayers, and our communications, and after the Government has broken all pledges and promises they have cheek enough to come to the people to be returned. There is one thing sure, they cannot get my recommendation. We want a government at Ottawa that will represent the people and the whole people, which their unequal policy called Protection fails to do. The word Protection is intended to deceive the electors by making it appear that their disastrous and unequal tax is a Protection to our Canadian manufactures. On the other hand it closes down our industries and makes unemployment, and every move they make is a proof that they are making unemployment. There are probably about 5,000 old people over 65 years old, and if the Government knew enough to give 5,000 old people a rest on Old Age Pensions, it would take 5,000 unemployed young people to take their places, which would make a circulation of the earnings of 5,000 younger people to boost business, as well as the circulation of the Old Age Pension. Now sir, the time has come when we must be up with the inventive world and do away with the old fogey policy of the Conservative Party which has a record of ruination to Canada, by adopting the platform of the Labor Party which is an up-to-date policy, as it is my impression that the laboring people have produced everything in this world excepting the bare earth and will have to get in the Legislative Assembly and finish the whole work in adjustment of the Statute.

THOS. SULLIVAN.

TRAINMEN AGREED TO CUT IN WAGES

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—(By Canadian Press).—Asked regarding the assertions made by James Murdock, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, former member of the Board of Commerce and Liberal candidate in Toronto South, that the Government had cut rates of pay to railway employes, Hon. Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, said:

"All of the railway employes in train service on Government-owned lines in Canada had their wages reduced on July 16 last, as was done on all other lines in both Canada and the United States, except that in United States the reduction dated from July 1. The Government does not employ one single man in train service that is not governed by the general agreement recently effected through a board of conciliation, and to which Mr. Murdock's organization was a subscribing party.

"On the Welland ship canal the contractors employ a number of men who switch the cars loaded with rock from the cut to the mammoth rock crusher situated along the canal near Thorold. They can in no sense be regarded as railroad employes. Never at any time has Mr. Murdock, or any other representative of railway employes, approached or communicated with the Government respecting wages paid these men, as they most assuredly would have done, had they themselves regarded these men as coming within the class of bona fide railway employes. Rates prevailing for similar service in that territory have been paid."

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 8.—Frank X. Schwab, Republican, running on a platform declaring for an amendment to the Volstead Act to permit the sale of beer and light wines, was elected Mayor of Buffalo today by a majority of 2,563 over Mayor George S. Buck, also a Republican.

TWO ARE KILLED WRECKING MILL

One Struck Dead by Heavy Beam — Other Hurled to the Ground.

Owen Sound, Nov. 8.—Walter Shaw and John Clark were killed almost instantly this afternoon while helping to wreck an old grist mill on the Indian River about four miles from Owen Sound. The next to the last bent was being lowered, and the two men were standing on the sill beside the last bent paying out the rope to let it down when the bent beside which they were standing suddenly swerved. One end shifted from tenant, and the whole section swung around and collapsed.

John Clark was struck by the heavy timber and knocked to the ground, thirty feet below. When picked up he was dead.

Walter Shaw was near the other end of the bent, and was struck by the timbers. He died about five minutes later.

Dr. Murray was called and the Coroner was notified, but an inquest was not deemed necessary.

Mr. Clark was a son of the late John Clarke, Liberal M.P., for North Grey in 1896, and was well known He lived in Owen Sound, and leaves a widow and a family of four.

Mr. Shaw lived near Kemble with his sister, widow of Trooper Noble Jones, who served in the South African war. He was unmarried. He is one of a family that was amongst the earliest to settle in this district.

U. S. LEADS WORLD GRANTING DIVORCES

Washington, Nov. 8—The American family is threatened with destruction unless present loose and conflicting divorce laws are made uniform, the senate judiciary committee was told. Witnesses who appeared in behalf of the uniformity of divorce laws urged adoption of the Jones resolution for a constitutional amendment empowering congress to write a national marriage and divorce code.

Dr. Richard Campbell Wylie, Pittsburg, said there are thirty-five separate causes for divorce in various states. One divorce occurs for every eight or nine marriages, he said. In the 20 years between 1886 and 1906, Wylie testified, 945,000 divorces were granted. In 1916 alone 114,000 divorces were ordered.

Dr. Renwick Martin, Pittsburg, said the United States now leads the world in divorces, granting each year more than all the European countries combined.

IN TRAINING.

"My son," said a father, solemnly, "when you see a boy loafing about the street corners at all hours, what place in life do you suppose he is fitting himself for?"

"To be a policeman," replied the young philosopher."

From Box Car to Railway Commission

"Railwaymen have wanted an active service representative on the Board of Railway Commissioners for some time," said Mr. Calvin Lawrence to-day, discussing his appointment to the Railway Commission, succeeding the late A. S. Goodeve. "We think such a man can render valuable assistance to the Board."

Mr. Lawrence has been on railways since 1879, when he was a brakeman on the Canadian Southern Railway. His appointment to the Railway Commission will necessitate his resignation from the prominent office of legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. In that position he has had close contact with the Railway Commission, as the brotherhood constantly brought to its attention conditions on railways and recommendations for improvements.

Get Representation

Thus, in Mr. Lawrence's appointment, both labor and railwaymen secure representation upon the Railway Commission.

Mr. Lawrence has resided in Ottawa since 1912. He and Mrs. Lawrence, who was formerly Miss Davidson, of Mitchell, Ontario, live at 116 Lisgar street. One of their sons was on active service in 1914 and died in the war. The other is Alden C. Lawrence, manager for Kootenay District of the North American Life Insurance Company, with headquarters at Nelson, British Columbia.

Native of Windham, Ont.

The new commissioner was born at Windham, Ont., where his parents had a farm. Later they moved to Windham Centre, but he left in 1879 for the Canadian Southern Railway, on which he started as a brakeman. Promotion to the locomotive department followed, and after firing for a while he became an engineer.

He has lived most of his life in St. Thomas, where he successively held all the offices in the local union. He was elected an alderman, and was mayor in 1906 and 1907.

The local union made him their delegate to the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers several times. In 1908 he was elected legislative representative of the international organization, after he had held a number of offices, among them being the chairmanship of the executive committee of the New York Central lines, and of the general committee of adjustment. At first he came to Ottawa during Parliamentary sessions only, but in 1910 he began to devote his whole time to the work.

A meeting will be held shortly to decide upon Mr. Lawrence's successor as legislative representative.

PROCLAMATION

ARMISTICE DAY

Friday, November 11th, 1921

CHAS. HANNA, MAYOR OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

WHEREAS, in response to a request of His Majesty the King, it is fitting that an opportunity be given the people of Belleville on the third anniversary of the Armistice, which stayed the world-wide carnage of the four preceding years, and marked the victory of right, justice and freedom, to perpetuate the memory of that great deliverance and those who laid down their lives to achieve it; and

WHEREAS, His Majesty the King has requested that there may be on Armistice Day for the brief space of two minutes at the hour of Eleven o'clock in the forenoon a complete suspension of all normal activities, so that in perfect stillness the prayers and thoughts of everyone may be concentrated on reverent remembrance of the glorious dead and of the Victory by God's Grace vouchsafed to the Empire and its devoted allies;

I, therefore, in compliance with the wishes of His Majesty the King, do request that, at the hour of 11 o'clock a.m., on Friday, the 11th instant, all business and domestic activities of every description should cease for a period of two minutes.

I beg also to request that commemoration services be held at that hour in schools and colleges of the city.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused this proclamation to be made public.

CHAS. HANNA, Mayor.

The Weak Cylinder

Uniform Compression In All Cylinders, Promotes Smooth Running

WHEN THE EVEN "PURR" and rythm of an engine's operation is lost and these ideal qualities are superseded by a "stuttering" tendency and a slight "hitch in the gait," it is evidence that there is a weak cylinder. At rather low speed, when considerable pulling is being done, such irregularities are most noticeable. No actual misfires occur, but the explosions in one or more cylinders are less energetic than in the others, with a corresponding periodic variation in the driving force. In nearly every case, the weak cylinder is simply a leaky cylinder and it will resume normal strength when gas tightness is restored. To identify the "weak leg" it is only necessary to crank the engine over by hand, with all spark-plugs out save one, which is screwed successively into each cylinder. The cylinder which it is in, when the engine can be turned over the compression period with an especially weak resistance acting upon the crank, is the weak one. It remains to locate and stop the leak, which may be caused by the exhaust-valve having become pitted or scaled, or by its being prevented from fully closing by something caught between it and its seat. Possibly its spring may be weak or its stem rough or gummy. A more serious possibility is leakage past the piston, which may be attributable to a broken piston-ring one that is gummed into its groove or a generally worn condition of the rings. An incorrectly designed or inadequately heated intake-manifold, by distributing the mixture unequally among the cylinders may cause one or more of them to act weakly, under certain conditions and the only available remedy for this defect is the provision of heat enough to insure a fairly "dry" mixture. Weak operation of a cylinder, at low throttle, is also frequently caused by an air leak into it, around its manifold branch or past the stem of its inlet-valve, which may be very loose in its guide.

FUEL FEED IS RESTRICTED

A. H. B. writes: I have a ——— that runs fine in all speeds, on the level, but when it is on a hill and I throw into second speed and open the gas full, it will run about fifty feet and then stop as though the gasoline were shut off. However, if I only open the throttle one-half or less, it will climb the hill all right, but rather too slowly. This trouble does not occur in high or low speed on a hill, in fact I can attain 25 m. p. h. in second on the level. Please explain.

Answer: Something is restricting the rate of your fuel feed. The reason that you notice it on second and not on high—full throttle in both cases—is because the engine turns over faster in the former case and uses more gas. You probably do not keep the throttle wide open long enough, on low to empty the carburetor bowl. Your feed is by gravity and you should be sure that the tank vent is not plugged up, that the gas line is clear and that the filter screen at the carburetor is not obstructed. Running on second at 25 m. p. h. on level going takes much less gas than with the throttle wide open on this speed and evidently does not exhaust the supply available.

EXCESS VOLTAGE BURNS OUT BULBS

P. C. writes: The battery connection jarred off, while I was driving my Ford over some bumps in the road and the dim headlamps, which I had on, burned white for an instant and then went out completely. On replacing the battery connection, I found that the dim headlamps and tail lamp would not burn, but that I could run on the bright headlamps. Have examined the switch and all wiring, which seem O. K. but still these lamps will not burn. Where is the trouble?

Answer: Quite likely you will find the only trouble to be that the dim and tail lamp bulbs are burned out and that replacing them will set matters right. When the battery became disconnected, the generator voltage increased to an abnormally high value—especially high, since only small lamps were burning—causing their destruction during the brief time when you say they burned white. The bright headlamps not being on, escaped overburning. It is only the presence in circuit of the battery that keeps the generator voltage at a safe point and, when it loses connection, lamp burnouts are likely to occur.

HOLIER THAN THOU POLITICAL HYPOCRISY

Political leaders are trying to make capital out of the question, oft repeated with unction and umpty-umps from the big bass drum in the orchestra, "Where do the campaign funds come from?" It would be more interesting to know where the campaign funds go to, for it is no secret where they come from, even William Lyons Mackenzie King having plenty, apparently, and a private car to ride in, while Tom Crerar seems to be paying his board and lodging while dodging about the country pointing with holy horror to the Big Interests, (all except the Big Grain Interests of Crerar & Co.) If a whole lot of hypocrisy and holier-than-thou stuff was cut out of the campaign guff there might be less humor, but there would be more real argument for the electors to form opinions on.

KING WILL BE SACRIFICED WHEN TIME IS RIPE.

Hon. William Lyons Mackenzie King was introduced to a Toronto audience as "the future Premier of Canada." Well, not if Toronto can prevent it will William Lyons Mackenzie King be Premier of Canada, not by several jugfuls. W. L. M. K's only chance for the premiership is as the candidate of the little Canadian party in Quebec, anti-war, anti-conscription as far as Quebec was concerned, and anti most everything of an all-Canada nature. If the revenge cry in Quebec can deliver Mackenzie King a solid Liberal bloc he thinks he has a chance, but then again the Quebecers do not want Mackenzie King as Premier, having two candidates themselves for that job right now, Sir Lomer Gouin and Mr. Ernest Lapointe. If Canada is to be sacrificed upon the altar of an ignoble revenge, one more sacrifice in Mackenzie King would be neither here nor there to the men with the knife who are stirring up trouble and hatred in Quebec.

HONESTY IS THE BEST POLICY EVEN IN PARTY POLITICS.

At this crisis in the country's history, it is pitiful to hear some men express the cynical view that, although Crerar and King talk free trade and lower tariff, they would not put either in operation if they got into office. There could be no more dangerous talk than that. It strikes at the roots of honesty and decency in public life; it amounts to a denial of principle in politics; it is an acceptance of the detestable doctrine of bluff. The question we ask seriously is: if public men are not to be taken at their face value, are not to be judged by their public utterances and the platforms solemnly adopted at representative conventions of the parties they lead, how in the name of heaven can people arrive at proper conclusions?

Men who laugh and say politics is only a game and politicians do not mean what they say, are not worthy citizens. They would not take the same attitude in their business relationships. Why, then, do they laugh and sneer about politics, particularly when the issues at stake so greatly affect the whole business interests of the country? The sooner that sort of loose talk—which we strongly suspect springs from inability, sloth and inertia—is frowned upon, the better for the country as a whole and for all political parties. There is only one true gauge by which to test political leaders, and that is by the mandate given to them by their parties. Their public utterances should clarify but not qualify. It is not Mr. Crerar or Mr. King who is on trial; it is the party and the party principles of each as laid down in the party platforms, that are before the public for judgment.

CRISP COMMENT

London Advertiser, having just finished looking over an Ontario daily which persists in swiping Advertiser editorials, casually remarks that "the beggar is not only a thief, but has mighty poor selection, as well." Righto, brother, the tribe of scissor bandits is large and oderiferous.

* * *

Hon. Mr. Crerar is credited with having at Prescott declared for reciprocity and promised that the first thing he would do if returned to power would be to ask the United States for a reciprocity treaty. Seems as though the people pronounced plainly on this reciprocity thing in 1911. The same thing which hit the Liberal party then may swat the Crerarites if they monkey with the reciprocity buzz-saw.

* * *

Politicians who accuse opponents of having campaign funds must wonder if the people swallow it all, or do they ask themselves who pays for the rent of the hall for this fellow; who pays for the light, advertising, etc.? Elections are not run altogether by prayers, and there are ways and means still left of raising campaign funds, principally through the voluntary contributions of friends of the party, but the practice is not confined to any one party, but is common to all, and politicians who talk otherwise are not honest.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE CHURCH

London Daily Chronicle

Questions relating to differences of dogma, methods of ordination, forms of government are of great importance to those who are already immersed in Church traditions, but they do not win converts, they do not fill the churches, they do little to decide whether England is to be a Christian or a pagan country. At the time when Christians are lamenting that the great majority of the people stand wholly outside the influence of the churches they can scarcely hope to bring them in by virtue of the technicalities of their faith. Far more relevant to this purpose is the question of the moral and intellectual power of the clergy, the kind of sermons they preach, the services they conduct, the hymns they allow the people to sing, the prayers they pray.

THE PICTURES ON THE WALL

He entered thro' the Temple gates,
The Clear Grit, lame and old,
The altar fires were dim and dead,
The gloomy Temple cold.
Bleached battle flags above his head
Their rotting rags let fall,
And pictures of the mighty dead
Were ranged around the wall.

Above he empty altar hung
A portrait of George Brown—
A noble and familiar face,
Alas! it wore a frown,
No more his glances militant
His followers would enthrall,
Old Clear Grit shed a tear and turned
That picture to the wall!

And near him hung Mackenzie
And next him Edward Blake—
The men who in the olden time
Did make the nations quake.
And then Sir Richard Cartwright,
Who made his foes look small
Old Clear Grit heaved a sigh and turned
Their pictures to the wall.

He gazed on bold Sir Oliver
And on the gallant Ross—
Oh, bitter bitte, was the day
His people knew their loss,
Christopher Finlay Fraser,
Beloved by one and all,
Old Clear Grit stayed a song and turned
Those pictures to the wall.

And, there, the splendid Laurier,
So picturesque and tall—
Behold the flowing plumes of white
Above his high helm fall!
He heard thro'out the Temple
A ghostly bugle call—
He stood upon a chair and turned
That picture to the wall!

He tore down Mister Crerar
And trod him underfoot.
Mackenzie King's big canvass
He ground it with his boot,
"Decadents!—Degenerates!
How dare they have the gall
To hang cock-robin pictures on Our Temple's sacred wall?"

you see me prepared to surrender my sword: for, after having accused my soldiers, there can be no doubt that M. the Cardinal will end by accusing me."

"Gascon headed man, will you have done?" said the king.

"Sire," replied Treville, without lowering his voice in the least, "either order my musketeer to be restored to me or let him be tried."

"He shall be tried," said the cardinal.

"Well, so much the better, for in that case I shall demand of his majesty permission to plead for him."

The king became afraid of an outbreak.

"If his eminence," said he, "had not personal motives"—

"Pardon me," said Richelieu, "but the instant your majesty considers me a prejudiced judge I withdraw."

"Gascon headed man, will you have done?" said the king.

"Come," said the king, "will you swear by my father that M. Athos was at your residence during the event and that he took no part in it?"

"By your glorious father, and by yourself—who are that which I love and venerate the most in the world—I swear it!"

"Be so kind as to reflect, sire," said the cardinal. "If we release the prisoner thus we shall never be able to know the truth."

"M. Athos will always be where he is to be found," replied Treville—"always ready to answer, when it shall please the men of the long robe to interrogate him."

"And be is in the Fort l'Eveque?" said the king.

"Yes, sire, in solitary confinement, in a dungeon, like the lowest criminal in France."

"What must be done?" murmured the king.

"Sign the order for his release, and all will be said," replied the cardinal. "I believe, with your majesty, that M. de Treville's guarantee is more than sufficient."

Treville bowed very respectfully, with a joy that was not unmixed with fear; he would have preferred an obstinate resistance on the part of the cardinal to this sudden yielding.

The king signed the order and Treville carried it away without delay. He made his entrance triumphantly into the Fort l'Eveque, whence he delivered Athos, whose peaceful indifference had not for a moment abandoned him.

Scarcely had the captain of the musketeers closed the door after him than his eminence said to the king:

"Now that we are at length by ourselves we will, if your majesty pleases, converse seriously. Sire, M. de Buckingham has been in Paris five days and only left it this morning."

In Which M. Seguier, the Keeper of the Seals, Seeks a Love Letter.

It is impossible to form an idea of the impression these few words made upon Louis XIII. He grew pale and red alternately, and the cardinal saw at once that he had recovered, by a single blow, all the ground he had lost.

"M. de Buckingham in Paris!" cried he, "and what does he come to do here?"

"To conspire, no doubt, with your enemies the Huguenots and the Spaniards."

"No, no! To conspire against my honor, with Mme. de Chevreuse, Mme. de Longueville and the Condes."

"Oh! sire, what an idea! The queen is too prudent and, besides, loves your majesty too well."

"Woman is weak, M. le Cardinal," said the king, "and as to loving me much I have my own opinion respecting that love."

"None the less I maintain," said the cardinal, "that the Duke of Buckingham came to Paris for a project purely political."

"And I am sure that he came for quite another purpose."

"Mme. de Lannoy," said the cardinal, "whom, according to your majesty's command, I have frequently interrogated, told me this morning that the night before last her majesty sat up very late, that this morning she wept much and that she was writing all day."

"That's it!" cried the king; "to him, no doubt. Cardinal, I must have the queen's papers."

WATCHFUL CONDUCTOR ENDS ROBBER'S CAREER

Cornwall, Nov. 7.—John Keenan, a street railway conductor, when at the Grand Trunk Railway station for the early mail, noticed three men loitering there with new overcoats on. Having heard that a robbery had been committed, he hurriedly enlisted the services of Constable Wm. Simpson. One of the men, Jacob Goldstein, 20 years of age, of Montreal, ran away when he saw the constable coming, but he was caught later by Chief Patterson in a motor car five miles out of the city. The other two, Jack Daley and Jack Green, ages 18 and 20, both of whom said they were from Toronto, made no resistance.

The men pleaded guilty to breaking into Leblanc Bros., but denied other robberies. Each man was given five years in Kingston Penitentiary.

In every corner of the world the New Improved Gillette has met with unprecedented success, but nowhere has the enthusiasm been greater than in our own Canada, where the razor is made and the Gillette word and record of achievement is best known.

No one can forget the peculiar tribute expressed in the way so many loyal followers of the old-type Gillette affectionately laid it aside for the new.

They believed Gillette when Gillette said the new razor is better. They bought, tried and told about the New Improved Gillette. The news spread from man to man and now many of your very own neighbours express their enthusiasm over the real shaving advantages brought to them by the New Improved Gillette.

NOTE.—One of the first things to strike the user of the New Improved Gillette is its simplicity.

Most men prefer to screw the handle up tight to get the most satisfactory shave.

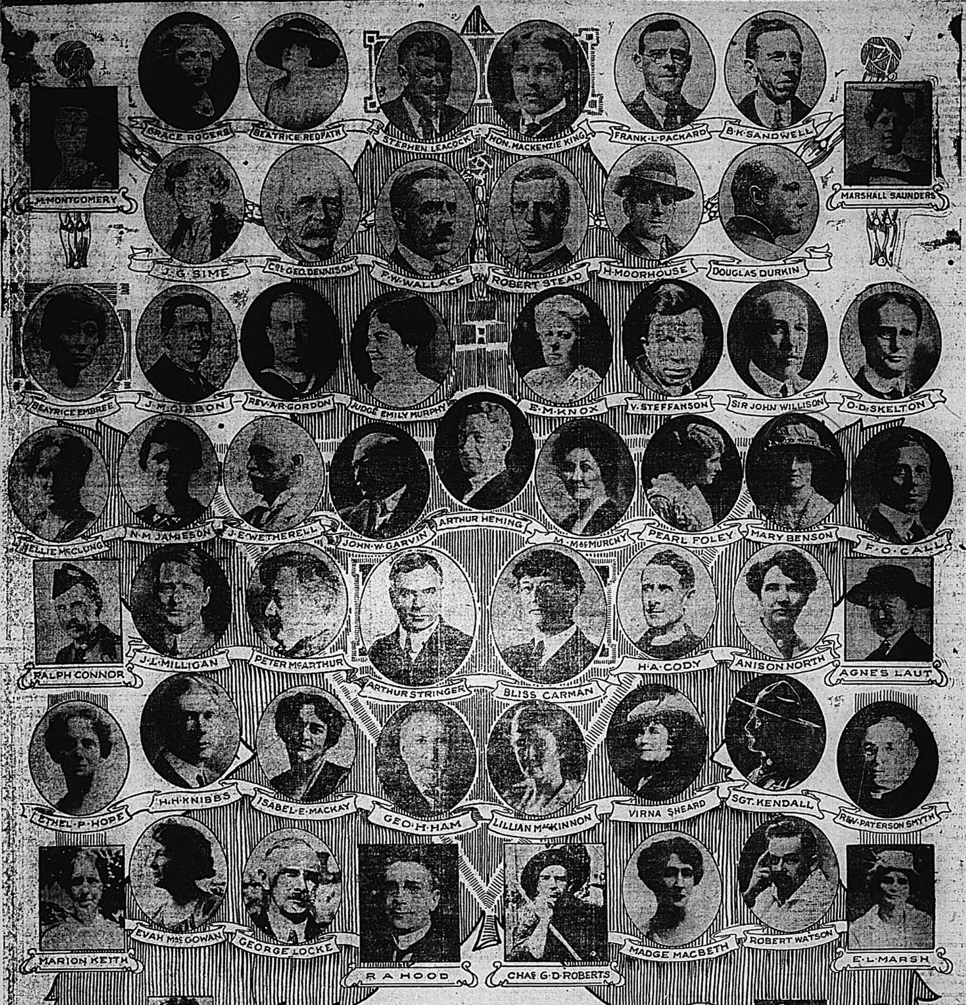
SOME CANADIAN·AUTHORS OF TO-DAY



If any evidence were required of the growing interest in Canadian literature, one need only point to the remarkable progress of the Canadian Authors' Association, which already numbers over seven hundred members, although it was organized only eight months ago. So far as poetry is concerned, Canada ranks exceptionally high in the world of poetry, with names such as Bliss Carman to her credit. In the world of fiction Arthur Stringer, Ralph Connor, L. M. Montgomery, Basil King, Bertrand Sinclair, Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, Madge Macbeth, and Frank L. Packard, are only a few of an army of popular novelists. Life on the prairies has been admirably depicted by Janey Canuck (Judge Emily Murphy), Nellie McClung, Robert Stead, and Sargeant Ralph Kendall with his stories of the North-West Mounted Police. Among those who have written of the life of the wild, Charles G. D. Roberts, Arthur Heming, W. A. Fraser, Archie P. McKishnie, and Ernest Thompson Seton, at once come to mind, while Stefansson is one of the world's greatest explorer-authors. Marshall Saunders, who wrote "Beautiful Joe", is famous as a sympathetic interpreter of animal life. F. W. Wallace is one of our best known authors of sea stories, and H. A. Cody has an immense following among boys. Among the humorists, Stephen Leacock and Peter McArthur stand exceptionally high. The chief object of the Canadian Authors' Association is to create a wider interest among Canadians themselves in their own literature.

It has an official organ called the "Canadian Bookman". It has helped to organize Canadian Authors' Week for the third week in November, in which libraries and bookstores will make special displays of Canadian books, and it has conducted a vigorous campaign for the improvement of Copyright conditions in Canada.

Efficient Housekeeping

ANSWERED LETTERS

A Steady Reader: "A friend I visited recently in another part of the country served a fruit gelatine dessert covered with a sort of marshmallow sauce. I ased her if she made it by melting up marshmallow candies, and she replied, 'No, I buy it in cans; it costs about 30 cents.' Can you tell me in your column of a firm that will sell me this marshmallow paste or sauce by mail?"

Answer: I can not give trade names in my column as that is advertising, but if you will send me a stamped, self addressed envelope I will gladly send you such an address.

Constant Reader: "I have lost your directions for setting color in a garment before washing. Will you please print these again?"

Answer: The substances used to set color are called "mordants." The common household mordants are salt, vinegar, alum and sugar of lead. Vinegar is the best mordant to use for greens (½ cup of vinegar to a gallon of water); for pinks, use 2 ounces of powdered alum dissolved in a tubful of water; strong salt water is best for blues; and for yellows and reds dissolve ounce of sugar of lead in 8 quarts of water (sugar of lead is poisonous so care must be taken in using it). Soak the garment overnight in the water to which one of these mordants has been added, then dry thoroughly before washing.

V. M.: "I have a Sunday School class of little girls about 12 years of age. Can you suggest some pretty and inexpensive gifts I could make for them for Christmas?"

Answer: Little girls like pretty bead chains or small coin purses decorated with beads, and you might make these without much cost. But if I were you I would take them all to the movies together as a Christmas present, or give them a candy-making party at your home. I think they would like this kind of Christmas gift better even than hand made presents.

Constant Reader: "Why do bed bugs get into the house, even when it is kept clean? And what can I do to exterminate them?"

Answer: Sometimes these pests get into the walls of a house and then the only thing to do is to replaster, repaper and fill up all floor and baseboard cracks. Sometimes they enter a house on clothing or laundry (they may be picked up on trains or in contact with other people in a crowd). Kerosene, gasoline and benzine are all effective in killing them, but these fluids must not be used near heat or flame as they are extremely inflammable. Boiling water also kills the bugs and their eggs, but this stains furniture and cannot be applied to walls and mattresses as gasoline can (gasoline evaporates quickly). A mixture of 1 ounce of corrosive sublimate, 1 pint of alcohol and ¼ pint of spirits of turpentine (have your druggist make it up for you), is another fluid that will kill them, though care must be exerted in using this as it is a deadly poison.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. Of Interest to Women

Next to finding a "real bargain," a woman loves to achieve an economy through her own cleverness and ingenuity. A friend of mine is quite jubilant over a sofa cushion she has covered with black satin, "the good breadth" she asserts, from an otherwise worn out satin frock. The cushion cover is ornamented with orange, red, and blue wool worked on a square of black filet mesh, appliqued in one corner, as a brilliant relief to the sombre foundation. The effect is good and the cost in money very little.

TRYING BLUEBEARD FOR 11 MURDERS

Versailles, Nov. 8.—For three hours today Henri Desire Landru the "Bluebeard of Gambais," listened to the reading of his indictment, unfolding a tale of gruesome horrors which, if he is found guilty, will stamp him as one of the most remarkable criminals ever known. Tomorrow he will take the stand for direct examination.

Landru sat unmoved and apparently unconcerned throughout the reading, which, with the roll-call of witnesses and the selection of the jury, occupied the entire first session of his trial in the Seine-et-Oise Assizes.

Landru is charged with 11 murders. Ten of his alleged victims were women to whom he is said to have promised marriage, and the eleventh the son of one of them. He is alleged to have burned his victims' bodies.

M. Moro-Giafferi, who defended former Premier Joseph Caillaux and former Senator Charles Humbert at their sensational trials, will appear in behalf of Landru, Prosecuting Attorney Godefroi conducting the case for the people. Judge Gilbert of Versailles will preside.

The case has attracted greater attention than any other criminal case in the annals of French courts.

TINKER BOB FINDS WILLY CHUCK

Tinker Bob said to himself that Mr. Woodchuck should be seen for it was important that he should be there. He would soon go into his hole for the Winter and the King would not see him again till the snow was gone. The King went toward the house of Mr. Chuck. In fact Tinker was anxious to see the children more than anyone else. They ought to be fat fellows by this time for Mr. Chuck had been feeding them very well.

"Thief! Thief!" came a cry from a tree nearby, "O King, where are you going?" Yes, it was Jerry. You can always tell that Jerry is about when you hear him call "Thief! Thief!"

"I am going to see where Mr. Chuck is for I want him and his family to come to the frolic. I haven't seen his children for a long time and they must be big and fat by this time. I want all of the folks to come to the forest frolic."

"O King," said Jerry, "Mr. Chuck has left his home in the meadow and gone into the forest. You know he doesn't stay in the meadow in the Winter time. He is a very toney fellow and has two or three homes."

"Of course I know that, Jerry, but I never did think of it. I am going to see if he has gone anyway." Tinker Bob went to the house of Mr. Chuck in the meadow and found it empty and then he went to the forest to see if he could tell where he had gone. It must be that he has gone into a tree thought the King, for that would be the warmest place in the whole forest. So he looked and looked for a tree with a hole in it that looked as though it had been used. When he at last found once he looked about to see if it had been used for a long or short while. After careful examination he decided that it had been used but a little while and that there were two or three using it.

You might ask how it is that the King knew that there were more than two in the tree? Well, it is like this, every Chuck has to have a place where he can roll in the earth. He scratches all of the sod away and then loosens up the soil and rolls in it to his heart's content. But the strange thing about it is that not one Chuck will ever use the rolling place of another so each one makes a place for himself. Tinker Bob could see that some of the tracks were smaller than others and this too indicated that there were more Chucks than two in the tree.

Tinker Bob went to the house of Mr. Chuck.

Well Tinker decided to call to Mr. Chuck and ask him to come down "Mr. Chuck, come down the King of the Forest wants to see you."

There was only a moment passed when Mr. Chuck came out of the hollow tree.

To-morrow—He Sniffed and Sniffed and Then He Came Out.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

LAST SHOWING OF "NO WOMAN KNOWS"

"No Woman Knows" the seven reel Universal-Jewel production which has been delighting large audiences nightly at Griffin's closes its engagement to-night. From the role of Fannie skillfully played by Julienne Scott to that of Mme. the Mother played by Grace Marvin with a humanness hard to put into words down to the smallest part, the characters are cast with exceptional fitness.

"This is the Life" a 2-reel Hallroom Boys' comedy, Screen Snapshots showing famous stars at work and play, and a thrilling chapter of the Western serial "Vanishing Trails" are also being exhibited on the same program.

ANITA STEWART IN ENTIRELY NEW ROLE

The Prouty Booster's Ball was to blame for it all! And Belleville theatregoers have the Prouty Booster's Ball to thank for affording them one of the most appealing photoplays of the year in "The Fighting Shepardess" screen version of the famous book by Caroline Lockart, starring Anita Stewart, and which will be seen at Griffin's To-morrow night, and Saturday matinee and night. In the role of Kate Prentice, a girl in whom a splendid character has been reposed but about whom a depressing environment has been enshrouded as a result of living in the questionable roadhouse from which the mother derives a livelihood, Miss Stewart has a role that calls for a vigorous delineation of the natural effects these circumstances and surroundings would have on a girl.

The plot begins to unravel when Kate is saved from the advances of a rough charcater through the chivalry of "Mormon Joe", a recluse sheep herder whose moody exclusiveness has a tendency to make the villagers wary of him. He provides a separate hut for Kate on his sheep ranch and thereupon hinges the big events in the girl's life and the murder of Joe, all matter combining in a most interesting and gripping tale of a girl who dared to fight for the right dispite the preponderance of odds.

A Mack Sennett comedy, Fox News, Screen Chats, and a Travelogue are being exhibited in addition to the feature offering.

"HULLO CANADA" HERE

Aglitter in a glad display of brand new costumes, scenery, and with the famous Gaiety chorus of forty picked British beauties, Mr. Albert De Courville's big London Revue "Hullo, Canada!" will come to Griffin's Opera House this Friday night, November 11th, for one night only.

Heading the organization are Harry Tate and Shirley Kellogg, known the world over as the greatest artists on the English-speaking stage, who will be seen here in exactly the same line of work that made them favorites with the boys who were overseas during the war.

Mr. Tate will be seen in "Motoring", as well as several other screamingly funny skits, while, as usual, the stunning Miss Kellogg will be seen to the greatest advantage in a series of catchy-musical numbers. The enjoyment of the perfomance will be enhanced by the musical accompaniment of the company's own orchestra.

That Sudden, Sharp Pain.
Which you experience at times can be removed. No woman has the right to suffer when she can obtain relief safely, certainly and promptly. Suppose you do have headaches, backaches, extreme nervousness, low-spirits and general good-for-nothing feelings at times? Your case is not hopeless. These symptoms are evidence that the delicate organism of the feminine body has become out of order and needs the help Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can bestow, this is what many women write Dr. Pierce, Pres. Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y. Many of your neighbors would say the same of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.
TORONTO, ONT.—"Less than a year ago I was in a very poor state of health; my back ached dreadfully, and I could scarcely drag myself around to do my housework. I started to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I cannot praise it too highly for the great benefit I received. My backache and pains disappeared entirely, and I soon was restored to perfect health. I know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best woman's medicine, for I have tried others that were recommended, and nothing has ever helped me so much as the Favorite Prescription." MRS. BOY SCOUT NEWS

On Thanksgiving day twelve scouts left on a hike to tht woods. After a long walk and climbing many fences we reached the woods. We soon had a fire alighted and our dinner ready. After dinner a game of baseball followed between the Blue Jays and Night Hawks. It resulted in a score of 8 to 8. The Blue Jays went to bat scoring 4 runs in the first innings. Herbert scoring followed by Johny, then came Blaker followed by Blare. When the Night Hawks went to bat everything looked blue until Chum brought in the first run and the only run of that inning. The next inning the Blue Jays could could not score while the Night Hawks scored several, lead by the big boy, "BINGO."

After the ball game was over we had some scout games, after which we went back to camp and played numerous games.

Numerous wrestling matches in which Herby got beat every time (I think) after which we started for home scaling a few wind mills on the road. After the aid of W. A. S. M. and the troop secretary Robert and Herby and the others managed to find their way home. We hope for a better turnout next "hike."

FRESH LAURELS FOR VOCALIST

Knight McGregor Sang With Geraldine Farrar and Made Great Hit.

Knight McGregor, Belleville's talented vocalist, has been winning fresh and greater laurels in the United States where he has achieved great popularity. Recently the Belleville singer appeared in Albany with Geraldine Farrar, the noted opera star, and shared with her the honors of the evening as is evidenced in the following article written by the musical critic of the Albany, N.Y., Evening Journal:

"A vast throng consisting of the elite, the musical people and the just common folks filled the big armory last night to pay homage to one of the most distinguished concert and opera singers in the world—Geraldine Farrar and to enjoy the musical numbers of her associates, Mr. Knight McGregor, baritone, (who took the place of Mr. Edgar Schofield, detained in New York by sudden illness), and Miss Ada Sassoli, the noted harpist.

Mr. McGregor was more than a satisfactory substitute for he at once became a favorite with the audience. He is a singer of fine presence and ripe experience and his several selections were given with elegance of diction and fine tonal beauty.

ARIA FROM MOZART

"His first selection was an aria from the immortal "Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart which opera was first produced in Vienna on May 1, 1786. He rendered this number in a masterly manner and his other numbers in this group gave great delight. Another number which gave great pleasure was the famous air from the "Son and Stranger" an operetta composed by Mendelssohn in 1829. All of Mr. McGregor's selections were splendidly sung and the audience was delighted with his artistic work. He responded to several encores and may be considered a favorite with the musical public of Albany."

Thanksgiving Up at Gray's

Hiram Gray and his sister Mary sat talking matters o'er,
Young Hiram's wife had been sick in bed a whole six months or more.
And Mary, by way of comforting, said: "Brother, be strong of heart,
For methinks the time draws very near when you and Nellie must part.

"There is no disease worth mentioning, so Dr. Brown declares,
It's just a slipping away from life, and all life's worries and cares.
She'll be a saint before the year's out—she looks like a saint today;
And, brother, there's no use grieving if the Lord doesn't want her to stay."

"We mustn't question Providence"—here an interruption came From Aunt Rosanne, whose figure was short and temper somewhat the same.
"If I were you," the good lady said, "Hiram Gray, upon my word,
I wouldn't saddle my own mistakes and meanness on the Lord;

"I'd be man enough to bear them myself. Five years ago last May
The woman who lies in yon big spare room was married to you, Nephew Gray.
Her eyes were bright as a happy child's, her face was sweet and fair,
You seemed to think the whole wide world not worth a lock of her hair.

"Oh, you were a wonderful lover, but lovers and husbands, I find,
Are often different creatures—I am going to speak my mind.
Wish I had spoken it long ago, wish I had cried out 'Shame!'
When you first began to wear the life out of her who bears your name.

"She wasn't fitted to do the work of this big house year by year—
Trying her best to get through with it has cost her something, 'tis clear.
And scant the sympathy that you gave—you were better at complaints,
And fault-finding is very poor help when a mortal droops and faints.

"Her life mission was to slave away, that you might prosper and thrive,
And I tell you plain that a selfish man is the meanest thing alive!
'Didn't think?' Don't tell me! 'Twas the greed of gain kept you from doing right.
You neglected to cherish the woman you wed—and you're paying for it tonight.

"What's that? You love her with all your heart, and you've loved her all the while?
Methinks it would be a pious plan to tell her so once in a while,
And not leave her bearing her burdens, uncheered by a tender word,
And then try to ease your conscience by blaming it on the Lord,

"When she lies in the big spare bedroom, with her face as white as snow, Dreaming of Heaven's own peace and rest—and thankful enough to go."
He's away! How he cried at that last; never saw him so moved.
He's in his wife's room, he's down on his knees praying her to live and be loved.

"Now, Mary, I know you're thinking I should have left him alone.
You've never been married; I have, dear, and have daughters of my own,
And too many wives are wearying for the cheering word and smile—
But, well, from the way Nephew Gray's carrying on Nellie won't be a saint for a while."

Can't you surmise how things will go? As fast as ever she can
Nell will get the roses back in her cheeks if only to humor her man.
The blessed prophecy came true, and this is why today
They keep Thanksgiving royally in the home of Hiram Gray.

"Let us number up our blessings before we sing the grace,"
Speaks up the happy husband with his eyes on Nellie's face.
She smiles at him, and he can but note the dimple in cheek and chin;
"I've so much to be thankful for," he cries, "I don't know where to begin!"

—JEAN BLEWETT.

LIVED YEARS ON BREAD AND MILK

For More Than Decade Malady of Alabama Woman Was Continually Sapping Her Strength.

Mrs. H. P. Barrett, of Republic, suburb of Birmingham, Ala., gives the facts of her remarkable experience with Tanlac as follows:

"During the past fourteen years I have spent more than one thousand dollars trying to get rid of a complaint that was gradually sapping my strength, but until I got hold of Tanlac nothing helped me. For the past four years I have lived almost entirely on milk and bread, and finally even that went against me.

Before I had finished the first bottle of Tanlac I got so I could eat anything, and I certainly bless the day I first got this medicine for I believe it has added years to my life. The people in my neighborhood were so surprised at the change in me that fourteen of them by actual count are now taking Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store.

TUXIS BOYS AND TRAIL RANGERS BY Firelighter

SOMETHING EVERY BOY SHOULD KNOW

Who cares what happens to the little boys and girls who work in mills and factories? Every Tuxis Boy and Trail Ranger should answer, "I care."

Here are some of the facts.

On an early winter morning long before the sun was up, two little girls, Mary and Jane O'Connor, plodded along a Vernon mountain road. Each carried a dinner pail. There were spinners bound for the cotton mill. One was fifteen years old; she had worked three years. The other was fourteen; she had worked two years. They had got up a four-fifteen in the morning and had walked two and a half miles to the mill, because they could not afford to ride. Each earned three dollars a week. In the mill where these children worked, eighteen out of fifty employees were children from eleven to sixteen years of age.

The law in each of the New England States forbids the employment of children under fourteen except under exceptional circumstances. But laws sometimes are violated. The mill owner may prefer children to adults; child labour is cheap; children are docile; they seldom demand higher wages and shorter hours. The earlier the child goes to work the more like a machine it becomes. If the little body soon wears out, if the child is seriously injured or killed, many mill owners seemingly do not care! There are other children ready to take its place.

This quotation gives us one of the problems that must be faced and settled right in this young country of ours. Every teen age boy of to-day should know something about this and other great questions that are waiting for solution in the years just ahead.

STARTS ON WALK OF 9,000 MILES

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—On Friday morning at ten o'clock P. J. F. Martin Macdonald, a long distance walker, who has earned international fame, will start out from the Grand Central hotel on a walk of 9,000 miles which, if he accomplishes the feat, will take him to Puenta Arenas, the most southerly point of South America, situated on Tere del Fuego, south of Patagonia.

The hike is being undertaken for a wager of $37,500 between Macdonald and W. R. Howard, president of the Argentina Racing Company, and during his long hike the walker will only be permitted to carry a sporting rifle although the trip will be through many wild parts of the South American continent, including Patagonia where the head-hunters have their domain.

REPUBLICANS IN CONTROL.

Albany, N.Y., Nov. 8.—The Republican majority in the New York Assembly will be continued in 1922 as the result of today's voting.

With only one district out of the 62 assembly districts in the city of New York reporting, and with five districts in other parts of the state missing, the figures show that 79 Republicans, or three more than the constitutional majority in the Lower House, have been elected. The missing up-state districts, three in Albany and two in Suffolk county, are normally Republican.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Jack Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great "booster" for Zutoo Tablets.

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

Anthracite Prices

As dealers in Anthracite we wish we could reduce prices,—but we can't. The causes of high Anthracite prices are higher costs of Labor and higher Freight Rates—both fixed by law—not higher Profits.

Neither producers nor coal dealers are making any more money than they made when prices were lower.

The increased price ALL goes to pay higher costs of production and transportation.

How, then, can prices be reduced?

It is wise to lay in your winter's supply now rather than wait until thousands of consumers are trying to have their coal bins all filled at the same time.

Meeting of Shareholders of U. F. Co-operative Co. Proves Lively Event.

REITERATES CHARGES

Will Launch Agitation for a New Board — J. J. Morrison Intervenes.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—The spotlight was turned on the rift in the United Farmers' Co-operative Society's lute at a meeting called by Dr. A. A. Farewell, of Oshawa, and held in the city this afternoon, at which Dr. Farewell demanded a statement showing the financial condition of the company for the present year.

He began by referring to the fact that a writ had been issued by the company against himself. He disclaimed responsibility for the article alleged to have appeared in the Toronto Telegram, but expressed his belief that the alleged facts given in the article were correct. He declared he had received a confidential report to the effect that the bank had called in the company's loan, and had refused them further credit.

"I thereupon went to headquarters and was told by the president of the company that there would be no dividend paid this year, or for several years. What would you infer from that?' he demanded.

"I asked to have a meeting of the shareholders called; whereas Mr. Morrison flew into a rage and said I was acting solely from political motives.

"He stated in The Star that I was disgruntled because I had not received the U.F.O. nomination in South Ontario."

Mr. Morrison interposed here with a denial that he had made this statement. "I only said that there was politics in it," he explained.

List Was Produced

"I next asked," continued Dr. Farewell, "to see the list of shareholders. Mr. Morrison told me I would have to see Mr. Waldron. I insisted, however, and the list was finally produced. I saw by it that Mr. Powers, the president of the company, held one share: Col. Fraser, vice-president, one share; Mr. Burnaby—the big push behind the whole business—one share, on which he has paid twelve dollars and a half Mr. Burnaby also has two shares in his son's name. Mr. Morrison has eight shares, Mr. Lick five shares, and Mr. Ashton ten shares, half paid up.

"If the directors had a little more money in the company, they might take more interest in it. Mr. Morrison gets $5,000 a year.

"Only $2,500," Mr. Morrison corrected.

"And $2,500 from the U. F. O." Dr. Farewell insisted.

"That's not your business," Mr. Morrison shot back.

"Mr. Morrison has talked more politics this summer than I have in sixteen years," continued Dr. Farewell.

"So, it's all my fault " enquired Mr. Morrison.

"That's my opinion, which isn't worth that," replied Dr. Farewell,

"I quite agree,' Mr. Morrison beamed.

Dr. Farewell announced his intention of launching an agitation to place men who had more money invested in the company on the board.

"Dr. Farewell's sole consideration is to get his dividends," declared Mr. Morrison, in reply. "He is a very poor co-operator. The object of the company is service. The amount subscribed by the shareholders is a very small consideration compared with the work done by the other men for nothing. Col. Fraser has given the company ten years of service for nothing but his expenses. Mr. Burnaby has never collected a cent for his work."

"They have drawn pay for the board meetings they attended," asserted Dr. Farewell.

"Only in the last two years,' replied Mr. Morrison. "We have paid dividends for seven years, and if we don't this year it will be the first time in eight years. Many of the biggest concerns in the country haven't paid dividends this year."

Mr. Morrison declared that Dr. Farewell has received his information from "a disgruntled employee who had been discharged."

"It was impossible to state," he continued, "whether there would be a deficit this year, until the auditors report was submitted. The balance sheet did not become a balance sheet

INVENTION RESULTS IN SMASH-UP

Russian Invention for Propelling Railway Cars by Airplane Propellers.

Baku, Azerbaijan, Nov. 10.—A new Russian invention for propelling railroad cars by the use of airplane propellers has just resulted in a smash up.

Captain Simolov of the Soviet army had rigged up a flat car with a motor to drive a big airplane propeller and built a little triangular house on the car. At a railroad junction outside of Baku he tried to induce a conductor of a train to hitch his airplane car on behind. The conductor refused and the train went on for about three miles and halted.

As the passengers in the rear coach were making tea, the airplane came around a curve going at about 60 miles an hour. Most of the passengers got out of the rear car by way of the windows and the captain and a girl companion leaped from his flat car which banged into the rear coach, doubled itself up and jumped the track, a mass of wreckage. Nobody was hurt but the proud invention of Bolshevik land had gone to smash.

The captain said he did not see the train in time to stop but, he added, "anyway the brake does not work."

The Russians have been applying this airplane propeller device to push trains, automobiles and boats.

GREAT HONOR TO "UNKNOWN"

Mountain of Flowers Filled the Rotunda of the Capitol at Washington.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Great and small folk today moved in endless procession through the rotunda of the Capitol to pay their tribute of respect to the "unknown" lying in state there as only martyred Presidents have done. Hour by hour the heap of flowers on the casket grew mountain high and spread about the chamber. There were bluebells from France, roses from England, maples from Canada, and most beautiful blooms from South Africa, nine thousand miles away.

WAR IN BALKANS SERBS GET BUSY

Fighting Reported to be Under Way at Several Points.

MT. LONCEN IS SEIZED

Huge Forest Fires Started in Mountains by the Serbs.

ROME, Nov. 9.—War has broken out in the Balkans, according to advices from Albania toady. Montenegro was reported to have revolted against Jugo-Slavia and to have advices from Albania today. Montene-Slavs. Fighting was said to be under way at several points.

A Montenegrin battalion has occupied Mont Loncen, and hoisted the Montenegrin flag. This is the most important strategic position in the Balkans and is known as "the Gibraltar of the Adriatic."

Following clashes with the revolting Montenegrins near Podgoritza (an important city 20 miles east of Cettinje, former capital of Montenegro) Serbian forces were reported to have started huge forest fires in the mountains.

It was announced yesterday that Lloyd George had cabled to the League of Nations calling for an immediate meeting of the league council to deal with the dispute between Albania and Jugo-Slavia over the boundary question.

JUGO-SLAVS MUST WITHDRAW

PARTY CONTROL SHIFTS IN U. S.

Democrats in Four States Made Substantial Gains on Tuesday.

ELECTION RESULTS

Final Summation of Election Shows Many Changes.

New York Nov. 10.—Final summation of results of "off-year" elections throughout the U. S. indicated substantial gains for Democrats in four states—Maryland, Kentucky, Virginia and New York—while municipal ballots in many cities resulted in changes of party control.

The outstanding case of state-wide Democratic victory was in Kentucky, where that party regained control of the Legislature, which has been Republican for two years. In Maryland, where the entire Lower House was elected, with 27 members of the Senate Democratic control was increased.

In Virginia the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, late Senator E. Lee Trinkle, led his Republican opponent by a wide margin, which extended also to his running mates, including J. Murray Hooker, the party's candidate for representative in Congress.

In the New York State Assembly, the Democrats increased their representation by 23 seats, although the Republicans with a total of 96 Assemblymen, still retained a wide working margin.

Already long regarded as the stronghold of Republicanism in this state, will have a Democratic administration for the first time in 22 years. The Democrats elected their mayoralty candidate, Wm. S. Hackett, and seized every other berth in the city administration ballotted on, including a large majority of the 19 aldermanic seats.

MEIGHEN ENDS QUEBEC TOUR

With Meeting at Sherbrooke Campaign in Province Closes.

PARTY IS STRONGER

18 to 20 Government Supporters Now Likely to be Returned.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Nov. 10.—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen completed a brief but satisfactory tour of the province of Quebec by addressing a meeting of almost five thousand electors in the Armouries here last night. The Prime iMinister made his initial appearance in this province during the present campaign in Montreal on the last day of September. He returned hither last week and has since visited half a dozen centres in the Montreal, Three Rivers and Quebec districts and in the Eastern Townships and has addressed ten large meetings. Mr. Meighen has been well received, generally speaking, and has stimulated and consolidated his followers in the province. To such an extent, indeed, are the Government supporters in Quebec aroused, that, whereas, in the war election of 1917 they returned only a trio of members to the House of Commons, they now talk of electing from 18 to 20. Quebec is essentially a protectionist province. It is dotted with industrial centres and its agriculturists find their best market within their own boundaries. There are some independent candidates in the field, but they are not free traders following the lead of Hon. T. A. Crerar. Indeed even the Liberal candidates are chiefly engaged in combatting the issue which their own party convention raised by its tariff resolution in 1919, and in bringing forward counter-issues to cover their weakness in respect of fiscal policy.

NO NEED OF TARIFF ARGUMENT

Premier Meighen, during his tour in the province has not found it necessary to make an argument in support of the policy of protection. He has, on the contrary, been obliged to turn the searchlight upon a situation in which the candidates of the Liberal party, many of whom actually assisted in the passage of the resolution of 1919, advocating the withdrawal of tariff protection from two-thirds of the industries of the Dominion, are describing themselves as protectionists and frantically proclaiming that they do not favor any policy which would injure legitimate industries. The Prime Minister has pointed out the inconsistencies of Hon. Mackenzie King and his followers.

WATER ROUTE FROM NEW YORK

Direct Shipments, New York to Trenton of Raw Material for Chemical Plant.

The Belleville, Bay of Quinte, Oswego and New York water transportation route, the advantages of which have been from time to time vigorously pointed out by The Intelligencer, seems to be taking firm hold upon the transportation magnates of the United States, judging by the string of boats plying between Oswego and Trenton, carrying raw material for the new chemical plant there, Chemical Products, Limited.

This merchandise is shipped from New York via the Erie canal in barges, which are then towed across the lake, completing an all-water shipment. Seven boats are engaged at present conveying an initial shipment of ten thousand tons of material for the fertilizer plant, and four thousand tons have already reached Trenton. The cheapness and quickness of the water route from New York to Bay of Quinte ports is receiving earnest attention from shippers in the United States, and the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Oswego says that this is the result of The Intelligencer campaign which inspired similar activity at Oswego and other places and drew attention to this very important matter.

TO INVESTIGATE TREATMENT ON SPOT

An Expedition from London Will Investigate Treatment of Sleeping Sickness.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—An expedition formed by the Tropical Diseases Prevention Association will soon leave to make the first organized attempt to investigate on the spot the treatment of sleeping sickness, as distinct from the question of the mere transmission or cause of the disease.

The expedition will be conducted by four physicians and two veterinary scientists and it is expected the work will occupy two and a half years. It is sought to carry out the work in different centers with the sanction and support of the governments interested and it is hoped that it will result in a general system of vaccination whereby all individuals arriving in a danger zone will be inoculated and so gradually rendered immune.

The expedition will first work in Uganda. It will probably proceed later to the Belgian Congo and it is hoped to extend the work to Rhodesia and the Sudan where there is a big epidemic of the disease.

TRYING TO END N. Y. MILK STRIKE

New York Suffers From Service of Old and Watered Milk.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited.

New York, Nov. 10.—A series of conferences between the milk dealers nad their striking employees were called for today at the office of Health Commissioner Copeland in an endeavor to re-establish friendly relations between them and end the strike. The commissioner will act as mediator. Thousands of quarts of old and watered milk were confiscated yesterday by milk inspectors, and two men were arrested in the act of adding water to milk.

HODGE-PODGE, SAYS DRURY

Referring to Radial Railway Policy of Hydro—Crerar at Picton.

PICTON, Ont., Nov. 10.—Despite a heavy snowstorm about 1,500 electorse from all parts of Prince Edward County assembled in the armouries here in order to hear Hon. T. A. Crerar, Progressive Leader, and Hon. E. C. Drury, premier of Ontario who joined forces in speaking in the interests of James R. Anderson, the local United Farmer candidate.

In touching on the hydro radial scheme, Premier Drury said: "When we came into power we found a hodgepodge and mix up policy, which bade fair to lead the province into as dangerous and difficult waters as the dominion railway policy did Canada."

This scheme had been launched not with the approval of past governments but i spite of them and without any proper investigation. He also pointed out that although the previous administration had had mothers' pensions under consideration for eight years they had never had the courage to put the scheme into operation although they had had funds enough to go ahead and build a government house and buy private cars, both of which expenditures he wished had never been made.

Mr. Drury also recommended Mr. Crerar as a future prime minister in view of the fact that he was a big business man and the head of a huge cooperative concern, which had an annual turnover four times as great as the budget of the whole province of Ontario.

POLITICAL SPEECH BURNS SCHOOLHOUSE

Lindsay, Ont., Nove. 10.—Schoolhouse No. 12 in Ops township at Mount Horeb was burned to the ground last night together with outbuildings and the winter's supply of wood and teacher's supplies. A political meeting had been held in the school early in the evening but the fire did not break out until 3 a.m. and the loss will be heavy, as the school was a solid brick structure.

HIGHER PAID MEN HIT HARDEST

Stauffer Board's Policy is to Bear Lightly on the Small Wage-Earner.

WOULD ABOLISH TIPS

Favors Paying Sleeping and Dining Car Porters an Adequate Wage.

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—The award of the Board of Arbitration on the wage dispute between the Canadian National Railways and its employes, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes, handed in to the Minister of Labor, is signed only by the chairman, Rev. Byron Stauffer, and Harold Fisher, the member for the employes. The representative of the railway company, George D. Kelley, dissented. The award sustains the reductions in the salaries of employes being paid more than $125 a month, but in the case of those employes receiving less it, recommends that the schedule worked out by the railway for its lower paid employes in the Toronto accounting department be generally applied. Instead of a flat 12½ per cent. reduction, the schedule provides a monthly reduction of $5 for those receiving $80 a month; $7.50 for those receiving from $81 to $95 a month; $10 for those receiving from $95 to $125 a month; $12.50 for those receiving $125 to $150 a month, and $15 for those receiving $150 a month and over.

The award sustains the reductions in the wages of stenographers and in the wages paid sleeping, dining and parlor car employes. With regard to sleeping car porters and dining car waiters, the board declares its willingness to make a supplementary report dealing with their wages if the management and the employes will "seriously undertake the pioneer reform of abolishing gratuities."

In so far as transient labor wages were concerned, the board held that the rates fixed by the railways were in accordance with the present wages in the open market.

In the case of an hourly paid men other than transient laborers, such as loaders in stores, freight truckers or porters, locomotive cleaners, ashpit men, firebuilders and coal men, the board recommends that the maximum decrease be not greater than ten per cent. of the wages paid before the reduction.

Decrease of less than ten per cent. in the case of these employes should stand, the board holds.

This ruling, the board declares, should apply to all additional classes of a similar character to the foregoing.

BALFOUR AT WASHINGTON

British Dignitaries Welcomed by U. S. President and General Pershing.

Washington, Nov. 10.—A distinguished group of United States and British officials met Hon. A. J. Balfour and party at the station including Secretary Hughes, and Gen. Pershing of the United States and Sir Auckland Geddes and Lord Lee representing Britain. Mr. Balfour was escorted to the President's Room. The two met as old friends and dispensed with formalities.

COBBLER FINDS A FORTUNE TUCKED IN TOE OF A SHOE

Bayonne, N.J., Nov. 9.—Five thousand dollars wadded tightly in the toe of a shoe brought to him to repair gave Frank Seville, a cobbler, the thrill of his life here yesterday. Seville found on trying to place the shoe on a last that there was an obstruction in the toe, and after considerable tugging he brought out a wad of green paper. Examination showed the wad consisted of one $1,000 banknote and forty $100 bills. Seville called his wife and they were considering the purchase of a poultry farm when a Polish woman rushed in and claimed the money. It was returned and the woman left leaving $20 as a reward. In the excitement, the name of the shoe-bank's proprietor was not learned.

SUSPENSION OF BUSINESS

At the hour of eleven o'clock to-morrow morning there will be for two minutes a cessation of all business and household activities to commemorate Armistice Day.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Where Lies the Fault

M.M.—I have noticed at the several Balls given in this city that full evening dress was donned by a large number, making those dressed appropriated for an "Informal" dance feel emarrassed. The odd part of it, to my mind, is that on the invitations to these affairs it reads plainly, "Informal." A great number of young people of moderate means miss the pleasure of attending the aforementioned functions simply because of those who defy convention and don full evening dress. How about it.?

Lost or Being Lost?

W.B.—Is modesty lost or being lost to young girls (I would not call them ladies) of our fair city that they are beginning to smoke cigarettes by the package on the streets and in company with boys. On a recent evening I saw two young girls with two boys walking on Benjamin Street puffing away at cigarettes. It surely does not enthan their charm in the eyes of the male population and is certainly not good for their health. To see young boys smoking is bad enough but when girls start it is disgraceful to say the least.

Preparedness, Brother

P.H.—When snowy, freezy weather comes there is always a grand rush to prepare for winter. But in the matter of preparedness I think this guy wins the lace soup ladle. We had a bit of a frost on Tuesday night and Wednesday a resident hiked off with his skates to have 'em sharpened. If we had artificial ice he might have a skate before Christmas but as it is—well, I feel sorry for him.

Regular Sports

A.T.—I see the Kingston Collegiate lady-sports have formed a rugby team and play a regular game at that without frills or furbelows. Belleville is famous for the great number of pretty girls why not be famous also for the sports? We have a girls hockey team or two so why not baseball and Rugby. Girls are every bit as intelligent as boys (sometimes more so) so sport offers a great field for competition. Get on the map you lady sports. Do more than cheer.

Frozen Over

M.E.—It seems a real shame that the Corby Public Baths are doomed to be frozen over for another six months. If there was a lack of water or money there would be some room to kick but when these two essentials are ready for the using what's the use of waiting? Let's hope we'll have a pool by 1925 anyway. Perseverance is needed greatly in this waiting game also patience and a place to paddle 'round. Here's hoping!

Slippery Slide

W.G.—At noon Wednesday when the children were out of school the first thing they did was hike to Catherine Street hill there to make one long, glassy slide on the pavement. This slidy business in treacherous as a body cannot see the slippy space when a light skiff of snow falls. I saw a gentlemen very near cease being entirely when he stepped on one of these slides. Make way for the Sandman!

Prominent Figures in Political History of Nova Scotia.

Cumberland, N.S. was the native county of Sir Charles Tupper, one of the Fathers of Confederation and Prime Minister of Canada for a few months in 1896. In his first political contest—the provincial elections of 1855—Dr. Tupper, standing for Cumberland, defeated the redoubtable veteran Joseph Howe, who years before, after successively defending a charge of sedition preferred by the Council of Twelve Magistrates at Halifax, had risen to the position leader of the movement for responsible government in the Maritimes, and enjoyed an unexampled popularity among the people of his native province. As the Conservative party suffered severe defeat elsewhere throughout the province Dr. Tupper's victory over the great Liberal tribune made him a marked man. In 1853 the young man from Cumberland achieved the premiership of the province, and began the stormy battle for Confederation. After committing Nova Scotia to the Confederation compact Dr. Tupper resigned his premiership and in the elections of 1867 stood in Cumberland for the first Confederation Parliament. When the smoke cleared Dr. Tupper was elected, but in the seventeen other seats of the province the pro-Confederation candidates had been snowed under. At the same time the elections for the Provincial Assembly resulted in the return of 36 anti-confederationists as against 2 confederationists.

The Imperial Government refused to grant constitutional repeal of the Union and Howe was too loyal to the British connection to adopt other than constitutional means. Sir John A. Macdonald came to Halifax, convinced Howe of the serious danger into which the anti-Confederationists were drifting, and finally induced him to go to Ottawa as President of the Dominion Cabinet. In view of Nova Scotia's attitude Dr. Tupper declined Sir John A's offer of a Cabinet appointment, but in 1870 he succeeded Howe as President of the Cabinet Council and on the occasion of his elevation made a speech containing the first advocacy of the National policy over made in the House of Commons.

In the present elections Colonel C. E. Bent is the Government candidate for Cumberland. He went overseas as adjutant of the 17th Battalion in 1914 and reverted in rank in order to get to France in the spring of 1915. He served mostly with the Canadian 48th Highlanders in France, and in the closing days of the conflict was in command of the 3rd Canadian Infantry brigade. He has the following decorations: C. M. G., D. S. O. and Bar, Mons Star, Victory Medal and Allies Medal. After the war he was appointed Customs Collector at Amherst. The Liberal candidate is Hance J. Logan, who formerly represented the county at Ottawa. Mr. Logan is President of the Maritime Board of Trade.

Lunenburg, N.S. is largely peopled by descendants of immigrants from Hanover who came to Nova Scotia in 1753, and, according to William Duff, Mayor of the shiretown, "Lunenburgers can claim closer associations with the reigning house of England than any other section of the Canadian people."

Lunenburg, La Have and Mahone, the ports of the county, have the distinction of having built up on the cooperative basis the largest fleet of Grand Bank fishing vessels in the world. In the past Lunenburg has been variously known as the Gloucester of Nova Scotia or the Grimsby of Canada, but since the International Fishermen's Races this year it has been content to be known by its own name—as the port of hail of the Bluenose, champion of the North Atlantic Fishing Fleets by virtue of her win over the Elsie, crack fisherman of New England.

In the present election William Duff who represented the constituency in the last Parliament is again a candidate in the Liberal behalf. Mr. Duff, who was born in Newfoundland, Britain's most ancient colony, and educated in Scotland, is a large fish merchant and ship owner. The Government candidate is Dr. Dugald Stewart one time school master, former member of Parliament and at present a well-known medical practitioner of Halifax. In the election of 1911 Dr. Stewart was a successful candidate in Lunenburg, defeating A. K. MacLean, who was later Minister without portfolio in the Union Government.

Shelbourne and Queens gave Hon. W. S. Fielding a seat by acclamation when after the election of 1869 Premier Laurier called him from the Premiership of Nova Scotia to take the position of Minister of Finance in the new Liberal Government and to introduce into the House of Commons the first measure giving preferential tariff treatment to Great Britain. Judge Forbes of Liverpool who had previously defeated C. H. Cahan, new a well known financier of Montreal had retired to make room for the new Finance minister. In the elections of 1911, following the introduction of the Fielding Taft reciprocity agreement, Mr. Fielding, who had held the same seat for fifteen years, was defeated by F. B. McCurdy, now Minister of Public Works. When Union Government was formed in 1917 Mr. Fielding, who came, put as a supporter of it, was again elected for Shelburne and Queens by acclamation, Mr. McCurdy going to Colchester County.

In the present contest Mr. Fielding is again a candidate in his old constituency, running as a straight Liberal. The Government candidate is W. L. Hall, a prominent lawyer of Liverpool, Queens County, who for a time was leader of the Opposition in the Provincial Legislature.

Shelbourne, the shire town of the western section of the constituency was during and for a short time after the American revolutionary war the largest town in America north of the Rio Grande, having then a population of over 16,000.

THRILLS AND MYSTERY IN ANITA STEWART PLAY

The chance-in-a-lifetime that comes wholly unsuspected to those who least anticipate it is both truthfully and interestingly portrayed in the latest appearance of Anita Stewart before the camera in "The Fighting Shepherdess," which will be exhibited at Griffin's Tonight, and Saturday, matinee and night.

From the standpoint of excellence in the craftmanship that is essential in the production of the motion picture of today, "The Fighting Shepherdess" posesses the merit of a carefully worked out attraction. But from the human interest point of view which so much determines the amount of enjoyment an audience can derive from a picture, it is one of the most laudable pictures offered to Belleville screen fans in some time.

"Astray from The Steerage" a 2 reel Mack Sennett comedy, Fox News Weekly, "Movie Chats" a new reel that will prove popular with local photoplay lovers will receive its initial presentation at Griffin's this week end, besides other selected attractions of merit.

SHIRLEY KELLOGG AND HARRY TATE HERE TOMORROW

The greatest theatrical undertaking on record, bringing across the Atlantic a company of seventy and a shipload of scenery, will be set well on its way when Albert de Courville and his London Galety organization comes to Griffin's tomorrow night, November 11th, for one night only.

Mr. de Courville comes to Canada to present for the first time a series of his celebrated revues, which have won for him an unique reputation in the British metropolis during the past decade. He has expended over Ten Thousand Pounds in this venture. He will bring with him two artistes who are probably the best known and most popular personalities on the revue stage in the world to-day. Harry Tate is known to almost every soldier who served overseas, as well as to millions by name. Shirley Kellogg, the lovely star of de Courville's revues for years past, enjoys an unique reputation as one of the most beautiful and accomplished comediennes in England.

Mr. de Courville will present here a revue which he has specially written and prepared for Canada. It is entitled "Hullo, Canada," and it embraces, among other things, the leading hits from Mr. de Courville's most popular productions, and the famous Beauty Chorus from the London Galety Theatre.

No such undertaking as this has ever been attempted before. Mr. de Courville intends to give Canada the best he has given London and, in addition, something even better, that London has not yet seen.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN DENMARK

Copenhagen, Nov. 10.—Unemployment has been steadily increasing in Denmark since July. The unemployed now number 55,411. There is not much hope among business men that matters will alter for the better during the coming winter.

The high cost of living and the tremendous German imports compel Danish industries to lie dormant and hope for better times.

U. F. O. FINANCES LOOKED INTO

until it was signed by the auditors," he contended.

"That's quibbling," Dr. Farewell charged.

"Not at all," replied Mr. Morrison.

"Dr. Farewell took this opportunity to try to annihilate his own company," Mr. Morrison continued. "If his attack was taken seriously by the business concerns, our company would have been held up immediately."

Dr. Farewell strongly denied this charge. He declared he had simply wished to have an informal meeting of the shareholders called.

Mr. Morrison replied that he had no power to call such a meeting.

Dr. Farewell favored the appointment of an independent auditor.

"The shareholders appointed the auditors," Mr. Morrison replied.

"Why did Mr. Powers resign from the presidency of the company last summer?" Dr. Farewell demanded.

"Not through any connection with this matter," Mr. Morrison assured

"What inducement did you hold out to persuade him to resume the dutie of president," Dr. Farewell asked.

"None whatever."

"Was there not a private audit of the books last spring?" Dr. Farewell continued to question.

"There was not," Mr. Morrison replied. "The auditors were looking up some matters for the directors, not for the shareholders."

In reply to a query from a shareholder, Mr. Morrison gave the following figures regarding the company's business:

Stock authorized..	$1,250,000
Stock issued	1,195.150
Capital paid up	870,000
Business turnover..	20,000,000 (approximately)

"I will be satisfied if we can see that the affairs of the company are properly conducted," said Dr. Farewell.

"Is there any evidence that they are not?" a shareholder wanted to know

"You will find out at the annual meeting," replied Dr. Farewell.

"It is not a very serious matter if the company does not pay a dividend this year," commented Mr. Morrison.

"If you have still got your capital unimpaired, it won't be a very serious matter," agreed Dr. Farewell.

"If you are going to keep your capital unimpaired, and not pay a dividend, you should have to break exactly even," retorted Mr. Morrison.

"A Mr. Wilson, of Simcoe county," dropped a near-bombshell into the meeting when he charged that Mr. Morrison was not devoting his time to the instituton.

"We must get politics out of this organization, to put it on a business basis," he contended.

"That man is not a shareholder," Mr. Morrison interrupted. "He has no right here."

"I gave him permission to be here," Dr. Farewell put in. "This is no star chamber affair."

"If my statements aren't correct, upset them," observed Mr. Wilson.

"We didn't come here to talk politics," Dr. Farewell pointed out. "If we did I can give you a dose to make your hair stand on end," he added significantly.

"Abuse has always been Mr. Morrison's strong point, when he is caught", Mr. Wilson put in.

"That statement is absolutely uncalled for," declared Mr. Moyle, another shareholder.

Dr. Farewell stated that he had been informed by Mr. Lick that the company's loss on the stores alone would amount to $200,000.

"No one knows what loss there will be," replied Mr. Morrison. "We expect there will be a deficit—we do not know how much."

Dr. Farewell disclaimed any intention of injuring the company. He declared that when he had learned that a Toronto paper proposed to publish an article on the subject of the company's finances, he had tried to persuade the paper not to do so. He hoped the present meeting would serve to clarify the atmosphere.

Mr. Morrison moved, Col. Fraser seconded, a vote of thanks to Dr. Farewell.

"A vote of censure" queried the doctor. "That's a bit of sarcasm."

FRENCH DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE

Aristide Briand, Premier of France, who leads the French delegation to the Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armaments, is 59 years old. He was once a socialist leader and helped to guide the destinies of France during the most critical periods of the great war. He was born at Nantes, the big industrial city at the mouth of the Loire, and has served, respectively, as Minister of the Interior, Minister of Justice, Minister of Foreign Affairs, President of the Allied Supreme Council, a member of the War Council and four times as Premier of France. He has been called "an intellectual colossus" as well as a political dictator and few men have wielded such great influence in French public life.

Briand first became a world figure in the Chamber of Deputies as the author of the law providing for separation of church and state in 1906 and for his victory over syndicalism when, by placing the railroads under military law, he called all the workers to the colors and broke the great strike of 1910. He accepted and enforced the principle that "the interests of the whole nation are supreme and must and shall outweigh the interests of any class, section or body."

Rene Viviani, former premier, the second member of the French delegation, was also at one time a socialist leader. He has served as cabinet Minister in several portfolios. He is at present chairman of the League of Nations' Commission to Limit International Armaments.

M. Viviani is no stranger to America. He has visited this country on two occasions, once in 1917 when he came as a member of the French War Mission with General Joffre and again in the Spring of 1921 when he was voted the freedom of New York City and visited Colonel Roosevelt's grave.

He is 59 years old and was born in Algiers. Educated in Paris, a lawyer, he was elected to parliament in 1893 and served for many years in that body until Clemenceau appointed him a member of his cabinet. He is famous as an orator.

Jean Adrian Antonine Jules Jusserand, has represented France as Ambassador in Washington for 18 years and is the dean of the diplomatic corps. He is 66 years old and has been in public life more than 45 years. He was President Wilson's guest on the liner George Washington when Mr. Wilson sailed for the Paris Peace Conference. His wife is an American; her maiden name was Elsie Richards.

Ambassador Jusserand entered the French Foreign Office in 1876. He has been Counsellor to the French embassy in London and Minister to Denmark.

He is a Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor and a member of several British and American philosophical, historical and literary bodies. He has written a number of books including "Americans of the Past and Present."

Albert Sarraut, French senator and Minister for the Colonies, former Minister of Public Instruction, Governor-General of Indo-China and deputy for the Department of Aude, is 49 years old. In the Chamber of Deputies in 1906, Mr. Sarraut struck Deputy Pugliesi-Conti during debate on the Dreyfus restoration bill. A duel resulted and Sarraut was dangerously wounded by a sword thrust in the right breast.

He served in the French army in the world war as a second lieutenant and later he was made pre-consul of Indo-China. When officially opening a native fair at Hanoi an attempt was made to assassinate him. He was shot and seriously wounded.

M. Sarraut, early in the present year drafted the plans for French administration of the Cameroons and Togoland in Africa. Recently he toured French possessions in Africa after requesting the Chamber of Deputies to appropriate 250,000,000 francs for irrigation of the French Sudan.

The staff personnel of the French delegation includes:

Chief Military Adviser, Marshal Ferdinand Foch; Chief Naval Adviser, Vice-Admiral Grasset, head of the French Naval General Staff; General Secretary to the Foreign Office, General Phillippe Berthelot; Maurice Cacenave, Director General of French interests in the United States; Major General Baut, Chief of Staff of the French army.

Count Charles de Chambrun, former Counsellor of the French embassy in Washington; M. Leger, for the past four years First Secretary of Legation and Charge d'Affairs at Peking, China; General Pierre-Henri Destickor, chief-of-staff and aid to Marshal Foch; Admiral Debon; M. Fromageot; M. Kammerer; M. Cheysson; M. Duchesne; M. Girardeau; Captains l'Hopital and Lumoury and Lieutenant de Souderan. In addition there are a score or more of secretaries and clerks.

HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE

"BAT" MASTERSON DIES "WITH HIS BOOTS ON"

"Bat" Masterson, former gunman of the West, and well-known sporting writer of New York, had his wish. He "died with his boots on," falling dead of heart disease in the office of the Morning Telegraph, where he had acted as sporting editor for the past decade.

Sixty-six years of age, and hale and hearty to the last, William B. Masterson was as picturesque a figure in American life as the late Buffalo Bill. In many respects, "Bat" was more colorful than Cody. Buffalo Bill was always a professional Westerner, but with the passing of the "wild and woolly" days in the West, Masterson adapted himself to city ways, and became as well-known a figure in Denver and New York as he had been in Dodge City, Kansas, in the early seventies, when he was marshal of that lively metropolis.

The two men who did more than any others to shape the later-day career of Masterson were Theodore Roosevelt and Alfred Henry Lewis, the writer, Roosevelt appointed him as Deputy United States Marshal in New York in 1905, which brought him here from Denver. Lewis made him famous in his stories of the West, many of which were the real experiences of Masterson in his early life on the plains. Through Alfred Henry Lewis, "Bat" met William Lewis, proprietor of the Morning Telegraph of which paper he subsequently became sporting editor.

In his youth, when he lived in an atmosphere of "survival of the fittest," Masterson adopted as his motto, "Never to forget a friend or forgive an enemy." He carried out his axiom to the end. In the frontier days "Bat" is supposed to have killed 25 or 30 men in gun fights. The fact is that he did kill a number of so-called bad men while acting as marshal of Dodge City. If he hadn't they would have killed him.

Only gun exploit of which Masterson talked in later years was his avenging the death of his brother, who was killed by four drunken cowboys who rode into Dodge City to shoot up the town. "Bat" killed all four of them before the night was over. That was back in 1878.

Y.M.C.A. BOWLING

The Bowlers last night proved to be somewhat too strong for the G. T. R. Shop team and when the dust of battle cleared away the score board indicated that they were 249 points up on their less fortunate opponents. Dr. O'Callaghan again demonstrated to the rail birds the proper method of tumbling them over, rolling 533 for the three strings. The game to-night is Elliotts vs. Tabernacle.

PROTEST GAME

The K.V.A. executive have entered a protest against the Excelsiors on the grounds of Russ. Woodley not bowling when the team bowled. Woodley bowled a three-string score of 492 in the afternoon in the presence of Y.M.C.A. officials but did not have a Hydro man present. As Woodley had to go away at night he would have been unable to bowl in the game thus the afternoon game. As Woodley is the captain of the Excelsiors and one of the leading bowlers he would have been sorely missed by his team. A meeting of the bowling executive is to be held soon to decide upon the protest entered.

CAUGHT WITH 10,000 ALLEGED SPURIOUS LABELS

Hamilton, Nov. 8.—Additional evidence of the underground whiskey ring operating here came to hand when Constable Roughead arrested Frank Cardi, 102 Caroline street north in whose possession, it is alleged, 10,000 spurious excise labels for liquor bottles were found. All of the stamps bore the date of 1919.

A woman named Margaret Kelly, who lived in Cardi's house, was also arrested. Both are being held on nominal charges of vagrancy until the excise officials decide on what charge they shall be prosecuted.

When Constable Roughead entered the kitchen of the home, Cardi, it is said, grabbed a package from a table and ran to the street. He was caught and at headquarters this package was found to contain the spurious labels in question.

Police officials assert that much poisonous liquor, camouflaged with spurious labels and excise stamps, is being sold here for $6 and $7 a bottle.

ARMISTICE DAY

Friday, November 11th, 1921

CHAS. HANNA, MAYOR OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

WHEREAS, in response to a request of His Majesty the King, it is fitting that an opportunity be given the people of Belleville on the third anniversary of the Armistice, which stayed the world-wide carnage of the four preceding years, and marked the victory of right, justice and freedom, to perpetuate the memory of that great deliverance and those who laid down their lives to achieve it; and

WHEREAS, His Majesty the King has requested that there may be on Armistice Day for the brief space of two minutes at the hour of Eleven o'clock in the forenoon a complete suspension of all normal activities, so that in perfect stillness the prayers and thoughts of everyone may be concentrated on reverent remembrance of the glorious dead and of the Victory by God's Grace vouchsafed to the Empire and its devoted allies;

I, therefore, in compliance with the wishes of His Majesty the King, do request that, at the hour of 11 o'clock a.m., on Friday, the 11th instant, all business and domestic activities of every description should cease for a period of two minutes.

I beg also to request that commemoration services be held at that hour in schools and colleges of the city.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused this proclamation to be made public.

CHAS. HANNA, Mayor.

TO BE SETTLED AT CONFERENCE

Japanese Ambassador Says There Will Be Dry Diplomacy at Party.

New York, Nov. 9.—Baron Shidehara, Japan's ambassador, declared the Washington conference was called for the purpose of considering "the question of walking sticks", in a remarkable letter to Life, published in that magazine's current issue. He wrote in part:

"You ask me for an estimate of the forthcoming conference at Washington and, without referring your request to Tokio for Cabinet consideration, I hasten to tell you how Mr. Nippon regards the matter.

"Mr. Uncle Sam, the richest gentleman in the world, has invited a number of his friends to his residence in Washington on Nov. 11 to consider the question of walking sticks. It is said there will be dry diplomacy at the party, and that a new game unlike poker, will be played, with all the cards face up on the table.

No More Bluff

"This is a novel suggestion; but Mr. Nippon is something of a sport and cries 'banzai' which in plain United States means 'bravo.' He speaks this way because he holds a very good hand and knows it—reports to the contrary having been circulated for betting purposes. These are sometimes fortunes to be made by interested persons in judicious deception.

"Mr. Nippon being only human like other gentlemen, has made errors in playing the old game of bluff, but the game was one that had been forced upon him. Indeed, it was Mr. Sam himself, followed by Mr. J. Bull and others, who first showed Mr. Nippon the world.

"So Mr. Nippon began to behave somewhat like the other gentlemen, changed his paper parasol for a walking stick, and kept increasing the size of the stick as the style developed —knowing all the while that the style was vulgar, if not actually inhuman, but having no other recourse.

Mr. Nippon Will Be There

"Now the world has become more kindly, and great and small people, rich and poor, are invited to Mr. Sam's magnificent mansion to be his guests on democratic terms, to see if they can't 'get together' with him, deal more generously with each other and reduce the significant sizes of 'big sticks' to one of decent proportions.

"Mr. Nippon sends his regards and ask me to say that he will be a bright and early guest at Washington in November."

PROPAGANDA MUST RECEIVE A CHECK

Mr. Justice Riddell Says Time Has Come to End It.

The time has come when the spread of propaganda detrimental to the interests of Canada must be stopped, according to the declaration of Mr. Justice Riddell at Toronto, when William Conn, Walter Arnold and Christoff Nickell were remanded for two weeks. The remand was allowed in order to make inquiries concerning the past of the three men, and that it might be determined, if possible, what the effects of such literature would be. Mr. Gordon Waldron, K.C., remarked that the pamphlets were only stupid and senseless propaganda.

"In my own view the pamphlets are a silly lot of twaddle," Mr. Justice Riddell added, "but there are certain minds that may be affected by such stuff. History has shown that assassinations, incendiarism and at least in one instance, a massacre were occasioned by such propaganda. If these pamphlets had had, to the smallest extent the effect that they were intended to have it would be a serious matter. I am anxious that nothing should stand in the way of freedom of speech, that no restrictions be placed on it.

"But a challenge has been thrown out to Canada, and on behalf of the people of Canada I accept that challenge. I would not in any case suspend sentence for this crime. Canada is like a strong man at work bothered by a fly to which he pays no attention at first. But when the fly becomes troublesome he kills it. This propaganda is but the teasing of an annoying fly. But the time may come and its disseminators should be warned, that it may be necessary to put it down with a strong hand. Canada is not going to be intimidated. She is about to enforce her laws. She knows how to defend them."

Hints for the Motorist

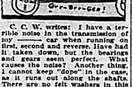
Starting The Hot-Air Stove

DURING HOT WEATHER, some motorists disconnect the hot-air supply for the carburetor, although this is not so commonly done now as formerly, on account of the low grade fuel used in recent years. With the advent of cold weather it is very advantageous to have the hot-air connection in service, not only because this will insure better vaporization of the fuel under running conditions, but because it will shorten the warming up period of the engine, enable the car to be driven away quicker and reduce the tendency to dilute the engine oil with unburned gasoline. Unless an engine is provided with a hot-spot manifold, heated air for the mixture is practically necessary in severe weather if the warming up period is to be made reasonably short and it is almost hopeless to try to run an engine without one or the other of these vaporizing expedients, during the cold season. There are a number of makes of cars in which hot exhaust gas is applied to the carburetor body or elsewhere in the intake system to assist vaporization, through piping, flexible metallic tubing or drilled passages, which sometimes become obstructed with burned oil and soot so that the heated gases cannot pass through them. Care should be taken that the exhaust gas has a free passage around these heating jackets, now that the air temperature is becoming low.

DOPE ESCAPES FROM TRANSMISSION CASE



C. C. W. writes: I have a terrible noise in the transmission of my ——— car when running on first, second and reverse. Have had it taken down, but the bearings and gears seem perfect. What causes the noise? Another thing, I cannot keep "dope" in the case, as it runs out along the shafts. There are no felt washers in this transmission. How is the lubricant prevented from escaping?

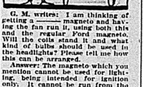
Answer: If this transmission ever ran quietly, noisy operation can hardly arise from anything but bearing trouble or from the chipping or otherwise deforming of the gear teeth, assuming that the right lubricant is used. And unless you are absolutely sure there is nothing wrong with the bearings, especially those of the countershaft, we should attribute the noise to play at these points, which throws the gears out of perfect mesh. The through shafts of this transmission are provided with throw-off rings, which direct excess lubricant into catch pockets, from which it is returned through passages to the case. The lubricant to be used is heavy fluid oil not grease and if the latter is used it sometimes stops up the return passages, causing the catch pockets to overfill and the grease to leak out.

DRIVING GEAR REPLACEMENTS

J. F. R. writes: I have broken one tooth of the ring-gear of my car, but find that it is otherwise all right. The pinion, however, seems noticeably worn. Would it be advisable to have the broken tooth repaired by welding and to use these same gears or would it be better to replace the pinion, now that I have the parts disassembled?

Answer: If you desire quiet operation, we advise you to replace both ring-gear and pinion. It would be possible to have the broken ring-gear tooth built up and cut to true form, but the job would cost quite a little and we fear it would prove noisy. It is not advisable to replace a pinion and not replace its ring-gear, as quiet running is seldom obtained in this way. Considering that your pinion is worn considerably and would perhaps have to be replaced in the near future, we should recommend you to make a thorough job of it by renewing both gears.

MAGNETO INQUIRY



G. M. writes: I am thinking of getting a ——— magneto and having the fan run it, using both this and the regular Ford magneto. Will the coils stand it and what kind of bulbs should be used in the headlights? Please tell me how this can be arranged.

Answer: The magneto which you mention cannot be used for lighting, being intended for ignition only. It cannot be run from the fan belt, for ignition purposes, but must be gear-driven from the engine. It should not be connected to the Ford ignition coils, but can be used as the sole ignition source, leaving the flywheel magneto for lighting. Instead of the magneto, which you propose to buy, you can obtain a combined generator and fan, that is driven from the fan belt and which will charge a battery to supply lights, horn, etc.

HON. DR. TOLMIE ON HOG INDUSTRY

Minister Tells Producers at Banquet.

(By Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, November 5.—The need for a better understanding all round and closer co-operation if the hog industry in Canada was to be put on a good, sound basis, was impressed by Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, on a representative gathering of Canadian producers and packers, who were the guests of the Livestock Branch of the Department of Agriculture at dinner here. Referring to the establishment of a standard of grades for hogs, a question upon which the producers and packers unanimously agreed at a joint conference in the afternoon, Dr. Tolmie stated that quality was an essential if Canada hoped to compete with other countries in the world markets.

Hon. George Hoadley, former Conservative leader in the Alberta Legislature, and Minister of Agriculture in the Greenfield Farmer Government, told the gathering he thought the decision regarding the grading of hogs was a most important one. The question of quality was paramount. Quality from Canada in every one of her products would enable her to conquer the markets of the world.

Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, presided at the dinner, which was attended by leading hog producers and packers, representatives of several of the provincial departments of agriculture, and officials of the Federal Department of Agriculture.

EXPLOSION OF STILL KILLS TWO BABIES

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 9.—Two of Gaspari Bartholotte's babies are dead and other members of his family in a serious condition at the Receiving Hospital, the result of an explosion of a 25-gallon illicit still before daybreak Saturday at the Bartholotte home, 1469 Clinton street. Bartholotte is held by the police on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Paulina, the mother, and a two-year-old child may recover.

A dense cloud of vapor, pouring from the second storey of Bartholette's home early Saturday, attracted a passerby. Coming nearer, he heard moans and sharp cries as of children in distress. Police forced their way to the meagre two-room apartment of the Bartholettes where they found the mother and her children sprawled about the bed and floor. In a tiny adjoining room used as a kitchen, the still stood wrecked. From its cracked seams seeped alcohol and mash.

Bartholette was found at his work at the Stephani Baking Company. At first he disclaimed any knowledge of the still until told of the explosion and death of his children.

Nine Million Customers to Buy Your Products

AND THE NEWSPAPERS TO REACH THEM EVERY DAY. LINK UP THE FACTORS OF SUCCESS

The retail business of six staple trades alone in Canada is conducted daily by 34,208 stores, which are the accepted and logical outlet through which food products and manufactured articles are passed on to the ultimate consumer—and the money received in the transaction is returned into circulation. These trades include:

13,331 Grocery Stores
In these stores thousands of tons of foodstuffs reach the family table, being sold in well-known branded or trademarked cartons, packages, containers and bottles, made familiar by DAILY NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.

2,645 Clothing Stores
Through these establishments the men and boys of Canada are supplied with outer garments, ties, hosiery, gloves and underwear. Stock is turned over, and shops prosper in proportion to the demand created for the wares they display. DAILY NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING creates and stimulates demand.

3,050 Boot and Shoe Stores
They turn over millions of pairs of boots and shoes, rubbers and accessories in addition to those sold in department stores. Good-will is one of their great assets, because foot comfort and honest quality in footwear are absolute demands. The DAILY NEWSPAPER best carries your guarantee.

1,685 Furniture Stores
It is estimated that at least 160,000 new houses are needed in Canada. The furniture sellers who are best known will add this business to that which they already enjoy. The DAILY NEWSPAPER makes them known quickly and cheaply.

2,537 Dry Goods Stores
Where the women of the family do the bulk of their shopping their stocks are replenished absolutely at the demand of the householder in their trading area. Women regard advertisements as part of the day's news.

2,955 Hardware Stores
Not only farm implements and the staples of hardware, but many articles of domestic utility and convenience are circulated through these establishments. Special local tastes are often a problem unless the help of the local daily paper is enlisted on your side.

The successful manufacturer and distributor extends his business by linking it, through DAILY NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING, with these 35,000 merchants or any territorial division of them.

KING CRAFT IS DRIFTING WITHOUT CHART OR RUDDER.

The Mackenzie King party seems to be drifting without a rudder; one day they are flirting with the Crerarites and the next day they are abusing them. The Brockville Recorder, Liberal, published a leading editorial suggesting that the Lion of Liberalism and the Agrarian Lamb could lie down together in perfect harmony, while in another column a report appeared of a speech by A. C. Hardy who was the Liberal candidate against Sir Thomas White in Leeds in the last Dominion election, condemning the farmer movement in toto, and Mr. Hardy is himself a farmer and noted Holstein breeder. Said the Recorder:

> "A sharp attack upon the Agrarian party was launched by A. C. Hardy in his address. The last two years of Ontario politics, he said, had shown that, despite their professions of political morality, the United Farmers are just as astute politicians as the old parties which they deride. Never in the history of any other party in Ontario had there been such a piece of political corruption as the selection of Speaker Parliament from the Liberal ranks in order to ensure a U. F. O. majority in the House. "When they preach political morality," said Mr. Hardy, "I have no hesitation in throwing it right back at the United Farmers. I would not kow-tow to the Agrarians. They are out to fight us and we are out to fight them." Personally, as a farmer, he could see no reason why the reins of government should be placed in the hands of one class, as the Agrarians proposed, and he had no fear that his interests would be just as well looked after by the Liberals as by the Farmers' party.

THE LESSON OF NORTH DAKOTA.

(Ottawa Journal)

North Dakota had a farmers' movement. It had also its long-haired faddists, its young near-Bolshevists with theories about "credit power," its class which believes that everything that is, is wrong. Forming themselves into a Non-Partisan League, this motley throng, with a platform crammed with isms, got control of the government of the state. For a time things went gallantly. The League established banks, wheat elevators, flour mills, home building associations, state packing plants, state insurance; the Millennium was just beyond.

And then came the crash. One by one the Non-Partisan League ventures went under—banks, elevators, flour mills, home building, insurance and all. Last week the Non-Partisan League Governor, Lynn J. Frazier, was recalled; and for the time being the faddists are in rout.

But the experiment with Socialism has been costly. How costly, is summed up by the Denhoff Voice, a North Dakota paper, which thus sums up what has occurred under the League's radical ventures:

Marketing conditions, to be improved, are worse than ever.

The Bank of North Dakota is insolvent.

The programme of state marketing has been scrapped in favor of a co-operative plan.

The state home-builders' department has quit functioning.

The state insurance department is more than a year behind in its payment of losses, and some claims will not be paid for two years.

Virtually every enterprise sponsored by the inner circles of the Socialist leaders is bankrupt, the Consumers' United Stores Company alone costing the farmers more than $1,000,000.

State money was deposited in "League banks" and reloaned by them to politicians for their private schemes. These schemes are bankrupt, and the Bank of North Dakota is whistling for its money.

The state flour mill lost more in the first year of operation than it cost to buy the property.

It is a fearsome record; and its fearsomness is not detracted from by the knowledge that A. C. Townley, one of the prime movers in the Non-Partisan movement, is serving a term of imprisonment for offences against the United States during the period of the war.

Perhaps North Dakota has its lesson for Canadians. It is the lesson that it is sometimes perilous to deal with gentlemen who, like Mr. Wood of Alberta, and Mr. Crerar, his lieutenant, peddle fancy politics to establish the Millennium over night.

Shovelling snow is great exercise, taken moderately. If the man of the house takes to snow shovelling too strenuously and enthusiastically he is liable to burst a few buttons from his nether garments and seriously damage his enthusiasm for snow shovelling. The way to nurse this snow-shovelling habit along is to take it gradually—let George do some of it until the habit grows and the muscles become hard. Yes, it's a great life if we don't weaken; but here's a tip from the butcher, the baker and the grocer—when you pile up those high mountains of snow at the curb make a Kicking Horse Pass or two, for the delivery men to come through in carrying out the great gospel of service and in bringing eatables to your kitchen door.

"GOLDEN MINARETS OF OTTAWA"

Vancouver Sun

Through the gloom of business depression and through the mists of political complications, thousands of pairs of eyes are fastened on the majestic towers of the Ottawa Parliament Buildings, shining with the golden radiance of hope and promise. To the political aspirants the snow-banks of Ottawa take on the pink effulgence of a rose garden; to them no atmosphere can be so health-giving as government-generated steam heat.

We cannot all be elected to Ottawa, but we can all try, and the starter will find an abundance of entries when he comes to drop the barrier and let the racers away.

Married men are the ones to get elected to Parliament. When a man has a wife to tell him he is the brainiest and best-looking man in Canada, he looks around for the nearest Nominating Convention and thrills that assemblage with confidence his wife has given him. A batchelor is hopelessly handicapped.

Oui, oui, papa, go to it tout suite, is the French-Canadian lady's reply to monsieur's inquiry as to whether $4,000 per year for five years with mileage and the incidental political and social advantages will make up for the absence from home during the sessions of Parliament.

Commencing in these happy homes on the Atlantic and going clear across the Continent to the Pacific, adoring wives will precipitate neatly-dressed husbands into the political arena. It will be a time for a general pressing and swamping of black clothes and a searching of dictionaries for convincing expressions.

There will not be many lady candidates. Too many women have available husband candidates to become interested in lady candidates. The opportunity is one for married men alone; and the successful men will be those with intelligent and strenuous wives.

That is the reason we need not worry about radicalism and the overturning of established institutions. Women will control their elected husbands; and the primary motive of woman is to maintain and protect her home as an institution and also all other institutions which go to create security and happiness for the homes of our country.

A NATIONAL ANTHEM

Maker of earth and sea,
What shall we render Thee
All things are Thine;
Ours but from day to day,
Still with one heart to pray
"God Bless our land alway,
This land of Thine!"

Mighty in brotherhood,
Mighty for God and good,
Let us be Thine,
Here let the nations see
Toil from the curse set free,
Labor and liberty,
One cause—and Thine.

Here let glad plenty reign;
Here let none seek in vain,
Our help and Thine—
No heart for want of friend
Fail ere the timely end,
But love for ever blend,
Man's cause and Thine.

Here let Thy peace abide;
Never may strife divide
This land of Thine,
Let us united stand,
One great devoted band,
Heart to heart, hand in hand,
Heart and hand Thine.

Strong to defend our right,
Proud in all nations' sight,
Lowly in Thine—
One in all noble fame,
Still be our path the same,
Onward in Freedom's name,
Upward in Thine.

THE LOYAL DENISONS.

Their Family Cemetery Tells of Devotion to Canada.

St. John's Cemetery, on the Humber, near the city of Toronto, known as the Denison family cemetery, typifies the life and service of many members of a great soldier stock.

This little-known spot tells a story of a century and a quarter of Canadian military service. In the latter years of the eighteenth century the progenitors of the family came to Canada and subsequently set apart four acres "for a place of sepulchre" on the east bank of the Humber river, north of the present hospital for consumptives. One acre was set aside as a site for a church and parsonage, with "five acres as glebe land to be forever attached thereto."

A large tomb of white marble, erected by grandchildren, gives the historic background. The several monuments themselves tell the rest of the outline. Inscriptions record the defence of Canada in all her wars, and there are empty places, too, that tell of faithful sleepers on the battlefields of France and Flanders.

The first stone is in memory of John Denison, of Headon, Yorkshire, England, who died in Toronto in 1824, and of Sophia Taylor, his wife, of Harwich, Essex, England, who died at Quebec, in 1852. This couple sailed from Hull in 1792, in July, and arrived at Kingston in October. They reached the wilderness near York in 1796, and established the cemetery in 1800, "with right of burial to all those only of his blood with their wives and husbands respectively."

There follows their eldest son, George Taylor Denison, who was a Toronto alderman and colonel of the fourth battalion of Toronto militia in the war of 1812, who also commanded the cavalry in the 1837 rebellion. His eldest son was Lieut.-Col. Richard Lippincott Denison, "born near this place, 1814," who commanded the reserve militia of the city, served as captain in the Queen's Light Dragoons in 1837, was a member of the City Council and a justice of the peace. His son of the same name, had two sons, Jack and Frank, both killed in the great war. Near Arras, too, there died Lieut.-Col. George Taylor Denison, Jr., who was the eldest son of Col. George Taylor Denison of Heydon Villa, Toronto.

Such are some of the inscriptions, illustrative of life and death for this country, rich family and national memories enshrined in a family cemetery, which is not without its importance to the nation.

"Faithful unto death," reads the motto on one of the stones, and so it has been unto the third and fourth generation.

Saved the Prince.

Sergt. F. W. Brown, of the Great War Veterans' Band, was one of the interesting figures in the Warriors' Day proceedings in connection with the Canadian National Exhibition last September. He is a veteran of the World War, the South African and Indian Expeditions.

Years ago, when Brown was attached to an Imperial Regiment stationed at London Tower, he saved the future King of the Empire by stopping a runaway horse which came within a few feet of the Prince and his nurse. When the Prince inspected the G.W.V.A. band at Regina Parliament Buildings on his last trip to this country, he inquired for Sergt. Brown and when the latter was pointed out to him, the Prince thanked Brown graciously and promised to tell his father when he returned to England. Sergt. Brown had not seen the Prince since the incident related occurred, until he met him at Regina. Brown has several letters from the royal family which he values most highly, among them being the following one from the Prince of Wales:

"Royal Train at Montreal,
October 20, 1919.

"The private secretary of the Prince of Wales is desired by his Royal Highness to thank Sergt. Brown for his letter of the 22nd instant, and for the good wishes contained therein, and also for the photograph which the prince was pleased to accept as a souvenir of his visit to Regina."

Heroes Not In Demand.

The new addition of the "Story of Sir Isaac Brock, Hero, Defender and Saviour of Upper Canada," by Walter R. Nursey, recalls the ill-fated attempt to publish for Canadian youth a series of lives of early national heroes. The Brock story ran into three editions, which were exhausted, and the second book, "The Story of Tecumseh," by Norman S. Gurd, achieved success, but conditions of publication became unfavorable and the Canadian Hero series ceased.

Mr. Nursey's book has been brought up-to-date by additions based on new information from the battalion commanders of the Royal Berkshires, Brock's old regiment. The excellent illustrations, which have become badly worn in the public libraries of the Province and Dominion, have been retained in the new edition, which is issued under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Education and the Ontario Library Association.

Dinosaurs.

Sixteen thousand pounds of fossilized dinosaurs from the banks of the Red Deer river have been shipped to the museum of the University of Toronto. This carload of prehistoric monsters represents the season's work of the University party. Included in the shipment are two almost complete skeletons of the duck-billed dinosaur, one of which is 32 feet long.

Advertising!

The biggest men in the country have found that the easiest way to spell success is to A-D-V-E-R-T-I-S-E. Suppose the newspaper did not publish the news, how would the people know what is happening? If you don't publish the Store News how will the people know about your goods? You can never sell the goods people do not know you have.

Advertising is telling about your stock. The firm that advertises gets ahead, every time, of the firm that does not advertise. Shop-worn and out-of-date stock is the penalty merchants pay for not advertising.

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"But how to take them, sire? It seems to me that neither your majesty nor I can charge ourselves with such a mission."

"She has about her a certain Laporte."

"Who, I believe, is the mainspring of all this, I confess," said the cardinal.

"You think, then, as I do, that she deceives me?" said the king.

"I tell you the queen loves that infamous Buckingham. Why did you not cause him to be arrested while he was in Paris?"

"Arrest the duke! Arrest the prime minister of King Charles I! Think of it, sire! What a scandal!"

"But all the time he was in Paris you, of course, did not lose sight of him?"

"No, sire."

"Where did he lodge?"

"Rue de la Harpe, No. 75."

"Where is that?"

"By the side of the Luxembourg."

"And you are certain that the queen and he did not see each other?"

"I believe the queen to have too high a sense of her duties, sire."

"But they have corresponded. It is to him that the queen has been writing all day. M. le Duc, I must have those letters."

"There is but one means."

"What is that?"

"That would be to charge M. de Seguier, the keeper of the seals, with this mission. The matter enters completely into the duties of his post."

"Let him be sent for instantly."

"Your majesty's orders shall be executed, but the queen will perhaps refuse to obey."

"What, my orders?"

"Yes, if she is ignorant that these orders come from the king."

"Well, that she may have no doubt on that head I will go and inform her myself. Send for monsieur the keeper of the seals. I will go to the queen."

And Louis XIII., opening the door of communication, passed into the corridor which led to the apartments of Anne of Austria.

The queen was in the midst of sad thoughts when the king entered. Like those unfortunate persons endowed with a fatal gift, she brought misfortune upon everything she touched; her friendship was a fatal sign which called down persecution. Mme. Chevreuse and Mme. Vernet were exiled, and Laporte did not conceal from his mistress that he expected to be arrested every instant.

"Madame," said the king, "you are about to receive a visit from the chancellor, who will communicate certain matters to you, with which I have charged him."

"But why this visit, sire? What can M. the Chancellor have to say to me that your majesty could not say yourself?"

The king turned upon his heel without reply, and almost at the same instant the captain of the guards, M. de Guitant, announced the visit of M. the Chancellor.

When the chancellor appeared the king had already gone out by another door.

The chancellor was a pleasant man. It was Des Roches le Masle, canon of Notre Dame, and who had formerly been valet de chambre to the cardinal, who introduced him to his eminence as a perfectly devout man. The cardinal trusted him and found his advantage in it.

The queen was still standing when he entered, but scarcely had she perceived him than she reseated herself and, with an air of supreme hauteur, said:

"What do you desire, monsieur, and with what object do you present yourself here?"

"To make, madame, in the name of the king, and without prejudice to the respect which I have the honor to owe to your majesty, a close perquisition into all your papers. Be kind enough to pardon me, madame, but in this circumstance I am but the instrument which the king employs."

"Examine, then, monsieur. I am a criminal, as it appears. Estafania, give the keys of my tables and my secretaires."

For form's sake the chancellor paid a visit to the pieces of furniture named, but he well knew that it was not in a piece of furniture that the queen would place the important letter she had written in the course of the day.

When the chancellor had opened and shut twenty times the drawers of the secretaires it became necessary, whatever hesitation he might experience, it became necessary, I say, to come to the conclusion of the affair—that is to say, to search the queen herself. The chancellor advanced, therefore, toward Anne of Austria and with a very perplexed and embarrassed air:

"And now," said he, "it remains for me to make the principal perquisition."

"What is that?" asked the queen, who did not understand, or, rather, was not willing to understand.

"His majesty is certain that a letter has been written by you in the course of the day. He knows that it has not been sent to its address. This letter must be somewhere."

"Would you dare to lift your hand to your queen?" said Anne of Austria, drawing herself up to her full height and fixing her eyes upon the chancellor with an expression almost threatening. "The letter is here," and the queen laid her beautiful hand on her bosom. "I will give it to none but the king, monsieur."

"If the king had desired that the letter should be given to him, madame, he would have demanded it of you himself, and if you do not give it up"—

"Well?"

"He has, then, charged me to take it from you. Be kind enough, then, madame, to act more compliantly."

"This conduct is infamously violent!"

"The king commands it, madame. Excuse me."

"I will not suffer it! No, no, I would rather die!"

The chancellor made a profound reverence. Then, with the intention quite patent of not drawing back a foot from the accomplishment of his commission, he approached Anne of Austria, from whose eyes at the same instant sprang tears of rage. She made one step backward, became so pale that it might be said she was dying, and, leaning with her left hand to keep herself from falling upon a table behind her, she with her right hand drew the paper from her bosom and held it out to the keeper of the seals.

"There, monsieur, there is that letter," cried the queen, with a broken and trembling voice, "take it and deliver me from your odious presence."

The door was scarcely closed upon him when the queen sank, half fainting, into the arms of her women.

The chancellor carried the letter to the king without having read a single word of it. The king took it with a trembling hand, looked for the address, which was wanting, became very pale, opened it slowly, then, seeing by the first words that it was addressed to the king of Spain, he read it rapidly.

It was nothing but a plan of an attack against the cardinal. The queen pressed her brother and the emperor of Austria to appear to be wounded, as they really were, by the policy of Richelieu, the eternal object of which was the abasement of the house of Austria; to declare war against France, and, as a condition of peace, to insist upon the dismissal of the cardinal.

The king, quite delighted, went straight to the cardinal.

"There, duke," said he, "you were right and I was wrong. The whole intrigue is political, and there is not the least question of love in this said letter. But, on the other hand, there is abundant question of you."

The cardinal took the letter and read it with the greatest attention.

"Well, your majesty," said he, "you see how far my enemies go. They threaten you with two wars if you do not dismiss me. In your place, in truth, sire, I should yield to such powerful instances, and, on my part, it would be a real happiness to withdraw from public affairs. My health is sinking under these annoying struggles, and these never ending labors. You would be the happier for it at home, sire, and I do not doubt you would be the greater for it abroad."

"M. le Duc," said the king, "I understand you. Be satisfied. All who are named in that letter shall be punished as they deserve, and the queen herself shall not be forgotten."

"What do you say, sire? Heaven forbid that the queen should suffer the least inconvenience or uneasiness on my account. She has always believed me, sire, to be her enemy, although your majesty can bear witness that I have always taken her part warmly, even against you."

"That is true, M. le Cardinal," said the king, "and you were right, as you always are, but the queen not the less deserves all my anger."

"The queen is my enemy, but is not yours, sire. On the contrary, she is a devoted, submissive and irreproachable wife. Allow me, then, sire, to intercede for her with your majesty."

"Let her humble herself, then, and come to me first."

"On the contrary, sire, set the example."

"What! I make advances first?" said the king. "Never!"

"Sire, I entreat you to do so."

"Besides, in what manner can I make advances first?"

"Give a ball. You know how much the queen loves dancing. I will answer for it her resentment will not hold out against such an attention."

"M. le Cardinal, you know that I do not like mundane pleasures."

"The queen will only be the more grateful to you, as she knows your antipathy for that amusement. Besides, it will be an opportunity for her to wear those beautiful diamonds which you gave her recently on her birthday and with which she has since had no occasion to adorn herself."

Then the cardinal, hearing the clock strike 11, bowed low, demanding permission of the king to retire and supplicating him to come to a good understanding with the queen.

Anne of Austria, who in consequence of the seizure of her letter, expected reproaches, was much astonished the next day to see the king make some attempts at reconciliation with her. Her first movement was repulsive. Overpersuaded by the advice of her women, she at last had the appearance of beginning to forget. The king took advantage of this favorable moment to tell her that he had the intention of shortly giving a fete.

A fete was so rare a thing for poor Anne of Austria that at this announcement, as the cardinal had predicted, the last trace of her resentment disappeared, if not from her heart, at least from her countenance. She asked upon what day this fete would take place, but the king replied that he must consult the cardinal upon that head.

In fact, every day the king asked the cardinal when this fete should take place, and every day the cardinal, under some pretense or other, deferred fixing it. Ten days passed away thus.

On the eighth day after the scene we have decribed, the cardinal received a letter with the London stamp, which only contaid these lines:

"I have them, but I am unable to leave London for want of money; send me 500 pistoles, and four or five days after I have received them I shall be in Paris."

On the same day that the cardinal received this letter, the king put his customary question to him.

Richelieu counted on his fingers and said to himself:

"She will arrive, she says, four or five days after having received the money. It will require four or five days for the transmission of the money, four or five days for her to return, that makes ten days. Now, allowing for contrary winds, accidents and a woman's weakness, we cannot make it altogether less than twelve days."

"Well, M. le Duc," said the king, "have you made your calculations?"

"Yes, sire, today is the 20th of September; the aldermen of the city give a fete on the 3d of October. That will fall in wonderfully well. You will not appear to have gone out of your way to please the queen."

Then the cardinal added:

"Apropos, sire, do not forget to tell her majesty the evening before the fete that you should like to see how her diamond studs become her."

CHAPTER XIII.

Bonacieux at Home.

IT was the second time the cardinal had mentioned these diamond studs to the king. Louis XIII. was struck with these repetitions and began to fancy that this recommendation concealed some mystery. He hoped in a conversation with Anne of Austria to obtain some information from that conversation and afterward to come upon his eminence with some secret which the cardinal either knew or did not know, but which in either case would raise him infinitely in the eyes of his minister.

He went, then, to the queen and, according to custom, accosted her with fresh menaces against those who surrounded her.

"But," cried Anne of Austria, tired of these vague attacks, "but, sire, you do not tell me all that you have in your heart. What have I done, then? Let me know what crime I have committed. It is impossible that your majesty can make all this to do about a letter written to my brother!"

The king, attacked in a manner so direct, did not know what to answer, and he thought that this was the moment for expressing the desire which he was not to have made until the evening before the fete.

"Madame," said he, with dignity, "there will shortly be a ball at the Hotel de Ville. I wish that, to do honor to our worthy aldermen, you should appear at it in ceremonial costume and particularly ornamented with the diamond studs which I gave you on your birthday. That is my answer."

The answer was terrible. Anne of Austria believed that Louis XIII. knew all and that the cardinal had persuaded him to employ this long dissimulation of seven or eight days, which, likewise, was characteristic. She became excessively pale and was unable to reply by a single syllable.

"You hear, madame," said the king, who enjoyed this embarrassment to its full extent, but without guessing the cause, "you hear, madame. You will appear at this ball and with those studs?"

"Yes."

The queen's paleness, if possible, increased. The king perceived it and enjoyed it with his cold cruelty.

"Then that is agreed," said he.

"But on what day will this ball take place?" asked Anne of Austria.

Louis XIII. felt instinctively that he ought not to reply to this question.

"Oh, very shortly, madame," said he, "but I do not precisely recollect the date of the day. I will ask the cardinal. Then you will appear?"

"Yes, sire."

"Very well," said the king, retiring; "I depend upon you."

The queen made a courtesy, less from etiquette than because her knees were sinking under her.

"I am lost," murmured the queen; "lost, for the cardinal knows all, and it is he who urges on the king, who as yet knows nothing, but will soon know everything. I am lost."

She knelt upon a cushion and prayed, with her head buried between her palpitating arms. In fact, her position was terrible. She had not a soul in the world in whom she could confide with safety.

"Can I be of no service to your majesty?" said all at once a voice full of sweetness and pity.

The queen turned sharply round, for there could be no deception in the expression of that voice. It was a friend who spoke thus. It was the pretty Mme. Bonacieux. She had been engaged in arranging the dresses and linen in a closet when the king entered. She could not get out and had heard all.

The queen uttered a piercing cry at finding herself surprised, for in her trouble she did not at first recognize the young woman who had been given to her by Laporte.

"Oh, fear nothing, madame!" said the young woman, clasping her hands and weeping herself at the queen's sorrows. "I am your majesty's, body and soul, and, however far I may be from you, however inferior may be my position, I believe I have discovered a means of extricating your majesty from your trouble."

"Look me in the face!" cried the queen. "I am betrayed on all sides! Can I trust in you?"

"Oh, madame," cried the young woman, falling on her knees, "upon my soul, I am ready to die for your majesty! There are traitors here, but by the holy name of the Virgin I swear that none is more devoted to your majesty than I am. Those studs which the king speaks of, you gave them to the Duke of Buckingham, did you not? Those studs were in a little rosewood box which he held under his arm? Am I deceived? Is it not so, madame? We must have them back again."

"Yes, without doubt it must be so!" cried the queen. "But how am I to act? How can it be effected?"

CAMPAIGN NOTES

Lindsay Voters

There will be approximately 4,500 people in Lindsay entitled to mark a ballot in Lindsay, on December 6. The list will contain possibly a few hundred names more, but these are cut down because of duplications, etc. It is thought that this number will be about equally split between male and female voters.

Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressives, announced in his speech at Prescott, "if we are returned to power one of the first things to be done will be to open negotiations with the United States with a view to secure reciprocity in natural products." Mr. Crerar reviewed the tariff program of the National Liberal and Conservative party and charged that it was "full of inconsistencies." It was claimed, he went on, that the purpose of the Government's tariff policy was to "develop to the fullest extent our natural resources." Mr. Crerar asked. "Are they not agriculture, the mines and forests? The Government proposes to develop these natural resources how? How? By taxing to the limit everything required in the development of these resources." It was an inconsistent policy, but the Prime Minister had made the position of his Government clear. He had said that the Government stood for protection. Last session a tariff revision was promised, but, in effect, by reason of regulations and interpretations, the tariff was increased.- "The budget brought down last session," Mr. Crerar asserted, "was the most protectionist brought down in twenty years." Mr. Crerar spoke at Smith's Falls in the afternoon. There he argued that agriculture, being the basic industry of Canada unless agreulture were prosperous, the remainder of the country could not be prosperous. Farmers, Mr. Crerar said, were now receiving only about 75 cents net bushel for their wheat. Live stock was practically unsaleable, or at any rate saleable only at very low prices. "I want to put this straight to the business man," he went on. "I want to ask him do you think you can prosper under such conditions?" At Smiths Falls R. M. Anderson, progressive candidate for Lanark, also spoke.

Efficient Housekeeping

By Laura A. Kirkman

DOES YOUR FAMILY LIKE CARAMEL FLAVORING?

A good many housekeepers seldom make cakes and puddings with a caramel flavor. Often this is not because their families don't like the flavor—but because "it's so much trouble" to caramelize the sugar!

The housekeeper who is a "good manager," however, does not even consider going to the nuisance of caramelizing her sugar each time she starts to bake a caramel cake: instead she makes a large quantity of caramel sirup and keeps this in a bottle ready for instant use. This is done in the following way:

Put granulated sugar into a saucepan or a frying pan over the fire and stir constantly until the sugar has melted and becomes a deep brown. Then add an equal amount of boiling water. This makes a thick sirup. Boil it up for a minute or two, then pour it into fruit jars or old catsup bottles. If it should become sugary, add a little water to it when reheating in amounts needed. Try this sirup in one of the following recipes:

Caramel-Fudge Cake: Mix together 1½ cups of cold, thick caramel sirup and 1-3 cup of butter; add 2 well-beaten eggs and 1 cup of sweet milk or water. Stir in 3 cups of flour which have been sifted with 2 teaspoons of baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt. Bake in 2 layers in a hot oven for about 30 minutes and fill with the following:

Fudge Filling: Cook 1 cup of thick caramel sirup, ½ cup of milk, a pinch of salt and ¼ cup of grated unsweetened chocolate together and when it forms a soft ball in cold water add 2 tablespoons of butter. Remove from range and beat vigorously until it begins to cream, then spread it on the layers at once.

Of course a caramel filling or frosting may be put on any white cake recipe, whether the cake is baked in loaf form or in layers. The following recipes will be found good:

Caramel Frosting: Mix together 1½ cups of brown sugar, 3-4 cup of thin cream and ½ teaspoon of butter; boil these ingredients together in a granite saucepan until a ball can be formed when a little of the sirup is dropped into cold water. (It takes about 40 minutes for the boiling). Then remove from stove and beat until of the right consistency to spread.

Caramel Cream Filling made with Caramel Sirup: Scald 2 cups of sweet milk and add to it ½ cup of caramel sirup made as described in the first part of this article. Then stir in 2 tablespoons of cornstarch which have been dissolved in a very little cold milk and add 1 tablespoon of butter when the cornstarch is cooked, add 1 beaten egg and continue to stir over the fire until the mixture is thick and smooth. Cool and spread between layers and on top of cake. If desired tablespoons of cocoa may be added to this recipe—which gives it a different flavor when variety is wanted.

Inexpensive Cream Filling: Cook together ½ cup of thick cold caramel sirup, 1 cup of hot water and a pinch of salt. When this mixture is boiling thicken it with 2 tablespoons of corn starch mixed smooth in a little cold water. Add 1 tablespoon of butter and a tiny grating of nutmeg. Spread between layers before it becomes too cool to spread smoothly.

"WHAT SHALL I SERVE WITH THE DIFFERENT MEATS."

I am constantly receiving letters from readers asking me to tell them, in a personal reply, what vegetables, sauces and relishes they shall serve with different meats at company dinners. I believe there are many women who, although never having written me to ask this question, would nevertheless be interested in reading my reply to it—so I am publishing the following chart:

With Roast Beefs. Serve any of the following—White potatoes, sweet potatoes, macaroni, hominy-horseradish croquettes, cauliflower, spinach, corn, onions, brussels sprouts, peas, string beans, lima beans, egg plant, squash, tomatoes, Yorkshire pudding, horseraddish sauce, mushroom sauce or sauted bananas.

With Beef Steak: Serve any of the above mentioned vegetables. Also serve bearnaise sauce, mushroom sauce or Maitre d' hotel butter with chopped red and green pepper added to it.

Of Interest to Women

Some fashionable women like the natural colored pongee collar and cuffs with their tailored suits, but with the novel and original embroideries of real raffa, which comes in every color. These are considered more "elegant" than those of organdie.

Many women, says Vogue, have adopted the pretty fashion of wearing in the evening over their hair a veil of metal cloth or of lace. It is drawn across the forehead and falls at the sides framing the face.

To wear in the morning with the gingham dress, a real novelty that will meet with approval from the younger set is the large Buster Brown collar of very stiff linen. A ribbon of black moire, or some color contrasting with that of the dress, passes under the collar, ties in a coquettish little bow in front and falls in long ends, loosely.

ASSENT BY DOCTOR BEFORE MARRIAGE

London, Ont., Nov. 8.—Medical examination of persons desiring to marry met with the approval of many of the delegates to the convention of Women's Institute here, but objection was taken to the form in which a resolution on the subject was brought in. It was finally decided to ask the society which introduced the resolution to state whether it was planned to have a private medical practitioner make the examination or have a public officer of health make it. The delegates discussed at length a proposal to have the age at which young people may marry fixed at 19 years where such consent of the parents is secured, and 21 years where such consent is not forthcoming. The motion was sent back for further consideration. A motion to have women appointed as magistrates for juvenile courts was not supported.

Protection of Plants in Winter

A little protection will often bring plants safely through the winter, when, if they are left exposed, they may either be killed outright or badly injured and, in the case of fruit, the crop may be much reduced. Plants are also protected from mice in winter. The plants usually protected from the weather are strawberries, raspberries, grapes and roses.

It has been found by experience that, although strawberries will often go safely through the winter without being mulched, there are winters when it pays well to have the plants protected by a light mulch as in such winters if the mulch is not there the plants will be killed. In mulching strawberries the plan is to wait until hard frost or just before winter sets in, and then spread a light covering of loose straw over the plants. All that is necessary in most places is enough to prevent sudden thawing and freezing, or just enough to cover the plants. A thick mulch may do more harm than good. The cleaner the straw the less work there will be in eradicating weeds next summer. Marsh hay, where it can be obtained, is good as it is comparatively free of weed seeds, and it will not lie too compactly over the plants.

Where raspberries are injured in the winter, they will be much protected and will, taking one year with another, come through much better if the canes are bent over just before winter sets in and the tips held down with soil. The snow will cover them sooner than if they are not bent down. Where there is very little snow and the winters are very cold it has been found desirable entirely to cover the canes with soil.

Except in districts where the grape can be grown commercially it is necessary to protect the vines to ensure a crop. A few days before the ground is expected to freeze up, the vines, having been previously pruned, are bent down and covered with soil, which is left on until the following May as it is spring frosts which may cause the loss of the crop.

Roses must be protected in most places in Canada to help ensure their coming through the winter alive, and protection is not always successful. The most reliable method of protection is to cover the plant with soil. Where this is not easy or possible, the base of the plant can be mounded up with soil to a height of twelve inches or more, and the top then bent over and held down with soil. Then if boughs or leaves are thrown over the top to help collect the snow and give greater protection it is desirable. In the case of climbing roses, a good plan is to cover them with a box filled with dry leaves, making the top water tight so the leaves will keep dry.

Each winter many trees are injured beyond recovery in Canada by mice. This can be prevented by wrapping the trunks of the trees with building paper just before winter sets in, having the paper come close to the ground and putting a little earth about the lower end of the paper so they will not get at the tree from below. Mice will not usually eat through the paper and, as in most cases they are close to the ground, the paper need not be more than eighteen inches to two feet high. The paper should be tied after wrapping so that it will not come off.

SAYS CENTRAL EUROPE MARKET FOR CANADA

Wonderful Opening for Our Wheat if Canadian Laws Were Revised.

New York, November 9.—Canadian farmers have a wonderful market for their wheat in central Europe, provided Canadian laws were such that the central European powers could market their goods in Canada, Fred H. Screaton, vice-president of Societe Lord and Taylor, Incorporated, Paris, a former resident of London, Ontario, said on arrival here on the steamer Scythia.

Austria and Czecho-Slovakia are ready for business he said. Labor disturbances have entirely disappeared, labor wants to work and manufacturers want to start their factories on full time. Lack of raw materials is hampering activity, leather, wool and steel being especially needed. Arrangements of long term credits, he said, would solve the industrial problems of Europe and in his opinion it would be a safe investment. Austria is making provision to protect such investments.

A recent visit to industrial fairs in both Germany and Austria indicated, he said, a rapid return to normal business conditions. The shortage of raw material, however, is noticeable in all the countries as orders are taken only in limited quantities.

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlysle H. Holcomb

HE SNIFFED AND SNIFFED AND THEN HE CAME OUT

"Come down, Willy Chuck, come down here," called Tinker Bob, holding his face close to the hole at the bottom of the tree. "I want to see you about something that is very important. Will you come down at once?"

Tinker waited and listened. Soon he heard a scratching sound which came from within and he knew that Willie was there. The scratching sounded closer and closer, and the King understood that it meant Mr. Chuck was coming down the tree on the inside and would soon be out. He had only to wait a moment for Mr. Chuck's nose was seen at the entrance of the hole. He sniffed and sniffed before he ventured forth. Mr. Chuck was only on the lookout for he knew that the Hunter was anxious to discover him for he did like Woodchuck for supper. After he sniffed for the third time he decided that it was safe for him to venture out. When he saw the King he was not afraid any more. He wasn't sure that it had been Tinker Bob who called to him while he was in the tree, but now he was satisfied.

"O King, I wanted to be sure it was you before I came out of my house. You remember what the Hunter tried to do to me when he got his gun, and I've been a little frightened ever since whenever I hear the sound of a voice." Mr. Chuck shook hands with the King for he loved him very much and was always glad to see him in the forest.

"You haven't been in the forest long have you, Mr. Chuck? I went to look first in the meadow but I didn't find you there." Tinker Bob sat down on the ground to have a little talk with his old friend.

Mr. Chuck was coming down the tree on the inside.

"No, I haven't been in the forest a great while," said Willie "I came here because I thought it was about time for Jack Frost to come. You know, O King, I always come into the forest at the time. I wanted to be sure that my children had a place to spend the children are very bashful and they hang about home a great deal. In fact it is difficult to get them to go away till after the first Winter. So I have had to come into the forest early for their sakes."

"You are a kind fellow all right. Now I want to tell you of the frolic we are going to have before Jack Frost comes again. You and all of your children must be there. It will be in front of the Palace in the middle of the forest. Mr. Frog will have his orchestra there and play the last Frog Waltz for us before he is frozen up for the Winter. You will meet all of your friends for the last time before they go away to prepare for their Winter home."

"O King, I will be there," but just at this time Willy Chuck was interrupted by a sound that frightened him and away he went into the hollow tree.

TINKER THOUGHT BILLIE HAS BEEN FIGHTING

Willie Chuck went into his house in a great hurry for the noise he heard was not the kind he was used to hearing and it sounded to him as though someone was coming to catch him. Of course Tinker Bob was not afraid for he was King of the Forest. It would be a strange thing to have the King of the Forest afraid of the creatures of the woods. If he was he would be on the jump all the time for there was some fellow of great woodland who was making a strange noise all the time.

Tinker Bob looked about to discover the cause of Willie Chuck's sudden departure. There was nothing to be seen, and now there was nothing to be heard, but Willie didn't come back. He knew that he was too fat to run much so the best place for him, when he was not sure, was in his own house.

A moment or two passed and the King noticed something on a log not a great way off. It was long and very close to the log. Its color was brown and it moved carefully. The moment Tinker Bob saw the creature he knew who it was and why Willie Chuck had run into his house.

"Come over here, Billie," he said. "You don't need to be afraid, there is no one here who will hurt you." Who do you suppose it was? Well, it was one of the dwellers who had not been seen all Summer. In fact he is a hard fellow to find in the Winter but in Summer he is seldom seen. It was Billie Mink.

He heard the King and looked at him a moment before he moved. A very careful fellow is Mr. Mink for he takes no chances on being caught. When he had decided it was really the King of the Forest who called to him he crept carefully over to where Tinker Bob was resting on the root of the tree in which Mr. Chuck lived.

"Where have you been all Summer?" asked the King.

"I have been in the forest doing as usual," answered Billie.

"But I haven't seen a thing of you all Summer."

"In the Summertime I don't mingle with the folks of the forest very much. You know, O King, I don't care much about the forest folks anyway. I would rather live all alone, that is if I could find plenty of mice and shrews to eat."

"What makes your fur look so funny, Mr. Mink?"

"What makes your fur look so funny, Mr. Mink?" asked Tinker as he put his hand on Billie's back. 'It looks to me as though you had been in a fight and someone scratched some of your fur off."

"No, no, O King, I haven't been fighting. I'm just shedding my fur getting ready to put a new coat on for the Winter." That's why the Hunter doesn't care about Billie Mink in the Summertime. His fur is only good in the cold weather. Then Billy heard a scratching sound inside the tree.

Adventures of Elmer and Johnny With the Cafe Life.

"Yes said Johnny, in the restaurant, "honesty's the best policy—when there's anybody looking. But as for me, I ain't too scrupulous."

"I'd rather sell my soul for a million dollars than a dime," said Elmer, the philosopher. "The principle's the same."

Then, having finished eating, they arose and departed, Elmer placed his check and a dollar before the cashier, who sounded a chord on the cash register and gave him back a bunch of change. Elmer looked at the cash register. Then he looked at the change. Then he looked at Johnny.

"I know you got more than your share," sang Johnny, carelessly. Then he winked at Elmer and pushed him toward the door. Elmer resisted and made as if to explain to the cashier.

"Don't be a fool," hissed Johnny into Elmer's ear. "Don't be so darned honest with these profiteers. Get out."

"But—" butted Elmer.

"Get out," cried Johnny, and he pushed Elmer out into the night.

"Don't ever give these birds back anything they overchange you," argued Johnny, on the outside.

Elmer advanced on Johnny with a menacing gesture.

"Who said they overchanged me?" he demanded shoutingly. "They shortchanged me, that's what they did. And you wouldn't let me put up an argument!"

The Independent Order of Oddfellows held an "At Home" at their rooms on Front street on Wednesday evening. Dancing and cards were enjoyed until 1.30 in the morning. The music for the evening dancing was provided by Young's orchestra. Dancing and cards were engaged in till midnight when a dainty lunch was served. Although the weather was anything but pleasant and in spite of counter attractions a good crowd of young people and old were in attendance and thoroughly enjoyed the cards and dancing.

As a result Neulove died and it was alleged that Casey was responsible for his death. Mr. Belyea administrator of deceased estate brought an action against Casey for damages alleging that Newlove died as the result of injuries inflicted when hit by Casey's car. This case was tried at Cobourg on Wednesday before the Hon. Justice Latchford resulting in the action being dismissed. Mr. T. J. GOVERNMENT REPORT ON FARM CONDITIONS

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The root crops are practically all in, and are giving fair satisfaction with the exception of turnips, which are affected with rot in many parts of the Province.

Potatoes are bringing from $1.75 to $2.00 a bag. Huron says that while some farmers have good yields others did not get their seed.

Halton reports single sales at from $5 to $6 a barrel for No. 1 to $4 for No. 2.

Hay is selling around $20 a ton in Western Ontario, and from $30 to $35 a ton in some of the eastern and other districts.

Grain is moving rather slowly outward, but some western oats are being brought in at 65c. a bushel.

Prescott and Russell says: "Farmers are actively organizing themselves to have their clover hulled in co-operation. We have so far, from 6 to 700 acres of clover which will be threshed by one outfit at $3 per 10 lbs. of clean seeds."

Norfolk observes that a good deal of nursery stock is being purchased for spring planting, but farmers think prices are too high.

While some are through with their fall ploughing, fully 20 per cent. of the work yet remains to be done. The land is excellent in condition for plowing.

Many farmers in Lennox and Addington have plowed and disced their corn fields for the purpose of destroying the ear worm.

Fall wheat has gone ahead so rapidly in some parts of Manitoulin that several farmers have been pasturing the fields in order to keep the growth in check.

Farm help has been more plentiful this season than for many seasons, and wages for winter work are lower than for years.

Manitoulin says that five carloads of cattle and three of sheep were shipped from the Island recently, most of them in good condition.

Halton is of opinion that the marketing of live stock is fairly heavy in spite of the decline in prices.

Elgin says that some pure-bred cattle are selling at but little above beef prices.

At a recent sale of good grade Holstein cows in Waterloo county, prices ranged at from $75 to $100.

Glengarry states that farmers are selling all surplus live stock and the poorer milking cows, and that fair milkers are going at $35.

Peterboro' reports that a carload of mixed cattle sold for from $3.35 to $5.50 a cwt. during the past week, and adds: "The livestock situation is very bad, as farmers are losing money on practically all the cattle they ship out. At auction sales which have been held things are going very cheap. At one sale good calves sold for $5 a piece. Mill feeds such as bran and shorts, however, are away down in price, about pre-war levels, and this may lead some farmers to change to the dairy business. There is quite a scarcity of water in the wells and a great deal more rain is required to help out the farmer for the winter to water his stock."

South Simcoe says: "A number of car loads of cattle have been shipped from the county during the past week, the bulk of these are the light stocker class, along with a few cows of the cutter variety. The hog shipment has been an average one. The bulk of the good lambs have been shipped. There has been a heavy run of poultry on the various local markets toward the end of the week, previous to Thanksgiving. The supply of dressed poultry was much heavier than the local demand resulting in sales at a much lower figure than could have been obtained had shipments been made to the larger towns. Dressed geese made a ready sale at 18c.

Bruce reports that pure-bred cattle sold at a sale at Paisley on Nov. 1st in many cases for beef prices. The lowest price of these animals was $50 while the highest priced one sold for $155. Several of these animals were of top Scotch breeding.

REPORT ON DAIRY CATTLE RECORDS

Great Increase in the Animals Admitted to the Record of Performance

At the annual meetings of the Ayrshire and Holstein-Falesian Breeders' Association in 1920 it was decided to add to the Record of Performance a 305-day record with a four hundred day calving limit and to cut out the calving requirement in the 365-day record. This arrangement came into effect on April 1, 1920, and this classification therefore appears in the thirteenth report of the Record of Performance for Pure Bred Dairy Cattle, covering the year from that date to March 31, 1921, recently issued by the Live Stock branch at Ottawa. From this report it appears that, in all, 329 Ayrshires were entered, of which 127 were in the mature class, 3 being in the 305-day division, 35 in the 4-year-old class, 3 being in the 305-day division, 70 in the 3-year-old class, three in the 305-day division, and 97 in the two-year-old class. The 305-day division in Ayrshires is termed the Honor Roll. The number of Holsteins entered was 385, of which 130 were in the mature class, including 3 in the 305-day division, 57 in the 4-year-old class, 59 in the 3-year-old class, one being in the 305-day division and 139 in the 2-year-old class with two in the 305-day division. The Jerseys entered numbered 130, namely, 28 mature, 21 four-year-olds, 30 three-year-olds and 57 two-year-olds. The Shorthorns entered totalled 102, namely, 40 mature, 12 four-year-olds, 20 three-year-olds, and 30 two-year-olds. Of French-Canadians cattle 8 mature, 3 three-year-olds and one two-year-old were recorded. Of Guernseys, 4 mature, one four-year-old and 6 two year-olds proved eligible. Every breed shows an increase in the total number of entries over the previous year, Ayrshires of 150, Holsteins of 180, Jerseys of 84 and Shorthorns of 59. Perhaps the best indication of the growth of the Record of Performance system for pure-bred dairy cattle is to be found in the fact that 336 breeders are represented in the thirteenth report against 247 in the twelfth.

STREET MARKETS OPENED

Moscow, Nov. 10.—In cities the size of Petrograd and Moscow scores of street markets have lately been opened. Food is the drawing card. People who haven't money to buy white bread go to the markets to look at the large tempting loaves, and they generally take something with them to sell or barter. They wander from market to market. It is the best way to meet one's friends and hear the news.

The wide streets and boulevards of Russian cities, and the great circles and squares afford ample space for markets which, however, cannot be confined to the market spaces of imperial days because of the lack of shops and the universal necessity for barter and sale.

Transporation and Yonr Safety

CAR SHORTAGES have already developed at many of the coal mines of the United States. Without cars to load, the mines cannot produce; without production of coal, the welfare of the public cannot be conserved.

So far the shortages have not been serious in proportions, but with cold weather arriving, it can be expected that they will increase and may materially hinder the movement of coal.

Safety to your family can be secured by immediately stocking your coal. Coal prices will not decrease, and they may advance, if a transportation emergency arises.

MANAGER PLAN TO BE VOTED ON

City Council Requested by Chamber of Commerce to Reconsider Matter.

SCHEME IS ENDORSED

Chamber of Commerce Desires Electors to Again Express Opinion.

City Manager plan of Municipal Government, the selection of delegates to the annual meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade to be held at Brantford next week were the principal matters considered at an open meeting of members of the Chamber of Commerce held last evening in the Council Chamber. As a result of the discussion on city managership, a motion prevailed to ask the Council to again submit to the electors at the municipal election, the proposition.

Mr. J. Bone, President, occupied the chair and amongst those in attendance were the following:

F. B. Smith, C. M. Reid, M. Robertson, F. Thompson, F. C. Wallbridge, O. H. Scott, R. Templeton, J. Cook, Rev. D. C. Ramsay, J. O. Herity, W. Donohue, J. A. McFee, I. L. Moore, H. W. Ackerman, W. B. Deacon, B. F. Jennings, H. Bryant, H. F. Ketcheson, F. S. Anderson, H. J. Clarke, S. Parker, J. S. McKeown, R. J. Graham, A. McGie, T. Blackburn, J. A. Cokers, A. Parry, A. Buchanan.

President's Remarks

Mr. J. Bone stated that his idea was to have a monthly meeting of the members of the Chamber of Commerce so that the members can be cognizant of what the directors are doing. In speaking of new industries, the speaker stated that some places were getting industries but were paying well for the same.

If we are to get industries we should have at least $5,000 for the use of the Industrial Commissioner, this being in excess of his salary. The Council should provide this as all industries are for the city's benefit.

Selection of Delegates

Mr. J. Elliott asked that Belleville be well represented at the annual meeting at Brantford, of the Associated Boards of Trade. The people of Brantford are making great preparation for the gathering, which should

GERMANY ALSO SHORT OF HOUSES

Russian Refugees Add to Congestion — Building Interrupted by War.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—More than 1,000,000 dwellings, apartments, or rooms are needed in Germany to relieve the housing shortage which has been steadily increasing for the last six months, especially in the eastern cities which are crowded with Russian refugees, says an official statement of the housing office.

In Prussia alone, 585,000 rooms are in demand, an increase of 50,000 in three months and reports from every large city in the republic declare the housing situation is growing serious with the advance of the winter. The need in 62 of teh larger cities is described as urgent.

The Government had indicated its intention of abandoning the "rationing" of rooms within a short time, but the fact that building operations, abandoned during the war, have not caught up with the demands has necessitated a continuance of control of dwelling space. Families as well as individuals are permitted to occupy only such rooms as are absolutely essential.

This regulation has forced many families with large houses to take in lodgers, fix the charges and make such "living" regulations as are deemed essential. The space, however, must be occupied, and so it has come about that home-owners have invited relatives, friends, or acquaintances to share their houses, many being averse to give accommodations to strangers.

On the other hand a number of house owners, formerly wealthy, have found the increasing cost of living so burdensome that they are making an active effort to secure foreign tenants, particularly Americans, English, Hollanders and Scandinavians who are able to pay well.

State and city governments and organizations are co-operating to solve the problem by a general and energetic construction program which would comprehend the erection of nearly 1,000,000 homes.

HUNTER MEETS DEATH NEAR NORTH BAY

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 10.—A young American hunter who came from Pittsburg, but whose name is unknown here, was drowned in Wolf Lake, about 30 miles east of this place on the C.N.R., when his canoe upset. Reports received here state the man was firing at a deer when his craft capsized.

His companion, named Beaver, who was on the shore, swam out to where the man went down, but could not reach him in time. The body has not been recovered.

BLUE SKY EMERGING

Lloyd George Refers to the Irish Situation and Powers' Meeting.

London, Nov. 10.—The Lord Mayor's banquet last evening assumed more than national importance when the Prime Minister, replying to the Mayor's toast to the Cabinet Ministers, followed the custom of such gatherings at the historic Guildhall, of speaking his mind regarding foreign affairs.

The tradition has been that the Prime Minister must touch only on foreign policies in his annual Guildhall speech, but in response to the Lord Mayor's suggestion that the guests anxiously awaited news of the Irish conference, Mr. Lloyd George quickly expanded the statement, made early in his speech that "the Washington conference is like a rainbow in the sky" and then passed to the question of Ireland.

He declared that there was a better prospect of Great Britain's proposals to Ireland being heeded today and of Ireland accepting the invitation to enter the British Commonwealth as an equal than for years, but that the conference was still in a critical stage. Beyond this he carefully refrained from divulging the results or the possibilities of the conference which are now being held with the Irish representatives.

In his opening remarks, the Prime Minister alluded to the economic troubles afflicting the world, such as followed the Napoleonic wars. He expressed the conviction that the force of the cyclone was already spent, and followed with a recital of numerous symptoms indicating that a revival was coming, particularly the fact that "in every land the slackness that seemed to overcome labor is passing away."

"The world is setting down to work," said Mr. Lloyd George," and it is work alone that will fill the depleted tills which will enable purchasers to come to the markets. The blue sky is beginning to emerge; the Washington conference, summoned by President Harding, is like a rainbow in the sky. For, without the assurance of peace, restoration of business is impossible.

"This conference comes none too soon. So far, the war has not had the effect which every sane man anticipated from it, in arresting the growth of armaments.

"Man is the most unteachable of all animals. If you inflict punishment upon any other animal he quickly learns a lesson. But, take the late war; it was the most terribly destructive in the history of the world. For that devastation competition in arms is largely responsible. That lesson was scourged deep into the flesh of the world, and yet no sooner are we out of it than the nations spend their substance in devising and amassing fresh engines for war; fresh subjects spring up everywhere to justify war. You might imagine that the one purpose and glory of national organization was human slaughter.

"Armaments to-day are thrice as expensive in men and material as they were before the Great War; at the present rate they will soon be a hundred times as destructive and terrible. In peace the burden was crushing; in war the effect will be too terrible to contemplate.

"Disarmament is the only road to safety for the human race.

JURY OUT AN HOUR

Accused's Car Ran Down and Killed Workman on City Street.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—A verdict of "Guilty of manslaughter as charged" was returned early last evening by the Assize Court jury in the case of Bruce I. Card, whose motor car, on July 25th last, struck a Street Railway worker, Joseph Burton, and who failed to stop to ascertain the extent of the man's injuries. Sentence will be imposed by Mr. Justice Masten tomorrow morning, until which time Card has been remanded in custody.

The verdict of the jury, which was reached in approximately one hour, between five and six o'clock, recorded the failure of Card to impress upon the Court a defence which absolutely disclaimed any knowledge of the fatality.

"The accused and his companion," His Lordship concluded, "were under pretty severe pressure in giving their evidence. Card was charged with a very severe crime; and for many years one accused of this crime was not allowed to give his testimony because the motive for perjury was considered to be nearly irresistible.

"You, as jurymen, stand as judges between the public and those who drive motor cars negligently. You are legal guardians of the highways. The public must be protected."

HECKLE CRERAR AT OSHAWA

Many Interruptions by Industrial Workers During the Meeting.

ALL IN GOOD HUMOR

Progressive Chief Gives Tit for Tat and Continues Without Trouble.

Oshawa, Nov. 11.—In the industrial town of Oshawa last night. Hon. T. A. Crerar had a sharp battle with hecklers. It was a mixed audience of farmers and industrial workers that he met and from the outset, it was evident that lively clashes lay ahead. As the interruptions came fast and faster, Mr. Crerar warmed to the conflict and joined in sharp issue with the hecklers. To a question, he would give a sharp reply, following it up with a question for the questioner. Now it came a case of the heckler heckled and, following on the heels of the heckler's query, would come the counter observation of some indignant farmer.

The trouble began when Mr. Crerar was on his tariff policy. He was claiming that the argument of a home market for the Canadian farmer would not stand examination, when a questioner wanted to know if it was not a fact that the cities of Montreal and Toronto together contained one-eighth of the population of Canada. If so, should progressives instead of passing "Class Legislation" for farmers not pay attention to dwellers in the city districts.

"My friend is using his imagination and not his reason," replied Mr. Crerar.

There was a volley of applause from Progressives and Mr. Crerar continued that he had not the exact figures of the population of Montreal and Toronto, but it was considable. "One of the effects of protection," he added "has been to build up big populations in cities."

"But what is the condition of agriculture? Does the prosperity of Canada not depend on the prosperity of agriculture?" Mr. Crerar queried in reply.

"I want to say further," Mr. Crerar was proceeding when the questioner again endeavored to interrupt. There were loud shouts of "down with him: down with him: Get out: Get out." "Is it not a fact that Montreal—" the heckler's voice could be heard above

General Dyer Throws Bomb Into Ranks of United Grain Growers.

CHIEF DENIES CHARGE

Agrarian Leader Issues Manifesto Disclaiming Any Special Advantage.

Winnipeg, Nov. 10.—General Hugh Dyer has been making daily addresses in Marquette where he is opposing Hon. T. A. Crerar. He has aroused much interest among the Grain Growers of which he is a pioneer member, by charging that Crerar personally, as head of the organization and chief factor in the United Grain Growers Limited, has been making his profits out of the business, while the average farmer member of the organization has not been benefited and that shipping and marketing facilities on the prairies are no better for grain men than they were before the Grain Growers organization entered the field.

Yesterday Mr. Crerar replied by a special manifesto to his Marquette constituents in which he denies any special profit or advantage for himself or the United Grain Growers Limited, that all members do not enjoy. The manifesto adds that, "the opponents of the Progressives cause are seeking to divert the minds of the people from the real issues by the grain commission probe, etc., etc."

Independent farmers, however, have before them copies of the Price-Waterhouse report on the profits of the Terminal Elevator Companies. This was books and properties of the terminals at Fort William. Here is the extract these experts as to the operations of these experts as to the operations of the United Grain Growers' Limited, who operate at the head of the lakes the elevators Mr. Crerar is interested in.

Report on Operations

"This company leased from the C.P.R. two terminal elevators for which they paid $68,290 per annum. They had no capital investment outside of the rent. During the five years they received from the sale of screenings $223,725, from the sale of overages $386,792. After paying rent they received a net profit for the five years operation of $695,794, or a total of $139,159 per annum. Taking the amount of the rental as a total capital investment, so far as the Grain Growers are concerned, in one year they made over 400 per cent, and another year they made 300 per cent. profit. They also dealt in futures contrary to the Canada Grain Act."

British Delegates Approach Disarmament Conference With Confidence.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Delegates of the British Empire approach the Armament and Far Eastern Conference "In spirit of confidence and high resolve," the acting-head of the delegation, Rt. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, declared today upon his arrival in Washington.

"We must not indeed either ask for or expect the impossible, although what is within our reach is worth our outmost efforts," said Mr. Balfour in a formal statement. "I cannot doubt that under the wise guidance of your President we shall be fortunate enough to attain it. I am convinced that all those who are going to meet here in common counsel, and the Governments whom they represent are resolved to the best of their ability to cooperate with him in making it a success.

Meighen Urges Tariff Issue Before Large Ottawa Audiences.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen paused long enough in the capital between the close of his Quebec tour and the beginning of his journey westward, to address two large meetings and to receive as enthusiastic welcome as he has encountered anywhere during his campaign. The Prime Minister was conveyed at the head of a long procession of automobiles from his own residence to the Agriculture Hall at Lansdowne Park. Into the auditorium 4,500 people had crowded and a thousand more unable to secure admittance attended an overflow meeting in another of the exhibition buildings. The Premier loooked a little tired after his continuous campaigning during the past month. He was, as he said, gratified and encouraged by the evident desire of the people of Ottawa to hear the issues of the present election discussed.

"I do hope," said Mr. Meighen, "that this meeting is indicative of the real inner feeling of the people of this city." Mr. Meighen had reason to be gratified. As he entered the hall preceded by kilted pipers, the whole audience rose and cheered wildly. He was accorded another ovation when he rose to speak.

The Prime Minister to-night was assisted by A. E. Fripp and Napoleon Champagne the Government candidates in Ottawa. On the platform were several candidates in other ridings, Sir Henry Drayton and Sir Edward Kemp, Hammett Hill, M.P.P., and Fred Hogg, who presided. Both Mr. Fripp and Mr. Champagne spoke briefly before the Prime Minister was introduced. The former discussed the fiscal issue and the genesis of the farmers' movement in Ontario; the latter talked of the affection suddenly displayed by the Government opponents in Ottawa for the civil service. "They are threatened with enlargement of the heart," exclaimed Mr. Champagne.

Mr. Meighen said it would have placed Canada in a most humiliating position to have acted as Mr. King suggested.

The Canadian National Lines now constituted a really splendid system, and the people should be proud of it. For the past two months the National Railways had shown a profit, and it was the Canadian Northern section that had made this possible. The operating surplus was not yet sufficient to meet the fixed charges, and would not be for some years to come. It was not possible to do that yet with a railroad built by the Liberal administration for "political purposes." The Government has removed the National Railways from political control and had placed business men on the directorate in charge.

On being haled to court, Moore was fined $200 and costs for breaking the O.T.A., and was held until to-morrow to face a second charge preferred by Inland Revenue Department officers. Joseph Black, a second-hand dealer, charged with being a receiver of illicit liquor was also in court and fined $300 and costs.

"My friend is using his imagination and not his reason," replied Mr. Crerar.

There was a volley of applause from Progressives and Mr. Crerar continued that he had not the exact figures of the population of Montreal and Toronto, but it was considable. "One of the effects of protection," he added "has been to build up big populations in cities."

"But what is the condition of agriculture? Does the prosperity of Canada not depend on the prosperity of agriculture?" Mr. Crerar queried in reply.

"I want to say further," Mr. Crerar was proceeding when the questioner again endeavored to interrupt. There were loud shouts of "down with him: down with him: Get out: Get out." "Is it not a fact that Montreal—" the heckler's voice could be heard above

Montreal, Nov. 11.—The Canadian Bankers' Association have offered a reward of $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person or persons who, since June 21, 1921, have attempted to rob a chartered bank in the Dominion. The reward, it is stated, is permanent.

SAYS CRERAR MADE BIG PROFITS

General Dyer Throws Bomb Into Ranks of United Grain Growers.

CHIEF DENIES CHARGE

Agrarian Leader Issues Manifesto Disclaiming Any Special Advantage.

Winnipeg, Nov. 10.—General Hugh Dyer has been making daily addresses in Marquette where he is opposing Hon. T. A. Crerar. He has aroused much interest among the Grain Growers of which he is a pioneer member, by charging that Crerar personally, as head of the organization and chief factor in the United Grain Growers Limited, has been making his profits out of the business, while the average farmer member of the organization has not been benefited and that shipping and marketing facilities on the prairies are no better for grain men than they were before the Grain Growers organization entered the field.

Yesterday Mr. Crerar replied by a special manifesto to his Marquette constituents in which he denies any special profit or advantage for himself or the United Grain Growers Limited, that all members do not enjoy. The manifesto adds that, "the opponents of the Progressives cause are seeking to divert the minds of the people from the real issues by the grain commission probe, etc., etc."

Independent farmers, however, have before them copies of the Price-Waterhouse report on the profits of the Terminal Elevator Companies. This was books and properties of the terminals at Fort William. Here is the extract these experts as to the operations of these experts as to the operations of the United Grain Growers' Limited, who operate at the head of the lakes the elevators Mr. Crerar is interested in.

Report on Operations

"This company leased from the C.P.R. two terminal elevators for which they paid $68,290 per annum. They had no capital investment outside of the rent. During the five years they received from the sale of screenings $223,725, from the sale of overages $386,792. After paying rent they received a net profit for the five years operation of $695,794, or a total of $139,159 per annum. Taking the amount of the rental as a total capital investment, so far as the Grain Growers are concerned, in one year they made over 400 per cent. and another year they made 300 per cent. profit. They also dealt in futures contrary to the Canada Grain Act."

British Delegates Approach Disarmament Conference With Confidence.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Delegates of the British Empire approach the Armament and Far Eastern Conference "In spirit of confidence and high resolve," the acting-head of the delegation, Rt. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, declared today upon his arrival in Washington.

"We must not indeed either ask for or expect the impossible, although what is within our reach is worth our utmost efforts," said Mr. Balfour in a formal statement. "I cannot doubt that under the wise guidance of your President we shall be fortunate enough to attain it. I am convinced that all those who are going to meet here in common counsel, and the Governments whom they represent are resolved to the best of their ability to cooperate with him in making it a success.

CIVIL SERVICE OUT OF POLITICS

Premier Declares the System Has Been Changed by the Government.

Meighen Urges Tariff Issue Before Large Ottawa Audiences.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen paused long enough in the capital between the close of his Quebec tour and the beginning of his journey westward, to address two large meetings and to receive as enthusiastic welcome as he has encountered anywhere during his campaign. The Prime Minister was conveyed at the head of a long procession of automobiles from his own residence to the Agriculture Hall at Lansdowne Park. Into the auditorium 4,500 people had crowded and a thousand more unable to secure admittance attended an overflow meeting in another of the exhibition buildings. The Premier loooked a little tired after his continuous campaigning during the past month. He was, as he said, gratified and encouraged by the evident desire of the people of Ottawa to hear the issues of the present election discussed.

"I do hope," said Mr. Meighen, "that this meeting is indicative of the real inner feeling of the people of this city." Mr. Meighen had reason to be gratified. As he entered the hall preceded by kilted pipers, the whole audience rose and cheered wildly. He was accorded another ovation when he rose to speak.

The Prime Minister to-night was assisted by A. E. Fripp and Napoleon Champagne the Government candidates in Ottawa. On the platform were several candidates in other ridings, Sir Henry Drayton and Sir Edward Kemp, Hammett Hill, M.P.P., and Fred Hogg, who presided. Both Mr. Fripp and Mr. Champagne spoke briefly before the Prime Minister was introduced. The former discussed the fiscal issue and the genesis of the farmers' movement in Ontario; the latter talked of the affection suddenly displayed by the Government opponents in Ottawa for the civil service. "They are threatened with enlargement of the heart," exclaimed Mr. Champagne.

Mr. Meighen said it would have placed Canada in a most humiliating position to have acted as Mr. King suggested.

The Canadian National Lines now constituted a really splendid system, and the people should be proud of it. For the past two months the National Railways had shown a profit, and it was the Canadian Northern section that had made this possible. The operating surplus was not yet sufficient to meet the fixed charges, and would not be for some years to come. It was not possible to do that yet with a railroad built by the Liberal administration for "political purposes." The Government has removed the National Railways from political control and had placed business men on the directorate in charge.

UNEARTHS STILL AT TRENTON

Found in Operation in a Dugout Beneath Film Company's Premises.

TRENTON, Ont., Nov. 10.—An extensive still for the illicit manufacture of liquor was unearthed in Trenton today, though a raid conducted by Police Chief Bain, Sergeant White and Detective Morrison, the still being discovered in a "dug out" underneath the premises of the local film company. The investigators found the still while it was being operated by Chas. Moore, a native of the West Indies. Forty gallons of mash were on hand and four gallons of prof spirits.

On being haled to court, Moore was fined $200 and costs for breaking the O.T.A., and was held until to-morrow to face a second charge preferred by Inland Revenue Department officers. Joseph Black, a second-hand dealer, charged with being a receiver of illicit liquor was also in court and fined $300 and costs.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

Well Trained

G.B.—I see that a lady candidate for municipal honors at the recent New York City elections made nineteen speeches in one day. It was not stated whether she was single or married, but the inference is that she was of the latter class and had been well trained in the gift of oratory. O' course this does not refer to any Belleville lady.

Suitable Memorial

M.T.—I see that a tablet was unveiled at the branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Belleville, which contained the names of the brave young men who enlisted from the local branch. The idea is a commendable one and reminds me that some months ago an agitation was started in this city to erect a memorial for our boys who made the supreme sacrifice. The G.W.V.A. of this city intend to erect a suitable memorial home, but should not some memorial be erected here by the citizens generally, as has been the case in many cities, towns and villages.

Auto Accidents

S.P.—I see that slippery pavements is given as an excuse by some auto drivers when an accident occurs upon the street. In most cases this is not the absolute truth, but rather owing to the fact that the cars are being driven at to rapid a pace and when the brake is suddenly applied, skidding will naturally result, and after an accident follows. The safest way is to have the car completely under control at all times.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

TWENTY-FIVE—I can quite understand that you are worried about your skin becoming so dry, because there is nothing that will kill a good complexion so quickly as the dry atmosphere of Canadian houses during the winter time. And, of course, continuous housework will ruin any hands unless you do something to prevent it. The best thing you can do is to rub CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM well into your face and on your hands after each washing, and especially every night and morning. CAMPANA'S is very efficacious and a very wonderful remedy. You can buy CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM at any Druggist. 40c. a large bottle. MARGARET.

FAMILY DIED IN FLAMES

Mother and Four Children Dead—Another Child is Badly Burned.

North Bay, Ont., Nov. 10.—Five persons dead and one child badly burned, was the total reached in the casualties of a fire which consumed three houses at Kearney. The dead are: Mrs. Fred Wheeler, her baby girl, Doris, aged three months; Doric, aged about three years; Roy, about six, and Sophie, aged 17, who died later from burns. Another child, Mildred, is very low. The only members of the family who escaped were William, aged 23, and Freddie, about nine, who jumped from a window in the rear of the house. Will made a brave attempt to rescue his mother from a front room, but she failed to answer his calls. She was dead.

The tragedy occurred during the absence of Mr. Wheeler, who had left for North Bay, a distance of 25 miles, on an early train. He was informed of the fate of his family by telegram, which was handed to him at the station here, and returned to the scene of the tragedy on the noon train. He is reported to be bordering on insanity from the shock.

It is believed that Mrs. Wheeler died before the flames reached her, as she had been suffering from heart trouble for some time. With her in the bed was her three months old child, Doris.

The houses on both sides of the Wheeler home were burned, but the occupants escaped with their lives, and some of their belongings.

RESIDENCE BURNED

On Tuesday forenoon fire consumed the house occupied by Mr. Stanley Thompson, just off the Picton-Cherry Valley Road. Mrs. Thompson was alone at the house when the fire broke out and succeeded in getting a few articles outside only to have them burned by the eager flames. The contents were a total loss. The cause of the blaze is thought to be in faulty stove pipes or chimney. Loss to the owner, Mr. David Clark is heavy as only small insurance was carried with the Bay of Quinte and London Mutual Companies. Mr. Thompson was a tenant on the property and also sustains severe loss as the contents were also lightly insured.

First Night At The Movies

SCREEN VERSION OF FAMOUS STORY BY CAROLINE LOCKART

An almost lifelike story of how a simple, inconspicuous girl, through a strange series of incidents arose from the depths of a western, roadhouse and obscure and uncertain parentage to a position of wealth and power in her community is the story of "The Fighting Shepherdess," from the famous book by Caroline Lockart, and in which Anita Stewart appeared at Griffin's last evening.

The natural inclinations of the girl are against the surroundings in which she was placed it so transpired that by cance a recluse sheep-herder with a sense of chivalry arrived at the tavern to champion her cause against the advances of an objectionable character. It was through the opportunity offered by this man that Kate, played by Anita Stewart, was able to leave the tavern and take up life as a hermit girl.

Fox News, a Mack Sennett comedy, and Movie Chats were also exhibited during the evening.

Owing to the road show "Hullo Canada" holding the boards to-night, this program will not be repeated till tomorrow when it will be exhibited matinee and evening.

BRINGING UP FATHER "IN WALL ST"

A riot of laughter, jingling melodies unique features, successive and a plentitude of original ingredients and novelties, along with a beauty chorus qualified to set all Broadway in the throes of talk and envy are promised in the latest McManus triumph, "BRINGING UP FATHER, IN WALL STREET."

As might be gleaned, the play, which is in two acts and five scenes, is based on the ever-green and always welcome cartooons of the same title by George McManus. The new show with its wonderful scenic equipment, screams, hilarity, joy and ear-haunting tunes and melodies will be the attraction at Griffin's Theatre next Tuesday, November 15th.

The announcement of the appearance of Albert De Courville's London revue, "Hullo Canada," at Griffin's tonight, with the London cast, beauty chorus and wonderful orchestra, including Harry Tate and Shirley Kellogg, has been received with tremendous enthusiasm by everyone who ever goes to the theatre.

Inquiries for seats have been received from as far as Oshawa, including one cockney who called up offering to bet the manager that Harry Tate wasn't coming because 'E's the best actor in the world. Why should 'E come all the way over'ere when 'e packs the 'ouse in London every night.

SAYS ARMISTICE DAY SHOULD BE SACRED

Marshal Foch Adjures People to Think of Sacrifice Made by Dead.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 10.—Marshall Foch, who was the guest of Pittsburgh today, gave out this evening an Armistice Day statement addressed to the American Legion.

"Armistice Day should be made sacred throughout the entire civilized world," said the Allied Commander-in-Chief in his message. "It is the day when we think of the noble sacrifice made by the heroic dead, of the brilliant records of duty performed on the field of battle; of the spirit of patriotism and bravery shown by those who fortunately escaped shot and shell.

"On this day let us think only of the great cause for which the Allies fought. And in thinking of this great cause, let us think also of a bond of eternal peace, so that the people of the world may work and rebuild and find happiness in unity, with no thought of future conflicts. God helping, peace will reign throughout the world."

AN ARGUMENT IN THE TREE TOP

Tinker Bob told Mr. Mink and Mr. Cauck about the frolic. And then he turned his attention to some of the smaller creatures of the forest like Rufus, the tree mouse. He found Rufus in the midst of an argument with his neighbor, Mr. Chipmunk. Now little Bobby Chipmunk was a saucy fellow. He didn't allow anyone to talk back to him without there being a reason. He sat in the chestnut tree where Rufus had built his home and ate chestnuts without disturbing Rufus in the least.

"I want you to know that this is my house, Mr. Chipmunk," said Rufus as he came out of his moss-covered home in the crotch of the great chestnut tree. "I don't allow anyone to come here to eat chestnuts unless I invite them. I want you to run away and mind your own business."

"Is that so," said Bobby. "I'll eat as many chestnuts as I want to and you can't stop me—anyone that would try to control a great tree like this just because he has a tiny hole that he calls his home. Mr. Rufus you don't need to talk to me that way for I am going to gather my Winter's supply from this tree and you couldn't keep me from it."

"I can tell the King of the Forest and he will keep you out of here." Rufus was angry. He wanted to jump on Bobby's back and give him a good beating but he was a little bit timid about starting anything he wasn't sure he could finish. "I tell you to get out of here or I'll tell the King of the Forest and he will take you out of here in a hurry."

"You don't suppose the King would drive me out of a place where I get my Winter's food, do you? No, he isn't that kind of a King" said Bobby and he went right on gathering chestnuts.

Tinker Bob watched them with interest. Bobby was a handsome fellow. His head and neck were gold in color and there were stripes of yellow down his sides between two blotches of black. His breast was yellowish brown, and he had a tail that looked much like Sammy Squirrel's.

Rufus was a handsome fellow too. He was almost red all over except his tail which was black. He was a quick little creature and could run over the limbs of the trees very fast. Bobby was not used to the tree tops as Rufus was and was more careful when he went up to get some chestnuts. He would much rather gather his chestnuts on the ground but he was afraid of Billie Mink and Snoopy, the Bob Cat, for they were always looking for him.

"I want you to know that this is my house, Mr. Chipmunk."

Tinker watched the two with interest as they talked back to each other. But he noticed that Bobby Chipmunk went right on gathering nuts. Suddenly there was a scream from the top of another tree near by, the argument ceased and Rufus ran into his house and Bobby scampered to his hole.

We will see what that Scream meant tomorrow.

LIQUOR ESSENTIAL AT GIRLS' PARTIES

Noted Writer Laments That Prohibition Has Brought Liquor Vice to Young People.

That the youth of this country is worse off under prohibition than under the old system, is the cry which Samuel Hopkins Adams puts forth in a recent article in Collier's. Mr. Adams for years was a great prohibitionist, and was a leader in the United States for prohibition. He is still a prohibitionist in his beliefs, in theory at least, but after personally investigating the situation throughout the United States after prohibition has been on the statute books for two years, he finds a sad condition of affairs prevailing. He finds liquor for sale everywhere and in fact he heads his tale in that way, namely, "On Sale Everywhere." One of the worst features that he finds is the home drinking of the young, not to speak of home brewing, bootlegging, which he finds a wonderfully big business, or to disregard for law which millions of Americans now have because of prohibition.

Mr. Adams gives some incidents in proof of his claim, and says he has many more instances, all of which have come unsought to him. In a large southern city there is a movement on the part of a group of mothers to boycott an institutional dance because of the prevalent drunkenness among the boys who were of pre-collegiate age and stands.

Another case. The decision of an eighteen-year-old New York girl who, asked by her uncle what she would like for a coming-out present, startled his middle-aged innocence by replying gratefully: "A cigarette case and a pocket flask, and if I can't get both, I'll take the flask."

Still another example quoted by Mr. Adams. A dialogue between a Philadelphia debutante and her mother, who was giving a small dinner for her.

Debutante—You'll leave me the key of the sideboard, of course.

Mother—No.

Debutante—What, no cocktails.

Mother—You're too young. There won't be a girl here over twenty-one.

Debutante (despairingly)—There'll be no pep to the show at all. The boys will hate it. At Effie's yesterday we had cocktails and two rounds of highballs, and that was only a luncheon. I'd rather give up the whole thing.

Mother (yielding to the inevitable)—Oh, very well. I'll leave out enough for cocktails, but that's all you can have."

Mr. Adams adds: "The prohibitionists, when the dry wave began to sweep the nation State by State, laid claim broadcast to every social and economic benefit of the day. On the same principle, it is fair to point out that the millennial effects upon general morals which many prophesied and more hoped for have not manifested themselves."

JAILBREAKERS GET EIGHT YEARS IN PEN

Six Years for Slugging Their Guards and Two for Escaping.

GUELPH, Nov. 10.—Samuel McArdle and Joseph Hobson, the two men, who, with another, got away from the county jail on Thanksgiving day but were recaptured before they got far, discovered today what a foolish move they had made. They were brought before the police magistrate on three charges, of assaulting Jailer McNab, of assaulting Turnkey Everson and for escaping from jail.

They pleaded guilty to the latter charge, but denied that it was they who had committed the assaults. The magistrate found them guilty on all counts, however and gave each of them three years on each of the assault charges and two years for escaping, or eight years in all, at Kingston penitentiary. This is on top of two years that they were given a week ago for escaping from the reformatory, to serve which term they were in the county jail when they broke out.

ARMAND LAVERGNE'S WIFE MAY RUN FOR PARLIAMENT

TAMMANY GETS SCALPS OF SLEEPING NEW-YORKERS.

Tammany Hall won again in New York, capturing the city elections with a large majority.

Tammany can win right along in New York city until the people get so utterly sick of machine politics that they get out en masse to the polls and call for a new deal.

It is the carelessness and apathy of the voter which makes for inefficient government.

Just now the greatest issue in Canada is securing the best government possible from the mob of candidates, and the elector should take a deep and active interest in the election, beginning with seeing that all of his family entitled to vote are on the voters' list, next informing himself or herself as to the questions at issue and the duty of the elector, then doing everything possible to make sure that the verdict at the polls will be for stability, confidence and a greater Canada.

AIN'T GOING TO BE NO KITE.

Mackenzie King has no hopes of becoming anything more than a tail to Crerar's kite as the result of the elections. From his own speeches this can be deduced, and from the expressions of his followers.

The great desire of the Kingites is to see the Meighen government defeated, and it is apparent that if the Crerar group is sufficiently large in Parliament Mackenzie King would be quite willing to amalgamate to satisfy the elements in his following seeking revenge for fancied wrongs in the conduct of the war.

Every citizen of Canada with a stake, large or small, should do everything possible to prevent any change of government at this time when the whole financial and industrial world is upset and the one thing needful is stability and confidence.

Frills and fads at Ottawa would delay the return of full prosperity to Canada for five years or more.

More important than the fate of political parties is the prosperity of Canada and a speedy return to normalcy.

HARPED THEIR HARPS TO STRINGLESSNESS.

It is rather amusing to notice how some politicians, when crowded into a corner over the weakness of their tariff stand, shout out that the tariff is not the main issue. They would be more truthful if they said they wish it were not the one vital issue. Unfortunately for them the facts are all against them. The United Farmer movement was started with the tariff the dominating issue, and the propaganda of the movement, extending over years, has been based on it and practically nothing else. It was on that issue that Hon. Mr. Crerar left the Union Government, so that he might be free to carry on his trade assaults. The Liberals, scared out of their boots by the Farmer movement, slavishly copied the Farmer platform almost word for word. The Toronto Globe has been preaching lower tariff and denouncing protection until it is almost black in the face. The Farmers' Sun and the Grain Growers' Guide have harped and harped on the iniquities of protection until their poor old harps are almost stringless. The tariff, the whole tariff, and nothing but the tariff has been the United Farmer and the Liberal battle cry ever since the war ended, and it is too late for them to say anything to the contrary.

CRISP COMMENT

It is said that Hon. Dr. Tolmie, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, can trace the roots of his genealogical tree away back to ancient Egypt when the Tolmies were Ptolmeys of the royal blood, and then down through the centuries with a dash of wild Romany blood and a cooler strain of Scotch Fraser. Somewhere along the route they lost the cap-P, but perhaps that was the result of too much Scotch.

Canada's railway problem is great and serious, but there seems to be a glimmer of the dawn of better days gilding the horizon. The Meighen Government may be trusted to make the best of this legacy of mistakes left by the Laurier Government. Those newspapers which point with pride to the good old days of the Laurier administration conveniently forget to count the cost of that administration which is still a millstone around the neck of the prosperity of Canada.

Hon. George Perry Graham is busy down in Essex trying to get elected to Parliament on the Liberal ticket, and in his absence from home his organ—the Brockville (self-styled) R. & T.—has slipped a cog or two and is running wild with stuff like this: "There will be no idle men in Brockville under Liberal rule. Everybody was working before Tory misrule came in. Not so today. The Conservative party has paralyzed industry." Hurry home, George, and put the belt on the governor before the eccentric strips all the gears from the subscription list!

The kindly feeling for France and its vast army of war widows, orphans and stalwart old men, is being shown in Canada by the ready sale of the blood-red poppies made by the children of France and shipped to the new world to raise funds to help in the great task of rebuilding the ruined homes of France and making the land blighted by the devastating touch of the Hun blossom again as the rose and restore the light-hearted nation of pre-war days. The poppies from France are eagerly snapped up as soon as placed on sale and in many cases are sold out before noon on Poppy Days.

"ALL HANDS ON DECK"

Boston Globe

Every old sailorman knows what is meant by the cry: "All hands on deck!" It means that a squall is coming and that it is time to take in sail. The cabin is warm and dry. The card game is interesting. The deck is wet and slippery; the night black and the weather foul. But for the sake and safety of everybody aboard, the order must be "All hands on deck!"

CHEAPER PRODUCTION COSTS

London Daily Mail

The unemployed are so numerous and taxation is so terrific that no system of doles can meet the position without bankrupting the nation. But the field of employment would immediately be extended if costs of production were reduced. So long as commodities are very dear there can be only a limited demand for them. Cheapen them, and the demand immediately increases.

THE FRENCH IMPORTS

Los Angeles Times

The imports of raw materials in France for the first seven months of this year are reported as being but 5,000,000,000 francs as against 15,000,000,000 francs for the same period last year. This is not good for France nor the rest of the world. It shows that France is rebuilding herself with her own materials, but at the same time is not keeping up with the foreign trade in the wares and products which made France the wonder of the world.

RE-ENLISTS

Say, fellers, I'm goin' back'
Tho I didn't think when I sailed away
That I'd be making so short a stay
In the home town here in the old home state,
But I tell you fellers that soldierin's great,
And I'm goin' to enlist again sure as fate.
Yep, I'm going back!

Say, Fellers, I'm goin' back!
For I've seen the corn all growin' green,
With the squash vines trailin' along between,
I've followed all day at the tail of the plow,
I've curried the mule and milked the cow,
And gathered the eggs from the old haymow,
But everything seems to be changed somehow,
And—I'm goin' back!

Say, fellers, I'm goin' back!
For I miss the durned old bugle, gee!
How I cursed "Fatigue" and "Reveille"
And expendin' of extra elbow grease,
And scrubbin' floors and kitchen police,
And wonderin' when the war would cease;
Still hopin' we wouldn't sign for peace
Till we'd grabbed some portion of the Boche's fleece,
Now I'm goin' back!

Say, fellers, I'm goin' back!
It's the life I'm longin' for I guess,
With its drill and guard and army mess,
And the polishin' guns and growlin' why
A feller can't always have milk and pie
With his chow, but I'd can the sigh
If the Cap. was cross or the Old Man nigh.
Seems I couldn't see how hard they'd try
To keep all the fellers fed and dry;
So again I'm biddin' the folks good-bye,
'Cause I want to enlist for a regular guy,
And—I'm goin' back!

SAYS ONE-MAN GOVERNMENT INADEQUATE FOR CANADA

Kingston, Nov. 10.—Today the Whig comes out in favor of the selection of J. M. Campbell, as federal member. He is a protectionist Liberal, and in the view of the paper he is considered the "best man in Kingston." It considers General Ross too much of a politician, saying: "He supports the Meighen government with its cabinet of mediocrities. Granting that Arthur Meighen is a capable, courageous and gifted leader, still shall we not require in the immediate future more, much more, than a one-man government?"

TATE PASSPORT IRREGULAR

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—The case of Harry Tate, English actor, being denied admission into the United States at Port Huron, has not come to the official attention of the department of immigration here. The department has on file a statement made by Harry Tate on his landing in Canada, declaring the purpose of his visit and showing him to be a non-immigrant. The papers are perfectly regular.

The reason for the action of the United States authorities is regarded to be the outcome of either the operation of the alien labor law of that country or an irregularity in the vise of his passport.

Advertising!

The biggest men in the country have found that the easiest way to spell success is to A-D-V-E-R-T-I-S-E. Suppose the newspaper did not publish the news, how would the people know what is happening? If you don't publish the Store News how will the people know about your goods? You can never sell the goods people do not know you have.

Advertising is telling about your stock. The firm that advertises gets ahead, every time, of the firm that does not advertise. Shop-worn and out-of-date stock is the penalty merchants pay for not advertising.

THE INTELLIGENCER JOB DEPARTMENT

THE·THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"Some one must be sent to the duke. Place confidence in me, madame. Do me that honor, my queen, and I will find a messenger."

"But I must write."

"Oh, yes; that is indispensable! Two words from the hand of your majesty and your own private seal."

"But these two words would bring about my condemnation, divorce, exile!"

"Yes, if they fell into infamous hands, but I will answer for these two words being delivered to their address."

"Oh, I must then place my life, my honor, my reputation, all in your hands?"

"Yes, yes, madame, you must, and I will save them all."

"But how—tell me at least how?"

"My husband has been set at liberty these two or three days. I have not yet had time to see him again. He will do anything I wish. He will set out upon receiving an order from me without knowing what he carries, and he will remit your majesty's letter without even knowing it is from your majesty."

The queen took the two hands of the young woman with a burst of emotion, gazed at her as if to read her very heart and, seeing nothing but sincerity in her beautiful eyes, embraced her tenderly. Then she ran to a little table upon which were pens, ink and paper. she wrote two lines, sealed the letter with her private seal and gave it to Mme. Bonacieux.

"And now," said the queen, "we are forgetting one very necessary thing—money."

Mme. Bonacieux blushed.

"Yes, that is true," said she, "and I will confess to your majesty that my husband"—

"Your husband has none; is that what you would say?"

"Oh, yes, he has some, but he is very avaricious—that is his fault. Nevertheless, let not your majesty be uneasy. We will find means."

"And I have none, either," said the queen. "But wait a minute."

Anne of Austria ran to her jewel case.

"Here," said she, "here is a ring of great value, as I have been assured. It came from my brother, the king of Spain. It is mine, and I am at liberty to dispose of it. Take this ring, make money of it and let your husband set out."

"In an hour you shall be obeyed, madame."

"You see the address," said the queen, speaking so low that Mme. Bonacieux could hardly hear what she said—"To Milord Duke of Buckingham, London."

Mme. Bonacieux kissed the hands of the queen, concealed the paper in the bosom of her dress and disappeared with the lightness of a bird.

Ten minutes afterward she was at home. As she told the queen she had not seen her husband since his liberation, she was ignorant of the change that had taken place in him with respect to the cardinal, a change which had since been strengthened by two or three visits from the Count de Rochefort, who had become the best friend of Bonacieux.

"Take this ring, make money of it and let your husband set out."

She found Bonacieux alone. The worthy mercer had, immediately upon entering his house communicated to his wife the news of his happy return, and his wife had replied by congratulating him and telling him that the first moment she could steal from her duties should be devoted to paying him a visit.

The first moment had been delayed five days, which under any other circumstances might have appeared rather long to Master Bonacieux, but he had in the visit he had made to the cardinal and in the visits Rochefort had made him ample subjects for reflection.

On her side, Mme. Bonacieux's thoughts constantly reverted to D'Artagnan, that handsome young man who was so brave and appeared to be so much in love with her. Married at eighteen to M. Bonacieux, having always lived among her husband's friends, Mme. Bonacieux had remained insensible to vulgar seductions, but at this period the title of gentleman had a particularly great influence with the bourgeoise or citizen class, and D'Artagnan was a gentleman.

The married couple then, although they had not seen each other for eight days and that during that time serious events had taken place in which both were concerned, accosted each other with a degree of preoccupation. Nevertheless M. Bonacieux manifested real joy and advanced toward his wife with open arms.

Mme. Bonacieux presented her cheek to him.

"Let us talk a little," said she. "It is of a thing of the highest interest and upon which our future fortune perhaps depends I would speak."

"The complexion of our fortune has changed very much since I saw you, Mme. Bonacieux, and I should not be astonished if in the course of a few months it were to excite envy of many folks."

"Particularly if you obey the instructions I am about to give you."

"To me?"

"Yes, to you. There is a good and holy action to be performed, monsieur, and much money to be gained at the same time."

"Much money to be gained?" said Bonacieux.

"Yes, much."

"About how much, pray?"

"A thousand pistoles perhaps."

"What is to be done?"

"You must set out immediately for London; I will give you a paper which you must not part with on any account and which you will deliver into the proper hands."

"I go to London! I have nothing to do in London."

"But others require that you should go there. An illustrious person sends you, an illustrious person awaits you and the recompense will exceed your expectations."

"More intrigues! Nothing but intrigues! Thank you, madame, I am aware of them now; M. le Cardinal has enlightened me on that head."

"The cardinal?" cried Mme. Bonacieux. "Have you seen the cardinal?"

"He sent for me," answered the mercer proudly. "He gave me his hand, and he called me his friend."

"You serve the cardinal?"

"Yes, madame; and, as his servant, I will not allow you to be concerned in plots against the safety of the state or to assist in the intrigues of a woman who is not a Frenchwoman and who has a Spanish heart. Fortunately we have the great cardinal, his vigilant eye watches over and penetrates to the bottom of hearts."

Bonacieux was repeating, word for word, a sentence which he had heard the Count de Rochefort make use of.

"Ah, you are a Cardinalist, then, monsieur, are you?" cried his wife, "and you serve the party who ill treat your wife and insult your queen?"

"Private interests are as nothing before the interests of all. I am for those who save the state," said Bonacieux emphatically. (This was one of Rochefort's sentences.) "Besides, see here the bag of money which the cardinal himself gave to me."

"And what do you know about the state you talk of?" said Mme. Bonacieux, shrugging her shoulders. "You are selling yourself, body and soul, to the devil for money!"

"No, but to the cardinal. Hold your tongue! Hold your tongue, madame. We may be overheard."

"Yes, you are right. I should be ashamed for any one to know your baseness."

"But what do you require of me, then? Come, let us see!"

"I have told you. You must set out instantly, monsieur. You must accomplish loyally the commission with which I deign to charge you, and on that condition I pardon everything, I forget everything; and, still further"—and she held out her hand to him—"I give you my love again."

Bonacieux was a coward, and he was avaricious. But he loved his wife—he was softened. Mme. Bonacieux saw that he hesitated.

"Come! Have you made your mind up?" said she.

"But, my dear love, reflect a little upon what you require of me. London is far from Paris, very far, and perhaps the commission with which you charge me is not without dangers."

"Of what consequence is that if you avoid them?"

"Well, then, Mme. Bonacieux," said the mercer, "well, then, I positively refuse. Intrigues terrify me. I have seen the Bastille. That's a frightful place."

"Well, if you do not go this very instant I will have you arrested by the queen's orders, and I will have you placed in that Bastille which you dread so much."

"Have me arrested on the part of the queen," said he, "and I—I will appeal to his eminence."

At once Mme. Bonacieux saw that she had gone too far, and she was terrified at having communicated so much.

"Well, I will give it up, then," said the young woman, sighing. "It is as well as it is. Say no more about it."

"Yes; at least you should tell me what I should have to do in London," replied Bonacieux, who remembered a little too late that Rochefort had desired him to endeavor to obtain his wife's secrets.

"It is of no use for you to know anything about it," said the young woman whom an instinctive mistrust now impelled to draw back.

He resolved, then, that instant to hasten to the residence of the Count de Rochefort and tell him that the queen was seeking for a messenger to send to London.

"Pardon me for leaving you," said he; "but, not knowing you would come to see me, I had made an engagement with a friend. I shall soon return. Wait only a few minutes for me, and I will come and conduct you back to the Louvre."

"Thank you, monsieur," replied Mme. Bonacieux. "I shall return very safely to the Louvre by myself."

IN MEMORIAM

[illegible]—In sad and loving memory of our darling little girl, who died the 11th of November, 1918, age 4 years and 8 months.

Angels called you Georgia,
Called thee home fod ever more;
And our hearts are ever yearning,
For the loved one that is gone.

Gone, oh yes, but not forgotten,
Ever in our thoughts you stay;
For the little girl we loved so dearly,
Angels has called away.

Jesus loved you darling Georgia,
And He gently whispered come;
And you heard the voice of angels
And calmly entered home.

Thou art safe in Jesus,
Away from all sin and pain;
Waiting for the loved ones,
Never to part again.

Oh how we miss your smiling face,
The babe we loved so dear,
The voice that was so kind and sweet
We can no longer hear.

Sweetest, fairest, brightest flower,
Darling of our hearts' fond love;
Oh, how we miss thee every hour,
Since Jesus called you home above.
—Sadly missed by her mother and Brothers. Mrs. Frank Bryant. 11-1t

Efficient Housekeeping

MORE ANSWERED LETTERS

V.: "Will you please suggest some simple refreshment that I can serve in the evening to a young man who is calling for the first time? And please tell me just how to serve it and whether I should always serve something to young men who call in the evening."

Answer: A generous slice of layer cake will be appreciated by the young man and is the thing most easily served. I would advise you to learn to make this yourself and ask him if he would like to "sample" the result of your efforts. Wait until he has spent a good part of the evening with you, then go out into your pantry, cut two slices of cake, place the slices on two small, fancy plates with a fork lying on each plate, and return to the living room with these two plates. Hand the young man a small luncheon napkin with the plate, and use one yourself.

It is a nice custom for a young girl to serve something such as this when she knows a young man intends to call on her; when a young man calls unexpectedly, the girl can make cocoa and serve it with bought cookies or crackers, if she has no cake on hand. Again, a young girl can entertain her caller very successfully by letting him make candy with her on the kitchen stove or in a chafing dish on the dining room table. Young men appreciate such hospitality as this. And I think it is especially nice for a girl to serve simple home refreshments to young men who frequently take her out to the theatre or entertain her otherwise.

Unsigned: "Kindly tell me what will take grease out of wall paper."

Answer: Place a piece of clean blotting paper over the grease spot on the wall paper, and press a hot iron against the blotter; in this way the heat from the iron goes through the blotter and dissolves the grease on the wall paper, which is absorbed by the blotter.

A Reader of Your Paper: "Please state in your column if it is necessary to peel the green tomatoes in making the Old Time Chow-Chow you printed recently? Also tell me how to can string beans."

Answer: No, it is not necessary to skin the green tomatoes. Send for my printed article on Cold Pack Canning, which will tell you how to can all the fruits and vegetables, including string beans. If it is too late for you to use it this year, you will at least have it for next Summer.

A. B. C.: "I have made grape juice preparatory to making grape jelly, but the juice is covered with sharp particles like bits of glass. What is it? And how am I to get rid of it? If I heat it and strain again through cheesecloth before adding sugar will this remove the particles or will they form again in the jelly?"

Answer: You were wise to write me before going ahead. If you had heated the juice you would have undone a great deal of good. The juice of any fruit which is bottled to use later for jelly making must have no sugar added to it. When grape juice is bottled in this way, crystals will form from the tartaric acid in it. The thing to do after the crystals have formed and settled, is to pour off the juice very carefully so as not to disturb the sediment which contains these crystals. Then you can go ahead and make your grape jelly from the juice, so you will not be annoyed by their forming in the jelly—you have gotten rid of them.

BRITAIN READY TO PAY INTEREST

Arrangements Made to Send £50,000,000 Yearly, Says Chancellor of Exchequer.

London, Nov. 10.—An arrangement has been made to begin paying the interest on the debt owed by Great Britain to the United States at the rate of £50,000,000 yearly, it was announced in the House of Commons to-day by Sir Robert Horne, the chancellor of the exchequer.

Sir Robert made this announcement in the course of a statement on the budget prospects. He added with emphasis:

"I hope this remark about the debt we owe the United States will not be made the occasion for any discussion of the inter-allied indebtedness. It does not conduce to the friendliness of the feeling between the United States and ourselves to discuss that matter at all at present."

Of Interest to Women

Lady Tree has made a great hit in London as a great-aunt in a new comedy entitled "Araminta Arrives."

Wool scarfs are out in great numbers, these worn usually in preference to furs with tweeds and homespuns, says New York.

The daughter of Charles Dickens placed in the British Museum documents with instructions that they were not to be opened until 1925.

New York favors suede combinations in footwear at present particularly with light tweed suits or with any fall suit that is in a moderately light tone.

The divorcee who was had several husbands—and lost 'em—often assumes a monopoly of matrimonial wisdom, just as the mother knows all about the care of children because she's buried ten.

Tweed suits are smart with blue a favorite, and small hats of felt, wool hose and low-heeled strapped slippers generally accompany them, the hose and hats usually matching the color of the suit.

"Talk about the vanity of woman, though, have you heard about those poor men who have taken to shaving their bald spots. You see they shave a thin place next to it and the hair grows—on some of them, and they put the new hair over the bald place. I knew one man who shaved his temples, and his hair grew. Then his friend did a ring around his bald pate and now his wife says she's ashamed to take him out. For the hair didn't grow a bit!"

Now approaches the season when life seems one bazaar after another for the club woman.

Who says woman has forgotten her old-time arts and crafts!

They have but to visit the stalls of our fall bazaars. There are veritable tons of exquisite handiwork and tempting cookery that could rival any grandma ever did.

Not only do you find feminine handicrafts, but to be really up-to-date moment you must have a stall of work done by the soldiers or the blind. In Chatham, for instance, the other day, an I.O.D.E. chapter held a sale of work entirely made by convalescent soldiers. They sent to Toronto for it and then returned $400 to cheer up men whose souls had lagged. The chapter made no money for their own purpose, but rejoiced that they had been of service to the men.

This famous balm keeps the skin smooth, healthy and flexible under most trying conditions. Zam-Buk's pure herbal essences are so highly refined that the pores and tissues absorb them readily. They take out smarting pain and irritation instantly, heal roughness and soreness, and prevent eczema and blood-poisoning.

Miss B. Strojsa, of East Hansford, N.S., writes:—"My hands bled and became so painfully chapped that I dare not put them in water. Zam-Buk caused smarting pain and soreness to quickly disappear and I continued to use it until my hands were thoroughly healed."

Miss A. Lepard, of Beaverdale, Ont., writes:—"Where other remedies all failed, Zam-Buk soon rid me of chilblains. It speedily ended the itching irritation, drew out the inflammation and healed perfectly." Also splendid in eczema, ulcers, abscesses, piles, poisoned wounds, cuts, burns and scalds. 50c., all dealers.

NERVOUS, IRRITABLE, AILING WOMEN

Mrs. Britten Tells How She Was Restored To Health After Suffering for More Than A Year.

Another Triumph for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dimondale, Mich.—"I had inflammation and a displacement and weakness, and it had been neglected so long that it caused great pain, and this affected my mind and nerves so that I was very irritable. I had severe pains every month, so that I was often obliged to lie in bed for two days at a time. I suffered for more than a year before my friends said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' So I purchased one bottle after another until I had taken ten bottles, then Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I received so much benefit from this treatment that I am now able to do my own work."—Mrs. W. D. Britten, R. No. 2, Dimondale, Mich.

Another Michigan Woman says:

"I was bothered for a long time with female troubles and was so nervous I felt almost afraid at times. I also had a pain in my right side and was certainly in a bad way. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved me of these nervous feelings and pains and I am much better in every way. I don't know just how many bottles I have taken, but I took it for nearly a year and it has done me a world of good."—Mrs. Jessie Granger, R. No. 8, Box 51, Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Good health is a woman's greatest asset. With it she may be the inspiration of her husband, a happy mother, and the life of the home. Without it she suffers agonies herself, household duties are a burden, and her family is made miserable by her condition.

Is it any wonder that these women were nervous and irritable after suffering so long from such deranged conditions? Such ailments act directly upon the nerves, and it has been said that a large percentage of nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," and nervous irritability of women arise from some derangement of the female organism.

If women who are in this condition would only profit by the experience of others and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, much suffering and unhappiness would be averted, as everyone knows a nervous, irritable, ailing mother makes the home unhappy and her condition irritates both husband and children.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

NATION HONORS THE "UNKNOWN"

Impressive Service at Washington in Burial of Unknown Soldier.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Long before the rising sun broke through the low bank of clouds this morning, long columns of soldiers, sailors, and marines began making their way to the capitol plaza to receive into their keeping the United States "unknown" and to accompany him to his resting place at Arlington.

All the approaches and Pennsylvania Avenue were lined with spectators and trucks waited to transfer the mountain of flowers to the cemetery as the body bearers placed the coffin on their shoulders while the band rendered "Nearer My God to Thee." As the flower-strewn casket was borne down the steps of the capitol soldiers stationed in line stood at attention. Flags of color bearers were dropped while those on the capitol were at half mast. As the cortege swung into the avenue it was joined by ex-President and Mrs. Wilson who were heartily cheered. After the soldier and sailor came the clergy, generals and admirals. Immediately behind the unknown hero's body walked President Harding and General Pershing, followed by Chief Justice Taft, Supreme Court Judges, Members of the Senate, Speaker Gillett and members of the House of Representatives. Holders of Medals of Honor came next, then 132 represetnatives of all units serving in the war.

After the invocation and silence of two minutes, President Harding delivered his address referring to those who had fought in France as "armed exponent's of the nations' conscience" and declared "burial here is rather more than a sign of government favor. It is the suggestion of a tomb in the heart of the nation."

Following came the decoration of the "Unknown" by allied chiefs. President Harding placed the Congressional medal, Earl Beatty, Victoria Cross, Baron Jacques, Belgium's Croix de Guerre, Marshal Foch, Croix de Guerre and Medaille Militaire.

The invited at the cemetery included the great chieftains of war, Earl Beatty, Marshall Foch, General Diaz and Baron Jacques. About eleven o'clock the coffin was removed by body bearers as it reached the west entrance to the cemetery. The great audience rose and universed at is passed in, followed by Gen. Pershing and distinguished fighters of the Allied nations, ambassadors and embassy officials.

DRUMHEAD SERVICE AT ARMOURIES

Armistice Day Commemorated by 11 O'clock Service.

O Almighty and everlasting God who by the mouth of the prophet hast foretold the day when nations shall not lift up sword againts nation, neither shall they learn war anymore. Guide well thy spirit the hephesentatives of the nations now assembled; help us to hasten the time when we shall beat our swords into ploughshares and our spears into pruning hooks; silence all arrogance and boasting; still the voices of selfishness and greed root out all suspicion and hatred between the families of the earth and grant that we may see the dawning of a new day of peace. We ask it in the name of the Prince of Peace thy son Jesus Christ Our Lord, Amen.

The above was the prayer by Rev. Arch Deacon Beamish at the Armistice Day services held at the Armouries. After a silence of two minutes at 11 o'clock a thanksgiving prayer was given by the Rev. Arch Deacon Beamish, Padre of the Argyle Light Infantry.

PROTEST VOTED OUT

A meeting of the representatives of the Y. M. C. A. ten pin bowling league teams was held last night to consider the protest entered by the K. V. A. team. The protest was against the Excelsior team on the grounds of Russ. Woodley not bowling when the team bowled. Woodley bowled a three string score of 492 in the afternoon in the presence of Y.M.C.A. officials but did not have a Hydro man present. It was shown that Mr. Woodley followed a precedent in this matter as a member of another team who was unable to play in the evening had bowled during the afternoon. After considerable discussion the protest was voted down and the game a win for the Excelsiors was allowed to stand. A vote was unanimously recorded that in the future this privilege will not be granted to any player.

Y.M.C.A. BOWLING

Putting on a great burst of speed in their last string the Elliott Team pulled away from the Tabernacle Five and closed the game with a considerable lead on their rivals. G. W. Elliott with 514 was leading performer.

Great Sport in 14-Foot Dinghys

A genuine revival of interest in yachting in Canada is under way; how far the revival will go is uncertain, but the possibilities are great. Belleville helped materially to boost yachting interest by having the regatta at Massassaga under the auspices of the G.W.V.A., which was an outstanding success, and rekindled the fire of enthusiasm in yachting in Belleville, Trenton, and other Bay of Quinte ports, besides giving an impetus to the sport in Kingston.

From Commodore Casey, of the Kingston Yacht Club, to his friend, Capt. W. E. Schuster, Belleville, comes the glad news that yachting interest is stronger than ever in the Limestone City, with special attention being given to the 14-foot racing dinghy class, fifteen new boat houses being under construction to take care of the new dinghys ordered by members. Great sport is anticipated by members of the Kingston Yacht Club in dinghy races, both local and inter-club events.

Prices of larger yachts are prohibitive to many lovers of a "wet sheet and a flowing sea," but the 14-foot dinghy, costing $130, is a reasonable investment for the amount of sport to be got out of it in racing and cruising. The Kingston Yacht Club have a plan for financing the purchase of a number of these boats by their members on payment of an initial instalment of $50, nad expect to put a large fleet in the water next spring.

Belleville water sports should get the dinghy habit and see that this city is represented by some likely craft, which will strive to lower the colors of Kingston yachtsmen on occasion. Trenton, Picton and Deseronto can get in this strong, also, and let the finest of sport come back to the Bay of Quinte—not only good sport, but a means to educate the young men for the merchant marine and the British navy, a hardy race of Canadians for a Canadian merchant marine and for a Canadian navy, a profession than which there is none better,—healthy, educating and attractive, with the whole world of water to roam over, instead of being moored for life to one little Main Street, with the wildest attraction an occa-

PLAN REJECTED BY ULSTER

Can Not Accept Government's Plan for Settlement of the Irish Question.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited.

London., Nov. 11.—The Ulster Cabinet today rejected the Government's plan for the settlement of the Irish question on the ground that it contained fundamental principles which, under existing conditions were impossible of attainment. It is, however, putting forward counter proposals. A communique issued by the northern Ireland Cabinet suggests that the Government should consider these proposals before the proposed meeting of the British and Ulster Cabinets.

Ulster's objection to the plan is believed that it would deprive her of representation in the Imperial Parliament, which she regards as her strongest safeguard, and also that it would give the Sinn Fein a majority on the proposed central council for Ireland. Another objection was that the Sinn Fein majority would so adjust the taxation as to favor the agricultural south to the detriment of the manufacturing north.

the uproar, but he could get no further.

Now the chairman came to the front. He urged that there should be no more interruptions. But the crowd shouted the more.

More Exchanges

After the noise had subsided, Mr. Crerar sharply continued: "It is true we have built up industries and great cities. But I want to ask you what position these industries will be in if agriculture is not prosperous?"

"The farmer does not get the price unless the city worker buys from him," shouted another voice.

"I would prefer not to be interrupted," Mr. Crerar replied in warm tones. "I do not mind answering questions." He continued: "If agriculture is not prosperous, the country will not be prosperous and grass will grow in the streets of your cities." He then cited population statistics he has cited before to show that, in spite of immigration, the population of Canada is one and a half millions less at present than it should be. Where had those one and a half millions gone? he asked of his heck'ers.

"They have gone to a country under protection," came from the back of the hall, and there were cheers and jeers. A farmer was now heard, "They have gone on the farm," he ironically called out, "to work twenty hours a day for a dollar?" On this there was a roar of laughter.

"Where have the one and a half millions gone?" Mr. Crerar repeated.

"Some of them went overseas," came a retort from the crowd.

IN OSHAWA MAN'S BANK BOOK

Oshawa, Ont., Nov. 7.—A unique incident happened to John Komar, a foreigner residing in Oshawa. In 1915 Komar visited a firm of private bankers in Toronto. He gave $480.75 in Canadian currency to them on deposit. According to his statement, he was given credit for this amount in Canadian funds, or 3,700 roubles in Russian money. Interest at the rate of six per cent. was to be paid. The passbook issued by the bankers was lost by Komar. When he asked a new one it was issued, but in it he was only given credit for 3,700 roubles. Komar told his tale to a local solicitor, who took the matter up with the bankers, demanding a settlement. He has now received from the Toronto brokers the 3,700 roubles in Russian currency, worth at present, $3 in Canadian money. The solicitor is taking the matter up with the Crown Attorney at Toronto in an attempt to secure more than $3 for Komar.

MILITARY FUNERAL

The late William Blaind who served with the A.L.I. and 74th Bn. C.E.F. in which battalion he was very badly wounded and gassed at the Somme and which wounds have been the ultimate cause of his death, will be given a well deserved Military Funeral and to make this possible and in order to pay the best and last respects to a most gallant soldier and a man, the employers and all ex-service men are most respectfully requested to allow his comrades off for the funeral without deduction in pay. Without this sacrifice on the part of the employers it is practically impossible to do the justice due to the function and credit to Belleville G.W.V.A.

MANAGER PLAN TO BE VOTED ON

be kept to the front.

The following members were selected as delegates to the annual meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade to be held at Brantford: Messrs. J. O. Herity, J. Bone, H. W. Ackerman, Mayor Hanna, C. M. Reid, F. S. Deacon and B. F. Jennings.

The President and Secretary were authorized to procure three other members.

Industrial Situation

Mr. J. O. Herity gave a comprehensive account of his visit to certain industrial centres in the States also his attendance at the gathering of Industrial Secretaries at Madison, Wis. He also referred to local industries and what they were doing.

City Managership

Mr. J. Bone stated that he was not looking for the position of City Manager, although personally he was in favor of the scheme. Mr. Bone spoke of the city council refusing to remit the taxes upon the Chamber of Commerce to the extent of $180.

Mr. Herity said he would deny the rumor that he was looking for the position of city manager. The speaker stated that seven places in Canada were under city management system and from extracts read it showed that the system was working well and of great benefit to the places maintaining the system. The city manager plan was one of simplicity.

Mr. Bone asked if it was advisable to ask the City Council to again put a vote to the election on this question.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson thought the council could pass a by-law appointing a city manager who might also look after any other department he be over. Our council was by no means a weildly one.

Mr. M. Donnohue asked if it would be fair for the council to do this after the electors had decided against a city manager.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson—A city manager means the co-ordination of duties. There is no co-ordination at present as each manager is a manager in himself. We could try this matter out in appointing one as manager over all departments of the city. This would not mean a great expense.

Mr. C. M. Reid referred to the meeting held recently when the matter was thoroughly discussed. He would favor the passing of a resolution pressing upon the Council to again place this matter before the electors.

To his mind we should try something different as a change was desirable. He would move that this Chamber of Commerce ask the Council to place this matter again before the electors.

Mr. B. F. Jennings seconded the resolution and spoke heartily in favor of it. The Council should be impressed with the advisability of having a city managership.

Mr. A. McGie said the best men are not always available for the City Council. He suggested that some organization be formed and this organization pick out candidates for the Council.

Mr. Bone—The suggestion of Mr. McGie was a good one.

Mr. Ackerman—We are going to have a property owner's association and probably that organization will select some candidates for the City Council.

Mr. W. B. Deacon spoke in support of the motion, as it would be a mandate to the Council to act in the matter.

Mr. M. Robertson—The motion is a good one, but there was a possibility of the Council turning it down. He would favor an educational campaign being carried on in regard to this matter, after the Dominion elections is over. He was in favor of the system of the city manager system and procure the right man for the position.

Mr. C. M. Reid—I will by consent allow the motion to stand as a notice of motion until the matter has been more thoroughly discussed.

Mr. T. Blackburn—This was a large question and we should get busy and pick out representatives citizens as members of the City Council.

Mr. Ketcheson—See to it that the Aldermanic candidates are in favor of the city managership and elect those candidates.

Mr. W. B. Deacon—Procure a requisition largely signed by those in favor of the proposition and present it to the Council.

Mr. Reid's motion was unanimously adopted.

Mr. F. S. Anderson suggested that the members of the City Council be invited to the next meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

Meeting adjourned.

HOUSEWIVES WILL BE SPECIALLY INTERESTED IN EXHIBIT TRAIN

HERE SAT, NOV. 12

In order that the people of Canada may be informed of the extent of their own road, the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways, the great amount of equipment required to keep up a daily transcontinental service and other interesting facts about railway travel, officials have prepared a most interesting and informative souvenir booklet which will be given to every visitor at the Exhibition Train.

This train which was built in Canada by Canadian labor is a veritable travelling hotel and the public are entirely welcome to go through the express car, colonist car, tourist car, day coach, standard sleeping car and dining car. The ladies will be particularly interested in the compact excellently equipped kitchen in the dining car and attendants in charge will be glad to answer any questions regarding the train, its equipment, and travel in general.

Transportation and Your Safety

CAR SHORTAGES have already developed at many of the coal mines of the United States. Without cars to load, the mines cannot produce; without production of coal, the welfare of the public cannot be conserved.

So far the shortages have not been serious in proportions, but with cold weather arriving, it can be expected that they will increase and may materially hinder the movement of coal.

Safety to your family can be secured by immediately stocking your coal. Coal prices will not decrease, and they may advance, if a transportation emergency arises.

CANADIAN TRAIN CANADIAN BUILT

Standard Canadian National and Steel-built Train on Exhibition.

Today the model Canadian National train is on the Pinnacle Street siding open for the inspection of visitors all day.

The train as it is exhibited is of the same type as those which the Canadian National Railway employ in its daily across Canada service.

It is of outstanding interest in a two-fold sense. In the first place it shows the kind of locomotive and cars that are being used in the transcontinental service, while in the second place it is an ocular demonstration of the high class locomotives and railway cars which are being made in the factories of the Dominion.

The train is complete in every respect, being composed of sleeping car, dinink car, day coach, tourist car, colonist car and express car. Each car is the embodiment of the latest and most up-to-date ideas designed to secure for the traveller the maximun of comfort and safety. Steel equipment is employed in every instance.

Comforts of Home

Practically all the comforts of home life are provided by the sleeping car attached to the train. Those who desire more than the usual measure of sleeping car privacy, can by a simple device be accomodated with individual sections. The interior of the car is furnished in mahogany. Seats are of the latest design in friezette short nap. Lighting is by electricity throughout. The car is heated by the largest size Pullman standard type of hot water heater. Berths are equipped with the latest conveniences. The water supply is obtained from underfed tanks. By the electric-driven suction fans installed, the air of the car can be changed every twenty minutes. The cost of a car of this kind is $53,000.

Dining Car

The dining car has a seating capacity for thirty persons. It is finished in quarter-oak and is equipped with the latest innovations in respect to cooking facilities, lighting arrangements and the convenience of travellers. Housewives will be particularly interested in the kitchen. Among the features of its equipment are removable carving tables, hot tables for cooking meats and poultry, and a special arrangement for heating cups and dishes. Refrigerators are equipped with the Bohn system of refrigeration, separate compartments being provided for poultry, meats, milk and vegetables. Stewards, chefs and waiters are on hand to explain equipment and reveal the mysterious appertaining to the kitchen and dining room of a travelling hotel. Cost entailed in building and equipping a dining car such as the one on exhibition is $46,000.

Cross Canadian Trip De Luxe

To the average citizen who may be contemplating a cross-Canada trip in a less expensive way than the standard sleeper, the tourist car shown is of particular interest. It is just as substantially built as the standard sleeper and is exceedingly well equipped with modern conveniences, but is less luxuriously furnished. The car is lighted by electricity, one peculiar feature of which is the location of electric lamps under the seats for use at night when the ceiling lights are out. The car is also equipped with a modern kitchen, containing range, refrigerator, sink, cupboard, etc. for the convenience of travellers who wish to provide their own meals. This car costs $39,000.

Colonist Car

Another car that will probably be of particular interest to many is the colonist car. The car shown is of an improved type, and is such as is used

"TOUCH" SYSTEM NOT A REAL CURE

Montreal, Nov. 11.—Two middle-aged women called upon Joseph Paquette, 955 Dorchester street and informed him that they could cure his rheumatism by "hypnotic influence." In fact, they were so sure of their ability to relieve him that they offered to demonstrate their "miraculous powers" for nothing. Accordingly, Paquette, who was willing to try anything once, permitted them to make mysterious passes before his eyes. "I smelt a funny smell," said he to-day, "but thought nothing of it. When I my rheumatism was worse, and $35 I had in my trouser pocket was missing."

INFLUENCE ALL HUMAN PROGRESS

Washington Conference to Have Great Influence for the Good of the Nations.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—After welcoming the delegates to the Armament Conference this morning, President Harding in his address, declared that it was no unseemly boast, no disparagement of other antions, though not represented, to declare that "the conclusions" of this body will have a signal influence on all human progress."

He said it was not a conference of victors to define terms of settlement, nor was it a Council of Nations seeking to remake humankind. It was rather a coming together from all parts of the earth to apply the better attributes of mankind and to minimize faults in international relationship. "Speaking as official sponsor for the invitation I think I may say the call is not of the United States alone," declared the President, "It is rather the spoken word of a war-wearied world, struggling for restoration, hungering and thirsting for better relationship, of humanity crying for relief and craving assurances of lasting peace."

WOULD WIPE OUT ALL PROTECTION

Progressive Leader States Position to Toronto Audience

HELP AGRICULTURE

Crerar, However, Would Give Industry Time to Adjust Itself.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Toronto, centre of industrialism, staunch champion of protection, gave Hon. T. A. Crerar the largest meeting of his present tour when it set before him in Massey Hall last night an audience that crowded the auditorium to capacity. The fact that between three and four thousand people gathered to hear the Progressive leader outline his policy does not indicate that Toronto is wavering in its devotion to the long-established trade policy of the Dominion. Like the meetings of the other two Federal leaders, that staged by the U.F.O. in Massey Hall last night was largely a ticket affair, and by the time the ticket holders, perhaps a thousand of whom were from the rural districts of North and West York alone, had been taken care of, only a few hundred seats remained for the line-up of people who had elected to "rush" it. Such of them as were able to get in filled the blanks in the upper galleries.

RECEPTION AND PLEASING CONCERT

Splendid Musical Program By Goodsell's—Addresses Delivered.

The members of Benjamin L. O. L. No. 274 gave a reception and concert Tuesday night at the Lodge rooms which was largely attended by members and their friends. The Rev. A. L. Geen, Master of the Lodge took charge of the proceedings and extended a few words of welcome to those present, after which he called upon Ven. Archdeacon Beamish and Rev. George Marshall, who delivered stirring addresses, pointing out the benefits of the Orange Order and emphasizing the fact that the principles of the Order were a guarantee for the exercise of both civil and religious liberty and did not deny the rights of citizens to worship their Creator in the Roman Catholic Religion or any other religion

Goodsell's, which is now recognized as one of the splendid musical organizations of the City, furnished a number of selections during the evening. Mrs. C. A. Campbell and Miss Georgiana Ruttan displayed an amount of dramatic ability in rendering a number of selections, that places them in front rank of Belleville's talented elocutionists. Little Asa Lloyd also pleased the guests with children's recitations. Miss N. Mann's vocal selections were of a high order and well received. Major Blaker, and Alex Lacey distinguished themselves as humorous entertainers and merited the many encores which they received. Mrs. Col. Campbell acted as accompanist in her most acceptable manner. After what was regarded as one of the best entertainments of the Lodge, dainty refreshments were served.

ULSTER IS FIRM IN ITS REFUSAL

Declines to Enter All-Ireland Parliament With the Sinn Fein.

MOVE UNEXPECTED

Griffith States They Will Not Negotiate With Northerners.

London, Nov. 12.—With dramatic suddenness, when the Irish skies seemed clearer than at any time since Ulster entered the negotiations, Sir James Craig dropped a bomb-shell in Downing Street when he telephoned Lloyd George that under no circumstances would Northern Ireland enter an all-Ireland Parliament with the Sinn Fein.

The momentous decision was taken after a two-hour conference at the Ulster Cabinet at the Hotel Savoy, and it received the unanimous approval of the Craig Cabinet.

The unexpected move on the part of the Ulsterites surprised the British Premier, who immediately called a full Cabinet session to consider the proposition. Arthur Griffith, head of the Irish delegation, was informed by Lloyd George of the Craig decision. Griffith made no comment.

It was learned at the hotel that Craig had left with the leading members of his Cabinet for Belfast, where it is expected that the situation will be placed before the Northern Parliament, after which a complete formal draft of the Ulster decision will be transmitted to Lloyd George by telegram.

The Sinn Fein officials later added another difficulty to Lloyd George's position by announcing their refusal to negotiate in any manner with the Northerners.

A communique issued by the Northern Ireland Cabinet suggests that the Government should consider these counter-proposals before the proposed meeting of the British and Ulster Cabinets.

SUSPECT MURRELLS ARE IN FLORIDA

"Tip" Comes to London Police and Flood of Circulars Issued.

London, Ont., Nov. 11.—The London police have been "tipped" that William and Sidney Murrell, alleged murderers of Russel Campbell at Mebourne last spring, and who escaped from the local jail two months ago, are in Florida, and the officers are busy sending out circulars to Chiefs of Police and Sherriffs of the Southern States warning them to be on the lookout for the fugitives and secure the $5,000 reward offered for their capture.

SOVIET-RUSSIA'S IDEA

Riga, Nov. 12.—Soviet Russia's idea of the Washington Conference, as expressed by Karl Redek of Third Internationale, is that it will not actually discuss disarmament but will be only a new inter-grouping of world powers for further division of spoils of war.

NO RESPECT FOR NATION'S HEROES

Actress Rebukes Unpatriotic Passenger Who Refused to Observe Silent Tribute.

When the Hullo! Canada" company were coming in on the train from Peterboro Friday morning the train was stopped at eleven o'clock for the two-minute's silence in respect of the heroic dead in common with the custom prevailing in the entire Empire Armistice Day. Each one of the company and the passengers stood with bared heads in reverent silence until the starting of the train signalized the end of the two-minute period. All stood, except one passenger, a man, who refused to pay this little tribute of respect to our heroes of the silent, invisible army. The dissenter was severely taken to task by Miss Shirley Kellogg and other members of the company, and that man's last state was worse than his first.

TEAR DOWN WALL OF PREJUDICE

Said Rt. Rev. Bishop Brewing, and All Work Together for Good.

WOMEN BANQUET

First Meeting of Women's Canadian Club for Season Marked by Banquet.

"Never let the grass grow on the pathway to the home of your friend," quoted Rt. Rev. Bishop Brewing, of Toronto, who addressed the Women's Canadian Club of Belleville, at their initial meeting for the season. The Bishop emphasized the wisdom of keeping open the roads of communication between nations as between individuals in order to inspire a wider fellowship, friendship and co-operation in helpful endeavor for the betterment of humanity, and gave some instances showing the need of a broadening out policy in everyday life. A family living near his church in Toronto go across the city every Sunday to attend a distant church and pay fifty cents car fare for the family of five, while another family of four living close to the church in question arise early every Sunday and come across the city on the street cars to his church at a cost of forty cents for fares. There seemed to something wrong about this. When Rome was walled in the decline and fall of the Roman Empire began, similarly China began to decay when the great wall was built, we cannot live to ourselves alone and unless our lives are large and wide enough to take in everything that is good wew ill be as the walled city.

The success of the first gathering of the Women's Canadian Club for the 1921-22 season, maye be taken a happy augury of good things to come and great interest is taken in the program of speakers arranged for, which promises entertainment and education in large and satisfying quantities. Mrs. (Dr.) Marshall presided at the opening banquet at the Hotel Quinte, Friday and a hearty vote of thanks was moved to Bishop Brewing for his fine address in appreciative terms by Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn, seconded by Miss Fraleck.

A pleasant feature of the event was the presence of Mrs. Albert de Courville, star of the Hullo! Canada, production under the stage name of Shirley Kellogg. Mrs. de Courville was asked to say a few words and spoke briefly, expressing her great appreciation at the honor of being a guest of the Belleville ladies and her love for Canada, although American born and English wed. Such an affection for this wonderful Canada had been enkindled, said Mrs. de Courville that she treasured the hope of some time being able to live in it forever and a day.

Optimistic, eloquent and uplifting was the speech of Bishop Brewing, and he called particular attention to the opening up of public affairs to women and the increased responsibility this entailed, also the duty of the ballot and woman's influence for good in every walk of life. Canada is particularly fortunate in having less of the after-the-war afflictions than any other nation and being in such a good condition financially and every other way. Canada has a great future and every Canadian has a part to play in shaping Canada's destiny for good. Canada stands in a splendid strategic position, close to the great nation known as the United States, and closer to the heart beats of England and the great British Empire, the bridge of friendship which will unite the Anglo-Saxon world in one bond of unity for the peace and prosperity of the whole world.

Punctuating and illuminating the speaker's address were many apt anecdotes, wise and witty, which served to illustrate his points. He told of meeting an old lady and asking after her health. She was feeling very well, she said, except that she'd just been to an Optimist. When our material eyes go wrong said the Bishop, we go to an Oculist, but when our spiritual eyes go wrong we should consult an Optimist.

All present were very much edified and inspired by the address of Bishop Brewing which was entertaining, educational and uplifting.

James Murdock alleged at Toronto that Hon. Chas. Doherty and Sir George Foster interfered with Commerce Board.

MONTREAL.

How Canada's Largest City Received Its Name.

It was Jacques Cartier, the intrepid French explorer, who was the first white man to view the site of Montreal. On October 3, 1535, he came up the St. Lawrence river and entered for the first time the Indian village of Hochelaga.

He found it a circular encampment of about fifty tunnel-like cabins, fifty feet long and fifteen feet wide. The whole community was surrounded by no less than three encircling rows of pickets, one row within the other.

Behind the village was a rather pronounced elevation in the land, too slight to be called a mountain but so high that when Cartier climbed it he could view the land "for thirty leagues about.' So impressed was he with the wonderful view he obtained of the St. Lawrence from this hill, he named it "Mount Royal" in honor of the king, his master. Thus is was nearly 400 years ago that the name that was the original of "Montreal" came into being.

But Hochelaga was still an Indian settlement, and it retained its old name for more than a century after Cartier saw it first. It was not until 1640 that a group of people in France formed themselves into an association to establish a settlement beneath Mount Royal. The King of France ceded them the entire island and in the following year, M. de Maisonneuve, one of the thirty-five associates, brought out several families from France and was appointed governor of the settlement, which was called Ville Marie.

Parkman describes the interesting ceremony with which Maisonneuve took possession of the island and quotes the great leader as saying to his sturdy band of followers: "You are the grain of mustard seed that shall rise and grow till its branches overshadow the earth. You are few, but this work is the work of God. His smile is on you and your children shall fill the land."

Four hundred years later we may view the great city of Montreal with its 800,000 people and credit Maisonneuve with the gift of prophecy.

Ville Marie remained the name of the village for the first few years of its existence when it was threatened by Indian raids and pillages and when its inhabitants called into play their every shred of courage and bravery to sustain them in their struggles. But gradually the name of the mountain was applied to the settlement as well. Ville Marie became Mount Royal and in the course of time the name has become corrupted to Montreal.

Products of the Fish.

"Salmon loaf," a paste made by mixing salmon flesh with flour and other ingredients, is now put up in cans for market by several packers on the Pacific coast.

One leading packer is canning a "straight salmon" paste, with admixture of oil and spices.

A cannery on Chilkoot Inlet, is putting up smoked salmon shaved to thin strips, like dried beef, and packed in oil. It is exceedingly palatable, and specially good for sandwiches.

Another canning concern is packing salmon fish-balls, which are prepared by grinding the fish fine, cooking and seasoning with spices. They have only to be warmed over to be ready to seat.

Still another firm has been experimenting with the manufacture of wienerwurst sausages from salmon and halibut. Another company, on the Columbia river, put up in cans so-called "fish pudding," made by grinding salmon flesh and mixing it with milk and eggs. It did not prove a success commercially.

A market for much of the waste of the salmon fisheries has been found with farmers and poultrymen, who are demanding great quantities of fish meal and scrap for mixing with other feed for cattle, hogs and chickens. This fish food causes animals to take on weight rapidly.

Liquor served in the suite of Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle, film star, during the party in which Miss Rappe is alleged to have sustained fatal injuries, has been traced to a source in Vancouver, B.C. A witness had been found who had definitely traced the supply, although Arbuckle may not have known that the liquor came from that point.

Owing to the good food and care now provided in English prisons, it is said the inmates usually put on flesh and become much healthier.

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

LAUGHED BUTTONS OFF

B.B.—After Harry Tate's auto show at Griffin's last night, I saw Manager Forhan picking up buttons busted off by the hearty laughers. There was quite a slew of them and George says the owners can have them by calling at the box office. He has also a few old chews of gum not called for.

WAITING AT CHURCH

W.R.—I am told for a fact that Bishop Brewing was so taken up by the hospitality of the Belleville Woman's Canadian Club that he missed his train and missed a wedding which he had arranged to officiate at in Toronto. I have heard of the bride waiting vainly at the church for the bridegroom, but this is the first time I have heard of both bride and groom waiting for the officiating clergyman.

BOY NEVER HAD A CHANCE

C.R.—I see that Judge Mott who presides over the Juvenile Court at Toronto is to address the Children's Aid Society members Monday evening in the Y.M.C.A. Judge Mott is the Judge Ben Lindsey of Canada and a friend of the "boy who has never had a chance." He should receive a right royal welcome in Belleville as he is a man with a punch and has a message of unusual interest to those who put service above self.

WOMAN CITY MANAGER

A.I.—Having visited cities in the United States where there are City Managers I asked my women friends there how they liked the system. Their replies indicated that they did not like it at all and one woman said if you want an old busybody poking his nose in everywhere even in your garbage can, get a City Manager but for us he is impossible. This led me to wonder if we must have a City Manager why not a WOMAN, bright brisk and energetic. Who ever heard of a woman grafter?

RECKLESS DRIVING

A.E.—Now that slush is the predominating feature of our streets autoists need to be careful. On Friday I saw a car come tearing down Pinnacle street and in making the Bridge street turn he slewed around and his hind wheel hit the curb, sadly wrecking it. (The wheel of the car not the curb).

AUDIENCE IMPROVED

A.G.—At the conclusion of every show at Griffin's Theatre when, and sometimes before, the orchestra plays "God Save Our King" a large number of people grab their hats and beat it. At the "Hullo Canada" performance everyone in the audience remained standing to the very last. Whether the people have woke up at last to the fact that they cast a slur on their King and Country when they leave before the National Anthem is played through.

SHIMMY SHAMERS

P.D.Q.—I may be old fashioned but these modern dances get my angora for fair. Not long ago as a spectator at a dance I saw a nice looking girl dancing with a boy about her own age and their faces were glued together like the Siamese Twins. That was a new one on me but I am told that it is the regular thing and that the shimmy and toddle are as different from the stately minuet and lancers as heaven differs from that place where the ex Kaiser belongs. This is an age of liberty but liberty is fast becoming license and the rising generation is stepping altogether too fast for their own good and the good of the nation. Time Paw went on strike and moral suasion was replaced by wholesome spanking exercises, before all decency is burned up by cigarette girls and shimmy shamers.

GO TO SCHOOL

X.Y.Z.—I see that a new school attendance office has been appointed. Well, there is certainly work for a conscientious man in Belleville. There are children living on my street who are kept home for weeks at a time when there is nothing wrong with them. There are others—who stay home any day they choose. It is too bad parents do not realize their responsibility in seeing that their children attend school regularly. When I went to school, if I was away for a day I had to bring a satisfactory note to the teacher next day from my parents. If I was away two days I was called on by the Attendance Officer and if my parents could not give a satisfactory account for my absence they would have been summoned to the police court and been admonished or paid a fine. I think this could be practised with success in Belleville.

SHOCKING SHELLS!

MR. M—E K—G, 'Loquitur.

I was walking, I was walking
By the ocean's briny marge;
I was thinking, I was thinking
Of my mission, by and large,
To free my waiting country
From the evil of Tory greed,
And to give her of my greatness
The place that is her meed.
I saw a ship of Canada
(The Runner she is called),
From out which mighty winches
Huge packs of freightage hauled,
And swung through quivering atmosphere
And landed on our shore,
And I wondered, O I wondered
What she was bringing o'er.

I asked an ancient sailorman,
Who toiled upon the docks,
What were the mighty contents
Of each enormous box,
He twitched his tarry trousers
Above his bulging hips,
As is the usual custom
Of those who live in ships,
He rolled his quid within his mouth:
He fixed me with his eye;
He sighed anon, and then again,
And one word let he fly:

"Shells!"

Shells!
Hell's
Bells!

I was speechless for the moment,
For the first time in my life
No word relieved the passion
Of my brain's most awful strife.
Is it war, bloody war,
That they're bringing these shells
for?
Shall I have to go again to the States?
To escape the horrid din
Of the war-god's raging sin,
Oh, Saint of Economics, ward off this stroke of fate's.

Or is it —Ah, I have it.
'Tis Tory greed again,
No danger here awaits me.
Come forth, my trusty pen.
I must write to Arthur Meighen
And apprise him I have found
What will cause both Grit and Tory
Him from public life to hound.

Shells! Shells! the people's money,
That's the song to sing,
Shells! Shells the people's money
Me to power will bring,
When, where, how and why
O, Arthur, now you're on the hip
Without a single therefore.

I thank thee, god of politics,
Who, of thy gracious care,
Placed in my hand this lever
To hoist him from his chair.
Thou knowest thy selection
Of me to do thy will
Has been most wise, and ever
I'll use my utmost skill.

HULLO CANADA WAS A DELIGHT

Large Audience Highly Entertained by Harry Tate, Shirley Kellogg and Talented English Players.

THANKS VERY MUCH, Mgr. Forhan, for a good laugh a long laugh, all wool, a yard wide and two hours long, with Harry Tate, Shirley Kellogg and the other comeovers in 'Hullo Canada' at Griffin's Theatre Friday evening. Without a doubt this is one of the best attractions ever presented in Belleville and the top-notcher of the Trans-Canada Company productions shown thus far. It is perfectly safe to say that every member of the large audience present enjoyed every minute of 'Hullo Canada,' and many are laughing yet, for the humor generated by Harry Tate and his fellow conspirators is the kind which does not wear off for a while. "Thank you very much," said Harry, "Have some yourself," say we.

The 'Hullo Canada' company felt very much at home coming to Belleville, as they had been anticipating the visit on account of invitations to celebrate Armistice Day with the G.W.V.A. of Belleville. Harry Tate's splendid service behind the lines in France in entertaining the boys, chasing the blues away and spilling a whole barrel of fun, was not forgotten, nor indeed the services of many of the leading actors and actresses of England in entertaining the soldiers during the war. A banquet in the Hotel Quinte to Miss Kellogg and Mr. Tate before the show and a buffet lunch and social hour i the armouries after the show for the company indicated the glad hand of fellowship extended by the energetic officers and members of Belleville G.W.V.A.

The production was perfect in every detail, principals, chorus, scenery, costuming and music. The company carries its own orchestra and this lent added enjoyment. The curtain went up promptly at 8.15 as advertised, and, as we expected, caught many in the lobby and aisles, for Belleville theatre patrons being hardly ever on time could hardly be expected to be ahead of time.

Near the close of the program a handsome bouquet of flowers was presented, on behalf of the G.W.V.A. to Miss Shirley Kellogg by little Miss Margaret Finkle, daughter of Mr. E. D. Finkle, President of the local veterans' association.

There were several features which stood out above all others with regard to the 'Hullo Canada' production and its company of talented players. One feature was the beauty, ability and refinement of the wonderful chorus of many young English girls. Every voice in that chorus was as sweet as a bell. Splendid dexterity was in evidence in the multitudinous dances. Every song number was rendered with exceptional articulation so that words, for once, really mattered. The faces and forms of the young ladies in the back row were as pretty as the sweet songsters in the front. The main costumes were grand—exquisite. Moreover they were crisply clean.

Shirley Kellogg, one of England's best comediennes, quickly won the hearts of every person in the audience because of her apparent sincerity—apart from her fine voice and pleasing stage presence. Harry Tate, the leading comedian also made an instantaneous hit. Billie Holland, as the manager of the show, also earned brackets because of his splendid work. His singing in the Versailles number was very much out of the ordinary and he was encored repeatedly. Len Mence, as a Hindu, also displayed a very creditable voice. Praise can be given to every principal in the whole company and it is evident that Mr. de Courville has spared no pains or expense to secure a highly efficient organization. One of those who stood out as a specialist was W. A. Wania, whose whirling character dances were thrilling. Miss Kellogg possesses wonderful personality, while her vocal capabilities are pronounced.

Harry Tate was particularly effective in the fourth scene, "Rehearsing a Melodrama," and as a golfer; also in the scene where the famous automobile is sold. Indeed, as the virtues of the ramshackle contraption are extolled and he remarks it is a shame to sell it, the audience is convulsed with laughter when the son, Tom Tweedley adds, "No, it is a crime." From the moment of his first appearance until the end of the performance Tate keeps his audience at the fever pitch of amusement with his rollicking humor.

The costumes of the ballet were unusually effective. The scenes, "Spinning Tops," "India," "In Old Versailles" and "The Lampshade" presented color combinations that were gorgeous and bewildering.

Henri Rosen as "The Fiddler," an eccentric violinist, was rewarded with a furore of applause.

Several of the scenes were gorgeously staged. For instance, the Lampshade number, Chinese scene, the Versailles set, and the India feature were exceedingly brilliant both as to bizarre costumes and unique stagecraft. There were several song numbers which were very tuneful including "All Pull Together" and "An Old World Melody." There had been considerable talk about the bringing of Mr. C. F. Cowlrick to Canada to conduct the orchestra. After seeing and hearing the show it is realized that an able leader familiar with every detail is essential because real attention is paid to music and expression.

In conclusion, reference should be made to one dance specialty by the beauty chorus, in which the young ladies follow a maze of movements which suddenly terminates in the formation of a huge Union Jack in silken colors. As a general rule, flag waving is only done to save a poor show, but in this case it is entirely different. The stunt proves to be a sensation.

WORDS OF AUTHORITY.

A SERMON FOR THE "SHUT-IN"—THOSE WHO ARE UNABLE TO ATTEND CHURCH SERVICES THROUGH ILLNESS OR INFIRMITY.

By Rev. W. H. Wallace, Pastor of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church.

"Freely ye have received, freely give."—Matt. x:8.

These few words of authority form a very small part of our Lord's commission to the Twelve when He was sending them forth on their mission of mercy. "And as ye go, preach, saying The Kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers, cast out demons: freely ye have received, freely give. Our text can only have its true emphasis and its true meaning can only be understood as we give it in its setting. Let us not only recall its textual setting, but also its historical and practical. The words of our text will receive additional weight and illumination when we recall the words in the gospel according to Luke: "To whom much is given of him shall much be required." And again, the words of Peter: "As ye have received the gift, even so minister the same, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God." This commission to the Twelve has been abrogated by Christ, as to its scope and equipment, but its spirit remains, also the part we have chosen as our text, as later scriptures, including the great commission, bear out and make clear the wider scope. It is no longer the lost sheep of the house of Israel"—the Christ rejectors—we are commissioned to care for, but "all the world." This is 1921 Anno Domini—we are in the twentieth century of the Christian era and the world still remains to be evangelized. "Go ye and preach the gospel to all nations" is a charge that is yet to be fulfilled. Over two-thirds of the earth's inhabitants have never heard the glad tidings; they sit in darkness and in the shadow of death. What are we doing to meet the appalling need? We should face the command, "Go ye," and if we cannot answer it and are sure in our hearts the Lord is not calling us to leave all we hold dear on earth, perhaps we can answer the command that is not so hard and still have a part in the great commission. The Lord has made it possible for every one of us in this favored land to help those who are in need in this and other lands.

The Fact Stated.

"Freely ye have received."

We know that these words had a peculiar and primary bearing on the "Twelve;" they had received power to do phenomenal things in order, we suppose, to give authority to their message. We are only ordinary people, simply believers in Jesus; but we are under greater obligation than those men; they received authority and power in order to do wonderful things; but we have received life by believing on Jesus, and we have power and authority to be God's children because we have received God's Son as our Saviour and Lord. And since we have believed on Jesus we have received some spiritual gifts in order to have a part in perfecting the Body of Jesus. As stewards of God we have received the manifold grace of God. God has been giving and we have been receiving. And since we have received Jesus we have learned of another who has power to impart different gifts for our ministry of the gospel, and to the saints, even the Holy Spirit who alone can reveal, so that we might discern the deep things of God. What have we of natural or spiritual endowments that we have not received? God is the giver of all and we are the recipients of His gifts. "Of His fulness have all we received, and grace for grace."

"Freely ye received" all the material prosperity that the Father hath graciously bestowed. Again the question applies here: "What have we that we have not received?" Thank God for the sun and rain, the strength of arm and brain, the blessings He hath caused to come our way. Better than all material prosperity is the blessing of peace. Thank God who maketh wars to cease and breaketh the spear in sunder. God is kind to the unthankful and the evil as well as to the good. We have read of the Rabbinic legend that tells of Abraham entertaining a stranger who had lived over 100 years. Abraham had noticed when the food was set before him there was no sign of thanksgiving. And in anger Abraham drove him from his tent. But when God told the patriarch that he had put up with the man 100 years, he, Abraham, could surely put up with him for one day. On this the old thankless man was brought back to receive Abraham's hospitality.

But surpassing all material gifts, consider the spiritual gifts we have received. "God, who spared not His own son but delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things?" What a spiritual heritage is ours! Who can estimate the unspeakable riches of grace. We are the heirs of all the promises. They are yea and amen to those who are in Christ. Thank God for the Bible, the Christian's Magna Charta. Thanks be to God for religious liberty. Bunyan, Milton and a host of others would rejoice to see our day. I believe some of them saw it coming and were glad to suffer in order to bring the blessing to others. Thank God for the privilege of interpreting the Bible for ourselves, and praying for ourselves and others through the one Mediator. But do we thank God for ability and opportunity for service? This is our crowning privilege. How eagerly angels would take our place if they could. But God has put the treasure in earthen vessels that the glory and praise might be all His own. The opportunity to help extend the kingdom of heaven is God-given. Do we prize it? What are we doing with all these blessings?

The Command.

"Freely Give."

We must give more. We are missing much by restraining our giving. Jesus has said "It is more blessed to give than to receive. And again, 'Give and it shall be given unto you; good meaure, pressed down, shaken together and running over, shall they give unto your bosom." Again, "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." What shall we say to all these conditional promises; are we prepared to accept them and fulfil the conditions? The Lord help us to be faithful.

We should adopt the good principle of proportionate giving. As the Lord prospers, so give. "According as each received the gift, even so minister the same. The Lord accepts free-will offerings—"As a man purposeth in his heart so let him give." Is the following proportion fair?

Brother John Smith, , in account with his Master, the Lord of the whole earth:

Dr.
To 10 showers of rain on his field at $25 per shower ..	$250.00
2 extra showers at a critical period, $50 each	100.00
60 days of sunshine at $5 each	300.00
	$650.00
Cr.
Per contra:
Pastor's salary	$ 10.00
Home Missions	.25
Foreign Missions	.10
	$10.35

Shows a heavy balance against John Smith even if he had given ten times as much, for the farm is the Lord's.

In order to give a fair proportion we must adopt the greater principle—all we have belongs to the Lord. God gave us all we have—freely. How should we treat God? Surely with a generous spirit. "Freely ye received, freely give."

We must get away from and above the "duty" of giving, and learn "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

We might with profit reverse the order of the text and say: "Freely give and freely receive," in keeping with that other text, "Give, and it shall be given unto you." This is true between man and man. Be sympathetic with a man and he will be so with you.

This is true between ourselves and life. A man can only get out of life according to what he puts into it, or applies himself to the different spheres of activity—physical, social, moral, intellectual and spiritual. This is true also between ourselves and God. If we give ourselves to prayer and trust God more we shall surely receive more. If we give ourselves to the ministry of the gospel we shall grow in grace and become rich in spiritual life..

A COUPLE OF BEAR STORIES

From the Manitoba Weekly

Bears are usually credited with more than ordinary intelligence, and curiosity is one of their strong points. On Saturday last a bruin visited the farm of Frank Pelchard at Ethelbert. He entered the granary, where he found a case of creamery butter and helped himself to a number of bricks. In some way the granary door became closed, and Mr. Bruin found himself a prisoner. There was a window in the granary, but rather high up for his bearship. There was a small trunk in the granary, and on this he stood up and tore the window from its frame and placed it beside the trunk without breaking the glass, and then crawled through the opening. Later he visited the farm of a neighbour and helped himself to a can of milk, and made his escape.

From the Owen Sound Sun-Times

The tug Wahnapitae from Penetang came into port on Tuesday to take the badge McGill out. The men on the tug have a strange pet in the form of a black bear which was captured at Spanish River. The bear is about a year old, has been on the tug for two weeks, and is not particularly tame.

The Safety of Mutual Insurance

THERE is no safer investment than life insurance.

If the Mutual Life of Canada were to stop selling life insurance and just continued in force the policies now on the books, the resources of the Company would not only pay all claims as they occurred, but there would remain a splendid surplus to be distributed in the form of dividends.

As a proof of the safety of Mutual Life Insurance, let us see how the immense assets of the Company are invested.

Government Bonds	$7,721,631.55
City Debentures	3,504,151.94
Town Debentures	1,293,465.72
Village Debentures	154,631.35
Township and Rural Municipalities..	649,283.58
County Debentures	151,783.61
School	1,676,248.68
Rural Telephone	1,422,201.80
Railway Bonds	1,617,713.68
Miscellaneous Bonds & Debentures	1,203,459.12
Mortgages	14,934,368.52
Policy Loans	5,335,268.01
Real Estate	1,059,987.73
Sundries	2,123,081.96
	$42,847,277.25

Among all these millions, there are no speculative securities. Safety First, Last and All The Time is the motto of the Mutual Life of Canada.

As an additional precaution, the investments are widely distributed in every province in Canada and in a variety of sound, safe securities.

Working on this careful system has resulted in the unusual and highly desirable combination of well-secured principal with a high interest-earning rate.

The prudent, conservative business man will find in the Mutual's system of investing its funds a very strong reason for the purchase of Mutual Life Insurance.

OUR LADY OF THE SNOWS.

Hark! the merry sleigh bells! Don't they sound good? And after we have been dreading the advent of winter! Yesterday was summer's older sister, autumn, with the trees all brown and gold and the ground soft carpeted in russet glory; then came the white mantle of winter from the frosty northland and the entire picture is changed. Snow, snow, snow, here, there and everywhere, giving work for the unemployed in shovelling paths, and giving rich and rare enjoyment to the little children in the snow-balling defending the fort, fighting the Huns, washing faces and slipping an occasional handful down somebody's back to the accompaniment of shrieks of laughter and chilly enthusiasm. It is the infinite variety of the Canadian climate which makes it so glorious. Winter's first instalment is welcome as showing us that there are grand and glorious days to be enjoyed in the winter season, just as there are lovely days in summer to be looked forward to. The variety and contrasts of the Canadian climate add to the appreciation of each changing cycle, and makes for good health and a progressive people.

BELLEVILLE WATER GATE FOR INTERNATIONAL TRAFFIC.

From New York City to Belleville and Bay of Quinte ports is a direct water route via the Erie Canal and Lake Ontario. This is the logical route for coal and other merchandise for distribution in Central Ontario, also for exports to the United States from Ontario. Belleville, with its splendid harbor facilities and government wharf and warehouse is the natural gateway for water-borne traffic to and from Central Ontario, and the utilization of this route with Belleville and Oswego as the keys will help to relieve congestion on other routes and give a much quicker service.

Recognizing the importance of Belleville as the water gateway for international commerce, E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., accompanied by Capt. Wm. Schuster, importer, and B. L. Hyman, Harbor Commissioner, visited Oswego and took the matter up direct with the Chamber of Commerce at that place and large shipping interests in the United States, with the result that widespread attention was directed to the advantages of this transportation artery. A campaign of publicity was also waged on both sides of the line with good results, The Intelligencer devoting a large amount of space to the project.

Thus far heavy shipments of coal and other merchandise has come in through the Belleville water gate, and Chemical Products, Limited, of Trenton, the new chemical industry in that town, is routing their raw material from New York to Trenton via Erie Canal, Lake Ontario, Bay of Quinte all-boat route. An initial shipment of ten thousand tons is being handled by a fleet of seven boats, and the indications are that this is but a beginning of a revival of shipping industry with Belleville as the centre, and all Bay of Quinte ports benefitting.

HAMILTON CHILDREN PLAY HOOKEY FROM SUNDAY SCHOOL.

A Hamilton minister, at the request of the principal of one of the public schools in that city, prepared a list of eight questions as a test of the students' knowledge of the Bible. Here are the questions:

How many commandments are there?
What happened on Christmas day many hundred years ago?
In what town was Jesus born?
Who was the mother of Jesus?
How many disciples did Jesus call?
Name one of them.
On what day was Jesus crucified?
On what day did He rise from the dead?

It will be seen that the questions are not very difficult. The higher critics might dispute over some of them, as for instance, the place and the date of the birth of Jesus, and the day on which He rose from the dead; but any child brought up in a Christian home might be expected to answer all of them. Yet of the 160 students of the Hamilton school to whom the questions were submitted, not one was able to answer all correctly. Two gave seven correct answers, five had six correct, 26 had three correct, and 192 had but one correct.

It is a poor showing; but what is the remedy? Is it part of the duty of the public school to give religious instruction? On this question there is a lack of agreement. Some people take the ground that the State should have nothing to do with religious instruction. Others seem to be afraid that religious instruction might come to mean instruction in some particular religion. Perhaps the great majority of people are indifferent. The school law provides that the children shall be allowed to receive such religious instruction as their parents desire; but there is little, if any, attempt made to take advantage of the provision.

The Hamilton Herald, commenting on the matter, declares that it should be unnecessary to have religious instruction in the public schools. The Sunday School and the home are the proper places for that, it adds. But if both the Sunday School and the home fail in their duty, what then?

There is, of course, another side to the question. A man may have a very good working knowledge of his religious duty and he may give convincing evidence of that knowledge in his every-day life, without being able to answer correctly even elementary Bible questions; whereas, on the other hand, a man's head may be full of quotations from the Bible and yet his life may fail to show the influence of its teachings.

Still it is rather shocking to think of children growing up in a Christian country in ignorance of the Bible.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Hon. Manning Doherty shows signs of being impregnated with the "broadening out" policy enunciated by Hon. Ernest Drury, but not worked to any extent by that astute politician as yet. Hon. Mr. Doherty is against too much paternalism in government and states the farmers should carry on their own organizations as business propositions instead of expecting to have them pap-fed by the government. It is quite possible that Messrs. Drury, Doherty, et al., are getting wider visions as the result of their residence at Queen's Park and travels about the continent and overseas.

"Mr. Mackenzie King's shell-shocked political peregrinations," is Hon. Mr. Crerar's contribution to the loud and lusty Ha! Ha! at the mirage Mackenzie saw at Levis of war, red war, coming up the river in ships. However, Mackenzie King may not be so slow, after all, for his shell story will make the peas rattle in Quebec and make Meighen's efforts to banish hate and jealousy even harder yet. "Silly-aws" things like this shell story may produce nothing but laughter in Ontario, but have an entirely reverse effect in Quebec, where the astute trouble makers can twist it to suit their purpose in the back townships among the simple habitant folk, and that is probably what it was intended for—a dud to frighten the habitants away from the Meighen camp.

WHOLESOME SHOCKS

If the church hopes to influence young people it must speak to them in terms they will understand. Victorian reticence was not a virtue, but a weakness, and the church must be prepared to discuss sex questions with this generation as freely and frankly as this generation discusses them outside the church. Moreover, when the question is one like that of birth control, no useful purpose can be served by obscuring the fact that, for better or for worse, we now live in an industrial civilization. The problems and needs of such a civilization are totally different from those of an agricultural community. Peaceful but complete revolution have changed our lives. A mid-Victorian church cannot flourish in a Georgian age.

EXCHANGES, CREDITS AND DEBTS

Westminster Gazette

Recently the mark reached a lower level than ever, closing at 550 to the pound, and with it went down the franc and the lira. While this collapse goes on it is futile to hope for a revival of our continental trade. Various proposals for assisting such a revival are before the Government. The Manchester Chamber of Comerce suggests that the Allied debts should be entirely or partially cancelled, in the hope of stabilizing the exchanges. It declares that export credit schemes would be useful as a stimulant to our trade with Central Europe, but not with countries outside Europe. It is important that we should realize that all these factors, debts, credits and exchanges, hang together. We cannot deal with them in water-tight compartments.

THE BRITISH HALL-MARK

London Daily Telegraph

At least fifty years ago the sun of this manufacturing country was sinking below the horizon, according to those who took a superficial view of the current of events. On the eve of the war we were, nevertheless, doing better than ever. With our exports we were paying for the vast stream of goods which were coming into this country, more particularly food and raw materials, to meet the needs of 47,000,000 people, and there was always a large sum on the right side when the balance was struck, which we invested abroad year by year, thus adding to the prosperity of prospective customers. The basis of our prosperity was not cheapness so much as quality—the quality of the goods we made, the quality of the coal we exported, and the quality of the services which we rendered.

Undoubtedly the best caddies in the world are the Scottish. You see golf is their game, and they watch every stroke that the man they are carrying for makes; they thrill with pride when he makes a good one, and they are very outspoken when it is their lot to caddie for a poor player.

A man, who was a very bad player, got into difficulties at Gleneagles the other day.

After he had hammered away in vain for some time, he turned to his caddie and said:

"What club ought I to take now?"

"Mon," replied the caddie, "ye ought to take 'em all, and gang awa' home wi' ye'"

Not here, but somewhere o'er the restless main
In those lone fields where the red poppies blow,
They sleep, who went but came not back again,
Nor will return, tho' seasons come and go.

Not all the wealth of nations can recall
A single phalanx of those glorious dead
Who held the Empire's shield above us all
And for our hearths and homes undaunted bled.

While wealth itself was swallowed up in victory
For greater love than their there cannot be.

Twice sixty seconds and a mother's hear,
Frozen with sorrow, misses its great beat,
As deathlike silence stills each roaring mart
And spreads its hush along the crowded street.

The poignant moments fluttering, one by one,
Fall on a world that grief has stricken dumb—

Shall their great love and service be forgot
In treacherous memories or the waste of years?
Never! while sons by Britishers begot
Can answer thro' a mist of gathering tears:
"We wil keep faith with you, who, 'gone before.'
Through deathless glory live for evermore."

GETTING MORE POWER

EVEN THE SUN AND MOON WILL BE HARNESSED.

Engineers Are Engaged In Planning Means Whereby Tidal Energy Can Be Utilized In Canada, England and France—Bay of Fundy Is Useful for These Important Experiments.

The rapid depletion of the world's supply of coal and oil is causing genuine anxiety in industrial countries, and is leading to the discussion of possible new sources of heat, light and power. How Niagara Falls is running street cars, turning factory wheels and lighting towns and cities in Ontario will always occupy a large chapter in the annals of Canadian industry. Extensive as the development and use of hydro-electric power have already become it would seem that only the fringe of this source has been touched. Now engineers are engaged in planning means by which tidal energy may be harnessed in Canada, England and France.

How these remarkable works are proceeding and what they aim to do are described by Ivan C. Waterbury, writing in the New York Times. He says, in part:

France wishes both to conserve her coal supply, to remove the need of importing fuel, and, above all, to shift her industrial centre from the east and north to the west, as far as possible, for defensive purposes. French economists are saying that with great hydro-electric developments on the Rance river at St. Malo paralysis of French industries would be impossible by another invasion from the east and north. England, by a mammoth hydro-electric development at the mouth of the Severn and partly on the Wye, seeks to end the sole dependence of her industries on coal against another coal strike. In New Brunswick, on the Bay of Fundy, there is a heavily populated area of large extent in sore need of industrialization, which can be effected by a vast hydro-electric development at the confluence of the Petitcodiac and Memramcook rivers, where they empty into an arm of the Bay of Fundy.

In these three places the tides run the highest in the world, the range being the greatest in the Bay of Fundy. By range, or amplitude, is meant the vertical measure from the highest mark at the ebb of consecutive tides, just as the amplitude of a wave is the vertical measure from the height of the crest to the depth of the trough. The term bore is applied to an abrupt tidal wave which breaks in an estuary, the wall of water then rushing up the river channel with great violence and noise.

During spring tides on the Bay of Fundy the bore sometimes reaches a height of 70 feet, this being the world's record; on the Severn it rises over 30 feet, and on the Rance at St. Malo to a height of 42 to 45 feet.

So it is easy to see how hundreds of thousands of horsepower can be developed by capturing this stupendous force so as to make it turn turbines during the hours of ebb tide, especially if the period of ebb tide is prolonged and regulated by means of storage reservoirs.

Only the low-power tide mills, operating for a few hours a day to grind grists and do other simple mechanical work, have represented tide utilization from very early times on the coast of Brittany, England, and even China. As early as the eleventh century mention is made of the Anglo-Saxons putting old Eager to work grinding corn when he invaded the land. Little advance in the make of tide mills has been shown since. No attempt was made in the early tide mills to produce a fall. The power was obtained from the flow of the water into a pond and out again, the water driving a large paddlewheel, like those which drive old-fashioned steamboats on rivers. As only the bottom floats should be immersed to get the best results, arrangement had to be made to raise and lower the water wheel to suit the rise and fall of the tide. Typically the pond was about four acres in area, and the water-wheel measured 11 feet in diameter by 12 feet long, as in the case of a tide mill for grinding corn that existed in East Greenwick, England. A bevel gear at either end of the water-wheel shaft transmitted the power, the pinions being free to slide up and down two square vertical spindles.

This dependence on a variable head (height from which water falls) necessary in a tide mill presents the greatest difficulty encountered to-day by manufacturers to whom contracts have been let to construct turbines for use in proposed tidal-power developments.

To change a common tide mill into a tidal-power house one replaces the sluice with one or more turbines. This change, however, involves important considerations relating to both design and working of such an installation. For instance, assuming that the turbines turn in one direction only, the power plant must be arranged between two channels connecting the sea with the reservoir basin. One of these channels is closed while the basin is filling and the other while the basin is emptying. Thus the tide can be utilized coming and going.

The total cost of the initial development to produce 90,000 gross horsepower is estimated at $11,000,000, of which the three dams represent $2,491,600. As population increases and more power is needed, it is expected to enlarge the development to 200,000 horsepower by enlarging the area of the low-level basin until it is in the ideal proportion of 1 to 2 to that of the high-level basin.

WESTERN RANCH GIRL ACCUSED OF MURDER

The stereotyped motion picture character of the man who keeps the western dance hall and saloon gives place to a new type in "The Fighting Shepherdess", starring Anita Stewart which is being exhibited at Griffin's to-night.

In this picture Miss Stewart plays the part of the daughter of the proprietress of a questionable tavern in the California sheep and cattle country. It is perhaps the first time that a woman has ever been shown in motion pictures as the keeper of a western roadhouse, though in the old days many followed that occupation. It is also the first time that Miss Stewart has ever taken part in a western play in western garb.

A 2-reel Mack Sennett comedy, Movie Shots and Fox News are also being exhibited on the same program.

A HUMAN PLAY FOR CHARLES RAY

"Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway", George M. Cohen's celebrated play in which Charles Ray is now appearing in a picturizaztion as a First National attraction, is one of the most human stories Mr. Ray has ever produced. It takes its title from its locale New Rochelle, which is approximately forty-five minutes from Broadway and 42nd street, New York.

The story of "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway", has to do with the adventure of Kid Burns, an ex-prize fighter from the West side of New York City, whose friend Tom Bennett suddenly finds himself heir to a fortune and an estate in New Rochelle and sends for the Kid to act as his advisor. Upon reaching New Rochelle the Kid encounters a series of adventures and "the only girl"—named Mary—and this combination furnishes material for one of the most delightful pictures Mr. Ray has ever produced. And this picture by the way, is the first independent production made by Mr. Ray in his own studios and it is bigger and more costly than any other this talented screen star has ever appeared.

"BRINGING UP FATHER". AT GRIFFIN'S TUESDAY

When "Bringing up Father in Wall Street", the latest version of the popular comics of George McManus is shown at Griffin's theatre where this side-splitting comedy in two acts and five scenes will hold the boards this Tuesday Night, November 15th., the public, and especially those who have followed the fortunes and adventures of the well-known Jiggs Mahoney family, will have an opportunity of seeing and enjoying a play in which all the ingredients of laughter and happiness have been retained along with unusual features and other novelties certain to arouse new hope and interest in the joy of living.

Here we have an example of what a resourceful and enterprising manager can do in the way of providing real up-to-date entertainment. In the three acts necessary to unfold the plot there is said not to be a dull moment; surprise after surprise is followed by some unique innovation and novelty with the result that one is both amused and thrilled and in addition compelled to laugh right out loud as it were, something we humans must admit is not always possible in these days of rapid theatrical competition.

The cast contains fully Thirty people, including a bevy of beauty qualified to make Aphrodite in her most halycon days look up and take notice.

"GREAT CRIME WAVE' SWEEPING DOMINION

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—That the increased population in Portsmouth penitentiary was not due to the suspension of the Ticket of Leave Act but was due to a "great crime wave," which had not been checked, was stated here by Judge W. P. Archibald, Dominion Parole Officer. The Ticket of Leave Act, he emphasized, was functioning as usual and an increased number of convicts were being released under its provisions every year. Judge Archibald made the statement in reply to a Kingston news despatch stating the high prison population was due to the suspension of the Ticket of Leave Act, and that 840 prisoners were now held there.

"The prison population trouble" Judge Archibald declared, "is not in the parole system, but it emanates from other sources. A great crime wave has swept over our Dominion, especially in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. This wave has not been checked.

The number of serious crimes committed every day of the calendar year is appalling, and it would not surprise anyone who understands the true situation to see the population of Kingston Penitentiary over 1,000 prisoners in the course of a year or so, unless, as we hope, the wave now at its height begins to recede. Repressive and punitive measures alone have never in past history reduced the volume of crime. The civilized world to-day would welcome the dawn of a better day, when more effective and regenerative treatment of the criminal can be demonstrated.

LOCAL WAR VETERANS GRAND ENTERTAINERS

Armistice Dinner at Quinte G.W.V.A. Hosts to Theatrical Party.

A very pleasing function took place at the Hotel Quinte last evening, Armistice Night, when the Vets had as their guests the leading members of "Hullo Canada" Company, to reciprocate in a small way the many acts of kindness shown to them in billets and hospitals overseas. The tables were beautifully decorated and were arranged to form a large letter T. The chair was occupied by the President, Comrade E. D. Finkle and the addresses of welcome were made by Past Presidents Comrade R. D. Ponton and E. D. O'Flynn.

Miss Kellogg replied in her usual charming manner and expressed her pleasure at again being with her boys, "The Canadians." Miss Kellogg stated that although an American by birth, she was a thorough Britisher now and proud of it. Miss Kellogg finished with singing one of their choruses: "All Pull Together," and before finishing had all the boys singing with all their might.

Mr. Harry Tate spoke on his impressions of Canada, its immense lakes, its beautiful villas and the spirit of patriotism which pervades the people of Canada.

Mr. Dean Tribune spoke on his amazement on the size of the wooden telegraph and telephone poles on the streets in the cites and towns of Canada. Comrade O'Flynn countered by saying that these poles were of great assistance to navigators before the days of the O.T.A.

Harry Tate introduced a few songs and choruses which went well with the boys, also told some funny stories.

Comrade Harold Barrett created much enthusiasm and made many months water when he sang, "Brown October Ale." Comrade Barrett staged the musical interruptions and the different choruses were sung with enthusiasm. The special song sheet of the G.W.V.A. being used. John McGie presided at the piano and put the pep and jazz into it.

G.W.V.A. members were present from Trenton, Marmora, Picton and Frankford.

The reception in the officers' mess at the Armouries, after the show, at which the Veterans entertained the entire company of 62 people, was a huge success. Coffee, cake and sandwiche were served by the ladies of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E.

After the hour of social intercourse over the lunch, dancing was indulged in until 2 a.m., music being provided by the company's orchestra.

The company voted the Veterans the best of entertainers and thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Day Coach

The day coach is of the well known standard type used on the Canadian National system, and cost $33,000. The express car is of the type regularly used by the Canadian National Express Company. Total cost to produce a train such as that now on exhibition would be approximately $370,000 cars alone costing over $$300,000. A similar train was shown at the Canadian National Exhibition and was visited by 100,000 people.

The train is accompanied by a staff of men efficient in the various departments appertaining thereto. Their office is to explain by practical demonstrations the "why and wherefore" of the equipment on an across-Canada train such as that in use on the Canadian National Railways system.

Children's Composition

Belleville is the twenty-third place visited by the Canadian National Model Train and it is interesting to note that sixty thousand adults in addition to school children have visited the train. In the train is a large map of Canada and school children are encouraged to ask questions about the train and the trans-Canada route of the Canadian National Railways, so that they can write a composition upon Canada when they return to school. This has been followed out with success everywhere the train has visited.

In charge of the train is Mr. C. H. Howard, of Toronto, General Tourist Agent, and with him are the following:-W. C. Potts, Inspector of sleeping and dining cars; R. M'Gonigal, Canadian National Express; R. E. Richmond, Travelling Passenger Agent; J. Johnston, Electrician. The train is manned by a crew consisting of a sleeping car conductor, two porters, dining car steward, chef, two waiters, car cleaner.

FAYOLLE ON CANADA.

Vastness of Land Compared to His Beloved France.

Marshal Fayolle, head of the French Mission to Canada has written up for the Revue des Deux Mondes the diary of his official tour. The narrative is crisp and yet illuminating, and bears no trace of the stomach trouble which too many banquets are said to have given the author. Not the least remarkable is what might be termed the peroration. Here the Frenchman finds eloquent tongue in prophecy as to the future of the two countries. The passage was based on a comparison of Canadian scenery with the scenery along the homeward route between Havre and Paris. The following are the magnificent concluding paragraphs of the report:

"In Canada, all is vast, almost boundless; here all is beauty and harmony. On the one hand, the immensity of territory, plains and forests which reach away to infinity, rivers which spread out over thousands of miles, while crossing lakes which are like seas, on the other hands, landscapes in a fairy-like frame that is continually changing, always with finish that is exquisite in incomparable variety. Yonder, enormous latent treasures; here, admirable delights perfected throughout the centuries. Yonder, the future with its vast hopes; here, the past with the treasures of a marvelous history which is not yet finished, whose most recent chapter written in blood, illuminated with victories, is the most glorious of all. In both cases, balance of powers and glow of soul in confidence for the future.

"O French Canada, how we understand your motto: 'I remember.'
"This motto, we make it ours; we too, we remember.

"It is in this union of thoughts that we murmur lovingly, while the train bears us towards Paris: "Hail, land of our fathers, whom your separated children and those who dwell with you love with an equal love; hail, O beloved France, queen of motherlands!

Marshal Fayolle."

Color and Crime.

If a prisoner is in for premeditated violence put him in a cell with walls the hue of the daffodil; if his act is one of passionate violence, his term should be served in a cell of blue; if he is being punished for burglary, enshrine him in a dungeon of violet and black.

For the human being is responsive to color just as the king of the cow pasture re-acts to red, according to Mr. Kemp Prossor, the color specialist, quoted in a San Francisco paper. His color prescriptions were made public when he took occasion to deprecate the idea of prisoners choosing their own colors.

People who have committed a violent crime which they have been contemplating for many years should be placed in a cell colored yellow or orange, as those colors stimulate the brain and tend to drive out morbidity, he says. If the crime has been done on the spur of the moment, blue or bluish green should be used, for they are soothing colors. A man confined a few years in a cell so tinted would probably be quite altered. All cells should have a blue ceiling, to drive away the idea of being confined within four walls, which preys on the prisoner's mind.

Burglars rarely have any money. They rob for the love of the game more than anything, says Mr. Prossor. They love excitement. To break down that spirit of adventure a scheme of violet, black, and a little blue should be used. In some institutions the predominant color should be pink. The color scheme of 75 per cent. of English homes is pink. That color will impress on the boy thieves and others the idea of returning to the home. This decoration of prison cells could be done very easily and very cheaply.

Danger In Fog.

In a heavy fog there is danger of collision between ships because the uniform signals used merely indicate their presence, and tell nothing of their course or direction. A sea captain of long experience now has devised a system which overcomes this difficulty, says Popular Mechanics. Four signal horns of different tones are used, two sirens, a shrill whistle, and a steam gong, all of which are operated by foot levers. Each of these corresponds to one quadrant of the compass, and is operated only when the ship's course lies in that general direction. The four divisions of the quadrant itself are indicated by varying the signals, as, for example, one long blast, a long and a short, a long and two short, and two long. A recording mechanism is connected to the signal equipment and serves as evidence in case of subsequent question as to the handling of the ship.

Eggs Boiled In Oil.

A new method of sterilizing eggs, as a preliminary to cold storage, consists in immersing them for five seconds in an oil solution at 250 degrees Fahrenheit. This brief exposure to a heat considerably above the boiling point of water is sufficient to kill not only whatever bacteria the eggs may contain, but also the vital principle in those of them that are fertile.

Electrical machinery does the work. It is claimed that the eggs are in no way injured by the treatment and, when afterward put into cold storage they retain their freshness much longer.

A Famous Flower Market.

In the famous Covent Garden flower market, in London, Eng., the work of carrying is done largely by women porters. A somewhat odd recognition of their work is received annually by these flower porters in the shape of a shawl and two aprons each, a gift from the Duchess of Bedford.

A RAW DEAL FOR A BOY

"A Chicago jail was full of the confusion of curses, screams, groans and obscenity. "It's a dull night, but noisy, 'said the patient turnkey. Suddenly two figures appeared outside the entrance, one was a big policeman, the other, a boy of seventeen, short and slender.

"Have you got room for our young friend here?" asked the officer with a grin, as the turnkey swung open the heavy door. The boy's face was pale and his eyes had a look of terror in them.

"Please don't lock me up, mister" he pled.

"Haven't you got some friend who'll your bail? How about the man you work for?" asked the turnkey.

"Oh, no! if he knows I'm pinched, I'll lose my job. I don't want nobody to know.

"He opened the cell door and the boy went falteringly in. There were two others in the cell, one was a dope fiend and the other a youth charged with picking pockets. The dope fiend made room for the boy on his wooden bench. For fourteen hours they were confined there together. Now and then the boy would fall to sleep only to be awakened by the hideous screams of a prisoner with delirium tremens. Occasionally the dope fiend leaned over and talked with the boy in low tones. Later in the night he began to suffer from the lack of his drug; presently he dropped to the floor; his head fell back and his eyes rolled wildly. All night long, at frequent intervals, there were out-bursts of drunken profanity as groups of new prisoners were received and put into cells.

"In the morning, the boy was taken in a patrol wagon to the boys' court. It appeared in court that, while riding his bicycle, he had accidentally run into a child. He had stopped immediatly, had picked up the child and had taken it to its mother. This was his crime. Because of it his self-respect had been assaulted; he had been exposed to both physical and moral disease; he had heard more profanity and vulgarity in one night than most boys hear in a year.

"Conditions in many city police stations are bad; in county jails they are worse. Some are under ground, as were the dungeons of the dark ages. In some cases, the cells are overrun with vermin and rats. In many county jails, no attempt is made to keep boys separate from the adult murderers, perverts and other criminals. A large proportion of those detained are innocent."

This is a picture of the raw deal that was given one boy when he was arrested for a slight offense. What happens to the boys of your community who happen to fall into the hands of the law? Do they get on the road to criminal life?

Armistice Day in Toronto--1921

Silence for two minutes! The roar of the traffic outside suddenly ceases as Big Ben booms out the first stroke of eleven.

It is Armistice Day.

The mind goes back to Armistice Day three years ago, when the man who sits gazing out on Yonge street was with the Canadian advance guard in the fighting before Mons. By midnight the railway station had been won. By 6 o'clock the "stubborn machine-gun resistance," spoken of by General Currie in his official report, had been overcome, and the Germans had been driven to the north of the ancient city where, four years earlier, they had first encountered British troops in the Great War. By 8 o'clock the advance led through the Bois d' Havre toward Bon Vouloir. The pursuit did not end there. "Good will" was not the dominant idea in the minds of the Canadians that morning, for they had passed through a district where women and children had been left in a starving condition by the enemy, some so weak that they died after relief reached them.

When the Great Silence fell and the pursuit ceased the line included La Bruyere, Maisierers, St. Denis and Obourg. In Mons that day there was great rejoicing. The pipers of a kilted battalion awakened the echoes in the Grande Place, and the children—and their elders, too—danced and wept alternately as they gathered round their Canadian deliverers.

It seems more real for a moment—this memory of the past—to the man who sits looking out on Yonge street, where the cars begin to rumble past again, than the familiar fronts of the tall office buildings that shut out the sun and shut him in the dull daily grind.

All over Canada this morning to three hundred thousand fighting men, the Great Silence will bring back once more a familiar bit of The Front in Flanders and in France, not as it was on Armistice Day alone, but as it was etched upon the brain by some intense personal experience—the cloud of poison gas [illegible], the grim struggle among the falling tree trunks of Sanctuary Wood, the rush for Regina Trench, the slow, nerve racking advance behind the fallen tree trunks of Sanctuary Wood, the rush for Regina Trench, the slow, nerve-racking advance behind the barrage toward Thelus on Vimy Ridge, the early morning attack in the midsa, at the battle of Amiens, the assault upon the Canal du Nord, the entry into fire and shell-swept Cambrai. In factory and warehouse, in the town and in the open country, and alas, in the beds of pain in the Military Hospitals—wherever they are—the men who upheld Canada's hour over there will see visions and dream dreams as they hear once more in memory the bugles sounding "Cease Fire."

They will remember too, with deep reverence, the gallant dead who sleep in the soil they have forever made sacred for the Canadian people, the beloved "unreturning brave," whose empty places in sixty thousand Canadian homes make this day one of tragic memories as well as of national thanksgiving for the victory they won.—Toronto Globe.

Mr. A. Y. Snyder, Manager of the bank in a few well chosen remarks thanked all for their presence at the unveiling ceremony. It was indeed a pleasure to him to see such a gathering upon such an occasion.

Ven. Archdeacon Beamish, Rector of St. Thomas Church, opened the proceeding with appropriate prayers, being of a thanksgiving nature.

The Unveiling

His Honor Judge Wills had the honor of unveiling the tablet and his address was in keeping with the occasion His Honor said that all had met on a rather solemn occasion. Armistice Day was a day that should be set aside as a day of thanksgiving for the great blessings we enjoy. Three years ago when the armistice was declared, a great relief was felt the world over. His Honor in speaking of the banking institutions stated that from the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Canada 1707 young men volunteered their services and of this number 215 remain in France. This institution well represented the true Canadian spirit. In the various branches these tablets were being placed to commemorate their memory. These young men were a credit to themselves and their country, and we should be, as they were, proud and loyal to our country. In conclusion His Honor stated that other banking institutions might do the same thing to perpetuate the names of their employes who did service for their country.

Mayor Hanna spoke briefly, complimenting the branch on the idea of unveiling the tablet on Armistice Day. It was befitting that such a ceremony should take place on this day.

Mr. J. Bone stated that for eight years he was in the banking business, and he never met a more loyal bunch of young men than those in the banks. The bank has not forgotten their young men who went overseas and the unveiling of the tablet was commendable. Some of the banks were during the war depleted to a considerable extent owing to enlistment of many of the young bank clerks. The speaker referred to the conference at Washington and felt good would result for the world in general.

Mr. E. D. Finkle said the G.W.V.A. appreciated the unveiling of tablets to the brave young men and especially on Armistice Day.

Rev. A. L. Geen spoke of the loyalty displayed by the young men of Canada who did their duty for their country and the flag we so deeply respect. We should be a loyal people as we are blessed with the best country in the world, rich in many respects. Speaking personally the Rev. Mr. Geen referred to the fact that he had three sons who had done their duty, one of whom had gone. We should be ready at all times to do our duty for our country.

Mr. C. M. Reid referred feelingly to the young men who went overseas, many of whom never returned. Their names were, however, deeply engraved on the hearts of the people. The world must be better for great sacrifices made by our young men. Our thoughts and prayers go out to the conference at Washington that something may be done to make the world better.

Mr. J. Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank bore testimony to the valor of the young men who went overseas. Hastings County did its duty during that great struggle. The banking institution did its duty and the memorial tablet was an evidence of their work being appreciated. We all remember the boys who went from Belleville and some made the great sacrifice in defence of the Empire. He paid a tribute to the Bank of Commerce for their act of commemorating the brave young men.

Mr. D. V. Sinclair in his remarks referred to Armistice Day three years ago, and the celebration that took place here. What took the young men over there? Every man who left Canada believed in right was might. That impelled them to go. Live up to that spirit to-day and we will have a great part in the march of civilization the world over.

Rev. D. C. Ramsay in his remarks stated that the occasion was one to do honor to high ideals. They had not gathered in the institution for business, but to unite all together in one common and glorious cause. The tablet unveiled spoke to all of the finest and deepest things in life.

Rev. F. Marshall said words were inadequate to express our feelings upon occasions like this. We are gathered to pay a reverent testimony to the brave young men whose names were inscribed upon the tablet and to perpetuate the sacrifices they made. All no doubt would be willing again to do their duty should the necessity arise.

The proceedings closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The interior of the bank was tastefully decorated with flowers and flags for the occasion.

INTERNAL BATHING, NATURE TREATMENT FOR CONSTIPATION

High blood pressure, meaning hardening of the arteries and heart disease, is a condition which frequently becomes dangerous after the age of forty. As is well known, the blood pressure is regulated by the state of the arteries. Hence it should be our aim to keep our arteries as young as possible.

The best means of reducing blood pressure, and preventing hardening of the arteries lies in taking sufficient out-door exercise and in keeping the system well regulated. Constipation must not be permitted to exert its harmful effects. It is the cause of auto-intoxication (or self-poisoning) with many attendant ills—headaches, billiousness, lack of energy, sleeplessness and indigestion.

The one means of effectually reaching the seat of these ailments is the Internal Bath. Pure warm water, applied with the J. B. L. Cascade cleanses and purifies the intestinal tract and removes the poisonous waste which accumulates there. The use of medicines for constipation is harmful.

The "J.B.L." Cascade will be shown and explained to you by J. S. McKeown, Druggist, Belleville, Ont., who will also give you free, on request an interesting booklet by Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell, "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 per cent. Efficient." Booklet or information also obtainable at Tyrrells' Hygienic Institute, 163 College Street, Toronto.

ANTIQUITY OF HONEY.

It Is the Most Ancient of Sweet Goods.

Honey is probably the most ancient and honorable of all sweet foods. Its pedigree is older than the Roman Fleece, or the pyramids of Egypt. Nowadays the raising of bees is very popular with Canadians, and many amateurs finds them highly profitable.

Pythagora's famous recipe for longevity was: "Eat nothing on your bread but honey." Twentieth century dietetics agree, provided the bread be buttered in order to supplement the fat supply, which the old philosopher doubtless received from his consumption of olive oil.

According to Virgil, honey was produced in a truly poetic way—"A gentle dew falls upon the flowers and becomes immediately the prey of bees which deposit it in their cells." But Virgil was only partly right. It is not honey until it has been transformed in the honey sacs or glands of the bees.

The chief constituents of the flower nectar are water and cane sugar, or sucrose. Within the body of the bee this sweetened water undergoes an important change whereby its sugar is partially turned over (inverted) into the easily digested sugars, dextrose and levulose.

Its perfume or fragrance is due to minute quantities of a volatile, or essential oil. It is in fact our only perfumed common food. Analysis shows that honey is a valuable carbohydrate food. On the average it contains: Cane sugar 2 to 8 per cent.; Levulose and Dextrose (inverted cane sugar) 75 per cent.; Moisture 17 per cent.; Mineral matter 0.2 per cent. The amount of mineral matter is so small that it is thought to be derived largely from dust particles in the nectar of the flowers themselves.

This nectar as it occurs in the flowers is principally water, over 90 per cent. Unless the bee was provided by some rapid method of ridding the nectar of this excess moisture he would become speedily waterlogged and the victim of inefficient transportation facilities, but all this has been taken care of in a truly wonderful way.

One of the leading experts on honey bees states that he has seen bees immediately after drinking their fill from outdoor feeders containing thin sugar syrup, or from certain flowers, send off from their bodies (after taking wing) a fine spray, apparently producing a kind of instantaneous dehydration which concentrates the thin syrup. This fine spray is seen when the bees in flight have reached a height of ten or twelve feet from the feeders or the flowers. In order to see this the observer should place himself in a direct line with the bees and the sun. This fine spray can best be seen when the bees are fed with outdoor feeders which are sometimes used when there is a dearth of honey.

This is truly marvellous, for thus far it is impossible for the chemist to remove water from sugar solutions without application of heat or the action of chemicals. The currents of air forced through the hive by the fanning motion of the bees' wings is said to further remove the moisture from the honey and reduce it to a heavy syrup.

The Lister Institute has given us another food fact concerning honey which though not generally known is of vital importance. It has been proven that pure honey contains appreciable quantities of the water-soluble vitamine B which tends to protect us against polyneuritis, or beri beri. This, no other natural sweet has been found to do. It furnishes about 1,520 calories of energy for every pound, and in addition, is easily digested. It is widely adaptable in cookery.

Honey is more nutritious when eaten with the honeycomb; while this latter is probably undigestible, it does furnish bulk and tends to prevent too great concentration. Digestive disorders are seldom caused by eating honey.

Courtesy and Beauty.

Railway headquarters may issue general orders but unless station agents dig and water, there will be no beautiful grounds to rest the eyes of passengers. With this in mind the Grand Trunk Railway is thanking its staff for the way in which during the past eighteen months they have improved the horticulture and decoration of station premises in Ontario. Areas which would otherwise have been waste and ugly pieces of ground have been turned into green lawns, shrubberies and flower-beds.

The track workers as well devote considerable time to the work, finding it just a little pleasanter than burning grass or relaying track and replacing ties. A large portion of the upkeep, the higher officials notice, has been done by the track and station staffs in their own time. This indicates the spirit behind it. The company's part is to provide the materials. The men plan the plots and do the work. A general discovery is that the man who is courteous to the traveling public is also inclined to be considerate of sore eyes which formerly suffered from the down-at-the-heel air of railway premises.

20 P.C. INCREASE BY ADOLESCENT ACT

Latest School Reform in Ontario Is Found to Be Working Well.

An increase in Ontario of at least 20 per cent. in the school attendance of children between the ages of 14 and 16 is credited to the Adolescent act by the department of education. This percentage is expected to increase yearly until as large a percentage of school attendance is shown for the years under 16 formerly was shown for the years under 14.

"The new act represents a great educational reform and is being accepted in a most gratifying manner," said Major Cawles, the provincial school attendance officer, to The Star to-day. "Employers seem to be glad to have the children stay longer at schoool. They say that at 14 years the child is too irresponsible to work.

"The adolescent act went into force on September 1st, and the first two months of experience with it shows the public backing up the law splendidly. The department has just completed a school survey in Port Hope, which shows that 76 per cent. of the boys and girls 14 and 15 years old are attending school. Similar conditions exist elsewhere. Previously the percentage attending voluntarily was between 50 and 60 per cent."

The survey in Port Hope shows that in that town there are 144 children between the ages of 14 and 16, of whom all but 34 are attending school. Eighteen per cent. of those 14 years old do not go to school and 29 per cent. of those 15 years old.

Adolescents under 16 years not attending school must get a permit from the school attendance officer, whose appointment was provided for by legislation passed two years ago. The department has record of 1,330 school attendance officers, only one school board in all the province—a separate school board in Northern Ontario—having failed to act. The public school attendance officers number 868, the separate school officers 324, besides those in unorganized districts.

One municipality wrote the department asking whether the fact that its school accommodation was all taken up warranted it in giving permits to adolescents to absent themselves from school. The answer given was that the act required the trustees to provide sufficient accommodation, either by renting buildings or providing portable schools or other temporary quarters. The high schools all over Ontario are crowded as never before.

The surprisingly small opposition to the act is partly attributed to the industrial depression and the ability of employers to get older workers at reasonable wages.

Part Time Instruction

Adolescents with permits must take 400 hours of part-time instruction where such is obtainable. Municipalities with 5,000 population must provide such facilities by September of next year. The courses may be academic commercial or industrial.

After September, 1923, the school age is to be moved on to 18 years, and up to that age 320 hours of part time instruction must be taken unless the adolescent has junior matriculation standing.

The dominion government has voted 20 millions for technical training to be spent dollar dollar expended by the province, which fact will help the municipalities to establish suitable continuation schools.

WILL TRY FOX FARMING

ANIMALS TAKEN OVER TO ENGLAND FROM CANADA.

Experts Believe That the Ranches Will Succeed In the Old Land as Well as In the Dominion—Fortunes Have Been Made Very Rapidly Here by Men Who Started the Industry.

An interesting experiment, which is expected to lead to the establishment in the British Isles of an important new industry, has just been begun in East Ross-shire, Scotland. A number of silver foxes have been taken over from Canada to form a nucleus of a farm devoted solely to the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals.

Unlike most experiments, this one will not be regarded entirely with indifference by the majority of people. The woman who hitherto has been precluded from buying silver fox furs on account of their high price will be keenly interested.

The capitalist who is always on the look-out for new investments will watch the venture with a favorable eye. The experiment's greatest claim to attention lies in the fact that it is likely to be successful. Experts say that there is no reason why Scotland and certain parts of England should not have their fox farms, just as they have their dairy, fruit, and poultry farms.

For the stock they look to Canada, where within the last seven years or so fur farms have become an industry of great importance. This is proved by the recently-published official figures, which show that there are no fewer than four hundred and thirty of these farms in this country.

The value of the land, buildings, and stock on these fox farms exceeds $5,000,000. Every year thousands of foxes are born in captivity, while many thousands are killed. In the first days of the industry, investments yielded dividends of 1,000 per cent. Since then the returns have naturally declined, but even so the profits are enormous, and big fortunes are being made.

One fox farmer in Canada has made $90,000 clear profit in five years. He started with a capital of not quite $500. Prince Edward Island, where there are over two hundred of these farms, can boast many romances like this.

Fox-farming, however, is not a game for the novice to play. Foxes are fickle creatures. To rear them in close confinement you need to understand them thoroughly. Mother foxes are extraordinarily timid; they will frequently carry their young in their mouths for days, depositing them first in one place and then in another, until the little ones die of exposure and exhaustion.

For this reason the fox farmer must keep a strict watch on the charges. Keepers often have to sit up for nights on end during the breeding season in order to protect the young from the restlessness of the mothers. The actual breeding of the animals, it is to be noted, is attended with few difficulties; it is the rearing that occasions most anxiety.

What are the foxes fed on? Their dietary is a varied one, ranging from mice to birds, and from insects to wild berries. Meat is given in considerable quantities, together with table scraps, dog biscuits, and milk. The danger lies not so much in the kind of food given as in the amount. The fox is a prodigious eater.

The silver fox in captivity is inclined to be treacherous towards its owner or keeper. A fox rancher in Nova Scotia not long ago lost his left hand through being bitten by one of his animals. They do not like being handled. Often they will fight among themselves, the strong ones combining to stamp out the weak. A fight in a pen of silver foxes frequently means the loss, in a single half-hour's combat, of hundreds of dollars' worth of animals and fur.

Fox farmers have one great enemy to guard against—the fox poacher.

This individual goes to work in an original fashion. Instead of stealing a fox straight from the pen—a difficult matter—he contrives to release, generally at night, one or two of the animals, and then shoots them when they reach the open. In doing this, he is fairly safe, as it is naturally not easy to prove the ownership of an escaped fox in a country where wild foxes are fairly numerous.

An instance of this, and of the amusing manner in which the thief was discovered, is given in the following true story:

A fox rancher recognized a fine pelt in a Hudson Bay Company store as being that of a fox which had mysteriously disappeared from his farm some time before. He communicated his suspicions to the storekeeper, at the same time inquiring the source from which the company had obtained the pelt. In the interests of common honesty the storekeeper agreed to co-operate in a scheme to trap the thief.

A live fox was secured and placed in the drawer where the pelts were usually kept. The suspected person—a ne'er-do-well trapper—was then sent for. He arrived on the scene, fuddled with drink. The storekeeper then explained that a remarkable thing had happened. The pelt which the trapper had sold him, he said, had disappeared, and a live fox had taken its place. It looked as if the skin itself had come to life!

Completely bewildered, the superstitious trapper went to the drawer. Opening it and seeing a wide-open jaw and two eyes flashing at him from the darkness, he rushed yelling out of the store. The local parson happened to be passing, and to him the terror-stricken man at once confessed his guilt.

Until 1555 farthings were made of silver.

RUSSIAN SCHOOL SYSTEM SUFFERED

General Breakdown of Economic System Seriously Injured Education.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 11.—(By a Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press)—Russia's school system has suffered in the general breakdown of the economic system. Lunacharsky, the Commissar for Education, is endeavoring to correct and preserve the free schools by edicts but it is a difficult task.

A great majority of the schools in the famine districts are not opening, and it is extremely doubtful whether they can be opened this year. Even in the great cities like Moscow and Petrograd, it is doubtful whether they can continue unless reorganization proceeds with great rapidity and energy.

In an effort to keep the schools going, parents have made contributions to teachers in the way of money and food and the children have often carried wood daily to the schools to keep warm. Books, paper, pencils and other supplies have been lacking.

Lunacharsky says in a recent statement that the Cheka, or Commission for the Prevention of Counter-Revolution insists that the schools must be kept free of parental influence. To accomplish this he announces that the Government will name committees in each locality to take charge of the schools and will empower these committees to collect money from the parents who are able to pay.

This step is in line with the general decentralization policy which the Government is endeavoring to carry since it altered its economic policy and went back to domestic free trade. Fads which were introduced in many of the schools have very largely disappeared. Many of the teachers were extreme idealists in the earlier days of the Soviet Government and endeavored to work many innovations.

The plan of having school children do all the janitor work in the schools resulted in such unsanitary conditions that it was abandoned in many places and charwomen came back.

The schools are badly crowded. In Moscow most of the small children go to school from 9 until 3 and the older children go in the afternoon and remain until 9 p.m.

In an effort to piece out their inadequate salaries, teachers work in as many schools as possible with the result that there are often delays in classes. The meals which the Government supplies to school children when food is available are prepared in central kitchens and carried by children in large vessels to the schools. Frequently the meals are late and the school schedule is irregular.

The fear which non-Communist parents had at one time that the Government would endeavor to take their children away from them has apparently disappeared completely with the announcement of the new decentralization policy, or even before that was announced.

Influenza in Children

ONE-MINUTE ESSAYS ON HEALTH BY DR. WM. P. REDICK

There is no disease, unless the cause is removed quickly and effectively by chiropractic spinal adjustments, which leaves the system in a more weakened condition than influenza. Heart, lungs, and kidneys are affected. A child under ordinary methods of treatment may be permanently weakened.

But under chiropractic spinal adjustments the cause is removed. The normal activity of the organs of the body is made possible and the natural force of health is exerted. Under ordinary methods these organs are "nursed" and restoration is by help to organs which remain weak. Under adjustments recovery is rapid and no after effects remain, because the recovery is due to the normal strength of the organs being restored.

Chiropractic spinal adjustments remove the cause of diseases of the head, throat, lungs heart, stomach, liver, kidneys and intestinal organs.

SATURDAY'S MARKET

Judging from the attendance upon the market this morning and the quantity of dressed fowls offered for sale, one was led to believe that the holiday season was near. It was one of the largest attended markets of the season the interior being filled to its capacity. Farm and garden products were offered for sale in considerable quantities and prices were in most cases reasonable. Fresh dairy butter is dropping in price owing to its production by cheese factories closing down for the season. The ruling prices were 40cts. to 45 cts. per pound. Fresh eggs are commencing to be a luxury at 65cts. per dozen. Dressed chickens sold from $1.50 to $2.50 per pair, the latter price being for exceptionally fine quality; ducks sold at $3.00 to $3.50 per pair. Turkeys are exceptionally arce only an occasional one being on sale. Garden products were readily disposed of at fair prices. Potatoes sold at $2. and in a few cases $2.25 was asked. A large quantity of meats were sold there being a number of stalls where it was cut up.

ILLEGAL TRAPPING

A resident of Faraday township was up before Police Magistrate Jarman on Thursday last charged with trapping and having in his possession furs in closed season. Game Warden Wrigley was the complainant. A fine of $28.50 was imposed.

STAMPS FROM POSTIE

BULLET IN FOOT

A shooting accident which took place on Thanksgiving morning and which might have proved fatal occurred at the home of Mr. Maurice O'Neill's, Herschel Township, when his young daughter was the victim. A young lad by the name of Sutherland had a 25 calibre rifle in which a shell became lodged and undertaking to remove it with a knife it exploded, the bullet lodging in Miss O'Neill's foot. Dr. Haight was summoned and rendered medical assistance.—Bancroft Times.

Vanity and Glasses

The wearing of glasses is one of the best preservers of a youthful appearance. This is because prolonged eyestrain causes wrinkles to appear prematurely and gives the countenance a strained, tired, anxious, drawn, cross look, which is very characteristic and far more to be avoided, from the viewpoint of appearance than the slight disfigurement of glasses. Indeed, so far from being unbecoming, there are some types of faces to which glasses just add the finishing touch.

We have every up to date style.

MAKING RETAILING
A PUBLIC SERVICE

How to run a store without going bankrupt is a problem which is returning with lower prices and more critical buying. In the palmy days of war prices it was an extraordinary person who could not make retailing pay, but now it seems necessary for Harold Whitehead, of the Department of Sales Relations, College of Business Administration, Boston University, to write a big volume, entitled "How to Run a Store."

There is one thing to be said for Mr. Whitehead: He uses the word, "efficient," only after profuse apology. Otherwise, his book is snappily written without too much regard for the alleged Boston standard of culture. For example, in a chapter headed, "Speedily up turn-over," he says:

"When the young man proudly marches the sweet, coy young miss to the candy counter and asks in a lordly air for 'a box of candy, please,' the salesgirl may offer a half-pound box; probably she will botch the sale by asking, "What size d'yer want?"

"What she should do is to show a two-pound box, and if she has any larger in stock, the next size larger. What a hit that young man will make with the aforementioned sweet, coy young miss by presenting her with a real boy of candy. Give him the opportunity to make a hit."

In other words, service is our watchword, dear salespeople, as go out to sell the public. And thus, it will be observed, the book is nothing if not practical. For one thing, it makes bookkeeping almost understandable and suggests methods which will tell the ambitious young storekeeper whether he has yet passed over the counter to his customers all the money that Uncle Gump left him.

HELIGOLAND NO LONGER A FORTRESS

Demolition of Forts in Progress for Two Years—Harbor Planted.

Hamburg, Nov. 12 (By Canadian Press) Heligoland as a German fortress has been wiped out under the supervision of the Inter-Allied Commission, and little remains to-day of the once powerful fort. The work of demolition has been going on for some years, and while not entirely completed yet the Commission, of which Admiral Sir Edward Charlton is the head, is said to be satisfied that the island of Heligoland never again can be a menace to the Allies. What little is left of the harbor, including the land reclaimed from the sea by Germany, it is expected will be gradually destroyed by the North Sea.

The work yet to be done in the demolition of the fortress is expected to be completed next April. Then a final inspection will be made by the Commission, and it is expected that Heligoland will then be handed back to Germany, under the provisions of the Peace Treaty. The Commission has withdrawn the officers in control of the work of demolition, and the remainder of the undertaking has been left in German hands. Quarterly visits will be paid to the work by the Commission until it is entirely completed.

The Commission has left nothing to be taken for granted, even though the German authorities have aided, rather than hampered, the progress of the work. Naval officers have seen the great guns cut into pieces. In the destruction of cartridges cases, fuses, fuses, etc., they have always insisted upon the production of the scrap metal, while in the destruction of the wast stores of explosives, where there is no residue to produce as evidence, they have personally watched the burnings. Admiral Charlton is said to be satisfied that very little in the way of warlike stores can have been concealed.

Besides the destruction of guns at Heligoland, gun emplacements and harbor works, on the island have been broken up. In addition to guns, many of which were very large, batteries of howitzers and aircraft guns have been demolished.

In order to make certain that Heligoland can not be utilized again as a site upon which to build, a harbor for warships the Commission has placed blocks of stone and concrete about the bed of the harbor so that dredging will not be possible.

CALGARY IN THIRD PLACE.

Two Ontario Towns Ship Most Stock Now.

Where are now the glories of Pat Burns and Calgary? Two small places in one county in the effete East surpass the city beside the Bow as shipping points for live stock. First honors in the Dominion go to Ailsa Craig, and second honors to Thorndale. Calgary was second in 1918, with Thorndale third. Now the order is reversed and Calgary is third.

Now, will the metropolis of the foothills bow the knee to the despised eastern tank town? Ontario folk little realize that two Middlesex sidings ship more cattle, hogs and sheep than any towns or cities in all this broad land. It is not that the West is behind and coming strong; the West was almost up, but was forced from its proud place.

What of the live stock industry back of the little town which has displaced Calgary? Thorndale has stock raisers and stock buyers who work together. Not only is there grain and pasturage, and labor, there is also brainwork. The abattoirs want the kind of bacon hog, for example, that suits the British market. The buyers keep the raisers in touch with the varying fancies of the fancy trade. The farmers raise what is wanted. They supply Thorndale buyers with about 200 well-finished hogs each week, or over 10,000 yearly.

Visiting Thorndale recently, an expert found some of the finest dairy herds in the province. The eggs are not all in the one basket of beef cattle. One buyer shipped $2,000 worth of dressed turkeys from the little station in one week during the last Christmas season. About 10,000 head of cattle are shipped from Thorndale per year, being mostly the surplus of the dairy Shorthorn herds. The cows in R. R. Wheaton's herd of this type average over 9,500 pounds of milk each for the year. Thorndale farmers know how to breed stock of the sort that will sell. Middlesex soil and conditions do the rest. Calgary, etc., take notice.

Bishop Strachan.

Bishop Strachan was himself so much a father in spiritual and ecclesiastical matters in Upper Canada that it is difficult to think of him acknowledging an earlier Canadian as "my spiritual father," yet Rev. John Stuart, D.D., of Kingston, Ont., was so named by the distinguished cleric. From this statement it would seem obvious that the Stuart family goes back to the very beginnings of things in this country. Such an inference is substantiated by a reading of a little volume, "A Genealogical Study," by A. H. Young, just published at Kingston, Ontario.

John Stuart, called "the little gentleman" in spite of his six feet four inches, was the first missionary of the Church of England in Upper Canada, entering the wilds as a United Empire Loyalist with his fellow-patriots in 1785 and representing the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts until his death in 1811. Out of the Loyalist rectory in Kingston came three sons, one clergyman, two sheriffs and three jurists; and from them and two daughters a numerous and honorable family.

Perhaps the most distinguished descendant in the present generation is Col. Sir Campbell Stuart, managing director of the London Times. There are influential branches of this early family in Montreal and Hamilton. The service rendered the infant nation by Dr. Stuart included his bringing up Sir John Beverley Robinson, Bart.

Grape Juice.

Prohibition has given a wonderful boom to the grape-juice business. The manufacture of this kickless beverage has become within recent years a very important industry—so important, indeed, that the smallness of its early beginnings is curiously interesting.

Two men squeezing Concord grapes in a kitchen at Vineland, N.J., started it forty-two years ago. They put up a dozen bottles of the stuff, which was used for sacramental purposes by the village church. Other churches heard about this "unfermented wine," and were eager to buy it; so that before long the two men were bottling it in large quantities, and found it worth while to buy a hand press to squeeze the grapes. Soon there came to be a demand for grape juice as a beverage, and it grew so fast that machinery had to be installed. There were not enough grapes grown in the neighborhood of Vineland to supply the factory, and so it was removed to Westfield, Mass., where there were more to be had. Before long the factory was consuming several thousand tons of grapes annually.

Nowadays the product of whole vineyards is purchased under contract, and the picking is done under the eye of the factory's inspectors. After picking the grapes are not touched by hands. All the processes are performed by machinery.

Sheep In Quebec.

The sheep industry in the province of Quebec has had a steady growth, and there are now more than 1,000,000 sheep in the province. A considerable trade has been built up in the raising of lambs for the Montreal market. The organization of ram clubs throughout the province has had much to do with improving the quality of lambs.

Dahlias In Calgary.

Calgary gardeners have demonstrated that the pessimistic prophets of twenty years ago were lacking in vision in respect of certain flowers, such as dahlias. The first dahlia show has just been held in the city and nearly 2,000 blooms were entered. Some of these were from six to eight inches in diameter and the hues were particularly vivid and gorgeous.

Transportation and Your Safety

CAR SHORTAGES have already developed at many of the coal mines of the United States. Without cars to load, the mines cannot produce; without production of coal, the welfare of the public cannot be conserved.

So far the shortages have not been serious in proportions, but with cold weather arriving, it can be expected that they will increase and may materially hinder the movement of coal.

Safety to your family can be secured by immediately stocking your coal. Coal prices will not decrease, and they may advance, if a transportation emergency arises.

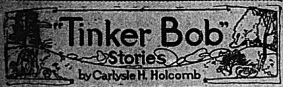
NEW MEDICINE MAKES MILLIONS WELL

Will be a Revelation to Suffering Humanity—Cleans Liver in a Few Minutes — Symptoms of Liver Trouble are: Sallow Complexion, Bad Taste in Mouth on Rising, Tired, Out of Sorts, etc.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles, as: Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No Salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self-eliminating. It does not have a nauseating, sickening feeling next day, like so many similar drugs. You no doubt have been taking all sorts of laxatives, salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these drew liquid from the blood and tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the Bile to be excreted from the Liver into the Bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your Bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your Bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious, bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sale by McKeown, Druggist.



"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlysle H. Holcomb

SCREAMER WITHOUT A HOME

The scream that sent Rufus, the Tree Mouse, and Bobby, the Chipmunk to hunt their holes was repeated again and again. The forest was still and when this scream was heard it echoed thru the woods till every creeping thing heard it. And what is more every creeping thing hid itself till the screams ceased.

Tinker Bob knew who it was doing all of this screaming. He did not know, however, what it all meant. It was a little strange that all these screams should sound forth at this time. He walked over to the tree from whence the sound came and there in the top he saw the fellow who was making all the noise.

"Come down here," said Tinker Bob. The screaming ceased and the creature loked wisely at the King in silence for a moment. "I say, come down here till I have a talk with you."

There was no answer but the creature whom the King addressed came down to the lowest limb of the tall tree. "What does all of this screaming mean?" asked Tinker Bob. "It must mean something or you wouldn't make a fuss at this time in the day.

"It does mean something," said Mr. Screech Owl, for that is who was screeming so loudly. "I am without a Winter home. I have been robbed and I don't like it very much and there is nothing else to do only scream about it. I will worry that fellow who stole my home till he will run away and die; then I will have it back again."

"Well, well, tell me more about your trouble? Who in the world would a ohme from you, Mr. Owl? I didn't think there was anyone in the forest who would do such a thing."

"O King, you don't know about it all. I want to tell you that young Sammy Squirrel has stolen my home and filled it up with old hard nuts that no one could eat and now I can't get into it and there is no place for me to go to. I have no place to store my food for a few weeks."

"I didn't know that you ever stored your food like Sammy does."

"I don't store it for the whole Winter. But I store it for a few weeks at a time because bad weather might come and I couldn't get anything to eat then I would be starving to death.

"Let me tell you what to do, Mr. Owl. I will find a place for you to stay this winter where it will be warm and there will be plenty to eat. You go to the Hunter's barn and there you will find plenty of mice and Sparrows and you can have fresh food every day."

"But if the Hunter saw me he could shoot off his gun and kill me sure, O King."

"I will go with you to see the Hunter after this frolic and you shall have a place to stay all Winter long." And this made Mr. Owl feel happy.

To Be Continued

There is nothing else to do only scream about it.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear, which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is equally dangerous. The following formula, which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers who live under more favorable climatic conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

Hamilton, Nov. 11.—Walter Gayman, an official of the Niagara Fruit Growers' Association, was instantly killed nera Winona shortly before 10 o'clock this morning when the automobile in which he was driving was struck by a Grand Trunk train.

SOME NICE SALADS

Salads are always a welcome and also a healthful feature of the dinner menu, and for the winter months the following combinations will be acceptable.

Ripe pears, skinned, halved and served with cream cheese in the core cavity on lettuce with French dressing.

Dates served in the same way.

Creem cheese and nut balls, on lettuce, with mayonnaise or French dressing.

Pineapple slices, with cream cheese ball in center and two strips of pimento laid across. On lettuce, with French or mayonnaise dressing.

Pineapple diced, halved hard grapes and diced peaches, with mayonnaise on lettuce.

Crisp, cool bacon on watercress, with French dressing.

Diced apple, diced orange and broken nut meats, mayonnaise and lettuce.

Diced beets and peas, mayonnaise and lettuce.

Green pepper stuffed with cream cheese and nut meats, sliced on lettuce, with mayonnaise.

Hearts of celery stuffed with cream cheese and nut meats, sliced on lettuce leaves with French dressing.

A slice of tomato, thick with a cream cheese ball and mayonnaise on lettuce.

Two strips of boiled bacon crisscrossed across a slice of tomato, on lettuce with mayonnaise.

A little pat of cottage or cream cheese with a teaspoon of currant or bar-le-duc jelly on lettuce which has been well dressed with French dressing.

String beans and shredded carrots, with mayonnaise on lettuce.

Endive with orange segments, from which the skin has been removed, with mayonnaise. This salad is capable of a very attractive arrangement. Place two segments of orange lengthwise and nicely fitted into strip of endive, with a spoonful of thick mayonnaise between the pieces of orange. Place a couple of other leaves of endive on the plate.

Chopped celery and beet, with mayonnaise, well mixed, and served in a cup-shaped piece of lettuce.

Halves of canned pears drained of all juice and sprinkled with chopped pecan nut meats, with mayonnaise, or French dressing.

Sliced stuffed olives and sliced celery hearts with mayonnaise on lettuce.

Efficient Housekeeping

BY Laura A. Kirkman

SOME GOOD FIG PRESERVES

Several of my readers have asked me to publish some good recipes for putting up the fig. I can recommend the following:

To Can Figs: There are two kinds of fig, commonly spoken of as purple and white. The white figs are the best for pickles and glace fruits, and the purple figs are best for jams and thick preserves. The purple fig must be peeled. If you wish to can it, first peel it, then place it in sterilized jars, fill the jars to overflowing with sirup as in canning any other fruit, adjust rubbers and covers, partially seal, stand the jars two inches under boiling water and "sterilize" the jar (that is, continue to let the water boil) for 15 minutes; then remove jar from the hot water bath, completely seal, and store.

If you wish to can the white figs, however, you must cook them until tender in the sirup before putting them in jars; then put them in the hot sterilized jars, pour over them the same sirup they were cooked in, and proceed exactly as directed above for teh purple fig. While different people like different degrees of sweetness in the sirup they use with figs, many housekeepers agree that 3-4 of a cup of granulated sugar is a good amount to use for every quart jar of the figs.

Fig Jam: Peel and cut in half 6 pounds of purple figs; put these in the preserving kettle with 2 pounds of sugar and let cook till thick. Seal at once (while still hot) in hot, sterilized jars.

Fig Preserves: Allow 3-4 of a pound of sugar and ½ cup of water to each pound of figs. Make a sirup of the sugar and water, skim it, and add the figs to it (after they have been washed and dried); let simmer till the skin of the fig is tender, then turn into hot, sterilized jars, letting the sirup overflow the jars, and seal air tight at once. Lemon or orange rind may be added in accordance with taste when the figs are being cooked, if desired.

Glace Figs: Make a sirup, using 1 cup of water to every 1½ cups of granulated sugar, and put the figs into this; let cook until the figs are a little yellow, then remove kettle and let figs stand in this sirup over night off the stove. Next morning cook the figs in the same sirup ¼ hour, leave again overnight, then cook until the stem is transparent and leave off the fire until cold. Drain on a plate, spread mosquito netting stretched over a pan or tray and dry thoroughly. (Wet the netting before putting the fruit on it.)

Pickled Figs: Make a weak brine of salt and cold water and pour it over 5 pounds of firm purple figs on which the stems have been left; let stand for 3 hours, then rinse figs well in several waters. Put into a small muslin bag 1 tablespoon whole cloves and 2 tablespoons each of ground cinnamon and all spice. Combine in the preserving kettle 1 quart of cider vinegar and 3 pounds granulated sugar; add the spice bag and figs and leet boil slowly for 1 hour, removing scum as it appears. Then turn the hot sterilized jars and seal at once.

Glad He Tried the Tonic Treatment

Through Its Use Strength and Vigor Was Restored

To be tired after exertion is natural. Rest and food restore the body to normal after such fatigue. But to be tired all the time is a symptom of an anaemic condition that will not be corrected until the blood is built up.

Such an anaemic condition is so gradual in its approach and generally so lacking in acute pains that it is often difficult to persuade the sufferer to do anything for it. But it is not a condition that corrects itself. If the blood is not enriched the trouble will increase. The nerves will be undernourished and neuralgic pains will follow. Digestive disturbances often result from thin blood, sleep is disturbed and a general breakdown may occur.

Mr. Wilson Johnson, Nineveh N.S., says: "A few years ago my system was in a badly run down condition. My nerves seemed always on edge, and I found myself so weak that I could hardly do any work. I suffered from headaches and from pains in the back and under the shoulders, and was often so sleepless at night that when morning came I felt as tired as when I went to bed. I was taking medicine all the time, but it was doing me no good. Then I read the testimonial of a man whose condition had been similar to mine, and who strongly recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I decided to give this medicine a fair trial, and when I had taken six boxes I felt much better. I continued taking the pills until I had taken six more boxes, and I can only say I am glad I did so, as I am now enjoying the best of health, and I advise all men who feel run down to give these pills a good trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.10 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Rinso

Soak the clothes—the dirt rinses away

RINSO is not a cake soap, not a chip soap, not a washing powder, but fine granules of wonderful cleansing power that soak the dirt out of your clothes. Dirt is so thoroughly dissolved that it floats away in either warm or cold rinsing water. This does away with the boiler and wash board—it makes wash-day work truly easy and simple.

If You Have a Washing Machine—

Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean—even the most soiled spots.

Of Interest to Women

A perfumed soap that is really good leaves a very faint and attractive memory on the hands, but, like poor perfumes, nothing creates a worse impression of bad taste than cheap, strong-smelling soap, says Delineator. If you cannot afford a really good brand, by all means use an odorless one. There are good eau de Cologne soaps, lavender, and also heather, which is a little unusual and very fresh and sweet.

A really fine small cake of perfumed soap is a wholesome addition to the guest-room. So is bed linen with a cool scent of lavender, dress-hangers with a faint sachet inside or a rose jar, wafting its fragrance in welcome to the entering guest.

PREMIER MEIGHEN AT QUEBEC

A GLIMPSE OF WHAT HAPPENED IN THE ANCIENT CAPITAL, TUESDAY

(From the Montreal Gazette)

The Prime Minister at Quebec City, went to say that the reason various matters were raised was to distract attention from the great tariff question which his adversaries had raised.

"The tariff is the question," he said.

"It is not the question," came a prompt denial.

"There are those who do not know a question from a noise," retorted the Premier. "Our adversaries have made the tariff an issue. They did it at their convention in 1919.

"You are a liar," came from the crowd.

There was a storm of hissing at this. The Premier ignored the discourtesy, proceeding to talk of the tariff and the Liberal position thereon. He won approval again and again when he made a point. "I know some of the it was a weak attempt for the Premier had his meeting well in hand. "I know that all the candidates in this province are running away from this issue," he shot back.

"No, no," was the answer.

"I wish they would not," went on Mr. Meighen, and got some cheers from this.

"I want to ask the people of this city and of this province, if they are ready to stand for this programme of the 1919 convention," asked Mr. Meighen, holding the programme aloft.

There was some confusion for a time some crying "yes" and others, the majority, crying "no." The Premier took most of the articles on which the Liberal programme promises free trade or reduction and asked the question whether the audience agreed. Again some said "yes" and others said "no."

This is getting down to the meat of the tariff issue," said the Premier. "Does anybody know if the Liberals are on or off it?" There was a roar of laughter.

The Premier read the clause calling for a 50 per cent. British preference. There was silence.

over that programme they are pledged to support," he commented. "I know that Sir Lomer Gouin, although he voted for it, is sorry about it, and I know that Mr. Lemieux does not like to be reminded about it. Just ask him."

"He's all right," said some one, but "Come," he urged. "I am waiting for that applause," but most of the interrupters had had enough, it appeared, and the only cry that came was: "How about whiskey?"

"My friend there apparently knows something about that article," the Premier said, and the crowd laughed.

Canada is at the Cross Roads

PAUSE AND THINK!!

WHAT is the Great Big Issue before the Canadian People in the coming Election?

There is but one—and one only—namely, Free Trade vs. Reasonable Protection.

The People of Canada once more are called upon to decide on the Principle of Protection.

Men count but little—but Principles and Policies and the Interests of the People are enduring.

Canada is once more at the Cross Roads. The issue has been fought out many times in the past and the People of Canada have always stood firm for Protection.

Everybody Knows Just Where Meighen Stands.

Meighen stands four square for the Protective Principle—for reasonable, moderate Protection—for a Tariff to protect all Canada's industries; all Canada's workmen and all Canada's homes.

He is absolutely opposed to Free Trade, just as the leading statesmen of all other important countries are. He believes in a Tariff merely sufficient to enable Canada to encourage and develop all its industries, to keep our workmen at home, and to induce more men and money to come to the Dominion.

MAKE NO MISTAKE

The Election issue is quite clear. Whether you work on the farm, or in the mine, among the timbers or in the factory, whether your occupation is on land or sea, when you go to vote think of your home, your wife, your children and the consequences to them.

Every Canadian home, large or small, in city or country, needs Protection.

CRERAR
The New Menace confronting Canada

A group of extreme Free Trade farmers, headed by Wood of Alberta, Langley of Saskatchewan, Morrison of Ontario, Caldwell of New Brunswick, and Crerar of Manitoba, are today appealing to the feelings and prejudices of farmers as a class.

Crerar is the titular leader of this combination, whose policy is the greatest menace that has ever confronted Canada.

This group is under the dictatorship of Wood, the autocratic Missouran, and so dangerous are its policies that Clark and Fletcher, two of its ablest members, have resigned.

Both Wood and Crerar are out and out Free Traders. They are pledged to abolish every shred of Protection in our Tariff.

When every other important country in the world is increasing its Protective Tariff, Crerar would open wide Canada's gates and flood the country with products of the United States—at the same time that country having shut out millions upon millions of dollars worth of the produce of Canadian farms.

The Canadian Farmer needs Protection as much as does the producer in other Canadian industries.

The principal consumers of the products of our farms are our own people who make their living in the industries of our towns and cities, industries that have also been fostered by Protection. Crerar's policy would destroy the Tariff, hand the farmers' home market to foreigners, strangle Canadian industry, throw thousands of Canadian men and women out of work and drive them across the Southern border for employment. Every patriotic and public spirited Canadian should renounce Crerar, the man who would wreck Canada's industrial, political and economic structure.

KING
A Man Without A Policy

Do you think you would be doing justice to yourself, your family or your country by voting for King—a man without a policy, or rather with so many different policies that nobody knows where he stands. Not one man or woman in Canada knows what King will do after the Election. He has so trimmed his sails that he can take any position and be anything. Think seriously and ask yourself these questions:—Can any confidence be placed in a man who blows hot and cold, who preaches Free Trade here, Protection there, Tariff for Revenue in another place; who is like a straw blown hither and thither by the wind and and lighting nowhere?

At this, the most critical time in the country's history, can you afford to "go it blind" as you would if you vote for King?

Is it not your manifest duty to vote for definite, fixed principles—the principles by which the country has been governed in trade matters for over 40 years?

Last Autumn at St. Jean Baptiste in Manitoba King made this statement: "Between the platform of the Farmers' party and that of the Liberal party there is such a small difference, just a few words, that the farmers should come into the great Liberal party to fight their common enemy, the Meighen government." Notwithstanding King's recent "wobbling," he is bound by the Liberal platform, which is opposed to Protection and heads straight for Free Trade, with all its dire consequences.

THE 1922 CARS AIM AT COMFORT

Many Minor Improvements, But No Radical or Very Important Ones.

CURTAINS IMPROVED

Refinement, Economy and Easier Operation Noted in New Models.

Material comes to hand slowly from which an approximation of automobile design for 1922 cars can be made, and the immediate lesson it teaches is that substantially 1922 cars will be very much like 921 cars, which, in their turn, were not dissimilar to 1920 cars. But yet there will be much to interest every motorist before all the 1922 models are announced, which will be about the time the 1922 winter automobile shows are in full swing.

In the old days motorists gave approximately one-half of each year to wondering what the next year would produce in the nature of passenger automobiles. In the last decade major changes in design have steadily become less numerous and each year now witnesses the introduction of fewer radical departures from former practice. This is due in a large measure to the fact that while the automobile has by no means arrived at a final stage of perfection, it is at that stage whereat a series of minor improvements are possible instead of a few major alterations. For instance, the means of developing power and transmitting it to the rear wheels has been perfected, but mechanical components of these power developing and transmitting agents are still open to refinement as are also the instruments of their control.

About a year ago an organization representative of all the big automobile manufacturers in America, with the exception of the Ford company, designed an elaborate questionnaire which was circulated extensively with a view to ascertaining what were the qualities most sought for by the public in automobiles. It was learned by means of this questionnaire that the public is now most concerned with an endurance in its cars, and that second to endurance comes the question of economy. Comfort and price rank as equally important in third place, and appearance comes fourth. After those considerations the motorist has highest regard for service. Speed was so fair down in the ranking of considerations of importance to automobile owners as to be almost unimportant.

Premature announcements of new models which will be in production from now on indicate that the automobile manufacturer has almost exhausted his creative powers in the line of endurance and economy of operation and is not able to go much further in those respects at this time for he has concentrated himself noticeably on comfort. Next year's cars without doubt, are going to be materially more comfortable than were last year's, and this tendency is manifest in three new models announced within the course of the past month.

One car of a middle price class appears in 1922 guise with considerable alterations in the driving compartment. The gear shift lever has been lengthened and the ball handle is more convenient to the dirver's hand. The emergency brake leverage has been increased, which means easier operation. The ratio of the steering gear has been materially increased, which means much easier steering. The position of the accelerator pedal has been altered so that an easier foot position may be maintained. The manufacturer of this car did not falter at tackling the problem of economy, and accordingly he redesigned the manifold of the engine with results in the economy. He also improved the side curtains on his open models, another concession to comfort, and he altered the chassis lubricating system so that once oil was put in the oilers the motorist might practically forget about chassis lubrication for a long period. This, too, is regarded as a concession to comfort.

Another manufacturer who builds a pretty high-priced machine has made the following concessions to driver's comfort. Rearrangement of controls on the steering column; inclusion of windshield cleaner and rear-view mirror in standard equipment; thermostat regulation of air valve and thermostat control of throttle pump. These latter items of course also constitute concessions to economy and efficiency of operation, but directly they make far less care for the driver. This manufacturer has also increased the leg room in the rear of some of his models, a very obvious recognition of the dictates of comfort. He has also fitted a new type of grease cup more efficient than the type used in earlier models. Incidentally, he has added much to the beauty of his models by a slight redesign of body lines.

Still another manufacturer whose product is a medium-priced machine has concentrated on longer life, greater comfort and better performance. He has introduced a new motor with a separately cast flywheel housing and aluminum crank case. He has practically eliminated vibration and noise, using a silent chain drive at the front end of his engine. He has given close attention to rut-proofing his car. He has rearranged the entire driver's compartment, both for the convenience of the driver and for the sake of appearance. He has paid great attention to the elimination of sources of squeak and rattle to as great degree as is practicable under present engineering practice. He has placed the tool compartment in the left front door, beside the driver's seat.

The majority of alterations in design, as already stated, will not be generally known until after the January automobile shows; but even here no attempt has been made to deal with all the refinements already announced. Only a few of them have been commented upon with a view to indicating the present trend of automotive design.

Why Batteries Don't Keep Charged

They Are Either Starved, Drained Or Leaky

THERE ARE THREE GENERAL REASONS for this, namely: A battery may not receive enough charging current to make up for the current which is drawn from it, in normal operation. It may be required, either intentionally or accidentally, to furnish an abnormal amount of current, in excess of what can be restored by the generator, even when working properly or the battery itself may be out of condition, incapable of receiving its rated charge or of retaining such charge as it does receive. Under the first heading come the following derangements: Failure of the cut-out to connect the generator to the battery, caused either by an interruption in the charging circuit, faulty action of the cut-out itself or the inability of the generator to build up voltage. Incorrect cut-out adjustment, preventing cutting in from occurring at low speeds, thus reducing the battery's charging period. Too low a charging rate on the part of the generator, caused by faulty regulation adjustment. Under the second heading may be grouped the following: Leaks and short-circuits in the system, causing constant slight or occasional heavy discharges from the battery. Accidental leaving on of the ignition for long periods, when the engine is stopped. Unduly protracted use of the starter. Backflow of battery current through the generator, due to the cut-out points sticking closed. Connecting of too many extra current consuming devices to the system, such as heating arrangements and additional lights. Leaving the lights burning uselessly. Using a car in such a manner that starter operation and the use of lights are overwhelmingly great factors as compared with free charging, during day light driving. The third heading includes reduction of battery capacity after long service, due chiefly to deterioration of the plates from such causes as the falling away of their active material. If these actions go far enough the amount of charge that a battery is capable of receiving, becomes very small, not enough to meet severe demands occurring between chargings. Internal short-circuits between negative and positive plates, due to broken down separators or the presence of an excessive amount of material "shed" from the plates which often act to uselessly discharge whatever electrical energy the generator has supplied, thus leaving the battery "dead". With all parts of the electrical system in perfect order and adjustment, the battery should never lose its charge, if it is in sound condition, except as the result of some abnormal demand for current; for the rate of charge can be regulated to meet all reasonable conditions of car use.

IGNITION CURRENT VALUES

R. L. McK. asks: Assuming exactly 6 volts on the low tension side of a coil, to what value will the voltage be built up on the secondary side in order to pass the gap at the plug? What voltage should a hot-wire instrument read on the secondary side under average conditions?

Answer: We cannot tell you, except that the voltage represented by the electrical pressure just prior to the breaking down of the gap at the plug, is of such a magnitude as to be expressed by five figures. This value persists but an incredibly short instant, the voltage acting being comparatively low, after the gap is broken down. We cannot see how a hot-wire instrument could be used to make measurements in the secondary circuit, the oscillograph being the only device capable of registering these extremely brief current conditions. Maximum instantaneous secondary current values are supposed to be somewhere of the order of a few hundredths of an ampere.

WHAT CAUSES THIS OVERHEATING?

W. D. asks: What makes my Ford engine overheat? The water is circulating and the fan is running and there is plenty of oil. Also what makes it backfire or misfire—whatever you call it—a loud exhaust noise—when running fast?

Answer: If the loud exhaust of which you speak, is a muffler explosion, it may indicate that you are running with too rich a mixture, which is likely to overheat the engine. In case the ignition is set late, these explosions are apt to occur and retarded ignition always causes overheating. You better check up your spark setting and run on as lean a mixture as practicable. If your radiator has not been cleaned out recently, you better have this done and have new hose connections put on. If the engine has been taken down lately, the valves may be a little out of time. The cylinders are not badly carbonized, are they?

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

MOTOR NEWS

Automobile stealing is comparatively little in Mexico.

Canada has 42 automobile accessory manufacturing plants.

Three thousand automobiles are registered in Cairo, Egypt.

Chicago led all other cities last year with 5,527 automobiles stolen.

The membership of the Automobile Association in London totals more than 1,000.

In Detroit, Mich., there are seven different plants manufacturing engines for motor vehicles.

Automotive exports from the United States last year exceeded $330,000,000, going to 114 countries.

A new steam automobile is to make its appearance on the market in a short time to sell in the United States at about $1,000.

Ontario leads all other Provinces in Canada in the registration of automobiles. Saskatchewan ranks second.

A patent has been granted for an automobile trailer shaped like a boat. It can be used to navigate waters.

Price reduction on 25 of the leading models of passenger automobiles in the United States have in the past year ranged from $150 to $1,150.

Because Max E. Kloorfain, of Brooklyn, N.Y., spent too much time "tinkering" with his automobile, the Supreme Court granted Mrs. Kloorfain $15 a week alimony, pending trial for separation.

The total registration revenues collected to July 1, for motor vehicles in the United States amounted to $108,213,165.33, an increase of $5,666,953.08 over the amount collected for the entire year of 1920.

In France the majority of automobile manufacturers do not make bodies at the factories, but turn over the chassis to firms specializing in the construction of bodies, where any type and style of coach work can be ordered.

Of the 190 passenger automobile models manufactured in America, 105 have six-cylinder engines and more than 60 have four-cylinders. There are, however, more four-cylinder cars on the streets than there are any other kind.

The fight for highway improvement in the United States is carried on by 15 national or interstate good roads association, 34 states organizations, 304 automobile associations and motor clubs and 32 motor truck and automobile trade organizations.

A motor truck has been designed carrying an apparatus for boring postholes. A large sliding vertical shaft bearing a huge auger is mounted on the front of the truck. Without leaving his seat, the operator can bore a hole, bring a derrick into play and drop a telephone pole into the hole.

17,000 AUTOMOBILES SMUGGLED OVER LINE

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 10.—Smuggling of approximately 17,000 automobiles from the United States into Canada is being investigated by customs department it was learned today. Practically all these cars have been stolen on the American side and smuggled into various parts of the dominion from coast to coast.

It is understood the investigation has developed as a result of checking up the provincial automobile lists which showed considerably less number of cars paying licenses to the government than are actually in operation.

Cyril Knowles, special officer for the customs department, has charge of this investigation. The customs department has found in many instances automobiles with duplicate numbers in one case there were eleven cars of one particular make all bearing similar license numbers.

The stolen car situation in the United States has reached such serious proportions that the insurance companies there have taken the matter up with the result that a representative of one of the leading Chicago insurance firms visited Winnipeg a few days ago to investigate the matter on this side of the line.

GRIM DEATH RIDES AUTOS

More Fatalities in Toronto in Past Four Months Than in Previous Six.

There have been more automobile fatalities on the streets of Toronto in the past four months than in the first six months of the year. There were eight motor-car deaths in October of this year as against nine in October, 1920, and five in October 1919. The automobile death record has just been issued by the Safety League and shows a total of 41 fatalities in the 10 months of 1921 on Toronto streets, an average of four a month. In the first ten months of 1920 there were 57 automobile deaths and 43 in 1919. In 1921, the months of January, February, March, April, August and September were below the average for the year so far, leaving May June, July and October above the average. There does not seem any significance in these figures except that no standard of expectation can be established other than that the first three months of each year usually show a figure lower than the average for the year. July 1921 with ten deaths has an unenviable position, being the only month in the past three years which ran into two figures. In each of the four months, April, July, September and October, 1920, there were nine fatalities, giving 1920 its place as the high-water mark in deaths in which the motor-car figured.

Even if 1921 keeps up its present ratio for the balance of the year, which is hardly likely, the total automobile deaths on Toronto streets will be just under 50. This, while a woeful figure, is a great improvement over the 65 deaths in 1920 and in all these calculation the great increase in motor traffic must be considered to get the proper proportions.

STILL AND HOME-BREW

Windsor, Nov. 11.—Two large whiskey stills, barrels of mash and a quantity of home-brew beer were uncovered by Sandwich police officers in a raid carried out on the home of Joe Robitaille, Sandwich. Both Robitaille and his son-in-law, F. Kenville, were placed under arrest. The seizure is one of the largest ever made on the border in many months.

THE THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

Bonacieux kissed his wife's hand and set off at a quick pace.

"Well," said Madame Bonacieux when her husband had shut the street door, and she found herself alone, "there wanted nothing to complete that poor creature but being a cardinalist. And I, who have answered for him to the queen. She will take me for one of those wretches with whom the palace swarms and which are placed about her as spies. Ah, M. Bonacieux, I hate you, and by my word, you shall pay for this!"

At the moment she spoke these words a rap on the ceiling made her

"Ah, M. Bonacieux, I hate you, and you shall pay for this!"

raise her head, and a voice which reached her through the plaster, cried: "Dear Mme. Bonacieux, open the little passage door for me, and I will come down to you."

CHAPTER XIV.

The Lover and the Husband.

"AH, madame," said D'Artagnan as he entered by the door which the young woman had opened for him, "allow me to tell you that you have a bad sort of a husband there!"

"You have then overheard our conversation?" asked Mme. Bonacieux. "How?"

"By a mode of proceeding known to myself."

"And what did you understand by what you heard us say?"

"That it gives me an opportunity of placing myself at your service. The queen wants a brave, intelligent, devoted man to make a journey to London for her. I have at least two of the qualities you stand in need of, and here I am."

Mme. Bonacieux made no reply, but her heart beat with joy, and secret hope shone in her eyes.

"And what pledge can you give me," asked she, "if I consent to confide this message to you?"

"My love for you. Do you know Athos, or Porthos or Aramis?"

"No: who are these gentlemen?"

"Three of the king's musketeers. Do you know M. de Treville, their captain?"

"Oh, yes, I know him; not personally, but from having heard the queen speak of him more than once as a brave and loyal gentleman."

"You are not afraid that he would betray you for the sake of the cardinal?"

"Oh, no, certainly."

"Well, reveal your secret to him and ask him whether you may not safely confide it to me."

"But this secret is not mine."

"Why, you were going to confide it to M. Bonacieux," said D'Artagnan, with an offended tone. "Put me to the proof."

Madame Bonacieux looked at the young man, restrained for a minute by a last hesitation, but there was such an ardor in his eyes, such persuasion in his voice that she felt herself drawn on to place confidence in him.

"Listen," said she. "I yield to your protestations, I yield to your assurances. But I swear to you that if you betray me and my enemies pardon me, I will kill myself while accusing you of my death."

"And I, I swear to you, madame," said D'Artagnan, "that if I am taken while accomplishing the orders you give me, I will die sooner than do anything or say anything that may compromise any one."

Then the young woman confided to him the terrible secret. D'Artagnan was radiant with joy and pride. This secret which he possessed, this woman whom he loved!

"I will go," said he. "I will go at once."

"How! You will go!" said Mme. Bonacieux; "and your regiment, your captain?"

"By my soul, you have made me forget all that, dear Constance! Yes, you are right—I must obtain leave of absence. I will go this very evening to M. de Treville, whom I will request to ask this favor for me of his brother-in-law, M. Dessessart."

"But you have perhaps no money."

"Perhaps is too much," said D'Artagnan, smiling.

"Then," replied Mme. Bonacieux, opening a cupboard and taking from it the very bag which half an hour before her husband had caressed so affectionately, "take this bag."

"The cardinal's!" cried D'Artagnan, breaking into a loud laugh. "It will be a doubly amusing affair to save the queen with the cardinal's money."

"You are an amiable and a charming young man," said Mme. Bonacieux. "Be assured you will not find her majesty ungrateful."

"Oh, I am already more than recompensed!" cried D'Artagnan. "I love you. You permit me to tell you that I do. That is already more happiness than I dared to hope for."

"Silence!" said Mme. Bonacieux, starting. "Some one is talking in the street. It is my husband."

D'Artagnan ran to the door and drew the bolt.

"He shall not come in, before I am gone," said he, "and when I am gone you can open the door for him."

"But I ought to be gone too. And the disappearance of his money—how am I to justify it if I am here?"

"You are right. We must go out."

"Go out? How? He will see us if we go out."

"Then you must come up into my room. You will be as safe as in a temple. I give you my word as a gentleman."

"Let us go, then. I place full confidence in you, my friend."

Once in his apartment, for greater security the young man barricaded the door. They both went up to the window, and through a slit in the shutter they saw M. Bonacieux talking with a man in a cloak.

At the sight of this man D'Artagnan started, half drew his sword and sprang toward the door. It was the man of Meung.

"What are you going to do?" cried Mme. Bonacieux. "You will ruin us all!"

"But I have sworn to kill that man!" said D'Artagnan.

"At this time your life is devoted and does not belong to you! In the name of the queen I forbid you to go! In my own name I beg you! But listen; they appear to be speaking of me."

M. Bonacieux had opened his door and, seeing the apartment empty, had returned to the man in the cloak, whom he had left alone for an instant.

"She is gone," said he. "She must be gone back to the Louvre."

"Is the young guardsman at home?"

"I do not think he is, but I will ask his servant."

Bonacieux went into the house again, passed to D'Artagnan's door and knocked.

No one answered. Porthos, to make a greater display, had that evening borrowed Planchet. As to D'Artagnan, he took care not to give the least sign of existence.

At the moment the finger of Bonacieux sounded on the door the two young people felt their hearts bound within them.

"There is nobody within," said Bonacieux.

"Never mind. Let us walk into your apartment. We shall be better there than in the doorway."

"Oh," whispered Mme. Bonacieux, "we shall hear no more!"

"On the contrary," said D'Artagnan, "we shall hear the better."

D'Artagnan raised the loose boards, spread a carpet, went down upon his knees and made a sign to Mme. Bonacieux to do as he did, stooping down toward the opening.

"And you think that your wife"—said the unknown.

"Is returned to the Louvre. The news I brought you is valuable?"

"Very, my dear Bonacieux. I don't attempt to deny it."

"Then the cardinal will be pleased with me?"

"No doubt he will. Are you sure that in her conversation with you your wife mentioned no proper names?"

"No; she only told me she wished to send me to London to further the interests of an illustrious personage."

"Never mind," continued the man in the cloak. "It was very silly of you not to have feigned to accept the mission. You would now be in possession of the letter. The state, which is now threatened, would be safe, and the cardinal would have given you letters of nobility."

"Did he tell you so?"

"Yes."

"Be satisfied," replied Bonacieux. "My wife adores me, and there is still plenty of time."

"What do you mean by its being still time?" asked the man in the cloak.

"I will go to the Louvre, I will ask for Mme. Bonacieux, I will tell her I have reflected upon the matter, I will renew the affair, I will obtain the letter and I will run directly to the cardinal's."

"Well, begone then! Make all possible haste. I will shortly come back to learn the result of your plan."

The unknown went out.

"Base old fool!" said Mme. Bonacieux, addressing this affectionate epithet to her husband.

"Silence," said D'Artagnan.

A terrible howling interrupted these reflections of D'Artagnan and Mme. Bonacieux. It was her husband who had discovered the disappearance of his money bag and was screaming out, "Thieves, thieves!"

"Oh," cried Mme. Bonacieux, "he will rouse the whole quarter!"

Bonacieux cried for a long time, but as such cries on account of their frequency did not attract much notice in the Rue des Fossoyeurs, finding that nobody came, he went out.

"Now he is gone, it is your turn to get out," said Mme. Bonacieux. "Courage, my friend, but, above all, prudence, and think what you owe to the queen!"

"To her and to you!" cried D'Artagnan. "Be satisfied, lovely Constance. I shall prove worthy of her gratitude. But shall I likewise return worthy of your love?"

The young woman only replied by the beautiful glow which mounted to

TRUTH ABOUT THE RUSSIAN FAMINE

People Did Not Have to Eat Grass, Says Associated Press Man.

Samara, Nov. 10.—(By a Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press)—The whole truth about the famine becomes really apparent after observation here. Reports of millions of people eating grass or lying in a dying condition on the banks of the Volga River or migrating en masse are rather far-fetched.

Entering the famine area the correspondent had provided himself with canned meats and hard bread but was not compelled to use any of it in the first two weeks of travel as food was always available at reasonable prices.

People do not die of hunger in one week. It takes months of underfeeding. Then they reach the point where they are unable to eat food at all. Their hands, feet and stomachs begin to swell or they succumb to an epidemic of malaria or else the new disease described as aneuria, no cure for which is known here. Or they may be killed by cold winds, snows, and rains which have been setting in for the past two weeks, with each hour taking a toll of hundreds.

The people of the provinces of Samara, Kazan and Simbirsk are in a starving condition. In these three provinces, there are probably 500,000 children and 1,000,000 adults who must die before Christmas.

The American Relief Administration is feeding barely 200,000 children but is giving no food to the adults. One of the best effects of its food distribution will be to cheapen prices and check the hoarding of foodstuffs.

The Moscow government appears to be unable to send food into this district owing to lack of money and poor organization. Also the typical Russian indifference to misery is evident.

The correspondents while sitting on the platform of a railway station throughout a long, cold night, waiting for a train, saw a barefooted, little insane girl tripping along but the trainhands and other refugees let her wander unaided until she drifted past the Red sentry into a waiting room already filled to overflowing with several thousands of persons lying asleep on the floor.

A member of the local Soviet who lived in the United States for seven years showed no pity but said: "You foreigners do not realize how much our peasants can stand. They are used to starvation."

The famine area does not present a forbidding aspect, except in the fields from which no harvests were obtained. The meadows and grazing lands showed many herds of horses and cattle. The villages seemed abnormally quiet, yet their workers were abroad putting in winter rye and wheat. To the visitor they made the customary charge that if it had not been for the Soviet requisition their crops would have been sufficient.

"Now our only hope for bread is America," they say; yet many know they must die by winter and accept their fate with stoicism.

"Why leave our homes and go die on the railway stations?" many of them retort when asked why they do not desert their land.

Medical conditions are distressing. The country doctors are unable to practice as they are without medicines and the situation is almost the same in the 15 hospitals of Samara. Dr. Glasson, the surgeon in one of these hospitals, having 180 patients said: "We have no quinine, no bandages, no asperin, no chloroform, nothing."

The same condition exists in the children's hospitals and also in the dozen of homes open for the care of refugees, for there are no sanitary arrangements. In one such home 300 children are crowded in two rooms, without blankets, fires or mattresses and with little or no clothing. Their only advantage is that they have a real roof over them and receive hot soup daily.

NEW ZEALAND ANGRY AT I. O. O. F. DECISION

Wellington, N. Z., Nov. 11.—Rejection of Mairis as Oddfellows by the Grand Lodge at its meeting last month in Toronto aroused much unfavorable comment in New Zealand, where the news appeared in the Wellington papers and was circulated in the copies delivered to the House of Representatives just when that body was passing a resolution of sympathy on the occasion of the death of Te Hau Hau Tukino, a distinguished Maori Parliamentarian. New Zealanders feel that the Toronto conference could not have understood the equality that exists between Maoris and whites in New Zealand. The secretary of the Independent Order of Oddfellows here states that the Manchester Unity is not affected by the Toronto decision as it has never objected to Maoris as members. Moaris are members of all New Zealand lodges and are entitled to the full benefits and privileges.

POPPIES

(From the Dundee Advertiser.)

A great Queen has built for herself a statue of flowers, for in her kindliness Alexandra had said—"On my day you shall ask the people to remember the sick and suffering in pink roses."

A great General would build for our Great Dead a statue of flowers, for in his remembrance Haig has said—"On Armistice Day you shall ask the people to remember the dead, who never die, in red poppies."

So have two great statues been erected, monuments more lasting than brass, for when stone and mortar have fallen and decayed, the poppies will still bloom to remind us of the dead who cannot die, and the red petals shower down everlasting pictures of the blood so freely shed.

Nature taught us to remember the "lost-awhile" with flowers, and it is one of the most beautiful things the great General has done to suggest that every year, on November 11th, the poppy should be worn in remembrance of the men, some of whom rest beneath its blooms in the fields of France and Flanders.

Stevenson, after visiting the field of Waterloo, wrote the lines:

> But, oh, how thick the corn
> Along the battlefield.
> Today he might have written:
> But, oh, how red the poppy
> Along the Flanders line.

It is said that when the relics of the blessed St. Firminius were borne along in devotional processions, trees and flowers blossomed miraculously. I saw the German guns plough up the fields at Fampoux in the spring of 1917. I saw the good grain of great men sown in the drills, and in a few days the crocus and poppy were making beautiful the far-flung graveyard. The kindly earth is, indeed, "kindlier than men know." The memory of that great scene in the "Blue Bird" comes to one's mind, and with the startled children we watch the flowers springing from the graves and in the sweet astonishment whisper, "There are no dead."

To the Greek the poppy in its opium-hearted beauty suggested sleep and death. But the Greek had no eyes to see that in the centre of the poppy is the symbol of the Cross that means eternal life.

We take long to build our memorials. We argue about their shape and their position—and even at the best we but build our little mounds of stone and mud that shall be swept away. Nature required no time to set up her great memorial, for her poppies grew on the newly-made graves—an ever-recurring and never-dying memorial.

There is always the suggestion in stone and lime that we are raising something to help our children remember what we have forgotten. Earl Haig is to make the poppy memorial as living as the memory should be. In the devastated areas of France women and little children are making copies of the poppy. These will be sold on Armistice Day, and what each of us chooses to think the value of the poppy of memory will help the broken ex-service man.

A great honor has been done the poppy. No longer is she the flower of the dreamy Persephone of the Greeks, but now she takes her place as first of all the flowers, for as St. Patrick watered the shamrock with his tears and it became the flower of his country which he loved, so did St. Tommy Atkins water the poppy with his blood, and make it the symbol of the faith for which he died.

So when Time lays her harsh fingers on our poor monuments of crumbling stone, the poppy will still bloom above the graves in Flanders, and generations still to be will wear the bloom of memory when each eleventh November morning breaks on what must always be "The Day."

Here is our greatest thin red line—the poppy path from Neuport to Bapaume—the line that none can ever break, and that will ever stand between the best things in us and the violence, outrage and brutality that made up the poor strength of the enemy.

> No great triumphal march
> For lads like you;
> No pasteboard Victory arch,
> No grand Review.
> In working raiment brown,
> You gave your best;
> Then laid you weary down
> And took your rest
> But the great kindly earth
> That hid your face
> Gave all the triumph birth
> Beside your resting-place.,
> The poppy armids blaze
> Red in the holy loam,
> And the lark's music plays
> The victors home.

MAGISTRATE NOT SEEN INTOXICATED

Evidence at Welland Police Probe—Startling Statements re Ex-Chief.

WELLAND, Ont., Nov. 11.—A general contradiction by James H. Putman, provincial inspector, of all allegations referring to him contained in ex-Police Chief Lang's affidavit featured the opening of the police inquiry.

Inspector Putman declared he never had charge of the confiscated liquor, that being under the custody of Inspector Ekins. He had never given Laing any liquor, either for himself or Magistrate Goodwin, directly or indirectly. He produced duplicate reports relative to seized goods.

The most startling evidence of the day was produced by a restaurant keeper named Delcino Panisico, who declared that former chief Laing some time in June had come into his cafe had just come from Hamilton. Witness alleged that Laing had stated, "I'm on the bum now. I try to get Magistrate Goodwin and Inspector Putman out of their jobs and I don't mind if I tell a lie or not." Panisico claimed he volunteered the information to Goodwin.

Former constable Harry Wilmott denied ever reporting that he had reported seeing the magistrate in his car in an intoxicated condition. He had never made such a report nor had ever seen Goodwin drunk.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

IT is always interesting to make a discovery.

Women, as well as men, find joy in discovering something which they can tell others about.

Many thousands of women have quite accidentally discovered in Dr. Chase's Ointment, a skin beautifier of rare value.

Because Dr. Chase's Ointment is so universally used as a treatment for eczema and the skin troubles of babyhood, its effectiveness as a beautifier of the skin is sometimes lost sight of, until using it for these ailments of the skin its benefit to the skin itself is once more discovered.

With the modern use of powders and cosmetics the skin becomes dry and harsh, irritations are set up, pimples and blackheads are formed.

The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment makes the skin soft and pliable, and restores the healthful action of the pores of the skin which have been clogged by the use of powders.

The woman who is admired for the exquisitely fine texture and velvety softness of her skin is the one who regularly uses Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can discover this for yourself by giving this delightfully soothing, healing ointment a few weeks' trial.

Tender Skin

Many men suffer from skin irritations of an eczemic nature as a result of shaving. In its more aggravated form this is known as "Barber's Itch." If your skin is tender you will find it good to apply Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving. Wash thoroughly with hot water, dry the skin carefully without rubbing, and apply the ointment. This heals the irritated skin, keeps it soft and pliable, and by its antiseptic influence prevents the spread of skin trouble.

Many Uses

There are scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in the home. It is the standard ointment, and is used with great satisfaction for

Eczema

Miss Bessie Stewart, Lanark, Ont., writes: "I first took eczema on my head, and had to have my hair cut. Then the eczema broke out on the fingers of my right hand. It was so itchy I couldn't keep from scratching it, and it began to spread. In reading an old Almanac that mother had, I noticed that Dr. Chase's Ointment was recommended for eczema, so I sent for a sample box. I used the ointment every night, and soon saw a difference. I got a full-sized box at the druggist's, and later another one, but I never needed the second, because after the use of the first box the eczema disappeared from both my head and fingers."

Baby's Skin

Mrs. Everett Roberts, 44 Endicott Ave., Halifax, N.S., writes: "I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for my baby, who had ringworms all over his face. I tried almost everything I knew of without success until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. This completely freed him of this annoying skin trouble in a short time. I would not be without this ointment in the house, and trust this may induce others to give it a trial and be convinced of its merits."

STOP BUILDING WARSHIPS FOR TEN YEARS, SAYS HUGHES

SCRAP NAVIES, SAYS HUGHES

Would Abandon Construction of Ships and Junk Old Cruisers.

TAKE NAVAL HOLIDAY

Suggest Maritime Powers Stop Replacement for Ten Years.

Washington, D.C.—Nov. 14.—It was officially announced by British delegation today that Hon. Arthur Balfour will tomorrow accept "in principle Hughes proposals."

While naval experts of foreign powers today continued to examine Hughes proposals for limitation of armaments, heads of United States, British, Japanese, French and Italian delegations conferred to map out plan of procedure to expedite consideration of whole question.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—A ten-year-naval holiday in naval construction, involving a tremendous scrapping of ships now on the way or contemplated by the United States, Great Britain and Japan, was proposed to the conference on the limitation of armaments by Secretary Hughes at the opening session today as the proposals of the United States.

Briefly, the United States proposal is:

That there immediately be destroyed by the navies of the three great powers sixty-six capital fighting ships built or building and a total tonnage of 1,878,043 tons.

Within three months after making an agreement, the navies would consist of designated and agreed-upon ships as follows:

United States, 18; Great Britain, 22; Japan 10.

In tons this would be: United States 500,650; Great Britain, 604,450; Japan, 299,700.

In his proposals Mr. Hughes laid down four general principles, as follows:

1—That all capital ships building program, either actual or projected, should be abandoned.

2—That further reduction should be made through the scrapping of certain of the older ships.

3—That in general, regard should be had to the existing naval strength of the powers concerned.

4—That the capital ship tonnage should be used as the measurements of strength for navies and a proportionate allowance of auxiliary combatant craft prescribed.

For the United States the program would scrap all capital ships under construction, fifteen in number and fifteen of the older battleships.

Great Britain would stop construction on her four new ships of the "Hood" type and scrap all her second and first-line battleships up to the "King George V." class.

Japan would abandon plans for two battleships and four battle cruisers not yet laid down, and in addition, would scrap three capital ships and four battle cruisers in process of construction and all ten of the pre-dreadnaughts and battleships of the second line.

As a replacement program the United States Government proposed that no more ships be laid down for the next ten years and that a maximum replacement tonnage figure be fixed providing eventually for 500,000 tons for the United States, 500,000 tons for Great Britain, and 300,000 tons for Japan.

A proviso also would be included permitting replacement of capital ships when they were twenty years old and prohibiting construction of any ship built in replacement with a tonnage of more than 35,000. The text of the proposal as its details concern the three leading naval powers is as follows:

"The United States is now completing its program of 1916 calling for ten new battleships and six battle cruisers. One battleship has been completed. The others are in various stages of construction; in some cases from sixty to eighty per cent. of the construction has been done. On the 15 capital ships now being built over $330,000,000 have been spent. Still the United States is willing, in the interest of an immediate limitation of naval armaments to scrap all these ships.

HAMILTON MAN ROUTS BANDITS

Two Armed Robbers Fled From Store After Short Fight.

TORONTO MEN HELD

One Caught in Hamilton and Two Arrests Made in Toronto.

Hamilton, Nov. 14.—Louis Mandel, well known as a local boxer, was arrested early yesterday morning by Detective-Sgts. Carter and Ward, on a charge of assault upon and attempted robbery of Audley Morden, of the form of Morden Bros., electrical appliance dealers, 15 John Street north Hamilton, about 9.30 on Saturday night Harry Herman, Henry Street, Toronto, was arrested in Hamilton after a short chase along the streets of that city. With Mandel, who was captured at a house on Gerrard St., west was a man named Harry Stein, Henry street, who is being held on a charge of vagrancy.

Two armed men entered Morden Bros. store on Saturday night, and ordered Audley Morden, who was alone in the store at the time, to throw up his hands. His reply was to leap at the man nearest him and fell him with a blow between the eyes. In retaliation the other bandit jumped into the fray, and struck Morden on the back of the head with his gun, stunning him.

Fearing arrest, the bandits left hurriedly by a rear window, shattering the plate glass as they leaped through. Recovering himself, Morden gave chase, and arriving at the Bank of Commerce. King and Hughson streets, Morden called to passers-by to stop the bandit. Three taxicab drivers, Frank Carter, 209 James street north; Joseph Richards, 15 Arthur street, and John Williams, 141 King William street, darted forward, and managed to intercept and hold the man until the police arrived. The bandit's revolver, which he had thrown away, was recovered by Carter.

THE TEN YEAR NAVAL HOLIDAY

Will Be Easier for Great Britain, Says a London Paper.

LESS SACRIFICE

Than United States or Japan in Scrapping Plan.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

LONDON, Nov. 14.—American plan for ten year naval holiday and scrapping of all but limited number of warships calls for much less sacrifice on part of Britain than by United States or Japan in view of naval correspondent of Daily Mail. Proposed sacrifice he says "would be heavy one for Japan and United States. Scheme involves no injury to British interests for in plain fact British navy today is third in post—war ships and ocean—going submarines."

Seven men picked for stock-judging team fromO.A.C. to compete at Chicago.

JOHN ST. CHURCH 74 YEARS OLD

Celebrates Anniversary Services with Appropriate Sermons and Music.

A FORCEFUL PASTOR

Rev. D. C. Ramsay Compares Christian Life to a Long Distance Race.

Seventy-four years ago saw the beginning of the John Street Presbyterian Church in Belleville. The beginning was small and humble but every year since has added to the strength and influence of this church which is to-day a powerful influence for good in the community and in a very prosperous condition, spiritually and financially, with a united membership behind an efficient and forceful pastor and every department of the church working harmoniously and effectively for the good of the church, and the betterment of humanity.

Sunday was anniversary day and the seventy-four years of progress were commemorated by special services. The pastor, Rev. D. C. Ramsay, M.A., preached strong and practical sermons morning and evening and appropriate musical programs were given by the choir under the direction of Mr. S. M. Anglin, choirmaster, and Miss Phyllis Bogart, organist, with solos by Messrs. Anglin and Booth, and Miss Sisson, while several excellent organ selections were given by Miss Bogart.

The Church Visible

Rev. Mr. Ramsay spoke in ~~the morning~~ on 'The Church Invisible", and in the evening on "The Church Visible", large congregations being present on both occasions but particularly in the evening when the church was filled to capacity, the service at St. Andrews being cancelled so that the members could worship with the John Street Congregation. Rev. Mr. Kerr led in prayer and read the lesson.

"Let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."—Hebrews 12 1.

Taking the above for his evening text Rev. Mr. Ramsay made practical and forceful application of the comparison of the Christian life with a long-distance race in preparation for which the runner to ensure victory must lay aside every weight of superfluous clothing and bend the entire will to the task, while as a matter of course the sin must be laid aside or all efforts would be in vain. There must be condition, courage, endurance and the will to win, for races are won by the runner who maintains the will to win a moment or two longer than the strongest opponent.

The church deals with the basic element entering into every other activity, whether of business, finance, government, domestic, or aught else, and one must lack a sense of proportion to leave out of consideration the work the church is doing in the world. Nothing good can be acomplished without Christianity, which should be made attractive if other people are to be induced to embrace it, cutting out the false sadness which is not Christianity and presenting the real joyful Christianity or service which is all-compelling.

The Christian Race

As in a race we must keep pegging away with our eyes ever on the distant goal and an unflagging determination to win, remembering that the race is not always to the swift.

In the life of the church every weight must be laid aside, the weight of coldness, laziness, and indifference, and the visitor to church must be greeted with a real heart welcome not just one of from the teeth outward and the fingertips. Get religion in the heart and it will shine through the eyes, reflecting Jesus in a way that will make those lingering at the portals acquainted with the Master.

The Besetting Sin

The sins that so easily beset us should be laid aside for it is the sin that hides Jesus, the sin that is hurting our friends, the sin that is not our own business but everybody's business because it influences others and not for good, the flaw in our friend which hurts, the sin which so easily besets him, and which prevents all the other good qualities from having their proper influence for good.

Let us see that the race is well run and no weight or sin allowed to handicap our very best efforts in the race of life and the journey of the Christ-

CARD 3 YEARS, HOWARD 1 YEAR

Sentences on the Motorists Found Guilty of Manslaughter.

A SOLEMN WARNING

Justice Riddell Takes Howard's War Service Into Account.

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—Bruce I Card, Toronto broker, whose motor car killed Joseph Burton, Street Railway employe, in the early morning of July 25th last, is to serve three years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Ernest Howard, bond salesman, yer, is to serve one year at the Jail wagon early in the morning of July 10th, killing the driver, Norman Oliver, is to serve one year at the Jail Farm.

These were the sentences pronounced in the Assizes on Saturday morning before Justice Masten and Justice Riddell respectively.

H. H. Gordon, counsel for Card, made an extremely brief plea before the sentence, saying:—"I would like to point out that Mr. Card is a married man with a family, and this is his first time in trouble of any kind. He is not a man of criminal tendencies, and I throw myself on the mercy of the court."

"After trial," said Justice Masten, "I considered it my duty, painful as it might be, having regard to the safety of the public to impose on you a sentence of five years in the penitentiary. On further consideration, such as that of your counsel, I concluded that the five years might be reduced to three.

"The sentence of the court is that you be imprisoned for three years."

Card's face blanched suddenly as the sentence was pronounced and when he left the court room he appeared in a semidazed condition.

Justice Riddell in sentencing Ernest Howard reviewed at length the latter's splendid war services and said that he would take it, duly into account. He attributed Howard's apparent mania for fast driving to a state of neurosis induced by his overseas experiences and expressed the hope that the prisoner would bow to the law as cheerfully as he had answered the call of patriotic duty.

Howard received the sentence with outward calm.

ULSTER TO HANG ON BY TEETH AND TOES

Belfast, Nov. 12.—The Marquis of Dufferin, Speaker of the Ulster Senate addressing the Ulster Officers' Association yesterday declared that Ulster would follow the old motto: "What I have I hold."

"Ulstermen" he added "would hang on to Ulster with teeth, hands and toes; they owe this duty to the dead."

EARLY REVIVAL IN TRADE LIKELY

World Confidence Will be Restored by U. S. Proposals.

AWAITS AGREEMENT

Italian Economist Looks for Beneficial Results to Ensue.

Washington, Nov. 14.—"Restoration of world confidence and an early revival in trade will be the economic effect of the United States' armament proposals," said Dr. F. Giannini, chief of the economic section of the Italian delegation, last night.

Dr. Giannini spent to-day writing a report to his Government on the probable economic effect of the drastic curtailment of naval shipbuilding. In it he emphasized the psychological reaction of the world's traders and manufacturers to the plan submitted by Secretary Hughes.

"Reginald McKenna and all the world's great bankers have long awaited the advent of some great international factor to start the producing plants again at full speed. I believe that an early agreement on the lines laid down by the United States delegation will supply it.

"From the business viewpoint the new diplomacy inaugurated by Secretary Hughes will be highly beneficial. Secret discussions for the formulation of a limitation plan would have had the effect of gradually discounting the value of the final agreement in the world's markets. The dramatic announcement of the Secretary of State, on the other hand, can only lead to an immediate restoration of confidence, and the release by the bankers of huge sums of money for industrial purposes and a world-wide trade revival."

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST A PREMIER

Armand Lavergne, Nationalist, Scores Premier Taschereau's Action.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

Quebec, Nov. 14.—Speaking at St. Gregoire Parish yesterday, Armand Lavergne, Nationalist candidate in Quebec County, said it was scandalous to see Premier Tascherau meddling in the Federal campaign and declared that two days after the Blanche Garneau murder he had sent word to the Premier that he could give him information regarding the real murderers of the girl, but he had not heard from him since.

JAPAN AGREES

Washington, Nov. 14.—Japan's acceptance "in principle" of Hughes proposals was indicated by Admiral Kato.

FINED $30,000

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Big Tim Murphy was today sentenced to six months imprisonment and fined thirty thousand dollars for his part in planning the Dearborn station robbery.

FAVORABLY INCLINED TO THE PROPOSALS

Washington, Nov. 13.—To-night, when the delegates have had time to study the proposals, to consult their colleagues and their experts and advisers, the atmosphere is astonishingly favorable to them. None of the delegates would issue direct statements, preferring to make a closer study of the details of the program and to wait a report from their technical advisors upon the large amount of data tabled by Mr. Hughes, but semi-officially and authoritatively, it can be stated that both the Japanese and British are favorably inclined.

CRERAR SPEAKS AT STRATFORD

Declares U. S. Will Drop Proposed High Tariff Out of Sight.

AS REVENUE RAISER

Low Tariff for That Purpose Will be Long Needed, Says Progressive Chief.

Stratford, Ont., Nov. 13.—Hon. T. A. Crerar sprung a new viewpoint on his audience last night, when he announced that he did not believe that the United States would ever return to the policy of protection and that the Republican party was looking for a convenient place to drop their proposed high tariff out of sight.

Raising Revenue

Asked how he proposed to raise revenue to run the country, Mr. Crerar said that for many years Canada would need a tariff for revenue which would be much lower than the present tariff, which he claimed was designed not to raise money, but to exclude goods.

Mr. Drury also was billed to speak but was not present at the meeting.

Mr. Crerar spoke in the afternoon at Guelph, where he was supported by the Hon. Manning Doherty. His speech was almost identical with the one he delivered in Toronto on the previous evening.

FLEEING JEWS ARE SHOT DOWN

Hundreds of Jewish Families Murdered Crossing the Frontier.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer

Kissinev, Bessaraba., Nov. 14.—Hundreds of Jewish families have been shot down while attempting to cross the Bessarabian frontiers to escape anticipated clash between forces of Gen. Petlura and Soviet Government according to unconfirmed advices received here.

DELEGATES RISE AND SPEAK TO PLEASE CHEERING CROWD

Washington, Nov. 12.—Applause interrupted Secretary Hughes when he said with emphasis, at the armament conference that "competition in armaments must stop."

When he said the conference had been called for action rather than mere resolution, the house and senate arose in a body and the famous "rebel yell," familiar in the house, broke out.

The Japanese delegates smiled and whispered together.

"Briand. . . .Briand," the galleries shouted.

Applause, which far exceeded even the welcome given the president, greeted the French premier.

"When the president invited the nations to this conference," said Briand, "my country instantly answered 'here.' My country was actuated first by gratitude and by her aspirations for peace. If it is possible to obtain the security to which she is entitled, France is ready to say 'down arms.'

"Japan," next demanded the crowd.

Premier Tokugawa, head of the delegation, speaking in English, said: "Japan is here to promote honest friendship among nations, and to carry out the plain dictates of common sense."

Dr. Carlo Schanzer of the Italian delegation responded to the cries of "Italy," which the galleries set up when Tokugawa finished.

The crowd was by this time thoroughly enjoying the session, because it was running the show itself and was getting a look at all the celebrities.

Secretary Hughes in his speech outlined the general purposes of the conference just before he startled the delegates with announcing Amrica's program for arms limitation. He frankly referred to past attempts at disarmament which had ended in failure, but was most optimistic for the future.

MARVELS OF THE TELEPHONE

Immense and Intricate Plant Needed to Carry on Conversation.

TELEPHONE WEEK

Everybody Can Look-See This Week Where the Voice Comes From.

This is Bell Telephone Week, and all over the land the central offices and plant of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada will be open to the public so that everybody can see just how the conversation business is conducted, local and long distance. The dynamos, supplying electricity for the batteries, the auxiliary gas plant for use in case anything goes wrong with the Hydro and all the immense energy required to keep open the lines of communication as far as telephoning is concerned. Speaking of the gas auxiliary plant it is interesting to note that there never has been a break in the Hydro service in the past seven years and the auxiliary plant has not been called upon for substitute service.

An interesting feature of the Bell Telephone business is the fact that all the accounting is done in district offices, Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton, so if you call up Central and ask something about your bill, Central may reply "We don't know," for the fact is that all Belleville accounts are made out in Ottawa. There are many interesting features about the Belleville Telephone building and this week the citizens will have an opportunity of seeing for themselves, a privilege, interesting and educational.

Monday morning at eleven o'clock Telephone Week was officially opened by Mr. James A. Cokers, manager of the Belleville branch, in welcoming Mayor Hanna, Aldermen Ostrom, Fisher, Woodley, Bennett, Adams, Treverton, French and representatives of the press, who had the honor of the first peep behind the scenes.

In the public office on the main floor, a display of different types of telephones and apparatus was shown. On this floor is situated the Manager's and Plant Chief's offices, the Commercial General Offices and Long Distance and Local telephone booths.

The visitors were then conducted to the basement which contains the building's heating plant, instrument and stationery supply rooms and the telephone power plant consisting of two banks of storage batteries, twelve batteries each, motor generator charging machine, tone test and ringing machines, power board and auxilliary gas engine and generator, this auxilliary engine is used in case of breakdown in electric power.

DISTRIBUTING ROOM

The next place visited was the distributing room, this room contains the main and intermediate distributing frames, the Wire Chief's test board on which is mounted a voltmeter for testing local lines and a galvonometer for testing and locating Long Distance Line troubles. The wire chief records are also kept here on which is kept a complete record of all the telephones in the area numbering nearly 5,000. This record shows the type of instrument and protectors at each station and a complete record of the troubles on each individual telephone. The visitors were shown a piece of hundred pair cable cut open and it was then explained that each individual line and each party line required a pair of wires to central office. These wires enter the building in cables through underground conduit and connected to the main frame for the purpose of distributing the wires from the cables and from there to the intermediate frame for the purpose of distributing to the numbers on the switchboard.

OPERATORS

The operating room was next visited. This room contains the Local and Long Distance Switchboard and information desk, the operations of an individual line, party line and busy tests were demonstrated and explained. The Local and Long Distance boards in actual operation were seen. The system of timing Long Distance calls by means of a calculagraph, a map of the Long Distance Lines and the system of finding and computing Long Distance Rates, which figure out at less than 5-8 of one cent per mile "as the crow flies" were explained and the information desk and its uses was also explained.

The visitors were then conducted to the operators rest and retiring room, which is made very comfortable for her cheeks. A few seconds after D'Artagnan went out in his turn, enveloped likewise in a large cloak, which ill concealed the sheath of a long sword.

THE·THREE GUARDSMEN

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

D'Artagnan went straight to the hotel of M. de Treville. He had reflected that in a few minutes the cardinal would be warned by this cursed unknown, who appeared to be his agent, and he judged, with reason, he had not a moment to lose.

M. de Treville was in his saloon with his habitual court of gentlemen. D'Artagnan, who was known as a familiar of the house, went straight to his cabinet and sent word to him that he wished to see him upon an affair of importance.

D'Artagnan had been there scarcely five minutes when M. de Treville entered. At the first glance and by the joy which was painted on his countenance the worthy captain plainly perceived that something fresh and extraordinary was on foot.

"You will pardon me, I hope, for having disturbed you when you know the importance of my business," said D'Artagnan.

"Speak, then. I am attentive."

"It concerns nothing less," said D'Artagnan, lowering his voice, "than the honor, perhaps the life, of the queen."

"What do you say?" asked M. de Treville, glancing around to see if they were alone.

"I say, monsieur, that chance has rendered me master of a secret"—

"Is this secret your own?"

"No, monsieur; it is her majesty's."

"Are you authorized to communicate it to me?"

"No, monsieur."

"Why, then, are you about to betray it with respect to me?"

"Because without you I can do nothing, and I was afraid that you would refuse me the favor I am come to ask if you were not acquainted with my object."

"Keep your secret, young man, and tell me what you wish."

"I wish you to obtain for me from M. Dessessart leave of absence for a fortnight."

"When?"

"This very night."

"You are leaving Paris?"

"I am going on a mission."

"May you tell me whither?"

"To London."

"Has any one an interest in preventing your arriving there?"

"The cardinal, I believe, would give anything in the world to prevent my success."

"And you are going alone?"

"I am going alone."

"In that case you will not get beyond Bondy. You will be assassinated. In enterprises of this kind, in order that one may arrive, four must set out."

"Ah, you are right, monsieur!" said D'Artagnan. "But you know Athos, Porthos and Aramis, and you know if I can dispose of them."

"Without confiding to them the secret which I was not willing to know?"

"We are sworn, once and forever, to implicit confidence and devotedness against all proof; besides, you can tell them that you have full confidence in me, and they will not be more incredulous than you."

"I can send to each of them leave of absence for a fortnight, that is all. Athos, whose wound still gives him inconvenience, to go to the waters of Forges; to Porthos and Aramis to accompany their friend."

"Thanks, monsieur; you are a hundred times kind!"

"Begone, then, find them instantly and let all be done tonight. Ha! but first write your request to M. Dessessart."

D'Artagnan drew up his request, and M. de Treville, on receiving it, assured him that by 2 o'clock in the morning the four leaves of absence should be granted.

"Have the goodness to send mine to Athos' residence. I should dread some disagreeable encounter if I were to go home."

"I will. Adieu, and a prosperous voyage!"

D'Artagnan's first visit was for Aramis. He found Aramis this evening sitting up, but melancholy and thoughtful.

After the two friends had been chatting a few instants a servant from M. de Treville entered bringing the leave of absence for Aramis.

"What does all this mean?" asked Aramis.

"Pack up all you want for a journey of a fortnight and follow me."

"But I cannot leave Paris just now without knowing"— Aramis stopped.

"What is become of her? I suppose you mean"— continued D'Artagnan.

"Become of whom?" replied Aramis.

"The lady who was here, the lady of the embroidered handkerchief."

"Who told you there was a lady here?" replied Aramis, becoming as pale as death.

"I saw her."

"And you know who she is?"

"Well, I think I can give a pretty good guess at least."

"Then," said Aramis, "since you appear to know so many things, can you tell me what is become of that lady?"

"I presume that she is gone back to Tours. She was in fear of being arrested."

"Why did she not write to me then?"

"Because she was afraid of compromising you."

"Well, then, since she has left Paris and you are sure of it, D'Artagnan, nothing prevents me, and I am ready to follow you. You say we are going"—

"To Athos' residence now, and I beg you to make haste."

"Will Bazin go with us?" asked Aramis.

"Perhaps so. At all events it is best that he should follow us to Athos'."

Aramis called Bazin and after having ordered him to join them at Athos' residence: "Let us go, then," said he, taking his cloak, sword and three pistols.

As they went out Aramis placed his hand upon the arm of D'Artagnan and looked at him earnestly.

"You have not spoken of this lady?" said he.

"To nobody in the world."

"That's well!"

They found Athos holding his leave of absence in one hand and M. de Treville's note in the other.

"Can you explain to me what this leave of absence and this letter which I have just received mean?" said the astonished Athos:

My Dear Athos—I wish, as your health absolutely requires it, that you should rest for a fortnight. Go, then, and take the waters of Forges or any that may be more agreeable to you and re-establish yourself as quickly as possible. Your affectionate DE TREVILLE.

"Well, this leave of absence and that letter mean that you must follow me, Athos."

"To the waters of the Forges?"

"There or elsewhere."

"In the king's service?"

"Either the king's or the queen's," said he.

At that moment Porthos entered.

"Here is a strange thing that has happened!" said he. "Since when, I wonder, in the musketeers, did they grant men leave of absence without its being asked for?"

"Since," said D'Artagnan, "they have friends who ask it for them."

"Yes, we are going"— said Aramis.

"To London, gentlemen," said D'Artagnan.

"To London!" cried Porthos. "And what are we going to do in London?"

"That is what I am not at liberty to tell you, gentlemen. You must trust to me."

"But in order to go to London a man should have some money, and I have none."

"Nor I," said Aramis and Porthos.

"Well, I have," added D'Artagnan, pulling out his treasure from his pocket and placing it on the table. "There are in this bag 300 pistoles. Let each take 75, which will be quite enough to take us to London and back. Besides, we may be sure that all of us will not arrive at London."

"What is this, then, a campaign upon which we are entering?"

"And a most dangerous one. I give you fair notice."

"Ah, ha! But if we do risk being killed," said Porthos, "at least I should like to know what for."

"Is the king accustomed to give reasons? You need give yourselves no uneasiness about that."

"D'Artagnan is right," said Athos. "D'Artagnan, I am ready to follow you. And now, when are we to go?"

"Immediately," replied D'Artagnan.

"Hola! Grimaud, Planchet, Mousqueton, Bazin!" cried the four young men, calling their lackeys. "Clean my boots and fetch the horses."

Planchet, Grimaud, Mousqueton and Bazin set off at full speed.

"First we go to Calais," said D'Artagnan. "That is the most direct line to London."

"I am the bearer of a letter, that is all. I have not and I cannot make three copies of that letter, because it is sealed. We must then, it appears to me, travel in company. This letter is here in this pocket." And he pointed to the pocket which contained the letter. "If I should be killed one of you must take it and pursue the route. If he be killed, it will be another's turn, and so on. Provided a single one arrives, that is all that is required."

"There are in this bag 300 pistoles. Let each take 75."

"Bravo, D'Artagnan!" cried Athos. "We will arm our four lackeys with pistols and musketoons. If they send an army out against us we will give battle, and the survivor, as D'Artagnan says, will carry the letter."

"Well said," cried Aramis. "I agree to Athos' plan. And you, Porthos?"

"I agree to it, too," said Porthos, "if D'Artagnan approves of it. D'Artagnan, being bearer of the letter, is naturally the head of the enterprise. Let him decide, and we will execute."

"Well," said D'Artagnan, "I decide that we should adopt Athos' plan, and that we set off in half an hour."

"Agreed!" shouted the three musketeers in chorus.

And every one, stretching out his hand to the bag, took his 75 pistoles.

MARTINS BATTLE SPARROWS.

St. Mary's and Dundas Boast Bird That Does No Harm.

Shall the purple martins or the sparrows hold the mastery of the air in Ontario?

Everybody knows how the sparrow drives away the birds that would destroy insects. It is not so well known that the purple martin exercises control over noxious insect life wherever they go. And, what is more important, they can battle the sparrows.

Two Ontario towns, St. Mary's and Dundas, have five colonies of purple martins, mainly because of the fact that for generations residents have provided good nesting places for the splendid birds. In Dundas a Mr. Isaac Latshaw, coming from Pennsylvania in 1835, set up a many-chambered bird house on a pole. Perhaps the birds followed him across the border. They have been coming every year since. When they came, one spring the house was gone, but another nesting place was hastily rigged up, and they have stayed.

In St. Mary's there are convenient holes in the wooden trimmings of the stone buildings along Water street, and here every spring the purple martins come. Perhaps it may have been accidental that apertures were left by careless builders at certain house and store fronts and that the birds have taken advantage of this circumstance. May some golden-throated purple martin twitter and chortle for him all his work days, and may a late lark sing for him at the sunset of life, writes A. C. Wood.

In St. Mary's they do battle with the English sparrows and drive them away. The people realize that the martin lives on flies and gnats, and is a blessing, simply ignoring berries and grains. The bird is said to winter in the far southern states.

When will other towns encourage the better bird and discourage the pesky sparrow?

Vancouver Saw Virgin Seas.

George Vancouver, who was born in 1758, entered the British navy at the early age of 13 and later accompanied Captain Cook on his second and third voyages of discovery. After serving several years in the West Indies, Vancouver was given the command of an expedition to the northwest coast of America, the objects of which were to take over from the Spaniards territory they had seized in that region; to explore the coast; to search for an eastern passage to the Great Lakes; and to ascertain the true character of Juan de Fuca Straits.

The expedition consisted of two ships, the "Discovery," of which Vancouver was in command, and the "Chatham," under the command of Lieutenant Broughton. They sailed from Falmouth on April 1, 1781, to Australia, via the Cape of Good Hope, and thence to New Zealand, Tahiti and the Hawaiian Islands. Vancouver was the first properly to explore the coasts of New Zealand.

It was not until April 18, 1792, that Vancouver first sighted the west coast of North America. He carefully surveyed the coast and inlets of what is now known as British Columbia, and circumnavigated Vancouver Island, which was named after him. Vancouver was not, however, the actual discoverer of the island, it having been discovered in 1592 by Juan de Fuca.

Vancouver again visited the Pacific coast in 1793 and again in 1794, when he sailed as far north as Cook's Inlet, Alaska. After this voyage, Vancouver returned to England via Cape Horn and arrived in the Thames on October 20th, 1795.

Immediately on his return he commenced a narrative of his voyages and although he worked on it until within a few weeks of his death, he was not able to complete it. He died at Petersham in 1798 at the early age of 40. His brother John, assisted by Captain Puget (who sailed with Vancouver on his expedition), completed the record, which was published in 1798.

Tomato Wastes.

Tomato pulp, for catsups, pastes and soups, is obtained in the requisite pure state by putting the tomatoes into what is called a "cyclone machine," the material being forced through small holes in a metal screen to get rid of the skins and seeds.

No fewer than 225,000 tons of tomatoes are pulped annually in this country, the skins and seeds being thrown away. It is a lamentable waste, inasmuch as the seeds yield an excellent salad oil, which is also first-rate for paints and varnishes, being a quick drier. The residue from the oil press, mixed with the skins, makes a highly nutritious stock feed.

Canada's Example.

The keynote of the Canadian program of settling soldiers on the land, says an editorial in a recent issue of Leslie's, is self-help—"the provision of opportunities by which the Canadian soldier, or his widow, can become as useful and honored a citizen in peace as in war, an asset instead of a liability. It is a program that already has stood the test of time, as compared with our own, which, so far as it exists at all, is still in a tentative stage. It is one which we, with greater singleness of purpose and less politics, might have adopted in its essentials with equal success."

New Canned Food.

A newly patented kind of food, put up ready for the housewife's instant use, is prepared by mixing fine-chopped meat with milk and a little flour. The paste thus formed is filled into molds and exposed to heat, whereby the contents undergo slight shrinkage and acquire a sort of "skin." The molded masses are thus easily dropped out, to be thereupon put into cans, which are sterilized and sealed.

PORTER'S COMMITTEE ROOMS

219 Front Street—Robertson Block East—Phone 1376 for Information—Open 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Every Day.

An organization meeting for the city of Mr. Porter's supporters will be held in his Committee Rooms, Robertson Block, East Front street, on Tuesday, the 15th Nov. inst., at 8 p.m.

This is the most important meeting that will be held before election. Let there be a full attendance from each Ward and Polling Subdivision in the city.

H. F. KETCHESON, President.

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

Every day something out of the ordinary is seen by somebody. Let us hear about it. Phone 1248, or write The Intelligencer.

TORONTO STILL THERE

P.Q.—I see that my friend the grocer man has returned from Toronto. The butcher tells me he was up there once before.

BETTER BOTH WAYS

T.S.—Taxes should be divided into three or four installments for payment which would make it easier for the taxpayer and would give the city ready money to use instead of borrowing money from the bank, and paying interest on over-drafts.

KEEP THE CHANGE

K.C.—Now that the mail carriers are going to sell stamps, people need not think that they are going to cart a bushel of change around to accommodate customers. The profit in stamps is so small that my friend the mail carrier tells me their instructions are not to carry change. Of course they will always be kind and courteous but their time is limited and when a person wants a book of stamps they should have the quarter ready. Don't ask Postie to change a ten-dollar bill, he'd like to oblige you and all the rest of the good people, but if he starts doing that he will soon need a cart to carry his change in.

GOVT. MILK TICKET

M.T.—I see that a pint milk ticket was placed on the collection plate at the Griffin Opera House on Sunday evening, the occasion being the Sacred Concert for the City Ambulance. Evidently the ticket was deposited upon the plate by a person who was unable to give silver but willing to give the milk. Even the ticket will be of value.

A FINE ORCHESTRA

J.W.—I was at the Sacred Concert last evening in Griffin's Opera House and enjoyed the whole programme immensely, and I want to congratulate that orchestra. Really it was a distinct pleasure to listen to it, and its members are to be congratulated for banding together, practising and playing such high grade music not for personal gain but for the love of music and giving service. It is indeed a big musical asset to Belleville and a credit to the church they represent.

Music and Drama

PUBLIC COULD NOT GET ENOUGH OF "FORTY-FIVE MINUTES FROM BROADWAY"

Theatre-goers seem to have never gotten enough of George M. Cohen's successful comedy-drama, "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway", a picturization of which by First National pictures with Charles Ray in the title role is being exhibited at Griffin's Tonight, and Wednesday night.

The tremendously popular piece was first written by Mr. Cohen for Miss Fay Templeton, then at the zenith of her career and had its first stage presentation with her and Victor Moore in the leading roles, at the Southern Theatre in Columbus, Ohio, in August, 1904. Three days later this piece was taken to the Colonial Theatre in Chicago, where it ran for many weeks, being the means of saving this theatre as a place of amusement, as it has formerly been the ill-fated Iroquois, and Chicago theatre-goers had not forgotten the terrible holocost that had resulted in the loss of so many of their dear ones. Following its engagement at this theatre, "Forty-five Minute From Broadway", played all of the prominent cities of that country, including New York, and everywhere its proved a tremendous success. And now in pictures, it bids fair to even beat the record achieved by it on the spoken stage and Charles Ray has proven to be more than worthy of assuming the role so splendidly handled by Victor Moore and George M. Cohen.

A 2-reel Sunshine comedy, the latest chapter of the western serial "Vanishing trails" and other selected attractions will also be exhibited on the same program.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" HERE TO-MORROW NIGHT

Probably no musical comedy devised, written or presented during the past decade can boast of a typically humorous and side-splitting plot as "Bringing Up Father in Wall Street" the new George McManus, triumph which is to be the next attraction at Griffin's theatre, To-morrow night. From the rise of the curtain to the very finish action, surprise, novelty and original endeavor are manifest. Unlike other offerings of a similar trend, the conclusion or termination of the play is not obvious. It is one of those affairs in which one is anxious to wait for the finale and then feel sorry that it is all over. Certainly a tribute to both author and sponsor. As no doubt known this piece de resistance is based on the ever-popular cartoons of George McManus which for many years already have entertained and amused millions of people. Jiggs Mahoney, the "father" in the case, is probably the most beloved character in the realm of comics. And in this offering he has plenty of opportunity to display those talents which have ingratiated him with the host of admirers who have sworn allegiance all these moons. Jiggs, of course, dabbles in Wall Street and, unlike some of his prototypes in real life emerges a millionaire. There is a preponderance of pretty women, catchy melodies, stunning costumes, genuine fun, laughter, roars of mirth, screams and entertainment de luxe. Which, naturally, is all any manager can promise in these days of competition and progress.

Quick action is the only hope when kidney disease appears.

There is a whole train of dreadfully painful and fatal ailments which soon follow any neglect to get the kidneys right. Among others are rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.

In Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will find a treatment which is both quick and thorough.

Mr. C. E. Raymus, Lindale, Alta., writes:—

"I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and lame back for more than a year. A friend of mine one day told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and acting upon his advice I tried them. After I had taken one box I felt better, so I continued until I had used five boxes. By this time I felt as well and strong as ever, and am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone suffering as I did."

ACTION BY CONGRESS

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 14.—Action by Congress within a year has become a slogan of the Great St. Lawrence Tidewater Association. A statement issued by Chas. P. Craig of the executive, announces that two additional States, Oregon and Utah, have joined the original sixteen States that made a pilgrimage of the St. Lawrence last july and that States now advocating improvement comprise a third of the area of the United States.

A meeting of Mr. Porter's supporters in the city will be held at the committee rooms east Robertson block to-morrow evening for the purpose of organization. Ward committees will be formed and other business of a general nature transacted. Mr. James Walsh, Reeve of Tyendinaga Township who some days ago was offered the Liberal nomination for East Hastings, has we are informed decided to accept the nomination. Graham will on Friday evening of this week speak at Athens, Brockville constituency in the interest of Mr. H. A. Stewart the Conservative candidate.

Efficient Housekeeping

BY Laura A. Kirkman

CAN YOU BUILD A GOOD FIRE?

I received an amusing letter from a column reader, the other day. It was signed "Bride" and began: "Now, dear Miss Kirkman, before you tell me how to cook, please tell me how to build a fire. Every one I build goes out."

So I think an article on building fires—furnace, stove and hearth—may be acceptable, at least to young housekeepers.

To Build a Fire in a Coal Range: Close all the dampers except the oven dampers; remove the covers from the top of the stove and brush all soot and ashes into the fire box, then turn over the grate so as to dump the ashes into the ash pan below. (This is also the time to scrape off anything that has been spilled on the oven floor). Now lay either crumpled paper or shavings on the grate, filling the fire-box at lease one-third with this. Next place pieces of kindling, crosswise, on the paper, making sure that they reach the corners. The stick of wood should be loosely arranged in order to allow free passage of air.

It is now time to light the fire. Do this by applying a lighted match through the bars of the grate to the paper or shavings; when the wood is burning well, add 2 shovels of coal, not too large. Do not add more coal until the 2 shovels of it are glowing.

To Build a Furnace Fire: Follow above directions for building a coal fire in a kitchen range. For a furnace is only a large stove.

To Build a Wood Fire on the Hearth: Brush the ashes from the previous wood fires far back in the fireplace (of course removing an excessive amount of them). It is an economy to keep a certain amount of ashes on the hearth because when a fire is made these ashes will be heated again and thus will assist in throwing out more heat. But they must be kept far back so as not to blow and so as to throw the heat forward into the room. The next step, after pushing the ashes back, is to place a "back log" on the andirons, pushing it well back against the center wall of the hearth. This back log is a great help in building a fire; usually a heavy stick of hard wood is chosen for it and it frequently lasts from one fire to another. Place crumpled paper or shavings between the andirons and cross kindling sticks on the paper—but more in a hillock shape than flat as when making a range or furnace fire. Lay a few heavier sticks on the kindling so that as the flame burns along the kindling, it will be led up to the back log. When a back log is used for a new fire it will be smaller than it originally was because it will have burned away; when it becomes too small for use as a back log, it should be drawn forward and a new back log put in.

To keep a large log from burning late at night when a fire is no longer needed, stand the burning piece on end back in the corner or against the side, and as it is isolated from the heat of other pieces of wood it will soon stop burning. A fire screen is a most important piece of hearth-fire equipment.

To Build a Coal Fire in a Hearth Gate: Remove all ashes that are in the grate from other fires, so as to have free access of air to the fire. Place crumpled paper or shavings in the bottom of the grate and a few kindlings or charcoal on top of these. In grate fires soft coal burns with a yellow flame, and because it is porous and full of gases it burns quickly and makes a splendid grate fire. If small paper bags are filled with hard coal (when this is used) in the cellar and put upon the grate fire in the bags, this saves the dirt and unpleasant noise of shoveling.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

ALI BROTHERS DISTURB INDIA

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(By Canadian Press)—The sentence of two years' imprisonment imposed by Karachi, India, recently on the two Ali brothers and Dr. Kichlew for attempting to cause disaffection among the troops, and sedition, removes, for the time being, three of the most active of the followers of Guandi in his campaign of non-co-operation with the British in India.

The arrest of the Ali brothers and Dr. Kichlew followed a decision of the governmetn of India to institute proceedings against the Mahomed Ali, the younger of the brothers, and the speakers, for speeches made and resolutions passed at the All-India Caliphate Conference held at Harachi in July last. One of these resolutions declared that it was wholly "haram" (unlawful) for any Moslem at this time to remain or enlist in the Indian army or to get others enlisted in it.

Decision to prosecute these offenders was made before the Moplah uprising, which occurred in the Malabar district on August 23rd, which resulted in the death of more than one thousand inhabitants including many whites. Actual institution of the proceedings, however, was delayed by the necessity of obtaining evidence as to the exast language used by the accused. Accordingly the trip sentenced exact language used by the accused. Accordingly the trip sentenced were not arrested until Thursday, September 15th, when they were charged with tampering with the loyalty of the troops.

ALIS ALWAYS TROUBLESOME

Teh Ali brothers have been a source of trouble to the Government in India for some years. In May 1915 they were interned in the United Provinces and it was then officially stated that this action had been taken because the brothers "freely expressed and promoted sympathy with the King's enemies" in the war. They erfused an offer of complete freedom of movement on the signature of an undertaking to refrain from doing, writing or saying anything intended or reasonably likely to assist the enemies of the king, unless they were permitted to add "without prejudice to our allience to Islam."

In June, 1919, their restriction of movement to one particular area—for this was all that "interment" amounted to—was found insufficient and they were imprisoned on account of their disloyal attitude in respect to the Afgan war. At the close of the year they were released in accordance with the prerogative of elemency toward political prisoners, announced in the Royal Proclamation on the passing of the India Reform Act.

Their first action after being released was to attend the Muslim League meetings at Amritsar and to deliver impassioned speeches enjoining the Musulmans of India to "die for their religion." Mahomed Ali was selected leader of the Caliphate deputation which came to this country in the Spring of 1920 and was granted interviews by the Secretary of State of India and the prime minister.

CALIPH AGITATOR

Returning to India he was associated with his brother in encouraging that tragic side issue of the Caliphate agitation—the migration of pious Musulmans from India to Afganistan. Some 18,000 people left their homes in Sind and the frontier provinces of India, only to suffer severe hardships in Afganistan and to return home after a short sojourn, sadly disillusioned and greatly reduced in numbers through the death of many old men, women and children.

In close association with Gandhi the Ali brothers moved up and down the country in pursuit of the campaign of non-co-operation and made constant appeals to the militant fervor of their co-religionists. It is unquestionable that the Moplah rebellion, with its heavy tale of bloodshed, was mainly due to Caliphate agitators working among ignorant fanatics.

FORCED TO QUIT WORK, HE STATES

Toronto Man Tells Why He Had to Give Up His Job and How He Overcame His Troubles.

Characteristic of the statements which have made Tanlac a household word throughout the entire continent is that of James Conlon, a fireman with the Toronto Harbor Improvement, and living at 61 Bartmount Ave., Toronto, Ont.

"I had rheumatism and stomach trouble in a bad form for seven years and never got anything to do me any real good until I began taking Tanlac, and that proved to be just what I had been needing all the time. I was in such bad shape I had to give up my job and I began to think my working days were over. My right leg was so swollen and hurt me so bad I couldn't put it to the ground and I couldn't get around at all except by hopping on my right foot. I couldn't bend my back it hurt me so, I fell off in weight until I was a little more than a shadow and wasn't eating or sleeping to do any good. I had awful headaches, and was told I had high blood pressure.

"Tanlac did even more for me than I hoped for. I am just like a new man now, eating better, sleeping better and working better than in many years. I haven't a trace of rheumatism, am rid of the headaches and my blod pressure has come down. I feel fine all the time. It certainly is wonderful what the right medicine can do for a man."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville at Ostrom's Drug Store.

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlysle H. Holcomb

THE CHIEF SLEEPS IN A TREE

Tinker Bob went to see Mr. Frog to make sure that he would be present with his orchestra in time to start the frolic off properly.

"I'll tell you, O King, it's getting pretty cold for our orchestra to be out late at night but we are going to try to be there on time and we will play as long as we can. You see the cold weather is hard on our instruments and we have to be very careful for if we once get them too cold we never can use them again."

"Well, I think it will be a good night, and Mr. Moon said that he would see to it that Jack Frost doesn't come snooping around to spoil it all," Tinker replied.

"If that is the case, O King, I will be sure to be there and will play late till everyone has had a frolic and gone home. I suppose that Jack Frost will hear of this frolic and when he does he will come right away and shut us up for the Winter under the ice of the Lake. But I don't care for that just so he doesn't come along and put a covering of ice on the Lake while I am on the outside for I surely would freeze to death then."

Tinker Bob left Mr. Frog to assemble his orchestra players and have a practice or two while he went to see Major Pole Cat and Chief Porky. He found Chief Porky as usual, asleep in a tree. He had been out the night before and was very tired. But it didn't worry him much either for he knew that none of the forest dwellers would disturb him. His thorn quills were a good protection and all of the folks of the woods knew it, even Red Fox, for he was in bed a week suffering with a sore nose because he once tried to grab the Forest Chief in his mouth.

"Come now," said the King. "It is time you were awake and trying to get the creatures of the forest together for the frolic." The Chief didn't hear the King at first and Tinker Bob repeated his statement. "It's time for you to be about the business of the forest and get the folks rounded up for the frolic."

Chief Porky awoke with a start. He thought he was dreaming about the time when Red Fox was trying to catch him. "O King, I was having a bad dream. But I will say that Red Fox isn't going to be there. He told me so that very day. I told him that I would tell you, O King."

"O King I will be sure to be there."

"What's the matter with Red Fox now? I suppose I will have to go to him and see what can be done."

"Someone of the forest creatures has insulted him and he said he would not go to a place where there was anyone that would talk like that."

While Chief Porky was talking to the King, Red Fox came along and the King asked him what was on his chest. It was a great story. We will know tomorrow.

ARBUCKLE ON TRIAL

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—Roscoe Arbuckle went on trial to-day on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe.

SHIPPING ON VOLGA TO BE RESTORED

Largest River of Europe Has Lost Its Old Time Glory.

Suizran, On The Volga, Nov. 14—(By a Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press.)—The restoration of the shipping of the Volga, the greatest commercial highway of Russia, is one of the tasks for the spring confronting the Soviet government, together with that of providing seed grain and food until mid-summer for the entire population of the regions bordering the river.

This task is linked to and is important as the restoration of oversea shipping in the Baltic and Black Seas, the saving of the Baku oil fields, the Caspian fisheries of strugeon and caviar, or the speeding up of the railway systems.

"Little Mother" Volga, 2,305 miles long, the largest river of Europe, navigable almost from the very gates of Moscow, down to the Caspian Sea, means more to Russia than the Mississippi to the United States, because of the fewer railways in Russia.

The Volga shipping was the best and most highly organized artery of commerce of the old empire. Up and down its ways were floated grain, fish, petroleum, salt, and timber. More than the railways, it was a freight and passenger highway. More than 2,000 oil-burning steamers plied up and down its channels.

Magnificent 25-knot passenger steamers went from Nizni-Novgorod to Astrakhan, and there passengers and freight were transhipped to the Caspian, and thence to Baku, the business center of the Caucasus and Persia, or to Krasnovodsk, the landing port for Turkestan. It was a world of inland commerce of Great Russia quite unknown to Western Europe.

Now the big famine has called attention to the Volga. Frozen from November to April, she will then again assert herself, unless another drought cripples her slow-moving waters. Like the Missouri, but more particularly the Mississippi, the Volga has her moods she changes her channels, and carries big quantities of black and brown earth which she deposits here and there, to the dismay of the pilots. In pre-war days dredging machines kept her channels open but, since the general war and during the revolutions, these dredgers haven't been so busy.

Another factor has been the gradual disorganization of the steamer services, with unrepaired engines and incompetent or dissatisfied crews. Under the Soviet control, no fares were paid until September last, and neither captain nor crew have for many months received either pay or food. And so it has gone, until from 2,000 and odd steamers daily on the river, there are but an odd hundred. In Astrakhan, the correspondent waited three days to get a berth. Thousands of refugees perish from hunger while waiting for boats.

One step towards improving the service has been the recent reestablishment of fares so profits may be earned.

The Communist commissary aboard the vessels, ostensibly to control the captain, appears to devote most of his time to private trade and doesn't interfere seriously in the running of the vessel.

Edison scouts constantly cover every Broadway show, restaurant and exclusive club. They get the new hits the moment they break.

Mr. Edison has installed a special department of manufacturing, with special equipment, which speeds these hits through in record-breaking time. In some cases, the Edison RE-CREATIONS of a new number beat the sheet music out.

EDISON RE-CREATIONS

Remember, too, that on the 20th of each month, Edison issues a fine supplement of classical and popular music, rendered by world-famous artists.

To hear any of these RE-CREATIONS on the New Edison is to hear the finest music which modern homes are able to command. For, the Edison RE-CREATION of an artist's performance can not be told from the artist's original performance. This has been proved by thousands of tests of direct comparison.

MAINTAINING OUR SELF-RESPECT.

The Louisville Courier-Journal believes that all Canada is united on maintaining a stiff attitude toward the new tariff legislation of the United States. It says:

"But there is one question that all Canadian parties and all Canadian parliamentary candidates are united on. To fail to take but one position on this one question would be to commit political hari-kari.

"This question is a retaliatory tariff against the United States in case the present emergency tariff shuts out Canadian goods from the United States be made permanent, or in case the pending Fordney tariff be enacted into law.

"Either of these monstrosities that are counted by President Harding as two of the monumental achievements of his administration will unite as one man, determined to retaliate, all Canadians from Quebec to Vancouver.

"Canada has the self-respect to hit back and hit back hard."

THE BIG LESSON WRIGLEY LEARNED IN DULL TIMES.

"The result of my investigation was that I signed up in the midst of the depression of 1907 for $1,500,000 worth of advertising—our first national contract, and a very large one indeed for us at that time. It was, as you see, another restraint in the face of opportunity for immediate profit.

"But for once the policy did not involve the sacrifice of immediate profits even. We really had expected it would. We were after the vivid impression we thought we could make on dealers and consumers at a time when so few people were trying to sell them, and we were willing to pay something for that. We were willing to wait for our returns. But we did not have to wait. They came generously enough even the first month to meet what had seemed an enormous first payment on the advertising, due at the end of the month, and the payments every month thereafter were entirely met out of the increase in our profits, with a continually widening margin to spare."—Wm. Wrigley, Jr., in "System."

FANNING THE FLAME OF DISCORD.

The Montreal Gazette, commenting with regret on the dangers of the "fanning the flame of discord" campaign which is being carried on by some hot headed Liberals in Quebec, said:

"A single example will suffice. Speaking at Shawinigan Falls, Mr. Bureau, late member for Three Rivers and one time Solicitor-General, said:

"I said in the House that if I was of military age I would not enrol because I did not have confidence in those who asked it. They did not want the province of Quebec to enrol, so that they could say that in the province we were cowards and deserters. We defended Quebec. I said that a mother with a heart and a father with blood in his veins should not advise his son to enrol or allow him to do so; and why? I said that the Canadians of the province of Quebec were not afraid of Germans, but were afraid of Meighen, of Borden, and Guthrie. That is what I said in Parliament, and all over. I accuse the Government of doing everything possible to prevent the French-Canadians of Quebec from enrolling. I accuse them of having done so deliberately."

This sort of nonsensical froth and grotesque perversion of truth would be amusing were it not mischievous. To answer the Bureau assertions would be to insult intelligence and to waste time where ignorance is impervious. What a pity 'tis there is none to stand between the living and the dead, and stay this plague. It will run its course, but there is danger not before reprisals are excited and the old animosities revived, animosities men of good-will throughout Canada have labored to allay. And it is all so unnecessary, unless the alternative is accepted that the guilty politicians can find no worthy weapons in the issues of the day with which to advance their cause."

WORLD POVERTY AND PROSPERITY.

The Winnipeg Free Press says that it is a fallacy to suppose that the world is today suffering from over-production. Some people have an idea that there is a great supply of goods in the world, and point to the difficulty in marketing certain products, especially farm products, as an example. The fact is that there is an appalling shortage of supplies in various areas of the earth. Parts of Europe are poverty-stricken and unable to buy. In ordinary times and under ordinary circumstances they would be producing goods for themselves and for the world markets. They would be creating wealth, and with this wealth they would be able to buy commodities they required and which are the products of other peoples. The war and subsequent events have put them out of the wealth-producing class; consequently they are not buying; consequently there is a stoppage to the free exchange of goods; consequently, markets are upset, with over-supplies in certain areas and poverty in others.

The whole world suffers to a certain extent when any part of it is poverty-stricken. If several portions of population are not producing the reaction is felt throughout the world.

In modern years trading has become so general throughout the earth that the nations are inter-dependent. This fact has become so plain in the last couple of years that it should be given general recognition in international relations.

Hamilton Herald

Alluding to the Toronto Globe's prediction that the supporters of Mr. Meighen in the new Parliament will be the smallest of the three groups, the Buffalo Courier confesses its surprise at such a prediction, 'in view of Meighens plan of campaign—a more and more intensified appeal to the national and patriotic spirit of Canadians."

A CHANGE OF MIND

Woodstock Sentinel-Review

Arthur Hawkes, the man who undertook to rally the "British-born" against reciprocity of 1911, is now supporting the Progressives. One of the planks of the Progressives is a demand that "the reciprocity of agreement of 1911 be accepted by the Parliament of Canada." No doubt Mr. Hawkes believes that as long as a man has a mind to change he has a right to change it.

The Poets' Corner

PATIENCE

Time teaches us a lot of things.
In earlier years when we were young,
The angry and the hasty tongue
Produced a round of bickerings.
And many a trifliing fault we made
Into a sin of scarlet shade.

The little disappointments then
By selfish eyes were magnified,
We could not put our whims aside,
Lost joys might never come again,
And many bitter days and nights
We spent in battling for our rights

Then we were quick to take offense,
One careless word upon our ears
Brought hatred and a flood of tears;
Young people have no better sense—
And we were young and did not know
Enough to let the trifles go.

But Time has taught us many things.
Where once we quarrelled, now we smile
We've learned that anger's not worth while
And found the peace which patience brings:
Now, sharing all its joys and woes,
We take life as it comes and goes.

With Years Come Wisdom

When I was the merest stripling
Without any cultured taste,
I revelled in verse by Kipling
And said, in my youthful haste:
"Oh, here is a mighty master!
A poet whose beat and swing
Makes blood in the veins run faster,
Of all of the bards he's King!"

But now that my mind is older
And now that my sense has grown
And now that my blood runs colder,
I'm fatally forced to own
That what I remarked, a stripling,
(And little enough I knew)
Regarding the work of Kipling—
Was perfectly just and true!

NOTED CHICAGO COUNSEL DECLINES TO DEFEND SMALL

Chicago, Nov. 14.—James Hamilton Lewis, former United States Senator, today announced he had declined to be chief counsel for Gov. Small in his forthcoming trial on charges on embezzlement of State funds. In explaining his refusal, Lewis said the Governor was entitled to a fair trial, free from prejudice of politics or personal sentiment. Lewis was a candidate against Small for the position of Governor, and during his campaign denounced the Governor and many of the things for which he new stands, so he feels that it would not appear consistent for him now to defend the Governor.

GRAVES OF PIONEERS

Remembering the Men Who Cleared Away the Bush.

Returning from a distance to Huntsville recently, a former resident found his brother's grave carelessly kept and expressed great surprise that so little respect is paid the last resting places of pioneers of Muskoka. There are many other districts in older Ontario where conditions are not what they should be, but Col. Hugh Clark, M.P., in his Kincardine Review, draws attention editorially to one fine exception, the Lochalsh Cemetery, which is being restored.

In the Lochalsh district the messenger of death entered the but recently opened settlement in 1853 and faced the leaders of this community with the necessity of selecting a common burial place. The site chosen, an admirable one, lies on the south side of the boundary between Huron and Bruce Counties, on the brow of the ridge that follows the eastern shore of Lake Huron and overlooking the lake at a distance of about six miles. Energetically the men of the district set to work to clear away the trees and to set things in order for the reception of the remains of Mrs. Donald B. Mackenzie.

The fathers of the community never forgot the care of this plot of ground. The sentiment which held Abraham, Isaac and Jacob to the Cave that was in the field of Machpelah was not wanting in them. And it was their wont to gather annually to tend it and to keep in working order their organization of trustees, and secretary. It is now several years since the board of trustees set to work to terrace the west side of the plot and otherwise to level the ground and so to make manifest to men that they are not forgotten in Lochalsh who pass from out the bourne of time and place. Later in order to complete the scheme land to the south and east was purchased, was neatly fenced and a roadway now extends on all sides. Gradually the scheme is being completed and this little country graveyard presents, amidst the trees that surround it, a quiet, restful scene that reads a lesson to all who pass that way.

Bats to Get 'Skeeters.

The breeding of bats to kill off malaria-carrying mosquitoes has of late been seriously advocated.

Not long ago the Carnegie Institution said: "Bats devour large numbers of mosquitoes. Flying at dusk and after dark, and capturing all night-flying insects on the wing, they are important mosquito-destroying animals."

The mosquitoes that carry malaria are night-fliers. Hence the idea might seem a good one.

It was with this object in view that a "battery"—in other words, a bat roost—was built on the experimental farm of the Department of Agriculture six miles south of San Antonio, Texas. Another was established at Mitchell Lake, not far from the same neighborhood, which is an attractive body of fluid formed by sewage from San Antonio, its margins offering excellent breeding places for 'skeeters.

These structures are about twenty feet high, uplifted on posts, with slanting walls, a projecting roof slightly elevated to allow the bats to pass in and out, and an additional entry space running all the way down one side, with boards slanting upward so as to exclude light to some extent while admitting the winged tenants.

The roosts soon acquired occupants—about 9,000 in the case of the battery at Mitchell Lake, which was built to accommodate 250,000—and, so far as that went, they were a success. Mexican families residing in their neighborhood have made sworn statements to the effect that the prevalence of malaria has been much less since the roosts were erected.

This method of fighting mosquitoes will interest Canadians, though many may prefer the pest to bats.

Are the Seasons Changing?

There are many who say that the seasons are changing, but a glance at a weather calendar shows that the "extraordinary weather" at midsummer or any other season of the year is very ordinary indeed if we take long views of things. In January, 1662, Pepys noted in his Diary that a fast day had been ordered by Parliament "to pray for more seasonable weather, it having hitherto been summer weather." In June, 1711, Swift was rendered excessively peevish by the heat. In July, 1757, Walpole writes, "I have made a tour of my garden but once these days before eight at night, and then I thought I should have died of it. For how many years we shall have to talk of the summer of '57!" In 1880, July was so hot that Wordsworth could not sit indoors, and, as Dorothy tells us, "went into the wood and altered his poems."

Animals That Blush.

Poets have for ages regarded the blush as a thing of beauty in the gentle sex; but after all, it is only a rush of blood to the face, caused by modesty or some other emotion. Animals blush, too, we are told, but through fear. Horses blush in their ears, especially the left one. When a horse is frightened his left ear will be found to be very much swollen. This is also the case with rabbits. Cows and similar animals blush just above the hoof, while the dog uses his tail for this purpose. When a dog is frightened his tail hangs limp, as he has lost all control over it. Even insects are said to blush. They do it in their antennae, or feelers.

DO YOU REMEMBER

When women wore long skirts
And big sleeves,
And white underskirts and all that?
And hard coal was four dollars a ton,
And pork chops were ten cents a pound,
And you could get a fine suit of clothes for twenty bucks.
And sugar was five cents a pound,
And men wore high hats and a cane,
And you could rent a house for fifteen a month,
And shoes were three dollars a pair,
And overcoats about the price you now pay for a lunch,
And we had no strikes,
And everybody was happy,
You do?
Gee, but you must be an aged bird.

ARGENTINE ARMY FOLLOW GERMAN RULES

When General Mangin, the hero of Verdun, visited Buenos Aires recently, he was asked to review the crack regiment of Argentine cadets, future officers of the Argentine army.

Those who accompanied the French general to witness the manoeuvers wondered what he thought when he beheld a regiment uniformed and helmeted like the Prussian guards he had fought against in the war and marching with the famous Prussian goose step.

The Argentine army continues to be trained in the methods of the German military school which were adopted some years before the war under the tutaelage of German officers and with German equipment.

Health turns the Clock Backward

Nine Reasons Why Spinal Neglect is a crime

1. The backbone is the foundation of the body.
2. It is composed of 26 joints, 24 of which are movable.
3. From between these joints radiate the nerves of the body.
4. When these joints are in alignment the nerve openings are full sizes and the nerves deliver 100% of their power.
5. A nerve under pressure at the backbone opening causes disease in the part it serves.
6. Chiropractic removes the pressure by an adjustment by hand, and this adjustment opens the way for health (free nerve energy).
7. If chiropractic seems too simple to do all that it can do, remember that every phenomena of growth is caused by as simple a thing as heat.
8. To neglect the backbone invites disease, which is a crime because it is in violation of Nature's laws.
9. Don't be a criminal.

Bladder Troubles in Children

MONDAY HEALTH TALK No. 54
By WM. P. REDICK, D.C. Ph. C.

One of the commonest ailments among children is bedwetting. Insufficient control at the bladder outlet in many cases is the cause. Sometimes weakened kidneys place an undue burden on the bladder and the child in the unconsciousness of sleep is not capable of control. To punish a child under such circumstances is little less than criminal.

The cause lies in the spine, and the muscles and ligaments of children are so elastic and flexible that quick results are noted under chiropractic spinal adjustments. When the pressure on the spinal nerves is removed, normal control of the kidneys and bladder follows. Of course cases of long standing, even in children, will not respond quickly.

RECOVERS IN FEW WEEKS

"My little boy, aged six, was troubled with bedwetting and had no control of himself. He took chiropractic spinal adjustments for two weeks and the trouble was relieved. Today the boy shows no signs of a return of the trouble and we credit Chiropractic."—Findlay Walsh, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 1287H.

Transportation and Your Safety
CAR SHORTAGES have already developed at many of the coal mines of the United States. Without cars to load, the mines cannot produce; without production of coal, the welfare of the public cannot be conserved.
So far the shortages have not been serious in proportions, but with cold weather arriving, it can be expected that they will increase and may materially hinder the movement of coal.
Safety to your family can be secured by immediately stocking your coal. Coal prices will not decrease, and they may advance, if a transportation emergency arises.

FOOTBALL

Albert College 5—Tigers 1

On Saturday afternoon according to schedule the Belleville Tigers and the Albert College met in a game of football. Although four inches of snow covered the ground the game went on as usual. As it were the Tigers played the game under protest.

Charlie Thompson the Tiger goalie seemed to lose all interest in the game and let the Albert College crew score five goals which were out of the question. There had been a quarrel between two officers of the league and it seemed as if the other members were being made petty offenders.

Nine men composed the Tiger team on account of a misunderstanding between the president of the league and the Albert College captain who understood the game was to be played. The Tiger manager had notified most of the Tiger men the game had been postponed hence the mix-up. The line-up for the teams were:—

Tiger:- Thompson, goal; Walsh, Maker, Backs; Barrie, Cross, Baker, Halves; Page, Hickin, Page, Forwards

Albert:- Sutton, goal; Steele, Cryderman, Backs; Searle, Simpson, Guthrie, Halves; Bedwell Hartwell, Finley, Russell, Gates, Forwards.

EARLY HOCKEY RUMORS CONTAIN AMAZING RULES

Early hockey rumors are that:

Pucks in the net will be more appropriate than pucks in the eye this season. Players will be allowed to have their names monogrammed on their sticks, but as usual are debarred from nicking their initials on opponents' hair part. Referees will look as sloppy if not sloppier than usual. Old grey will probably predominate in the sweater design of arbitrators, though some of the more fastidious may wear a dusty khaki slipover. Some referees are anxious to have the bell used instead of the whistle. Using the whistle has a tendency to displace false teeth.

Players sent to the penalty bench this year will be supplied with leather guards for their skates, so that the timekeepers and reporters won't have to appear the next day with patches in their pants. Crosschecks will be handed out on the ice, and paychecks in the club house. Players will be cheaper this year than for many years, owing to the closing down of some of our best-known pulp mills. Managers' talk will be cheaper in accordance with the prevalence of players. The player scoring the first goal of the season will be given an oyster supper by some of the hard boiled eggs who follow the clubs.

Talking back to the referee will be as common as ever, and it is expected that the talk will be as common as usual. There is no truth in the rumor that the defence men are going to band together to re-introduce the "lift." Those who wish may lift before, after or during the game according to the supply. Cover points will be built along the same lines as other years. They will wear much the same sort of costume, and will carry their sticks at any angle ready to lop off an opponent's ear at a moment's notice. Tape will be popular on the sticks, and some of the more daring may use copper wire.

The general use of the poke with the stick will be encouraged. While this is intended to poke the puck away from an opponent, one may on occasion poke him in any part of his person which carries the most pokable appeal. Pokes should be handed out in secret to be effective. Goalkeepers as usual will endeavor to stop everything that comes their way, including defence men trying to back out of the building. They will look as dainty as usual, and carry themselves generally with the dreamy grace of well-filled sacks of floor.

DOUBLE DROWNING IN RAINY LAKE

Burke's Falls, Ont., November 12.—Joseph Hewitt, and his nephew, Harvey Hewitt, of this place, were the victims of a double drowning accident in Rainy Lake, when the canoe in which they were hunting deer upset. Apparently, after Harvey had shot a deer, the recoil of the rifle caused the occupants to overbalance and both men were thrown into the water.

There were no eye witnesses of the tragedy, and the first intimation of the accident was the finding of the empty canoe floating in the water. One body has been recovered.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 14.—Grant Stoner, 20 years old, and Edward J. Barry, 18 years, son of Immigration Inspector Barry of this city, were each sentenced to one year in the Ontario reformatory, charged with stealing an auto from Fred Boyd of this city on September 24, in which they took a trip to Montreal, returning to Niagara Falls, N.Y., this week, where the car was recovered.

Advertising!

The biggest men in the country have found that the easiest way to spell success is to A-D-V-E-R-T-I-S-E. Suppose the newspaper did not publish the news, how would the people know what is happening? If you don't publish the Store News how will the people know about your goods? You can never sell the goods people do not know you have.

Advertising is telling about your stock. The firm that advertises gets ahead, every time, of the firm that does not advertise. Shop-worn and out-of-date stock is the penalty merchants pay for not advertising.

THE INTELLIGENCER JOB DEPARTMENT

THE "BYNG" BOYS.

How Canada's Forces Got Their Humorous Name.

No one ever refers nowadays to "the Canadian Expeditionary Force." People would be apt to stare at you if you did. It always goes by the popular but unmilitary term of "the Byng Boys." In military records the former title will no doubt be meticulously adhered to, but to the man in the street, whether in Canada or England "the Byng Boys" will be the recognized synonym for the Canadian army for all time. "Jerry" knew it as well as our own side. The term has passed into the common speech of to-day, and it is used in various books about the war just as if it had been the official designation of the Canadian forces from the beginning. For all its popularity, few people consider why that sobriquet came to originate and be tagged on to a great military force. Why did not other units come to be known as "the Rawlinson Boys" or "the Gough Boys"? Lord Byng was not the only chief the Canadians had, so why did his name come to be associated with them in this remarkable way?

The real reason is somewhat unwarlike. Strictly speaking, the title should have been "the Bing Boys," but the difference of a letter is immaterial. The real originals were two very popular London comedians, George Robey and Alfred Lester. Late in 1915 or early in 1916 a revue called "the Bing Boys" was produced at the London Alhambra. No matter the plot now except to say that Robey, who was Lucifer Bing, was a very naughty boy who always led astray Lester, who was named Oliver Bing and was a very good and innocent little lad. They ran away from their home in Binghampton, visiting many countries and having the most remarkable adventures in which they were constantly running across the heroine who came from the same village and for whose favors Lucifer and Oliver were friendly rivals. This character was enacted by Miss Violet Loraine, who left the stage a few weeks ago to marry the heir to a British peerage. The effervescent Robey and the lugubrious Lester together with Violent Loraine made the show. It was beautiful, it had pretty music and above all it was desperately funny. It had two songs which became the rage of London. One was "If you were the only girl in the world," and the other (which might be regarded as heretical in a land of prohibition), "Another little drink wouldn't do us any harm." The show was popular with the Canadian boys on leave and there you are.

It was just a matter of luck that it was produced at the time it was, because, if it had been postponed till after the war on account of expense, as many spectacular productions were, the Canadians would never have been the "Byng Boys." Again, it might not have been staged till after Sir Arthur Currie took command, and some other army would have become the "Byng Boys." And again, the authors of the revue might have named their characters "the Gough Boys," and the Canadians would never have had the title that suits them better than any that could be invented.

A Big Industry.

Nearly three million feet of carbon dioxide for use in the manufacture of soft drinks and soda water were produced in Canadian establishments in 1918, according to a report issued this month by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. These figures, it may be said without fear of contradiction, are decidedly out-of-date, rendered so not only by the lapse of time but by the irruption of hotter weather than 1918, ever dreamed of July, 1921, probably consumed several million feet of carbon dioxide, via the soda straw.

Be that as it may, nearly $2,000,000 are invested in this fair and warmer land in plants producing various compressed gases, while 33 million feet of oxygen were produced in 1918. This gives cause to pause and wonder whether the use of about one million feet of the oxygenic total might not have so exhilarated Georges Carpentier that he could have walloped Dempsey into the land from which even oxygen does not bring one back. That would have been a proper export and use of Canadian oxygen.

Oxygen is quoted at an average price of $19.90 per thousand cubic feet, which does not make it the cheapest resuscitator even in these days of the rapacious bootlegger.

Women Farmers.

All through Western Canada are to be found women owning and running farms for themselves, and making them pay. A recent example is that of May Hazlet, an English girl, who has lived alone on a farm in the Touchwood Hills for the past four years, looking after her stock and cultivating her land. The farm was originally her brother's homestead, at which time Miss Hazlet was a stenographer. He was killed at Vimy Ridge and neighbors advised his sister to sell the farm. She, however, decided to become af farmerette, although she had never previously lived in the country. She now owns several head of horses, a fine bunch of cattle, and more than 100 acres under cultivation.

French at the C. N. E.

Announcement that Count d'Arnaud, head of the French mission in charge of the made-in-France train, would recommend to the French Government the erection of a permanent French Building at the Canadian National Exhibition, was made by President Fleming. A structure to cost $100,000 has been suggested by Count d'Arnaud.

SACRED CONCERT LARGELY ATTENDED

A Delightful Programme of Sacred Music Presented by Clever Artists.

That sacred concerts on Sunday evening after church are popular in Belleville was evidenced last evening when shortly after 8 o'clock Griffin' Opera House was filled to the doors. The concert was under the auspices of the Lion's Club of the city and the object was to assist in the procuring of a motor ambulance for the city. A silver collection was taken and the sum of $108.05 was realized. The program presented was of a high order and judging from the applause which greeted each number it was pleasing. The Bridge Street Church Orchestra under the leadership of Mr. H. Holton gave a number of selections which were of a high order, reflecting much credit upon the musicians composing that body. Mayor Hanna occupied the chair and filled that position in a most acceptable manner. In a few well-chosen remarks he stated the object of the concert, namely to assist in providing a motor ambulance for the city. The graduating nurses were the institutors of the proposition and they had secured $1,500 of the $2,500 necessary, for the purchase of the ambulance. The nurses' idea was to present it to the city. In addition to the selections given by the orchestra four solos were rendered and were in keeping with the occasion.

Mrs. A. P. Allen sang "Life's Lullaby", in her usual rich, sweet voice and was accorded a hearty reception by the audience.

"When You Come Home," was the title of a song rendered by Mr. Harold Barrett and he never sang to better advantage.

Miss Anna Ponton rendered "There is No Death", in a sweet and charming manner.

"My Old Shako" was the number given by Mr. James Booth, and his voice was heard to good advantage in the selection.

The selections given by the Orchestra were as follows:

March—The Patriot.
Aida March.
Fraternity Overture.
Opera Gems, selected.
America's Finest.
Rose Bud.
Fond Memories, Idyl.

Miss C. Turney, who is a member of the orchestra, in addition to being a musician is also a clever reader. She gave a selection entitled "The Benediction", which showed her capabilities as an elocutionist.

The delightful program was closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

Irish delegation leave London for Ireland to hold consultations with their chiefs.

EGGS ON ENGLISH CLIFFS.

Flamborough Head Is the Scene of Picturesque Occupation.

Climbing for sea birds' eggs along the ten miles of splendid cliffs called Flamborough Head in Yorkshire, England, is an industry rather than a sport. In early summer the sea is almost covered for great distances with the birds, which nest high up in the limestone ledges, making a tremendous splutter as they fly about in myriads. For at least two hundred years the tenant farmers adjacent have made full use of the right of harvesting the eggs regularly and selling them for eating. The rights are sublet to "climmers," of whom there are four sets, each of four men.

The outfit of a climbing gang consists of two stout hemp ropes, about 300 feet long; some very stout clothing with a bag in which they sit and to which the rope is attached; two stout bags to hold the eggs; a long stick with net at one end and hook at the other to rake out the eggs of razorbills and puffins from crevices, and some tackle to assist climbing.

The lowerer lets the climber down easily, being communicated with by the so-called hand rope. It takes three men to pull the man up. The climber performs great feats of agility in walking along the almost perpendicular ledges and reaching about for nests. As many as thirty descents are made in a day. In good weather each nest is examined twice a week to ensure freshness.

From a study of the markings and shapes of eggs it is learned that the same bird returns to the same nest and lays the same shape of egg year after year for as many as thirteen years. Nowadays the nicer varieties are for collectors, others for the great hotels, and the great majority for dressing finer classes of leather. Guillemots, a two-pound bird, are the most numerous variety.

British Navy Superstitions.

One of the very strongest and most ineffaceable of all superstitions in the royal navy—a superstition almost as strong to-day as ever it was—is that vessels bearing the name of royal personages are doomed to ill-luck; and, strange as it may seem, there is an undeniable historic basis for this feeling.

Some of the most terrible disasters ever known in connection with our navy have concerned war vessels with royal names. Two vessels called the Royal James came to disastrous ends. One of them exploded, and some 800 officers and seamen perished; the other ship so named was actually carried out of the mouth of the Thames by the Dutch under circumstances disgraceful to those in charge of the craft.

Then there is the forever memorable disaster to the Royal George, that turned over, and sank in sight of crowds at Spithead, over 1,000 souls, amongst whom were 300 women, being sacrificed. And second only to this hideous disaster is that which afterwards befell the Royal Charlotte, which was consumed by fire off Leghorn, over 800 of the very flower of the navy perishing with her.

When, in 1893, the Victoria, a new vessel, and the very triumph of modern invention, was rammed, and sank in sight of the whole fleet, there was not a sailor, who did not remember the dire fate of a royalty-named craft.

CHILDREN SUFFER FROM MALNUTRITION

Statement Made that Five Million Children in U. S. Are Not Properly Fed

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The National Tuberculosis Association reported today that more than 5,000,000 school children in the United States were suffering from malnutrition.

To correct this, the association soon will put into affect an unique plan for instructing these children in correct health habits. The plan has been developed with the aid of Dr. W. R. P. Emerson of Boston, nutrition expert.

Each child will be required through his teacher and parents to submit a card indicating daily performance of eleven health chores. The card read:

I was weighed this week on the day checked (x).

Beside a good breakfast and the noon and evening meals, I ate midmorning and afternoon lunches, as directed.

I ate only wholesome food today, including vegetables, fruit, and at least a pint of milk, as directed; and tried always to eat and drink slowly.

I drank four glasses of water, some before each meal and drank no tea, coffee nor any injurious drinks.

I was in bed last night ten or more hours, as directed, windows open.

I rested lying down not less than 25 minutes both this forenoon and this afternoon.

I played in the fresh air today, exercising for the time and in the way directed

I washed my hands before each meal today.

I brushed my teeth thoroughly after breakfast and after the evening meal.

I took a full bath on each of the days of the week that is checked. (x)

By doing these chores for five to fifteen weeks the child becomes a squire, knight or knight baronet and is entitled to wear the insignia of the Modern Health Crusade. When he gains normal weight, he may earn advanced honors by performing standard Modern Health Crusade chores and be admitted to the Health Round Table through physical fitness tests.

City and Country

AUTOS COLLIDE

Saturday evening Mr. Thomas Amans was driving an auto eastward on Bridge street east and was in the act of turning into St. Agnes School premises when his car was struck by another car which was following closely. The result of the impact was that Mr. Aman's car was damaged to a considerable extent, but fortunately the occupants of the car escaped injury. A police court case will result, as it is alleged the driver of the rear car was to blame.

CITY COUNCIL

A regular session of the city Council will be held this evening when matters appertaining to the city's welfare will be considered. Recommendations from the civic committees will be discussed and adjudicated upon.

NEGLIGENCE NOT CHARGED

The charge preferred against Mr. P. Lynch of this city in connection with an auto accident which occurred on Campbell street a few days ago is that of neglecting to report to the police his name and address, not alleged negligence.

PULPIT CHANGES

It is announced that Monsignor Hartigan, of Deseronto is to succeed Monsignor Masterson as rector of the Roman Catholic church at Prescott and that Rev. Father Archibald J. Hanley, for the past fifteen years rector of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, will be Monsignor Hartigan's successor at Deseronto.

BROKE HYDRANT

A truck, the property of Mr. Edward Kellaway of this city this morning collided with a hydrant located on the South-east corner of West Bridge street. The hydrant was broken and that section of the street was flooded to a considerable extent before the water could be shut off.

FIRE AT POINT ANNE

On Friday afternoon, a fire occurred in Mr. Leo. Roluf's living apartment, above his store at Point Anne. Whilst the blaze did not do much damage smoke and water damaged his stock to the extent of $2,000, which loss is covered by insurance. Some household effects were virtually destroyed.

MUCH OPTIMISM IN BRITISH CAMP

Belief Exists that Naval Program Will be Accepted on Principle.

TEN-YEAR HOLIDAY

In This Suggestion Lurks a Very Serious Problem.

Washington, November 14.—Great Britain in all probability will accept in principle on Tuesday America's drastic limitation of armaments proposal, with its suggestion of a ten-year naval holiday.

An acceptance in principle leaves a good deal of latitude for reservations on questions of detail; that there will be substantial reservation is a foregone conclusion.

Second thoughts of the bold proposition of the United States had not to-day qualified any of the optimism felt yesterday. It is believed that America has given a magnificent impetus to the whole question of limitation of armaments, and in so doing has created an atmosphere in which any reserved issues may be discussed with a far greater chance of mutual accommodation than would otherwise be possible.

What points of reservation will be still remain a secret with Admiral Lord Beatty and his expert colleagues, who met again to-day to consider the detailed proposition. On the question of percentages there is likely to be no hitch. Nor from what I could ascertain to-day is there any foundation for reports that Britain hesitates over the question of direct suggestion from another nation as to just what ships are to be scrapped or at just what dates.

Vanity and Glasses

The wearing of glasses is one of the best preservers of a youthful appearance. This is because prolonged eyestrain causes wrinkles to appear prematurely and gives the countenance a strained, tired, anxious, drawn, cross look, which is very characteristic and far more to be avoided, from the viewpoint of appearance than the slight disfigurement of glasses. Indeed, so far from being unbecoming, there are some types of faces to which glasses just add the finishing touch.

We have every up to date style.

HUGH R. ROLLINS

Hugh R. Rollins, owner of a truck garden at North Syracuse, died Saturday at his home in that village after several years' illness. Mr. Rollins was born in Ivanhoe, Ont., March 1, 1873 and was married at Saginaw, Mich., in 1896. He moved to Syracuse 14 years ago, making his home at 119 Oneida street. He was a resident of North Syracuse for the last four years.

POWER IN FIRST RANK AS FACTOR IN DEVELOPMENT

Low-priced Motive Power Will Make Dominion One of the Cheapest Producers in World—Is Essential to Successful Growth National Welfare.

Canada will be one of the first countries to feel the impulse of rejuvenation in trade, following the most drastic readjustment in the general order of things in business and finance experienced in modern times. The strategical position of the country marks it out conspicuously for this development. It possesses all the requisites in the way of natural resources and opportunities for the exploitation of undeveloped wealth. Its people have earned the confidence and respect of people who count throughout the world. The war offer affects put the country back a bit, but at the same time it put it on the map in bigger letters than before.

More extensive cultivation of the soil will go hand in hand with expansion of the manufacturing possibilities of the Dominion, more particularly in connection with those industries which derive their advantages from the plentiful supply of native raw material of mine and forest.

To make Canada one of the cheapest producers in the world another requirement is the provision of ample low-priced motive power. This it is possible to do by the harnessing of the forces now going to waste in the many waterways scattered throughout the country in such profusion. This is what is going to make the next big forward step for Canada the power age.

Need of Power

It is so obviously an essential to the successful development of our rational welfare that the provision of adequate power for manufacturing for the domestic purposes must anticipate the demand, not follow it. Great progress has been made in that way, but still greater is to come.

One thing that will help and encourage the men who have vision and are making ready to meet them is that the public has special reason to have confidence in the securities of such corporations as a medium for the investment of funds.

Throughout all the turmoil and stress of the past few years no securities, stood the test so well as those of power producers. The uses to which electricity are put have grown to such an extent that when one class of consumption diminishes temporarily there is another new use to take its place. Earnings have grown despite the industrial depression, clearly indicating that the public is creating fresh demands for power, not likely to be relinquished. Thus, when the industrial demand rises to anything like its former production the chances are that danger of a shortage will arise.

This must be averted by the development of entirely new sources of supply, and it is a fortunate thing that the public has reason to have such faith in the industry as an investment. That the millions which will be necessary to carry out the work will be readily forthcoming is regarded as a certainty. Strong combinations of capitalists and users of powers are essential to success and this is why large traction companies are frequently interested in new development work. This is of great assistance to plans for financing, as it gives assurance that every endeavor will be employed to produce and distribute power at the lowest possible cost, thus stimulating its employment and at the same time establishing a potential market for a considerable proportion of the horse power produced before entering upon development.

NAVAL RETRENCHMENT BEING PRACTISED

Found Practical to Have "Mother" Ships do More Than Formerly.

New York, Nov. 12.—Naval retrenchment is being put into practice with the utilization of naval repair ships in the salvage of old battleships and otherwise materially assisting in the countless jobs which ordinarily have gone to navy yards.

It has been the custom heretofore to allow repair ships to undertake small necessary jobs for the fleets only when they were anchored far from navy yards or other land bases.

Through the rearrangement of ship repair allotments, it now has been found practical to have these indispensable "mother" ships do much more than was formerly required of them. So henceforth they will spend long periods in the navy yards and, it is expected, affect economies in naval work.

The Prometheus, Atlantic Fleet repair ship, and the Black Hawk, flotilla repair ship are lying in the New York navy yard after having engaged in dismantling the pre-dreadnoughts which cruised around the world in 1908 and are now lying out of commission in the Philadelphia navy yard.

Machinery, motors, blowers, searchlights, telephones, copper cable and even furniture, which may have future usefulness, have been removed and brought here from Philadelphia to be used in the outfitting of the Great Northern as flagship of the Atlantic Fleet.

Extensive alterations are to be made by the Prometheus, with a force of 250 articifers. This work will be completed in time to allow the Great Northern to leave for the winter manoeuvers early next year.

The Prometheus, of 12,000 tons gross, was converted from a collier in 1915 to a modern repair ship. It is equipped to handle heavy machine and blacksmith work or such fine tasks as adjusting of chronometers and binoculars. It is commanded by Captain Paul Foley.

It is expected that another source of economy will be the establishment of a reclamation store at the naval operating base, Hampton Roads, Va. There, all salvaged material of further usefulness will be stored and issued.

Social and Personal

Miss Helen Ketcheson of Calgary who for the past ten days has been very ill with mastoid, is slightly improved and it is hoped an operation will not be compulsory.

On Saturday afternoon one of the most enjoyable and delightful social affairs of the season was held at the Hotel Quinte in the form of an afternoon tea. The Campers were the hostesses of the occasion and many guests were present thoroughly enjoying the afternoon and the dainty luncheon served. The following ladies had charge of the afternoon, Mrs. Hyman, Sr., Mrs. Alfred Gillen, Mrs. B. L. Hyman, Mrs. J. V. Doyle, and Mrs. Fay Wills. Mesdames Porter and Schuster served tea. Ladies-in-waiting were,—Mrs. (Dr.) Tennent, Mrs. Arthur Johnston, Misses Aileen Jenkins, Doris Vermilyea and Hyman.

Mrs. Harry Elvidge, of this city, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Christie, Port Hope.

JOHN ST. CHURCH 74 YEARS OLD

ian.

Rev. Mr. Ramsay's sermon was of a most practical nature and he pointed out the necessity of a strong, aggressive and honest Christian activity, real and hearty, free of affectation and shining out as the real essence of Christianity as taught by the Man of Galilee.

The progress of John Street Church from its modest beginning in 1847 is briefly given in the following:

Historical Sketch

John Street Presbyterian Church dates its origin from the events following the historic "disruption" of the Church of Scotland in 1843. The Church in Canada was then in close relationship with the Home Church, and the lines of cleavage extended to and were faithfully reproduced in this country. As early as 1844 a number of Presbyterians in sympathy with the aims and principles of the Free Church met in the Court House at Belleville, and formally affirmed their allegiance to that body. Meetings for worship were regularly held at the Court House until the following year (1845), when the place of worship was changed to a house now standing at the corner of Foundry and Church streets.

There was no regular ministerial supply until October, 1846, when Mr. William Gregg was sent to Canada by the Colonial Comittee of the Free Church of Scotland, and appointed to supply Kingston and Belleville on alternate Sabbaths. At this time the adherents at Belleville and vicinity numbered about one hundred. Mr. Gregg also labored as a missionary in the adjoining townships.

In May, 1847, a request was presented to the Rev. James Rolden, then Moderator of the Presbytery, asking that Mr. Gregg be appointed to the pastorate of the Belleville congregation. The request was acceded to, and Mr. Gregg was duly ordained and installed on the 22nd of June, 1847. The organized life of the Church dates from the 15th of October, 1847, when the first appointment of elders was made.

Of the forty signatories to the 'first call", whose names have been preserved, not one survives. Dr. Gregg, the venerable first pastor, was spared to join in the Jubilee Celebration, after a life or faithful service, co-terminous with the life of the church. Under his zealous pastorate the congregation undertook the erection of the present church, which was commenced in 1848, and opened for worship on the first Sabbath in January, 1852, when the present name was adopted.

The church was widened and enlarged during Rev. Mr. Burton's pastorate. On the 21st of January, 1888, the interior of the church was destroyed by fire, but was speedily restored. The present lecture hall and Sabbath school were added in 1898 during Rev Mr. Thompson's pastorate.

During the year 1907 alterations and improvements were made at an expense of $2,000, and other improvements have since been made.

The following is a list of the Pastors of John Street Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Wm. Gregg—(1847-1857).
Rev. W. F. White—(1858).
Rev. Wm. McLaren—(1859-1870)
Rev. John Burton—(1870-1879.)
Rev. David Mitchell—(1880-1886.)
Rev. J. H. George—(1886-1891.).
Rev. J. L. George—(1891-1895.
Rev. T. J. Thompson—(1895-1902.)
Rev. A. H. Drum—(1902-1914.)
Rev. E. C. Currie—(1914-1917.)
Rev. D. C. Ramsay—(1917-present.)

Under the able pastors who have presided over the congregation the life of the church has been strong and vigorous. On the point of liberality the congregation has for many years enjoyed the distinction of being the banner congregation in the Kingston Presbytery.

CANADA STEAMSHIP LINES EXPANSION KEEPS PACE WITH TRANSPORTATION DEVELOPMENTS OF ENTIRE COUNTRY

Steady Growth of Canada's Largest Transportation Company From River Line to Complete Unit of Transportation From Head of Canadian Lakes to British and European Markets—Company's Financing Has to Grow With Addition of New Services.

It was only a few years ago that the centerary of steam navigation on the St. Lawrence was observed. Since the first crude craft was propelled up the river current by steam power there have been a series of wonderful developments which rank prominently in the industrial and economic annals of the Dominion.

The various stages of development of river craft as passenger and cargo carriers stand out distinctively to those who have followed the history of Canadian navigation. As a correlative development the industrial development of the territory served can be definitely traced.

As the country grows and its commerce expands the transportation facilities must of necessity keep pace. The tremendous value of our chief waterway as it stands today, and without which Canada's industrial history would have been dwarfed, suggests what the possession of the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes will mean a few decades hence.

Growing Up With The Dominion

At the same time the development of traffic facilities must take place at a tremendous rate to keep up with the requirements. It is only a comparatively few years ago that the business was done by the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company and a few lesser barge companies carrying grain in small bottoms. Then came Canada Steamship Lines, with its acquisition of the principal facilities for river and lake transportation, later developing into a transatlantic carrier.

This company can no more stand still in its development than the current of the St. Lawrence can cease its progress to join the waters of the Atlantic. One sees in the present offering of bonds which the company is now making to the investment public one of the signs which are merely incidental to the onward march of events as they affect the Dominion as a whole.

This cannot be regarded as a local incident. It is one of the broader measurings of our future capacity to carry on. The larger the funnel of our country's productiveness grows so must the spout extend its size to permit of the outflow to the markets of the world beyond the seas.

Keeping Pace With Transportation

Canada Steamships is one of the vital factors in the task of keeping the spout big enough to perform its function. If it is to do this adequately it must from time to time seek the means from the investment public. There can be hardly any question of the value of this class of security. The service is so vital to the nation that it must be maintained in first class efficiency and the security should rank in the same class as high grade railway bonds.

That earnings sufficient to meet interest requirements could execute a retrograde movement or even stand still is inconceivable. In the past five years gross earnings have increased from something in excess of twelve millions per annum. Net earnings in the same period averaged $4,120,707, some years running slightly over four millions and sometimes slightly under that level. The value of the property employed in the creation of these earnings, according to their appraised value, amounts to $41,870,818. As the interest charges on the present and existing obligations amount to $695,813.86 per annum, it will be seen that the five years average of net earnings is sufficient to pay the charges six times over.

With the trade of the Dominion continually expanding, as the western country increases its production, it will prove one of the most interesting incidents of our economic expansion to watch the growth of the shipping facilities of the lakes and St. Lawrence Rivers in which Canada Steamships will have such an important part to play.

THIEVES IN HALTON STEAL NEW PIANO

Milton, Ont., Nov. 14.—The crime wave in Halton County still continues When Anson Lucas and Sidney Porter, of Trafalgar Township, were returning to their homes from Oakville in an automobile, they were held up near Palmero by two highwaymen, whose car was parked a few yards away. Lucas and Porter were too clever for the bandits, and escaped in safety.

The boldest stunt ever pulled off by burglars in this district has been reported to the police. The thieves drove their motor truck to the township hall in Nelson Village, and carried off a new piano, which had been placed there by the Good Time Club. There is as yet no clue to the burglars.

The Nelson farmer, near Milton, who had 500 pounds of clover honey stolen from his apiary some time ago, has learned that the honey was taken by moonshiners, who used it as a substitute for sugar in making bootleg whiskey at one of the alleged stills in the Ladpsmith district. The case is now in the hands of the authorities.

U. S. NAVAL OFFER CONSIDERED GENEROUS IN LONDON

CHILDREN'S AID NEEDS MONEY

Annual Meeting Well Attended and Interesting—Finances Need Help.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Inspector's Report Shows Work Being Carried on Vigorously.

One of most important branches of community work and service being carried on in Belleville is that of the Children's Aid Society which not only functions in Belleville but reaches out over the entire county and rescues children from homes where the surroundings are harmful and not conductive to the child growing into the highest type of citizenship. The Children's Aid Society of Belleville and Hastings County has accomplished a wonderful work and many of its wards are now splendid citizens helping to build up that greater Canada in the making. One of the best friends of the children and the society has been Mr. Thos. Ritchie, now unfortunately laid aside by the burden of advanced years and ill health. This gentleman has always been a tower of strength to the society and made possible the splendid building occupied as a Children's Shelter. Many others have helped the work along in every way possible, including Mr. A. E. Bailey, a devoted friend to the work, who with his worthy wife has always taken a deep and practical interest in the work, so much so that they have thus far adopted six children, wards of the society, and have never had reason to regret their kindly actions, realizing that each child brought a bundle of blessing.

The annual meeting was held Monday evening in the Y.M.C.A., with a good attendance. Judge Mott, of the Toronto Juvenile Court, was the principal speaker and his eloquent and inspirational address was very much appreciated. A summary of Judge Mott's address appears in another column. Mr. Harry Ackerman occupied the chair and those taking part in the discussion were Rev. Mr. Marshall, Mr. A. E. Bailey, Mrs. J. A McFee, Mrs. I. E. Bowell, Rev. D. C. Ramsay, Mr. Chas Clapp, Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, Rev. A. H. Foster.

The financial report showed that about two thousand dollars was needed to clear off the indebtedness of the society, and lack of sufficient funds was handicapping the work of the society, even the salaries being in arrears at times. A determined effort will be made to place the finances in a better condition.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, treasurer, reported maintenance expenses for the year as $4,234.50, salaries $2,908.00, and an overdraft of $161.36 in addition to a bank loan of one thousand dollars not paid.

MUCH-MARRIED WOMAN IN TOILS

Alleged that Accused has Trio of Husbands—Remanded to Jail.

Chief Kidd and Sergt. Harman, of the local police force, on Monday afternoon motored to near Bloomfield, Prince Edward county, and placed under arrest a woman whom it is alleged is much married. The warrant under which she was arrested reads as follows:

"That the said Dora Amanda Wannamaker, at the city of Belleville, on the 17th of September, 1917, did unlawfully, being a married woman go through a form of marriage to one Robert Francis Brown, thereby committing bigamy.

It is also alleged that the accused had been for some time living with another man, claiming him as her husband. Wannamaker and Brown are both living in this vicinity.

The accused was this morning brought up before Magistrate Masson, but through her solicitor, Mr. E. J. Butler, made no election as to her trial, neither was a plea entered. She was remanded to jail until the 18th inst., when the charge will be proceeded with.

SINN FEIN DEMANDS

London, Nov. 15.—Answering questions today regarding counter proposals from Ulster, the Sin Fein publicity department declared that unity in Ireland remained absolutely fundamental from a Sinn Fein point of view. WARM WELCOME FOR BRITISH WAR MOTHER

Mrs. McCrudden is the Guest of the City of Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Amelia Emma McCrudden, the British war mother, was Philadelphia's guest today. An elaborate programme had been planned for her entertainment including a reception by Mayor Moore a visit to the Betsy Ross House and Independence Hall, a luncheon by the Philadelphia Chapter of American War Mothers, and a public reception at which addresses of welcome were delivered by prominent men of the city and state.

Mrs. McCudden came here from Washington where on Armistice Day she laid at the tomb of the unknown soldier a wreath of flowers—Great Britain's testimonial to the United States heroic dead. In her party were her daughter, Miss Kathleen McCudden; Miss Blanche Phillips; Mrs. R. A. Digney, national president of the American War Mothers, and three former British army officers who accompanied Mrs. McCudden to the United States.

JUDGE MOTT IS CHILD'S FRIEND

Head of Toronto Juvenile Court Addresses Local Audience.

A GREAT WORK.

Giving Child a Fair Chance, Not Punishment, Judge Mott's Way.

What Judge Ben Lindsay was to Denver and the United States Judge Mott is to Toronto and all Canada in blazing the trail to a better understanding of boy and girl life and the right way to help the boys and girls, who have not had a fair chance, to become good and useful citizens. Judge Mott presides over the Juvenile Court at Toronto and his methods have attracted nation-wide attention. On Monday evening Judge Mott addressed the members of the Children's Aid Society at the annual meeting and his message was one of intense interest. A pleasing speaker, forceful, eloquent and a masterful word painter, Judge Mott showed that his heart and soul were centred in the welfare of the delinquent children of Toronto who come before his court for correction, discipline, punishment or segregation. That he is doing a great and noble work is evidenced by results.

Judge Mott spoke very highly of the work of the Big Sister and Big Brother movement as a great assistance to him in his court work. He urged the Belleville ladies to get interested in the Big Sister movement.

Juvenile Courts

Juvenile Courts are a development of child welfare work of very recent years and are still looked upon by many in the nature of an experiment but those who have enquired closely into the movement are enthusiastic at its results and possibilities. Judge Mott described his court which is different from any other court of justice in that it considers crime from the stand point of health, mental and physical, hereditary influences, environment, etc. There is a clinic in the children's court consisting of a physicians, a dentist a nurse and university professors and specialists on mental disorders. There is also a probationary officer to visit the homes and see that the children out on probation are surrounded with good influences and are carrying out the conditions laid down by the court.

Disease Causes Crime

Disease and crime are closely related and a child's delinquency may be caused by teeth trouble, mental affection or physical disorder. When a child is brought before Judge Mott's court charged with a crime an effort is made to trace the cause. The child is examined physically, home surroundings are investigated, and everything which has had an influence upon the child's character. Punishment is the last thought of the court, the child has not had a fair chance and when the disabilities are removed whether physical, mental or of environment, the child will doubtless make good. Whenever possible growing boys are sent to the farm and take readily to the out-door life preferring it to the city.

God's Work vs Man's Work

God made the country, man made the city, said Judge Mott, and the difference is obvious. The underprivileged boy in the city is cramped and hindered at every turn. In the country he has a chance to expand with all that is great and good in nature. In the city there is a maximum of mental excitement and a minimum of physical, in the country there is a maximum of physical effort and a minimum of mental excitement.

Judge Mott made a strong plea for a ceaseless agitation in favor of some kind of a fitness test before matrimony. Disease should be stopped at the fountain head and marriages of mental and physical defectives should be prevented, so that unfit parents should not pass down to posterity their sins by bringing children into the world. All the government needs is the assurance of sufficient backing in public opinion to provide the necessary legislation.

Canadian children are not getting the right kind of instruction, said Judge Mott, many of the children in his court being in total ignorance of what the word religion means.

No child can have too good a start and the Adolescent Act is a fine thing as two years more at school would

U. S. OFFER IS A GENEROUS ONE

Sacrifices in Money and Aspirations More Than Japan and Britain.

ENGLISH COMMENT

Far-Flung Empire Different Proposition from Self-Contained U. S.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited.

London, Nov. 15.—General satisfaction is expressed in the newspapers this morning at Washington reports that the British and Japanese delegates rae prepared to accept in principle the Hughes' proposals. It is freely stated that the United States offers to make sacrifices both in money and in aspirations, which are greater than she asks of the other two nations. At the same time it is remarked that Britain, as a far-scattered empire, is sin quite a different position from the self-contained United States.

POWERS AGREE ON WORK PLAN

Debate Terminates in Decision to Adopt Committee Method.

FAR EAST SOLUTION

Entire Membership Will Consider the Pacific Question.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The real work of the armament negotiations was transferred today from the open conference to the more secluded precincts of the committee room.

After a debate which developed widely separated views on the advisability of giving publicity to the negotiations, the big five, comprising the chief delegates of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, settled on the committee plan as the only acceptable solution.

To one committee, whose membership will be identical with that of the full conference itself was assigned the task of working out a solution for the Far Eastern questions. Another, composed of all the delegates of the five great powers, was created to take over the negotiations on the main topic of armament limitation.

OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE

At the conclusion of the second meeting today the first official communique of the conference was issued outlining the decisions of the two committees. It follows:

"The committee on program and procedure with respect to the limitation of armament, appointed by the conference in its session of November 12, met at 11 a.m., Monday, November 14, at the pan-American Building, there being present the following delegates: Messrs. Hughes (Chairman), Balfour, Briand, Schanzer and Kato, with their respective secretaries.

"It was decided to recommend to the conference the appointment of a committee composed of all the plenipotentiary delegates of the United States, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan, to examine and report to the full conference with respect to limitation of armament and with power to set up such sub-committees as it might from time to time deem desirable. Mr. Hughes as Chairman of the Committee, and of the Conference undertook to submit this proposal to the conference.

HECKLE CRERAR AT BRANTFORD

Many Hostile Critics in the Audience at Manufacturing City.

GETS GOOD HEARING

In Spite of Sharp Battles Speaker was Frequently Warmly Cheered.

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 15.—Before an audence that evidetnly included many hostile critics, Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressive party, last night outlined his economic faith In Brantford the Progressive program with its plank of free agricultural implements is of particular interest, for the manufactures of Brantford are mainly agricultural implements, and Brantford was represented in the last Parliament by Mr. Cockshutt, an unswerving advocate of protection.

The heckler was quickly in evidence Speakers previous to Mr. Crerar were subjected to a running fire of comment, coming both from the body of the hall and from the crowd gathered on the platform behind the speakers. Mr. Crerar was more fortunate. Now and again some heckler would break his line of argument, but generally he was permitted to develop his views and frequently was warmly cheered. There were some sharp battles. However, Mr. Crerar was referring to Western farmers and alleged aspersions on their loyalty.

"Who were the men who rallied to the colors" Mr. Crerar challenged. "The farmers," a voice ironically replied from the rear of the platform.

"My friend does not know anything about it," said Mr. Crerar warmly. "Was there any hanging back in the ranks of labor? Was there any hanging back in the ranks of the farmers?"

"Yes, yes," shouted a number of voices in rapid succession.

"And I will tell my friends that they are wrong." Mr. Crerar replied.

There was more shouting of "Yes, yes."

Talks Back to Hecklers

Mr. Crerar singled out one of the hecklers. "There is one man I have not much respect for," he shot back, "it is a man who will dodge behind a pillar and throw slurs at the speaker on the platform."

"I can take you into scores of sections and show you how the boys went to the front," he added.

"Yes, when they had to," retorted a heckler.

"They were Englishment," shoulted another.

Mr. Crerar was about to reply when he was sharply interrupted by a voice from the platform. "Keep quiet, please," and Crerar approved. "One speaker is enough at a time."

The crowd applauded, and after a moment or two Mr. Crerar was able to continue.

"Alberta" he said, "is the most completely agricultural province in Canada. Before conscription was passed, there was no province that sent more boys to the colors, according to population, than did Alberta. I want to tell those who cast slurs on farmer's sons that those who went from the farms were farmers' sons. As a loyal patriotic Canadian, I am not going to stand here and hear one of the most important classes of our population have a stigma cast on them by gentlemen hiding at the back of the audience."

There was loud applause from the crowd.

Lady Heckler's Question

Some minutes later, a lady heckler appeared on the scene. She was standing in the centre aisle at the rear of the hall.

Mr. Crerar was speaking on agricultural implements.

"As president of the United Grain Growers," the lady heckler asked, "is it true that you bought agricultural implements in the United States while men in Canada were walking the streets and starving?"

"That's the question," shouted another voice.

Mr. Crerar: "I am not sure I caught the lady's question. I cannot say now what was the value of agricultural implements imported from the United States."

The lady heckler repeated her question.

Mr. Crerar: "The Grain Growers, the great co-operative organization, did buy agricultural implements from the United States."

"Why did you do it?" the lady heckler interrupted, and there was an outburst of applause.

It was a little while before Mr. Crerar could reply. Then he said: "I will tell you why they did it. They did it because Canadian manufacturers would not sell to them."

Mr. Crerar was passing to another feature of the Progressive platform when he was interrupted again. 'What about old age pensions?" he was asked.

"In a country like Canada, with its resources and possibilities," Mr. Crerar replied, "if you have just laws you don't need old age pensions."

GERMANY TELLS ALLIES SHE CANNOT PAY

Berlin, Nov. 15.—Germany has advised the Allies that she cannot pay the next instalment of the reparations, amounting to 700,000,000 gold marks, due January 15.

Germany is reported to have told the Allies that she is "at the end of her rope."

FOUND SHOT ALONE IN BOAT

Newboro Youth Was Taken to a Farm House, but Later Expired.

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 14.—Found lying semi-conscious in the bottom of a boat, which he was using to hunt ducks, and with shotgun wounds in the right arm, Charles Warren, aged 18, of Newboro, a cheesemaker, died at a farm house on Rideau Lake through loss of blood. Warren is believed to have accidentally shot himself while hunting alone and was not discovered until several hours afterwards, when Paul Lake, another young hunter, noticed his decoys and investigated.

Lake took Warren into his own boat, then to the farm house of Wm. Steadman, where he died. Warren was active in sport, and played last year on the Newboro hockey team, champions of Leeds county.

BRITAIN READY TO ACCEPT

Principle Involved in Hughes' Naval Proposals Through Balfour.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Hon. Arthur Balfour was at the conference on armaments today prepared to tender the Britsh Government's formal acceptance of the principle involved in the Hughes proposals. He had, however, a number of suggestions for their modification. There was a notable assemblage at the opening today. The galleries were filled with high army and naval officers and members of congress.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Baron Kato's statement of acceptance of Hughes' proposals followed that of Mr. Balfour. The session started at 11 a.m.

Premier Lloyd George today cabled to Hon. Mr. Balfour endorsing his attitude at the Armament Conference and declaring that the statements of President Harding and the Secretary were bold and statesmanlike.

After preliminaries Mr. Balfour rose in his place and immediately referred to the events of Saturday. "If for reasons which I venture to explain I am first to take up the challenge it is because of all members here assembled the country which I represent is the most intimately interested in naval questions. The statesmen of all countries were discovering that the labors of peace were almost as arduous as those required by the conduct of a successful war. In the minds of the Allies and associated powers November 12 would prove to be an anniversary not merely to restore peace, but to see that war conditions shall never again exist. I count myself among the fortunate," he said, in referring to Saturday's proceedings. "The secret

GOLDEN BRIDGE OF FRIENDSHIP

Between United States and Great Britain, With Canada as Centre Span.

E. GUSS PORTER, K.C.

Urges Rotarians to Speed Message of Sir Auckland Geddes for Anglo-Saxon Unity.

When Sir Auckland Geddes spoke of the Golden Bridge of Sympathy at the convention of the Canadian Bar Association at Ottawa he started something which may have far-reaching results. Sir Auckland Geddes is British Ambassador at Washington and is in a position to see strongly the necessity of a closer friendship between the Anglo-Saxon nations. Sir Auckland visualized Canada as the Golden Bridge of Sympathy and Friendship which would bring the United States and Great Britain into closer and more friendly relationship tending to make permanent the peace of Versailles and the peace of the world for all time. Sir Auckland Geddes' idea of a golden bridge was taken up vigorously by E. Guss Porter, K.C., before the Rotary Clubs of Belleville and other places and he has since been working upon a plan to interest all Rotary Clubs in the British Empire and the United States in a grand scheme to promote an international fellowship and friendship which will bring the Anglo-Saxon races together in one unbreakable bond of unity for the permanent peace and welfare of the world. Following up this idea Mr. Porter has made a design of a bridge with Uncle Sam and John Bull standing on the outer spans reaching out hands toward one another, and Jack Canuck standing upon the centre span which is founded upon a rock and only awaits the turning of the Rotary Wheel to unite the hands of the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

At the Rotary meeting Monday in the Hotel Quinte Mr. Porter made an impressive address outlining his idea of a Rotary International Campaign to promote Anglo-Saxon amity, and said:

Fellow Rotarians—

Sometime ago I took occasion to call your attention to, in fact I read to you a part of a famous speech made by that distinguished British diplomat, The Rt. Hon. Sir Auckland Geddes, K.C.B., British Ambassador at Washington, (who by the way is a Canadian) made at the Canadian Bar Association's Meeting in Ottawa, a short time before then.

Lest the idea or sentiment expressed in his exact language may have escaped you I venture to repeat it feeling that it cannot be impressed too strongly upon Anglo-Saxons of which race we Canadians form no inconsiderable part.

His words were these, addressing himself to Canada:

"And you Canada by the accident of your position, by community of interest, by knowledge and innumerable friendships are especially placed to help build the golden bridge of sympathy between the British Nation and the United States."

You are entitled to know for what reason if not by what right, I deemed it proper that I should bring before you the words I have just read—words which I venture to think will ever be remembered and both the words and the sentiment expressed by them I hope will not only now but in the future years of time keep fresh in the minds of the grateful people of a great Nation and of Nations within the Nation and of the Great American Republic the name of the man who had the foresight and the wisdom to utter them, with what I believe to have been his fervent wish that not only the Anglo-Saxon races but the World in general might profit and be made better and safer for humanity by the building of that Golden Bridge of Sympathy.

Permit me then to explain the why and the wherefor:

I had not the honor of being in the presence or hearing of the real man who gave voice to these words, but I had the great privilege of reading them very shortly thereafter as they were reported in the proceedings of the Canadian Bar Association, which Association is composed of the Great Jurists, the great Statesmen and Legislators and the greatest Lawyers in Canada, and on the occasion referred to they had associated with them as their guests men famous in similar walks of life from the neighboring American Republic. The meeting was held as I have said in Ottawa, the Capital City of Canada, the seat of Government of Canada, the home of the highest Court, The Supreme Court of Canada.

With such a setting and with such surroundings it is not to be wondered at that something great would transpire.

The Real Diamond

It was with this feeling that I obtained a record of The Rt. Hon. Sir Auckland Geddes, I thought I had discovered the great thing given currency to by the various speakers the "Real Diamond" the "Koinor" was discovered in the words and sentiment I took the liberty of calling to your attention and which I have again repeated.

The sentiment contained in the words referred to when I read them took a great hold upon me. I read the words and re-read them many times and pondered over them and the great possibilities offered by a faithful adherance to and carrying out of the great principle underlying it all and that might grow out of it in the future. I believed in it I could see a brighter and Happier world—A happier., more prosperous and contented people—the strife and conflict which ends in war, displaced by brotherly love and sympathy and the dawning of that condition where there will be "Peace on Earth and Good-will towards men."

I then began to look about for a means by which this desideratum might be attained and a motto by which its activities might be charaiterized.

Do Unto Others

I could not discover any better motto or working rule than that laid down by the Divine Master: "Do unto others as you would that others should do unto you."

I then proceeded to discover a successful means and canvassed many "Panaceas" that have been put forth at various times from many sources and from various view points but of those I considered some had already been shown to be faulty; others were either too comprehensive and involved or incomplete, but finally it seemed to me that the solving of the problem lay in individual and united service.

Service

As soon as the word "Service" came to me Rotary came with it—and as service is the keystone of Rotary and the "individual profits most who serves best" so in its extended application the Nation will profit most that serves best in bringing about or helping to bring about the happy condition to which Sir Auckland refered and so I have taken this occasion to present the matter to my fellow Rotarians for their approval and finally for approval of International Rotary and the adoption by it as one of the spokes in the Rotary wheel, hoping and believing that by the sincere, energetic and sympathetic efforts of Rotary a great and lasting work may be done towards the construction and maintenance of such a "Golden Bridge of Sympathy" as will not only be of advantage and increase the happiness, prosperity and safety of the British Empire and the American Union but from which all civilized Nations will feel its influence to their good.

American Revolution

I think it cause for the deepest regret that a British Government was so short sighted and autocratic as to give cause for the revolt of its Colony in America that led to the Independence of the United States, but that was not the first or the last example of Governments making mistakes, but I think it may fairly be said that the misake was made not with any deliberate intention of exercising authority autocratically for the purpose of oppression or with any idea that it would provoke a spirit of rebellion, and the resistance that was shown by the Colonies was only an assertion of the British spirit of fair play which I am happy to recognize has characterized the American people from then to the present time. The mistake, however, having been made which caused the breach and separation. I think I can yet assert with perfect truthfulness, that since that time both Great Britain and the United States have whenever occasion arose shown a spirit of sympathetic interest each in the other that has more than once been to the great advantage of both, and which I am sure has not been and never will be forgotten. I need only mention such occasions as the more recent one at Manilly Bay in the Spanish American War or in the last Great War which devastated so much of Europe and which brought such suffering, hardship and heartbreaks upon a great part of the civilized world and which ended so gloriously for Allied and Associated nations and saved the world. In that galaxy of Allied and Associated nations there is no need to enquire or to care 'who won the war", sufficient is it to say they were all fighting side by side for a victory for humanity and having won such a victory, and saved humanity and the world, the great essential is to maintain the position we have gained.

Canada's Opportunity

In all such great movements either for peace or for war there must be a leader and as Sir Auckland Geddes so clearly indicated in the speech referred to the part that Canada might play for the peace of the world, I believe it is only necesary to impress upon Canada her opportunity when her citizens will realize their duty and wll not shirk their responsibility—but there must be a lead to the movement and I believe lead can be taken by Rotary for two reasons if not more, namely, because speaking Internationally we are nearly 100,000 strong which gives us strength to carry on the work successfully and because the object is exactly in line with the great principal of Rotary.

In assuming to undertake the beginning of such a far-reaching and worldwide work in this Club, I do not believe that we would be thought to be arrogating to ourselves more than we have a right to do and that if we can succeed in impressing the spirit of the movement on Rotary in our own Club we can succeed Nationally and that it only requires to be made known that Canada is taking advantage of her opportunity to have the active and hearty co-operation of Rotary Internationally.

Hands Across Sea

I have taken occasion in a rough way to illustrate the idea expresed by an object drawing which with your permission I will exhibit and explain, the idea being that the illustration may be used to convey by a glance the underlying principle of the movement.

I am encouraged in bringing this matter before yu for your approval amongst other things by the fact as I have already mentioned that there is and always has been a sympathetic interest (sometimes dormant) between the two great English-speaking nations of the World—and which I venture to hope once awakened into persistent activity will spread with such rapidity and force as will be irresistable and will achieve the object at which such a movement is aimed.

The idea expressed in the words of Sir Auckland Geddes which I have quoted was not a mere passing thought but is one which I believe had taken a great hold upon him for I find on subsequent occasions he has taken opportunity to emphasize and enlarge upon it and such efforts have not been confined to occasions when he was in Canada or on British territory but even in the United States itself.

On a recent occasion when speaking in New York City I find him reported in the press of that City as using the following language:

Canada The Interpreter

"Canada has by force of circumcumstances the duty and privilege of being the interpreter of Britain to the United States, and of the United States to Britain. Canada's great deeds and achievements have predestined her to be the leader in securing cordiality between her partners and her neighbors. Read the manner of men the Canadians are, and you will never associate the idea of failure with their national effort. A return to normal conditions was contingent upon the establishment and maintenace of a proper international understanding. To live at peace in a spirit of war, as the world lived from 1900 to 1914, would not be enough. We must have world peace and the spirit of peace between the nations or humanity's convalescence may be indefinitely delayed."

Close Co-operation

To secure the peace and the spirit which are essential I firmly and truly believe that there must be, as the very foundation of our effort, close co-operation between all the English-speaking nations, and, indeed, between all the nations which draw their idea of government from that old mother of freedom—England. It is a good thing for the world that one of the great Dominions which constitute the British Empire is here in North America side by side, and cheek by cheek with the United States. Canada and the United States, with their long-drawn common frontier which for a hundred years and more has known no act of international hostility, can understand and sympathize with one another as they face in succession comon problems they face in succession common problems Canada as one of the great partners in the British commonwealth of nations can also understand and sympathize with Britain and Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India and their smaller partners as they face common problems and difficulties.

Canada Cannot Fail

Canada now has, by force of circumstances, a peculiar duty and a peculiar privilege thrust upon her—to be the interpreter of America to the Britons and of the Britons to America. Geographically free from the turmoil of Europe but sharing from the beginning to their end in Europe's struggles. It was Canada that pointed the way to Trans-Atlantic co-operation in war and peace. Her great deeds, her great achievements, predestined her to be a leader in securing cordiality between her partners and her neighbor. She can do what no other can. Beyond misunderstanding or possibility of successful misrepresentations, she can speak to America and to Britain and her partners about the world. Here is the responsibility and hers, if she succeeds in establishing a world friendship of the English-speakers, will be the glory. We know she will succeed. Nations, like men, can be judged by their records, and is a nation like Canada going to fail?

Canada In The War

Read the story of her gallant sons' doings while the world was still at war. Read of their flocking to arms—free men of a free country. Read of their deathless heroism at Ypres in unexampled danger, facing the unknown, the terrible, the gas cloud at its first using. Read them at Plug Street. Read of them at Vimy. Read of them at Passchendaele. Read of them and their doings in the last hundred days as they went to Cambrai and Mons, led by their gallant General, Sir Arthur W. Currie. Read, of if you were there, recall to memory, the manner of men the Canadians are, and you will never associate the idea of failure with their national effort. Do you imagine the men who marched and fought in the Canadian Corps and came home again wish to see another war? Never. They know the horror and the terror of war and the meaning of the words, "The blessings of peace."

Close Neighbors

The Atlantic is broad, and news that goes across it in either direction seems to suffer a sea change whether it passes by cable or mail but there is no transforming medium between Canada and the United States. Each must know the other as it is, and each being what it is must respect and admire the good qualities of the other.

"Canadians, on you is laid the high destiny of being interpreters and mighty smiths—interpreters of the great qualities of England to the United States and of the United States to England—great qualities that each possess unseen by the other because of the mists of traditional misunderstanding or repeated misrepresentation—mighty smithy to forge links of mutual respect and understanding which shall at the last bind the nations in co-operation to serve the cause of peace and to win renewed prosperity for mankind."

President Harding

Still more recently I find the President of the Great Republic giving expression to the same sentiment. He is reported as follows:

"Standing where Cornwallis surrendered the last vestige of British rule in America to General Washington, President Harding to-day pledged himself to the promotion of 'an enduring friendship' between the United States and Great Britain and declared the time had come for closer co-operation between the nations for the betterment of the world—'We stand at the dawn of a new day in which nations shall be stronger for contribution to the world's betterment, because each will feel the assurance of common purpose and united aspiration and the security of a common devotion to the ends of peace and of civilization'."

Lloyd George

Great statesmen in Great Britain cherish the same idea and the hope. Lloyd George said:

"The alliance of the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race means the salvation of the World."

Pemberton Billings, M.P., said:

"An all-English speaking alliance must be formed. The alternative is the dawn of civilization. Surely if these two Nations speaking a common language and having most aims in common cannot agree there is small chance of a league of Nations. Disagreements arise from misunderstandings. Misunderstanding arise because one Nation cannot transfer to another language the exact shade of thought intended. An English-speaking alliance will save civilization."

Theodore Roosevelt

Theodore Roosevelt, ex-President of the United States in a letter written a short time before his death to Major George Haven Putman urged that the Great War should be followed by a close alliance of the English-speaking peoples.

Mr. Justice Riddell

The Hon. Wm. Renick Riddell, a Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, in speaking before the Ohio State Bar Association a short time ago, very forcibly expressed the necessities of to-day by saying:

"There never was a time in the history of the world when it was more important that the English-speaking peoples should stand together, should understand each other, should appreciate the principle and objects of each other.

"The whole civilized world is shell shocked, is living a non-normal life, the nerves aquiver and the sensibilities abnormally acute and there are those who talk as lightly of war between the United States and Great Britain as of a summer excursion."

"It has been my pleasant avocation for years to make your people better known to ours and our people better known to yours, feeling and knowing that the more the English-speaking peoples know of each other the more they will recognize that they are the same in all that is worth considering.'

And after reciting Lloyd George's watchward to the British Empire, Justice Riddell concludes:

"American successors to the Revolutionary heroes who dared all for the cause they assuemed to be right, heirs of Washington and Lincoln are we the kind of men you wish as friends, as comrades and as very brothers.

"We hold out to you the hands of invitation. I had almost said entreaty, but that word we British shall never use—will you grapple us to your soul with hoops of steel. Friends we have been—each has tried the adoption of the other. Sixty thousand Canadians fought in the American Army to free the slave—ten thousand Americans in the Canadian Army to free the world—are we now and forever to stand side by side and if need be fight side by side for the right. The whole world awaits the answer spelling as it must 'Woe incalculable and illimitable or the reign of peace and righteousness."

I might continue to repeat the expressions of many other great statesmen, jurists and journalists, as showing that there is a real genuine and sincere feeling or desire for a bond of friendship between the English-speaking Nations with the ultimate object of peace and the benefit of humanity.

I have only mentioned these few in order that the force of great opinions might be felt and to demonstrate to Rotary the solid backing it will have in any efforts it may see fit to make along the lines indicated.

A Century Ago

I might even have gone back a century ago when the American Ambassador Rush said "Let the peace between the United States and England be broken and the arch which supports the peace of the World falls in ruins or that great American General Jackson who in 1832 declared that it was for the interest of both parties to preserve inviolate the good understanding then existing and thought that the two peoples were cemented by a community of language, manners and social habits and by the high obligations we owe to our British ancestors for many of our most valuable institutions and for that system of representative government which has enabled us to preserve and improve them.

Stephen Leacock

You will permit me I am sure to make one more very modern reference in the speech to Dr. Stephen Leacock head of the department of Political Economy in McGill University delivered at Oxford University only on the 28th of October last, he said:

"The vast communities of peoples gathered under the British and American flags represent an organization of power easily superior to any force that could conceivably be brought against it. Where these two nations lead the world must follow. Peace and war lie in their hands. On the other hand, disagreement between Britain and America spells ruin—not only for themselves but for the world. So great is the power of each that war betwen them could mean nothing but mutual destruction. Neither could conquer; both must fall.

"The efforts of every honest citizen should be bent towards the maintenance of peaceful relations and mutual understanding. There is no question here of union, in the narrower sense, of federation in its organic form. A century and a half ago it might have been. But the page is written and cannot be blotted out.

"But for the more real form of union there is still ample opporunity. The basis is there in a common speech, a comon literature and a common tradition. To a great extent the tie of a common descent still holds. The union that is needed is not one that is contrived with pen and ink and written on a scrap of paper, but the union that reflects an understanding and a common purpose, a union of sympathy and not of symbols."

Get Together

To my thinking the best and truest means of union is to be sought in enlightenment. Our quarrels in the past have arisen from our lack of knowledge of one another, our inability, through ignorance, to share one another's point of view. For this the remedy is better knowledge. The more we can interchange our thoughts the more certain are we of agreement. As far as possible, we should seek to share one another's ideas, through books, through the press, through the drama.

In business men have long since found out that the personal relation is everything. We must apply the same to our political relations. We must not rely upon conclaves of cabinets and congressmen. We must know one another. In the fact of such knowledge ill-will will vanish, and British-American union, without bond or pledge or contract, will become a fact.

Awake Slumbering Embers

It will, I think, be apparent from these references that there has always been, and is, to put it as mildly as possible a sympathetic feeling between these two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon family but that it has to great extent been lying dormant, yes, more than that, certain elements have been and are now trying to stir up discord, misunderstandings and difficulties with the object of estranging the two nations and putting out entirely the slumbering embers of friendship and what Sir Auckland Geddes has done is to apply a fresh torch to kindle a living fire that will consume all elements of discord and make it possible by co-operation, earnest and faithful endeavor, self sacrifice and service to achieve the great object of a peaceful world and a happy humanity.

If you approve of the sentiments expressed, and believe with me that Rotary can be a great factor in bringing about the conditions desired, I ask that you express such approval as a Club and authorize that it be laid before the International Executive for further action.

The manner in which Rotary can best proceed along the lines indicated to bring about the desired result, can, I should think be best worked out and laid down for use by individual clubs and their members by an International Committee to make each recommendation to the International Executive as may to them open a survey of the field, serve best and for action upon it by the Executive."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Mary Mary—Red hands, especially if they are inclined to chap, are very distressing. The best preventative, I can recommend to you is CAMPANA's ITALIAN BALM. Rub it thoroughly into your hands every night and morning and particularly after each washing of your hands, because it is the continuous washing incident to housework that makes them chapped and get red. CAMPANA's ITALIAN BALM will prevent both chapping and redness, and you will do well to use it. You will also be well advised to massage your face with it night and morning. You can buy CAMPANA's ITALIAN BALM at any Druggist. 40c. a large bottle. MARGARET.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Mary: "Is there any book I could purchase by mail that would tell me how to make all kinds of candies and bonbons at home—including chocolate creams?"

Answer: Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will send you the name of such a book, together with the name of its publisher, inquiring the price of the book plus the parcel postage you would have to pay on it.

A Soldier's Mother: "Is there any way that I can keep my boy's letters, written to me when he was fighting in France during the War, from fading or blurring out? They were all written in pencil and I prize them so much. Some day I may have a daughter-in-law and grandchildren who will also want to keep them."

Answer: Yes, you can preserve them in their original state by this simple method: Boil a kettleful of clear water until steam is coming from the spout with a rush. Hold one sheet of the letters at a time in the cloud of steam, turning it all ways so that every part of the writing is steamed When the page feels quite limp, pin it up for a few minutes. Then mix ½ cup of milk and ½ cup of cold water together in a bowl and, with a soft brush, spread this milk-and-water mixture over the surface of the letter. The letter must lie flat on a table while you do this. Hang the letter up, then, until it is almost dry. Then place it between two large sheets of white blotting paper, with books heaped on top to weight down. I know just how precious those letters must be to you. Many mothers are framing them.

Reader: "I have a cousin who lives in a nearby city and works in a cleaning establishment. She frequently has to clean gloves, collars, ribbons etcetera, by hand and she is troubled by the odor of gasoline which remains on the hands even long after she has touched gasoline. When her gentleman friend takes her out in the evening she is embarrassed by this clinging odor. What can she do?"

Answer: A handful of ordinary table salt rubbed on the hands after using gasoline, will take away the odor. I would advise your cousin to keep a jar of salt at her place of business and beside it a bottle filled with either bran-water or oatmeal-water. The salt removes the odor of gasoline and the oatmeal or bran-water applied to the hands immediately after using salt keeps the skin from becoming irritated from the salt.

D. R.: Kindly repeat your recently published recipe for Dill Pickles. I missed it.

Answer: To Put Up One Quart of Dill Pickles: Fill a glass jar with cucumbers the size of a finger and between them sprinkle a few dill seeds. When the jar is filled add 1 tablespoon of salt and pour cold water into the jar till full. Put more dill seed on the top of pickles and a few grape tendrils if you have them, then seal air-tight. Each day put the closed jars in the sun. The water will get cloudy and then, in time, it will clear again—then the pickles are ready for use.

Tomorrow—Planning the Thanksgiving Dinner.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. THE HUNTER'S BARNYARD AGAIN

"It's just like this," said Red Fox as he drew close to the King of the Forest. "I have been terribly offended. I cannot go anywhere in the forest but someone asks me about stealing chickens from the Hunter who lives by the bridge. Now I'm not going to attend any frolic to forest creatures when they are all the time telling me I am a thief."

"I can't understand why any of the forest dwellers would say such a thing about you unless they knew it was true. You know the only fellow who would say it would be Jerry, the Jay Bird, and he isn't worth bothering about. Tell me, when did you hear the last time from any of the dwellers of the forest?"

"O King, I heard just last night about it while I was sleeping."

"How could you hear it in your sleep?"

"I don't mean that I heard it while I slept but I was sleeping and I heard a sound that woke me up and I listened and what I heard was that the Hunter had been losing his chickens and then I heard the name of Red Fox, and I knew that they were talking about me stealing the Hunter's chickens."

"Well, Red Fox, you are guilty after all aren't you? Didn't you try to steal one of the Hunter's chickens? There is nothing wrong about telling the truth about anyone for the Great Spirit of the Forest knows the truth anyway and he is the one you will have to account to."

"No, O King, I didn't get a taste of the Hunter's chicken."

"I wasn't speaking about your getting a taste. I said you did try to steal the Hunter's chicken and if that is the truth you should not feel badly because someone of the Forest speaks about it."

"That isn't all, O King," said Chief Porky, "I can tell you what the trouble is. The fact that Red Fox has been again to the Hunter's barnyard and has taken more chickens. It's because of this that he is worried, O King."

Of all the looks you ever saw was the look that Red Fox gave Chief Porky for telling the King about his trips to the Hunter's barnyard!

"O that is the trouble then," said Tinker Bob, "Well, you must expect that the Forest Creatures will talk about you then. Now listen to me, for that you will come to the frolic tonight and I will tell all of the Forest folks about you and see if they can all watch you. Then if it happens again I will tell the Hunter that he can set a trap for you in his chicken house, and if he catches you he will take your hide to town and sell it for a sack of flour to keep him thru the winter."

"O that is the trouble then."

The King called all of the forest creatures together and Red Fox hung his head.

CHARLES RAY IN "FORTY-FIVE MINUTES FROM BROADWAY"

One of the amusing situations with which Charles Ray's first independent picture, "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," is filled, occurs when Mr. Ray as Kid Burns is given the combination of the safe and locks the paper containing it in the safe to protect it. Later this proves a very fortunate circumstance for the hero.

The villain and adventuress, in search of the missing will, attempt to blow up the safe, and Burns, anxious over the fate of the combination, arrives on the scene just in time to foil them. "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway' proved a screen treat when it was exhibited at Griffin's last night and is being exhibited again to-morrow night along with a Sunshine comedy, Vanishing Trails serial and a Travelogue.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" AT GRIFFIN'S TONIGHT

Jiggs Mahoney and Maggie, his irrepressible better-half; Dinty Moore and the rest of the Mahoney clan have invaded the sacred and dangerous confines of Wall street with the result that one may expect a grand old time at Griffin's Opera House tonight, where "Bringing Up Father in Wall Street," the latest George McManus triumph, will hold the boards.

The latest version of the popular McManus cartoons of the same title is a typical musical comedy in two acts and five scenes interspersed with real melodies, real features, screams, guffaws, riot of color, hilarity and laughs and a capable interpreted company.

A flower and sick committee, appointed by Mrs. A. E. Phillips, as convener, was decided upon. All were pleased to listen to an excellent address on "Combatting Infectious Diseases," given in a clear and able manner by Dr. Louise Tower of Belleville, whom it is hoped to have address the institute again. Of Interest to Women

Wrist purses fastened on grosgrain bands are being shown.

Lovely and striking ornaments for the hair continue in high favor.

London shops are favoring coats with deep borders of fur, among which are many long-haired pelts.

Capes fashioned of tweed with frocks to match are being shown for sports, travel and utility wear.

Gorgeous fans of straight or curled ostrich are sharing honors which the transparent ones trimmed with glittering sequins or hand painted.

A new fabric for underthings is "crepe d'or," a heavy quality crepe de chine with an allover fine polka dotting done in gilt. It is guaranteed washable.

Bloomer frocks for small girls increase in popularity. For cold weather wear this year some very practical little models of corduroy are used. One little smock dress of black velveteen had bloomers of black and white checked silk.

The vogue of bright red continues. A new trotter frock of navy blue twill is trimmed with lines of black braid and square motifs of red and black patent leather. An afternoon frock of black moire silk has a sash of red velvet ribbon with long ends attached to rosettes.

One can not imagine the essays of Emerson and the verses of Tennyson standing in a dignified row between festive little dancing-girl book ends; but volumes of light verse or books of compelling epigrams, or vivid novels one reads just to see what they are like, are quite at home.

Graceful little ballet-girl bookends made of tinted bisque, with bits of costume picked out in gold and jewel effect, have a charm in blithely furnished boudoirs, and in the collections of all sorts of things found in bachelor apartments, and just now the ballet-girl book-ends are having a vogue and are considered quite the smartest thing.

Mrs. Albert De Courville better known to theatre patrons as Shirley Kellogg is the proud mother of three lovely children.

SCISSOR BANDITS STEAL BRAIN BABIES.

Some editors are so darned busy that they do not have any time to write editorials, so they use the scissors, which is perfectly legitimate, but—they sometimes forget to give credit where credit is due. Isn't it a grand and glorious feeling to see your brain babies—poor and scrawny though they may be—palmed off by others as their own? And isn't it even a more glorious feeling to see the same wee brain babies carefully placed upon an editorial pinnacle in some larger paper and credited to the scissors fiend who clipped them? News stories are public property, but let us have some respect for ourselves and for the industry of the other fellow by giving honest editorial credit. The paper with a pilfered editorial column will get a reputation as a dud, and even original matter will be classed with the rest by readers who, if they are interested at all, will wonder "Where did they get that?"

CRERAR FRANKLY CRITICIZED BY WESTERN PAPER.

A fellow is generally pretty well known about his own home town, and a public man is always better sized up in his own bailiwick, even though a prophet may go without honor in his own country. This man Crerar, who has come out of the west with a strange message for industrial eastern Canada, and the agricultural districts depending upon the industrial centres for a market, is best known in Brandon district where he signs the pay roll for that modest little salary of fifteen thousand dollars per year and extras. Hon. Mr. Crerar may be a most excellent man in many respects and still be sadly mistaken upon the fiscal question, and the Brandon Sun from its advantage of close-up relationship with the western grain giant, has the following to say about him:

> "Every additional statement by Hon. T. A. Crerar is just another expression of political opinions and principles from the class point of view of the farmer party.
> "They are collections of generalisms and moralisms without facing any of the difficult problems before the country or efficient demonstrations of administrative ability.
> "Unless the political farmers' party seeks purposely to becloud the public mind, their leaders' manifestoes will get them nowhere beyond their own class.
> "From the arguments of the honesty-hucksters and Mr. Crerar the people are asked to believe that his chosen people should be in power and his opponents in jail. These sweeping charges of wholesale public corruption lack proof, even in the literary efforts of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. The accusations of the political farmers against their fellow citizens are more than clap-trap, they are dishonest.
> "There is more selfish interest in the campaign fund collections to the political farmers' class than desire to serve the country or national interests.
>
> "Hon. T. A. Crerar complains that the farmers are being criticised unfairly in connection with their trading companies. The farmers' party invited that when they entered politics and criticised the "Big Interests," which are beginning to look pretty small interests against those of the farmers' monopoly.
>
> "Mr. Crerar asks: "Is it not a perfectly legitimate thing for the farmers to get together and organize for the handling of grain?" Of course it is legitimate, but the political farmers are the main critics of any other body of shareholders which does that very thing. How far does the monopoly of the farmers' class wish to extend itself? Do they intend to smash every city business and all interests in order to boost their own profiteering corporations? The co-operative interests of the organizations of farmers today can easily rig the grain market and practically fix the high prices the people pay for farm produce."

THE PRUSSIAN OUT OF A JOB

Woodstock Sentinel-Review

General Ludendorf, in his new book on "War and Politics" tells the German people that the great trouble with them is that they have not sufficiently absorbed the principles of Prussian "kultur". He declares that their international tendencies prevent their understanding the true psychology of the world. "We failed to emphasize sufficiently that might make right and that one's own people is everything". But if might makes right then Germany must have been very wrong. Even General Ludendorf ought to be able to see that.

"BIG INTERESTS"

Hamilton Spectator

It is surprising to learn of the London Advertiser, one of the most extreme of Grit Organs, indirectly rebuking its big brother, the Toronto Globe, by publishing words of praise for the "big interests." It says:

"Now, don't run away with the idea that 'big interests' means grafting on the public, plotting behind closed doors, or lobbying and bribing for things that could not be done out in the open. The 'big business' concerns of to-day are conspicuous for their efficiency, for their efforts to reward merit in their service, to promote their men according to their worth, to buy in the cheapest and best markets, to eliminate waste, to introduce the newest and most satisfactory methods of production. Competition with the rest of the world makes all these things necessary. In short, any business that aims to grow and develop in a big way must follow these cardinal principles, and there is no way in which they can be avoided or dodged."

There is evident need of the opponents of the Government and "big business" getting together, to ascertain just where they are "at."

THE LESSON OF THE WOODS

(By H. D. Fornere)

If you are worn, and long for quiet rest,
Away from city strife and business cares
Go to the woods, the sun-clad mountain crests,
And learn the lesson that Dame Nature bares.

If you are weary of life's tinsel craze,
And long for all that's honest, true and best,
Go to the lakes, the bonnie woodland braes;
All nature speaks of hope and heavenly rest.

If you're oppressed and lining darksome looks,
With nothing left to memory but a sigh;
Go to the grassy vales, the baabbling brooks,
You'll soon forget, and nature glorify.

If you are losing faith in human kind
And doubt that there's a living God on high,
If you are racked with torture of the mind,
And crave for truth and all it may imply:

Go to the woods, where myriad creatures throng,
Where every whisper the swaying trees
The rippling white cascade, the birds sweet song,
The wondrous faults' growth, the gentle breeze;
The soothing patter of the lake's lapped shore,
All speaks to you of God. You'll doubt no more.

A Laugh or Two

What a Dog'

"My friend Henridge had a most intelligent retriever," said Mr. Johnson.

"One night Henridges's house caught fire. All was instant confusion.. Old Henridge and his wife ran for the children and bundled out with them in quick order. Alas, one of them had been left behind!

"But up jumped the dog, rushed into the house, and soon reappeared with the missing child. Every one was saved. But Pongo dashed through the flames again. What did the dog want? No one knew. Presently the noble animale reappeared, scorched and burned, with—what do you think?"

"Give it up" cried the eager listeners.

"With the fire insurance policy, wrapped in a damp towel!"

"Rather!" agreed his female companion. "ut wot are they 'awking 'Enery?"

"Blessed if I know," responded the puzzled 'Enery, "unless they're tryin' to sell their bloomin' parrots."

CHILDREN'S AID NEEDS MONEY

you my report of the work of the past year. We feel we can say that there is no organization in this part of the Province whose work is better, or becoming more favourably known. The idea has steadily grown in all Social Service Work that the most successful effort is that directed toward the upholding and strengthening of family ties, for it is a fact and goes without saying that nothing else on earth can replace a mother's care and influence. We have many times been able to effect reconciliations and make the home a fit and proper place for children, and matters have been arranged so that the children have been left in the care of the parent under our supervision. This preventive work cannot very well be tabulated as influences are exerted and we believe that results are achieved that time alone will reveal the out come, yet this phase of our work is even more important than that which is brought so prominently before the Public in formative measures.

HELPFUL SERVICE

Your officer has sought to instil into the minds of the people with whom he comes in contact with daily that our desire is to befriend them, to help them to preserve family ties and not to sever them; to better and not destroy the home. (And I would like to emphasize that this evening we must save the home for the child; not remove the child unless utterly compelled). We strongly feel that a complaint followed by an investigation is not enough, but that should be followed up. If we are to accomplish our purpose of saving the homes for our boys and girls, the Rotarians of our city are taking a great interest in the boys and are materially helping in the building of the character of the boy.

BIG SISTERS

But we need someone to take an interest in the girls. I would like to see a branch of the Big Sister Association formed. Who will take the lead in this for the sake of the girls? During the past year two very important and welcome bills have been passed by our House of Legislature, and are now in force. One provides for the Adoption of Children. Prior to the Act coming into force we really had no legal adoption to children. Either party to the adoption agreement could break it if they so desired. Hereafter any family wishing to adopt a child must apply to Mr. Kelso, the Provincial Officer, who if satisfied will issue a certificate of approval which is then submitted to the County Judge for ratification.

The other is an Act. The Protection of the Children of Unmarried Parents By this Act the Provincial Officer, Mr. J. J. Kelso with such deputies as he may appoint is placed entirely in charge of the protection of the children of unmarried parenthood throughout the province.

FEEBLE MINDED

While congratulating ourselves on the progress made it is most unfortunate to be obliged to confess that there is one highly important question as to which no progress is being made or at present seems probable and that is the care of the feeble minded. We meet these unfortunates both among neglected and delinquent and we have no adequate means of dealing with them. When they are neglected we cannot usually assume their guardianship because they are not suitable for placing out in foster homes. When they are delinquent we are almost at a loss. The one suitable institution that at Orillia is chronically overcrowded. There is therefore only the industrial schools and committing of feeble minded children there is neither fair to the school or the defectives.

AMOUNT OF WORK

No person excepting those who have been through our office and examined our records can have an adequate idea of the great amount of work in this department, in looking after records and the situation which is required to the almost flood of enquiries.

During the year 769 people called at the office with troubles or information of one kind or another.

Telephone calls innumerable.

We received 1030 pieces of mail sent out 1703 letters giving information asked for or in search of information.

We had thirteen children resident in the Shelter at the commencement of the year.

Our invstigations involved 189 children. Of these 43 were made wards, 10 were sent to the Industrial Schools, 4 children were placed in the Ontario Hospital at Orillia, 1 boy was placed in the Institute for the Deaf at Belleville, 1 girl was placed in the Hospital for Incurable Children at Toronto, 3 wards have died during the year, 100 wards have been placed or replaced. 246 wards throughout the county have been visited.

We have now in residence at the Shelter only 14 children ranging in age from three years to fifteen years of age all looking for a good home. Will you take one? (Inasmuch as ye do it to one of these little ones ye do it until Him who said "Suffer the little ones to come unto Me for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.")

During the past year we have carried the smallest average number of children per month than for many years back our average being about eighteen. We have been greatly assisted by Mr. Kelso and Inspectors in other districts, helping us to find homes for some of our wards.

In carrying out the work of the Society, your Inspector has travelled approximately 5381 miles in all kinds of weather and over all kinds of roads.

Permit me in bringing my report to a close to sincerely thank everyone who as in anyway contributed to the uplifting of the neglected and dependent child. I appreciate very much indeed the kindness shown me and the assistance given.

To the Chief of Police and his staff who have ever been ready to assist in any way possible; Mr. S. Masson; Mr. Bedford; Mr. O'Rourke and Mr. Casement; Police Magistrates; Reeves of the different townships who have willingly assisted in any case needing their attention, and our honorary solicitor, Mr. Wm. Carnew, ever ready day or night to give advice or legal aid, to all I tender my sincere thanks.

Yours respectfully,
THOS. D. RUSTON,
Inspector.

NEW MEDICINE MAKES MILLIONS WELL

Will be a Revelation to Suffering Humanity—Cleans Liver in a Few Minutes — Symptoms of Liver Trouble are: Sallow Complexion, Bad Taste in Mouth on Rising, Tired, Out of Sorts, etc.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles, as: Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No Salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self-eliminating. It does not have a nauseating, sickening feeling next day, like so many similar drugs. You no doubt have been taking all sorts of laxatives, salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these drew liquid from the blood and, tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the Bile to be excreted, from the Liver into the Bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your Bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your Bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious, bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sale by McKeown, Druggist.

You'll gladly discard your razor of Yesterday

WITH acknowledgements to your razor of yesterday for faithful service, you will gladly discard it for the 75% improvement in shaving quality brought by the New Improved Gillette.

On August 31st, 1920, the Patent Office at Ottawa granted the Gillette Safety Razor Co. a patent broadly covering the New Improved Gillette, of which the patentable features are as important and as revolutionary as those of the ordinary Gillette.

But a still greater award than that of the Patent Office has been granted by the men who have shaved with the New Improved Gillette and have given it their positive approval as the most perfect shaving instrument ever produced.

NOTE.—One of the first things to strike the user of the New Improved Gillette is its simplicity.

Most men prefer to screw the handle up tight to get the most satisfactory shave.

The Gillette Blade and Gillette Razor are developed to work together. No Gillette Blade can deliver its full shaving quality unless used in a genuine Gillette Razor—built by Gillette, in the Gillette way and up to Gillette standards.
